"I think about two days. I don't know right, because we could'nt tell at all. The bread was all gone before our last oil was burned."

"Where were you when the flood came?"

"Me and John (John Tominsky) were in our breast further up the gangway. We heard some yelling and ran out. When we got on the gangway the water was coming up. We started to run to the slope, but it stopped us. It got very deep, and we ran into the breast and climbed upon it. Frinko and John Barno where climbing up, too. I don't know how they got in, but we all got up to the top together. The water came up maybe 20 yards from the top. We crawled into the heading and stayed there all the time, except when we went down the breast for water."

"Did you sleep much?"

"Oh, yes; I slept a good deal. We all slept all we could, but the thirst was awful. It just burned us, and the sulphur was very bad."

"Did you think you would ever get out?"

"Oh, yes; we thought they would get us, but we got frightened. First Barno and John got a little wild and sang and laughed, but I lay still."

The physicians forbade any further conversation, and in a few minutes Joe was fast asleep.

Many stories have been sent out about the men eating rats, etc. They are all totally untrue. There was never a rap heard by any of the explorers. The first indication that anyone was alive was the sound of Joe's voice heard by Kelshaw, when the latter was trying to get up the breast through the black damp. They made no explorations, for they only had a space 60 by 30 feet to move in and that on an incline of 45 degrees. They ate no rats for they never saw any. All of the men imprisoned in the mine have now been accounted for. There were eighteen of them. Ten were found scattered along the gangway who had met instant death by drowning. Four had got No. 1 breast and had been suffocated, as already reported in in The World, and four were found alive and rescued.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

That Tired Feeling

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BROOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PHEBE MOSHER, 99 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1891.

Mr. Stevenson's Committee Rooms, old Council Chamber, Opera House. Block, open every evening. All supporters of the present Government and those who are ready to support the Liberal-Conservative Candidate are invited to the rooms to take part in the work of the Campaign.

THE LUMBER INDUSTRY.

Every interest in Canada would be injured by unrestricted reciprocity. The Liberals claim that the lumbering industry would be benefitted, but Mr. E. W. Rathbun, head of the great Rathbun company of Deseronto, has written a letter strongly opposing the Liberal policy and declaring that he will support the Government of Sir John Macdonald. Mr. D. Gilmour, of Trenton, of the well-known Gilmour firm, has written Mr. Corby, the Conservative candidate in West Hastings, that he will have great pleasure in supporting him and the Sir John Macdonald's administration.

The Liberal policy would hurt the lumbering industry by its bad effect upon the country generally, and, as Mr. Rathbun points out, by endangering their trade with countries other than the United States.

The manufacturing, agricultural, lumbering and every industry of Canada would suffer if the people adopt the Liberal policy.

THE LAST DAY.

The Winter Meeting on the Little Lake Closes with a Good Day's Sport.

There was a large crowd on the ice of the Little Lake yesterday to witness the second day of the winter meeting of the local association. The day was cold and the track was in first class condition. The programme consisted of the unfinished colt and 2.40 race postponed from Thursday, and the three minute and 2.30 trot. These events furnished some good sport, the heats all being closely contested.

The colt race was won by Connors Bros.' Fred S, with Jas. Elmhirst's Johny H second and Ed. Daly's John D. (Lindsay) third. A protest was entered against the last two horses, it being alleged they were over four years old.

The unfinished 2.40 race was won by Geo. Curtis' Jerry (Lindsay), with D. Lake's Rowdy Boy (Belleville) second and George May's Paddy (St. Catharines) third.

The summary of the three minute trot was as follows:—

D. Lake's Rowdy Boy	1	1	1
J. Newall's Gladstone	2	2	2
R. Croft's Billy C	4	3	3
Geo. Mitchell' Livery Maid	3	4	dr

The summary of the 2.30 trot was as follows:—

Geo. Curtis' Jerry	2	1	1	1
Geo. May's Paddy	1	2	2	2
Brown's Mattie B.	3	3	3	3

There was not three starters entered for the colt stallion race and this event did not come off.

The Best Result.

Every ingredient employed in producing Hood's Sarsaparilla is strictly pure, and is the best of its kind it is possible to buy. All the roots and herbs are carefully selected, personally examined, and only the best retained. So that from the time of purchase until Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared, everything is carefully watched with a view to attaining the best results. Why don't you try it?

MR. BOAS EXPOSED.

THE SELF-STYLED FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE BAULKED IN HIS TRICKS.

Chagrined at the Manufacturers Because they Rejected his Scheme to Try to Form a Combine—A Humbug Free Trader.

In last night's Examiner and in a fly-sheet a letter is published from Mr. F. Boas in which Mr. Jas. Kendry's statement at the Liberal meeting is said to be contradicted. Mr. Crerar in giving statements on Mr. Boas' authority, said that Mr. Boas was one of the largest woollen manufacturers in the country. This Mr. Kendry denied, and at last night's meeting he proved that he was right.

This Mr. Boas, however, professed to be a great friend of the people. He exclaims, in virtuous indignation, "Down with traitors who want to make a free people slaves." To which the people will answer hear! hear! And the traitor is Mr. Boas himself, who tried to induce Canadian manufacturers to enter into a scheme with him to raise prices, and because they refused now denounces all manufacturers but his immaculate self. The Belleville Intelligencer publishes the following, which shows what a great heart this humbug has for the people:—

From JAS. A. CANTLIE & Co.,

MONTREAL, Feb. 25.

MY DEAR SIR,—In answer to your enquiry I beg to say that Mr. Feodor Boas came to see me several times in regard to the formation of an association of the knitted goods manufacturers in order to obtain better prices for their goods.

Your respectfully,

JAS. A. CANTLIE.

P. S.—Mr. John S. Shearer confirms the above, as he had also interviews with Mr. Boas. Enclosed find a proposed agreement as put forward by Mr. Boas.

JOHN S. SHEARER.

The proposition Mr. Boas made was as follows:—

PROPOSITION.

The Manufacturers shall form an Association for the control and sale of the entire production of Knitted goods in such a manner that the quantity to be produced is regulated per set as well as the various lines to be produced, according to the fitness of the various manufacturers' corporations by their respective machinery for such production, on a fair and equitable basis.

Having now arrived by such calculations at the actual cost to the manufacturer of each line, a certain percentage of profit shall be added to such cost for the manufacturer; also, a further percentage to cover loss of interest, management of the Association, and risk of selling. This risk is to be calculated at the rate of two and one-half per cent, and in order to give to such houses as are in a position to pay cash for their goods on or about first of following month of delivery an advantage over such houses, who by taking time for payment, are virtually the only houses with whom risk is run, the said 2½ per cent. is to be allowed in addition to the ordinary discount for prepayment to such cash buyers; thereby making such houses pay for their risk (which) with whom only risk is taken. A rate of profit for the manufacture will then require to be determined, which will include commission to the former selling agent of such mill or mills. This will establish the selling price of each line of goods, and while of necessity THEY WILL BE HIGHER THAN HERETOFORE, care must be used that the goods will not be sold at such a high figure as would exact the utmost percentage of profit obtainable under our present tariff. The object of the Association being solely to enable the invested capital and energy of manufacturers to be made fairly remunerative, and to allow them to pay fair (labor) wages to their help for labor performed.

Mr. Kendry last night read a letter from Mr. D. Morrice, of Morrice, Sons & Co., Montreal, stating that while he was absent Mr. Boas attempted to get his firm to enter into this scheme, which was prepared exclusively by Mr. Boas himself, and that he had seen the proposition, but like the others had refused to have anything to do with it.

"A MAN OF PRINCIPLE."

Mr. Boas is a great "man of principle," according to himself, but the Intelligencer adds this also about him:—

"We state, on the authority of the Commissioner of Customs at Ottawa, that Feodor Boas entered at the customs, a case of goods in 1886 as 'samples,' which are free. On examination of the case, it was found they were not samples but ribbons of the value of about $300, and were seized and confiscated for having been fraudently entered."

And this is the man Sir Richard Cartwright has brought into Ontario to "instruct" the people—the man upon whose authority they wish the people to receive their statements and the man they wish the electors to be guided by!

Unrestricted Reciprocity Would Cripple the Town and Hurt the Farmers.

The following appears as a communication in the Sherbrooke Gazette from the manufacturers of that section, including some of the largest concerns in the country:—

SIR,—Will you kindly give insertion to the following declaration on our part as to the effect likely to ensue should the men pledged to unrestricted reciprocity with the United States attain to power:—

We unhesitatingly declare our belief that should such a result take place our manufacturing interests would be doomed to destruction, for it would be impossible for us to compete against the enormous capital of the United States.

We consider that our industries, by affording a home market for farm products, benefit the farming community even more directly than the manufacturers themselves, for the development of manufactures as well as of the mineral wealth of the country must be of essential importance to the agricultural interests.

But we also feel that it is a question of labor as well as of capital, for where is the laboring man to find employment if the manufacturing establishments are to be closed? What would be the position of Sherbrooke and other manufacturing centres without the industries which have drawn population?

We ask all true Canadians to maintain the integrity of Canada by voting for the present patriotic Government.

Mr. Stevenson's Address
TO
WEST PETERBOROUGH.

GENTLEMEN,—The time that will elapse before polling day is so short, and my business demands on my time just now are so great that, though most anxious to do so, I find it altogether impossible to personally call on any considerable number of the electors; and therefore use this medium of placing before you my opinions of the great issue that has been raised by the leaders of the Reform party, viz., Unrestricted Reciprocity with the United States.

The Government of Sir John A. Macdonald many years since placed on the Statute books of the Dominion an Act enabling the Governor-General in Council, whenever the United States declared its readiness to free from duty any named natural products of this country going into that country, to free the same coming into Canada from the United States.

That Statute still remains in force; and, although the Government of Canada has on many occasions called the attention of the authorities at Washington to it, yet they have declined to act on it, but have now signified their willingness to negotiate generally on trade matters.

The present Government has shown its readiness to negotiate for reciprocal trade relations on the basis of the treaty of 1854, which was eminently fair to both countries; and their proposal I will support, but the policy of the Reform party as shown by them and by the politicians and press of the United States, is one which practically hands over to that country the trade of Canada, for the Reform party declare that they are prepared to offer to the United States absolute and unconditional free trade in manufactures, as well as in natural products, and they say such will be accepted by the latter country; and this party, led by Mr. Laurier, urges that such a policy is in our interests, even if we have to discriminate against England and all the rest of the world, and enact and build up a tariff wall equal to that of the United States, and even if we have, in addition, to suffer a loss of revenue, placed by Sir Richard Cartwright in his speech in Toronto, the 13th instant, as reported in the Globe, of $7,000,000 or $8,000,000, but which, it is perfectly certain, would not be less than $12,000,000. I submit for your consideration whether this is really a "free trade" policy or a policy deserving your support. I am convinced that it is not, and that it is opposed to the best interests of Canada. The present tariff of the United States is more than double that of Canada. It is, in fact, the most exclusive and excessive tariff known, and the effect of the adoption of it by us would, in my humble opinion, be to make us, commercially, an unknown land—except to our neighbors to the South, for no other nation would or could import its goods to us as heretofore, and as their shipping would come much less to our shores, our trade in cheese, cattle and other products with Great Britain would be seriously injured, if not wholly ruined. The high freight rates, for want of competition, would alone make these products unprofitable, and I am sure you will hesitate before you destroy or imperil a trade with England and Europe of $22,000,000 yearly, made successful, largely, by reason of the keen competition of shipping from England, which, under our moderate tariff, has, out of all proportion to the extent of the United States, come to Halifax and up the St. Lawrence to our great ports for several years past.

The policy of the present Government since its adoption in 1879, has brought into Canada, a tremendous amount of Capital and produced the manufacture of most of our needs of life at prices, through the competition that has grown up, no higher than in the country from which the capital came.

The population of Peterborough has in ten years almost doubled, and I am confident the present moderate revenue tariff will enable the country to construct great public works in our vicinity, and that our town will be not less than 20,000 population within the next ten years. The proposed policy, I am assured, would endanger all the advantages we have gained and almost certainly end in the ruin of our town, as of many other towns and cities in Canada, and also most seriously injure the farming interests by destroying the home market and in other ways and I therefore cannot give my sanction to such a measure.

I cannot believe that with the declarations of high authority we have as to the terms on which we can obtain unrestricted trade relations, with the United States there is any general feeling in favor of the Reform platform, for I find that Mr. Blaine, the Secretary of State at Washington, recently in a public speech used these words: "It is their (Canadians) right to choose for themselves, as it is our right to choose for ourselves, but I am opposed, teetotally opposed, to giving the Canadians the sentimental satisfaction of waving the British flag, paying British taxes, and enjoying the actual cash remuneration of American markets. They cannot have both at the same time. If they come with us they can have what we have. It is an absolute wrong for Congress to say that they shall have exactly the same share in our markets that we have, and as far as I can help it, I do not mean that they shall be Canadians and Americans at the same time" and Mr. McAdoo, a Democratic member of the House of Representatives, recently used these words in the House: "The United States do not desire to add a single acre to its imperial domain but if the people of Canada, in their Soverign capacity wish to maintain unrestricted relations with the people of the United States, they have but to rise in their sovereignity, spontaneously and unsought for act and ask for annexation, which is the cutting of the Gordian knot, and the ultimate destinity of the Canadian people."

Neither can I support the new policy, because, as reported in the Globe on the 5th day of October, 1889, Mr. Erastus Wiman, of New York, who is the partner of the millionaire, Jay Gould, and the sole father of the scheme originated for personal and selfish ends, says: "My idea is that a uniform tariff should be adopted both by the Congress of the United States and the Dominion Parliament of Canada; that Canada should agree to always have the same tariff as the United States; that this tariff should be administered by a join commission of which the majority should, of course, rest with the United State." and the Chicago Times confirms this, as do all the leading papers of the United States by declaring that "entire free trade is impossible, unless the Dominion 'is prepared to make a complete and unconditional surrender of all control over its own tariff and to accept whatever tariff our Congress may choose to enact from time to time.'"

I feel that this is a sacrifice and surrender greater than Canada should make for it means the loss of legislative control over our fiscal policy the transference to Washington of the regulation of our tariff and the end of our political existence, and, as said in an American paper "Canadians would be "cure and cads" to entertain the idea."

The end proposed by the Reform leaders I am sure cannot be attained, and, if attained, attainment will bring in its train the incident of direct taxation, with an army of assessors and collectors replacing the Customs Houses and Customs officers along the frontier between the United States and Canada. Mr. Laurier in Quebec a few days ago said that his expectant Finance Minister, Sir Richard Cartwright, would be genius enough to avoid recourse to "so cruel a measure" but in Toronto on the 13th instant, the avoidance the latter found after quoting the words of Mr. Foster, that direct taxation would amount to $20.00 per family, and after entering upon a tirade of abuse of the Government to draw his audience from the question was summed up in these words as given in the Globe's report of his speech, "But it is impossible to deal with these imaginary difficulties, and when I am asked to say what I will do if a possible contingency arises I would respectfully say that we will wait to see the contingency we have to meet."

I am sure the whole electorate will declare with me that this, from a man, posing as a statesman, and seeking the confidence and support of the country was a contemptible and pitiful avoidance of the most vital matter, and an acknowledgement that direct taxation is a necessary incident of the Reform platforms.

I would call attention to a matter of local importance, viz., the construction of the Trent Valley Canal, which has been thrown back for two years by the action of prominent members of the Reform party, and the statements in the House that there was good reason for believing that, as a national undertaking, it would prove a failure because of an insufficiency of water. The matter was consequently referred to commissioners to report, and the commissioners having examined the whole of the route and taken a great mass of evidence, have now reported, and the report that has been published is a complete answer to all objections as to its feasibility and the propriety of the undertaking, and, as in the past, I, if elected, shall in the future persistently advocate and insist on the immediate construction of this great work. I am confident it will prove of immense value as a public work, and I know that its importance to this locality will, from various and obvious reasons, be almost inestimable. I am also quite certain that if the Reform party gains power in this election and adopts the policy it is advocating, there will follow such admittedly tremendous deficits in the revenue that even with the aid of direct taxation it will be impossible for the Government, however willing, to undertake the building of this national highway of commerce.

In conclusion, I would ask the electors to accept the above statement as indicating my views of the chief public questions of the hour, and the policy relied on by the leader of the Reform party, and his Wiman allies, as the one by which they hope to gain control of the Government of Canada, and to displace the existing Government, and I would ask all who cannot approve so radical a change as proposed, to rally to the support of the Liberal-Conservative party in the present great crisis in our affairs.

I am, gentlemen,

Your sincere and humble servant,

JAMES STEVENSON.

Repudiating his Platform.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Last night while speaking at Mr. Hall's meeting at Bailieboro I referred to Mr. Hall as an advocate of Unrestricted Reciprocity and was surprised to hear him cry out "No! No!" I then asked Mr. Hall publicly if he stood on the platform of Unrestricted Reciprocity, and he replied that he did not. This exposure made such an impression on the meeting that it adjourned with cheers for the Queen, Sir John and Mr. Stevenson. My reason for making this statement is to point out to the farmers of other parts of the county that Mr. Hall has publicly refused to endorse the platform that his own campaigners are laying down elsewhere. If, sir, the accuracy of this statement is questioned, I am prepared to support it by a dozen references.

Yours truly,

R. MAX. DENNISTOUN.

A Mark of Respect.

The funeral of the late Francis Ensworth which took place on Friday was attended by the members of Moulders Union No. 191, as a mark of respect to memory of deceased. The moulding shops connected with the different establishments in town were shut down in order to allow of members attending. After returning from the cemetery the Union met in their hall and resolutions of condolence were passed and ordered to be transmitted to relatives of the deceased.

Baillieboro.

A meeting in Mr. Hall's interest was held at Baillieboro last night. Mr. P. Hamilton, Dr. Goldsmith, Mr. Hall and Mr. J. R. Stratton were the Liberal speakers, and Mr. R. M. Dennistoun spoke on behalf of Mr. Stevenson. The Liberal scheme does not take in that quarter, as it does not in others, and Mr. Hall felt forced to make a partial disavowal of his party and its policy. The meeting was decidedly favorable to Mr. Stevenson, and closed with its usual cheers for the Queen, slight cheers for Mr. Hall, and hearty cheers for Sir John Macdonald and Mr. Stevenson. The more the Liberal policy is understood the more it is condemned. In this quarter things look bright for the Conservative candidate.

MR. KENDRY'S DENIAL

AT THE CONSERVATIVE MEETING IN THE OPERA HOUSE.

Addresses to the Workingmen by Mr. Arthur Rutherford, J. H. Long and John Armstrong, of Toronto—Mr. Jury Appears for Mr. Hall—Feeling Aroused and Many Interruptions—Mr. Kendry Makes a Complete Contradiction of the Examiner-Boss Fly Sheet and Handles Mr. Jury Without Gloves.

The workingmen of the town turned out in large numbers last evening to listen to Mr. John Armstrong, the well-known Toronto labor man, who was to address them on behalf of Mr. Stevenson. The Opera House was packed with an audience which was a representative one of the workingmen of the town. Mr. Jury, a tailor of Toronto, who addressed a meeting here last Saturday in the interests of Mr. Hall, was present by invitation and made a characteristic speech. Considerable feeling was aroused during the speaking by interruptions made. Councillor Adam Dawson, who was chairman, had to rule with firmness but he was equal to the occasion and maintained order. It can be stated from personal observation that a good part of the interruption was caused by boys. The ladies did not fail to take an interest in the workingmen's meeting but were present in large numbers filling completely the gallery which was reserved for their accommodation.

Councillor Adam Dawson presided as chairman and shortly after eight o'clock opened the meeting with a few remarks, concluding by inviting Mr. Jury, the opposition advocate of Toronto, to take a seat upon the platform.

OPPOSED TO THE PRESENT LIBERAL POLICY.

Mr. Arthur Rutherford was first called and well received. He had been, he said, in connection with the Liberal party for thirty years, and although he was on a Conservative platform, he felt he was a Liberal still. He could not follow the present Liberal leaders in their present policy, and therefore was compelled to take the stand that he had. The Liberal policy had been confused. But he said that he had lived in Peterborough many years and had seen it grow up, and knew that its most rapid growth had been in the past thirteen years and this was owing to the industries they had. He therefore felt it his duty, not only in his own interest, but also in the interest of the workingmen of the town, to oppose the present Liberal policy. Four years ago this month, Mr. Cox, who was then the Liberal candidate, advocated substantial protection for manufactories so that the highest wages might be paid, which was an admission that protection benefitted the workingmen. They could look over the town and see a great change, and many men present had been enabled to procure homes of their own. The stock of the Auburn mills was sold thirteen or fourteen years ago at five cents on the dollar and the mills were closed. Since the present policy of the country was adopted these mills had and paid good wages. Several years ago Mr. Law came here, and Mr. Stevenson gave him a building at a nominal rent and aided him by taking stock. The consequence was that these works grew, moved into other premises and had enlarged them double the size. The Lock Works was another industry that had been brought here, and that Mr. Stevenson had similarly aided. It paid out last year about $57,000 in wages. Was not that a great benefit to the town? As to the prices of the articles he knew, as a builder, that the prices of locks were 20 per cent. cheaper than they had been. The carbon works was also bringing money into the town from all over the Province and out of it. It had recently received a $19,000 order from Montreal. They had made efforts to get this industry, and would they now turn around and drive it out? The carbon works was growing and were extending their shops. What awoke him to the seriousness of the situation was that Mr. Wm. Hamilton told him, in his office, that the Liberal policy would injure his industry. He also referred to the Edison works and the benefit it would be to the town and to all trades. There was no man who than James Stevenson. (Cheers). He was upright and generous, and although he had been for many years engaged in different businesses he had never had a case in court. Considering who the man was, and that the Liberal policy would injure them, he hoped every man would vote for Mr. Stevenson.

MR. JURY AGAIN.

Mr. A. F. Jury, of Toronto, was called to speak on behalf of Mr. Hall, but objected to being limited to half an hour. It was explained to Mr. Jury that Mr. Armstrong had been limited to that time at a meeting where Mr. Jury spoke and at another meeting in another place refused a hearing. However, Mr. Jury spoke three-quarters of an hour.

Mr. Jury, in opening, made an effort to break the force of Mr. Rutherford's references to the town's industries, and said it seemed to him the National Policy should be called a town policy. He thought that if the English manufacturers would warn the people that a certain fiscal policy would injure the industries of the country they would be imprisoned! He then repeated some of the "arguments" he used the other evening, regarding the importations of manufactured goods. He repeated some of the old-time free trade arguments, forgetful that it was not free trade his party advocated by trade restricted to the United States. There were, he said, some men who had been helped by protection and who employed non-union labor, and claimed that the workingmen were not protected. He also pointed out that a large quantity of raw material for manufacturers was admitted free. A personal reference to Mr. John Armstrong caused some interruption, and he made a reference to the rate of printers' wages in Toronto, which was denied by a member of the Toronto union who was in the audience. He dealt some time with personal matters, and then switched off to the C.P.R., and closed with a free trade peroration.

COMPARISONS WITH THE STATES.

Mr. J. H. Long, after a complimentary reference to Mr. Jury's speech, said there was one fault in it, and that was that it did not deal with the point at issue, namely, unrestricted reciprocity. He cared not for either party, but he felt that the question now was whether this country would be placed under the control of the United States. Mr. Jury had dwelt on the beauties of free trade, but that was not the question, for Liberals propose a commercial alliance with a country that has the highest tariff. He showed that unrestricted reciprocity, if carried out at all, must be a commercial union. He had travelled all through the States, and every paper he had seen discuss it and every American he had spoken to felt that such a commercial union would inevitably lead to political union. They would, as he had shown, have the same tariff, and the 60,000,000 people would not permit the 5,000,000 to control it, consequently our tariff would be controlled by the States—a power that would lead to political union. The Canadians were in a better position morally and politically, as was admitted even by the Americans. The only plea put forward for unrestricted reciprocity was the dollars and cents one. Well, he could say without fear of contradiction, that man for man the people of Canada were than the people of the United States. In proportion to population our trade was greater, our tonnage larger and Canada has grown more rapidly. In the New England States, through which he had passed, there were hundreds of farms, that had once supported families, that could now be had for paying the taxes. In Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane Falls, Wash., where he had been recently, there were hundreds of men who would be glad to work for their board. In the same district, he he had known, two months ago, wheat to be sold at 37 cents a bushel. The people there were not only not as prosperous as those in Ontario, which went without saying, but were not so prosperous as those in British Columbia. As to prices, they were much higher than here and higher than in British Columbia. As to immigration to the States, there were several reasons why men had gone there from here. One was that the Canadian Northwest was not opened up and families who went there then had drawn some friends and relatives to them. Some went to the Southern States for health, as it was a warmer climate, but a great reason why young Canadians went there was because the worth of Canadians was recognized and they were preferred. Mr. Long was warmly applauded on concluding.

Mr. A. Macfarlane rose to ask a question. He understood Mr. Long to say that men in Washington State worked for their board and wished to know how their families lived.

Mr. Long explained that he had said there were hundreds of men out of employment who would be glad to get work for their board, or on almost any conditions.

Mr. Weir said a young man from here who was in that state had written home giving a similar account and wishing he was back.

Mr. Macfarlane again stepped on the platform, but the chairman said he had been permitted to ask his question and must not disturb the meeting.

MR. ARMSTRONG'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Armstrong was then introduced and was greeted with great enthusiasm. He expressed his pleasure at appearing before an audience in Peterborough for the first time. Mr. Jury, he said, had seen fit to indulge in personalities and had tried to cast reflections on his character as a union man, but he defied Mr. Jury or any other man to prove that he had ever placed his union character in a second place to his little political leanings. (Cheers.) In East Toronto when Mr. Jury came out as a labor candidate he (Mr. Armstrong) had delivered the opening speech in the campaign for Mr. Jury against Mr. Small, a blue blood Tory. (Cheers.) And further, he said, when he went to vote at that election he had shown his ballot marked for Mr. Jury to Mr. D. J. O'Donoghue, poll clerk. But what could be said of Mr. Jury? Some years previous when Mr. Carter had been a labor candidate in West Toronto what had Mr. Jury done? He had gone from a Grit meeting to Mr. Carter's meeting and said he would ask Mr. Carter's views in the Government questions before he would support him.

Mr. Jury tried to make some denial of this.

Mr. Armstrong continuing said he would be a mean man if he made such a statement against Mr. Jury and did not give the name of his authority. The man who had told him was a respectable painter in Toronto. (Cheers.) If Mr. Kennedy denied the statement he would publish an apology to Mr. Jury. (Renewed cheers.) Mr. Jury, he said, seemed to be a little timid in fear of his refering to the Ontario Legislature. But that gentleman had referred to and had said that they were dumping down emigrants here and spreading thousands and thousands of dollars for that purpose. They could read the report of the secretary of the Labor Bureau, Mr. D. J. O'Donoghue, which disproved this. Last session they were crying out when the Government were not encouraging immigration more extensively. He could state positively that not one dollar had been given by the Dominion Government to assist an adult emigrant since the 27th of April, 1887. He read from the Government emigration reports where it said that there were no assisted passages and that the emigrants coming here were able to pay their way to the place where there was work. He also quoted from the Public Accounts of Ontario for 1889 showing the amounts of money that had been expended by the Provincial Government in the carriage of immigrants in the railways. These matters were scarcely bearing on the issues of the day, but Mr. Jury had introduced them and he had a right to reply. The speaker then passed on to the trade question. He said it was well-known that the Government had been open for a fair, square deal on reciprocity in trade. But it took two to make a bargain. The United States farmers did not want free trade in their products, and, he asked, did they want Canada to go down on its knees to beg for it and then get

A SLAP IN THE FACE?

A Boston paper had sent out cards asking the farmers of the United States their feeling on the trade question. The result was that 29,879 farmers of the Eastern States favored the McKinley tariff and 9,468 were against it, and of the farmers of the entire Union 80,299 were for and 39,132 against. Did this show that the farmers of the States wanted reciprocity? (Cries of no, no.) Certainly it did not. On the question of Canadian reciprocity 22,792 favored it and 68,377 farmers were opposed to it. Much of these objections came from the middle or New England states. They could see by this that the farmers did not want to reciprocate. On the other hand the United States manufacturers wanted free trade so that they could do as they did before—make a slaughtering place of Canada for the offal or refuse of their manufacturers. Mr. George Brown, under the Mackenzie Government, had framed a treaty at Washington, but the Senate would not consider it and it had never been heard of afterwards. Mr. Mackenzie had said he despised the idea of cringing to the Americans and would not try to make a renewal. Even Sir Richard Cartwright in 1878 had said that by saying they could not do without reciprocity they were playing an unwise and unpatriotic part. Sir Richard was now turned and wanted unrestricted reciprocity and everything or anything to get into power.

A Voice—Yes, a Senatorship. (Cheers.)

Mr. Armstrong quoted Mr. Blake's Malvern speech in which he said free trade trade was removed from practical politics and asked if that was a free trade speech There could be no doubt that Mr. Blake approved of a protective tariff and he had not worked with his party since they had formed

THEIR NEW POLICY.

The speaker then pointed out that under unrestricted reciprocity Canada's tariff laws would be made at Washington without representation. He also showed that if we adopted the policy we would have to discriminate against English goods, that our factories would be closed and the farmers' home market destroyed. Continuing, he said they had been led to believe that the United States was a land flowing with milk and honey, but he would read an article from a Detroit paper which said that there had been 285 foreclosures of farm mortgages in the States, there were in New York city 130,000 persons who earned less than 60 cents a day, many of them children working from eleven to sixteen hours a day, 25,000 families evicted for inability to pay rent, and one in every ten of the dead were buried in the potter's field at the public expense. Should such a state of affairs, he asked, give rise to a desire for unrestricted trade relations with the States, and he hoped he would never see the day that we would have such relations with that country. He had confidence in Great Britain and other portions of the Empire where they had as good a market as they ever had with the United States. The speaker then showed the advantage Canadian cattle had over American cattle. Were they going to adopt a tariff for the good of the United States and discriminate against the country that had defended us in years gone by? He considered loyalty had a great deal to do in this question, and he was confident that the working classes of this town and country would not vote for a policy that was to give the country over to unrestricted reciprocity, the first step to annexation, but, instead, would and Sir John Macdonald, who had guided the affairs of this country for a quarter of a century and would continue to do so as long as he lived. (Loud cheers). He did not know Mr. Hall, but he wished to read a few remarks of his which appeared in the Monetary Times. At a meeting of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company, of which he was Vice-President, he was reported:—

"Mr. Richard Hall, the Vice-President, said:—The annual statement that has been in your hands for some weeks is so satisfactory that I do not know that it is necessary to add anything to what has already been said. There is, however, one matter to which I called your special attention last year and to which I again desire to refer. The large issue of sterling debentures during the year is certainly gratifying, but the rapid accumulation of Canadian capital, reserve, deposits and debentures, amounting at the close of our seventh year to no less than $1,870,920 40, is to my mind still more gratifying, as affording evidence not only of the increasing wealth and prosperity of the country, but affording evidence of the increasing confidence the company enjoys where its directors and officers are best known."

So, said Mr. Armstrong, in this very town Mr. Hall had admitted and then in the afternoon he came to the nomination meeting and had preached blue ruin ever since. (Cheers.) They could see what the Reformers would do. Like Mr. Jury, they would talk on one issue at one place and on the other at another. The speaker then referred to the printers' trouble in the Mail and Globe offices and spoke also of the Gurney strike. He said Mr. Jury tried to take advantage of the difficulty between Mr. Gurney and his moulders to blame the Government. The Government had nothing to do with the trouble and could not dedicate to the employer as to the wages he could pay. The National Policy placed the manufacturer in a better position to pay good wages and the workingmen benefitted in consequences. He was a union man and believed in organization, and it was much easier to obtain good wages even from a man unwilling to pay good wages but able to do so, than from manufacturers who, however willing, were unable to do so. (Cheers.) Mr. Gurney and Mr. McCleary were, however, noted Grits until now and Mr. Jury would probably have never mentioned their names if they had not changed. As to the printers wages he said they were making more wages now than in 1878 while the book and job hands were making a dollar more a week and had to work one hour a day less. Personally he was making a little more than in 1878 and worked only eight hours now to fourteen and fifteen in 1878. In speaking of the Chinese question he said the Government had put a tax of $50 per head on all coming into the country while Mr. Mackenzie had refused to do so. In closing Mr. Armstrong said he believed the present administration was going to be sustained. (Cheers.) He was confident that the workingmen would unite in placing Mr. Stevenson at the head of the poll to keep our manufactories and the home market for the farmers. (Cheers.) He believed the farmers and mechanics would unite, for the interests were interwoven, and by voting for Mr. Stevenson, for their country and the integrity of the British Empire, and teach the Americans that there was no weak loyalty in Canada and that they would have no annexation with them, Mr. Armstrong sat down amid great applause.

THE PROSPERITY OF THE COUNTRY

A CONVINCING CONTRADICTION.

Mr. Kendry then stepped forward to deal with the Examiner-Boss letter which had been printed on a fly sheet. Mr. Kendry said he wished to contradict the fly sheet which had been published and distributed in the town. Mr. Crerar when here had made the statement that Mr. Boss was the largest woollen manufacturer in Canada and probably in the United States and he (Mr. Kendry) had taken exception to this. Mr. Boss had written a letter to the Examiner and a whole fly sheet had been devoted to him. The heading said "Mr. Crearar right—Mr. Kendry wrong." Mr. Kendry denied this and said he was prepared to repeat and stand by what he had said the other night and also to prove that Mr. Boss was not the largest woollen manufacturer but was a mushroom manufacturer of no experience. To back up his denial he would put up $500 in the hands of three gentlemen to be given to Mr. Boss if he (Mr. Kendry) could not substantiate what he said. He could produce a letter that Mr. Boss had sent to every manufacturer in his line asking them to form a combine. The manufacturers had refused to do this. Mr. Kendry said he had telegraphed Mr. Morrice, of D. Morrice, Sons & Co., of Montreal, a leading well known firm in regard to Mr. Boss' letter and he read the reply he had received. Mr. Morrice corroborated the statement in regard to Mr. Boss' effort to form a combine and further that that gentleman was only a manufacturer of yesterday and a man of no experience. Mr. Kendry also produced Dun Wiman's report in which Mr. Boss was rated away below the Auburn company. Mr. Kendry said he did not claim to be the largest manufacturer, yet Mr. Boss was rated lower than the Auburn. This contradiction was received with great applause. Mr. Kendry then and showed him up as a workingman's advocate. He asked Mr. Jury first how much he was getting per day for talking to the workingmen and a voice answered "$4.50 per day." Mr. Kendry said he could show them what kind of a gentleman this was who was sent to tell the workingmen how to vote. He had gone into Mr. Jury's store in Toronto, as he often did to look around, and when he asked him where his Canadian Tweeds were he said "I don't keep anything here but foreign goods." This was the man who would not sell Canadian goods but who thought he could tell the workingmen how to vote. (Cheers.) To prove the fallacy of another statement of Mr. Jury's Mr. Kendry quoted figures, showing that in 1878 grey flannel sold at 35 cents while to-day it was sold for 26 cents, that in the same year tweeds were sold at $1 25 and to-day they sold a superior article for 75 cents. (Cheers.) The cause of this was the competition among manufacturers which kept prices down. Mr. Jury had said mechanics did not get as much now as in 1878 but Mr. Kendry was prepared to show by his books that he was paying from 25 to 28 per cent. more to mechanics now than in 1878. If they were going to compete with England they would have to lower wages, as coal, wages and money were cheaper in that country than here. As Mr. Kendry turned point after point against Mr. Jury the crowd cheered him loudly.

It was nearly twelve o'clock when the meeting dispersed with cheers for the Queen, Mr. Stevenson and Sir John.

BABY'S FACE WAS RAW.

Distressing Itching Skin Disease Cured in One Month by the Cuticura Remedies.

When our boy was six weeks old he had a rash on his cheek. It spread on both cheeks and chin. His face was all raw. I doctored with various remedies, but it got no better. My mother advised me to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I used them faithfully, and in one week the boy looked better. In one month he was cured, and now he is three years old and no signs of it returning. The child was so bad I had to tie him in a pillow-case, and pin his hands down so that he could not scratch his face. I cannot speak too highly of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I recommend CUTICURA whenever I can. I would be pleased to see anyone and talk to them of the good it has done my boy. MRS. CYRUS PROSCH, Coytesville, Fort Lee P.O., N.J.

A Very Diffident and Modest Lady.

A VOICE FROM WINNIPEG.

A lady who has lived in the City of Winnipeg for some years was recently visiting in Montreal. She had just recovered from an illness which had lasted for four months, some of the particulars of which the writer is permitted to give, without mentioning names.

The lady said:—"I found that dyspepsia had laid hold of me, and I consulted my physician who treated me in his own way. I soon became a victim of headaches and insomnia, which made life miserable. I continued suffering more or less for nearly four months, when my attention was directed by a friend to Paine's Celery Compound. I had always set my face against the use of any medicine not prescribed by my doctor, always thinking it best to follow his directions. Just at that time I was getting worse instead of better, and without my family knowing it, I bought a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound and commenced to use it. The first bottle worked in a marvellous way, and I purchased a second and third bottle which perfectly cured me. I am always glad to say what I can in its favor, and can tell you that many of my friends use it now, and praise it highly."

Paine's Celery Compound everywhere in the Dominion is doing a mighty work, and has the confidence of all who have tried it.

That's Easily Answered.

"My dear," said Mrs. Oupandeaucer, laying down the evening paper, "what is reciprocity?" "Reciprocity, my angel," said the head of the house, "is easily explained. It means a general evening up,—as, say when Smithers asks me in to take a ce-cigar and I ask him to have another." "Exactly," said Mrs. C., "when I go to Hawley Bros. for tea and I hand Mr. Hawley a dollar and he gives me four or five pounds of splendid green or black mixture, I get the money's worth and he the money. Isn't that it?" "Exactly," said the husband as he reached for his hat. d30tf

MANY SUDDEN DEATHS.

Another Long List of Sudden Deaths in Various Walks of Life.

PRESCOTT, Feb. 27.—About 10 o'clock last night while the C.P.R. Car and Transfer Company boat Transit was backing out from the dock with a load of cars for Ogdensburg, Harry Raymond, fireman, fell into the river. The body was brought to the surface at 3 p.m. to-day.

Drink Drove Him Down.

ORANGEVILLE, Feb. 27.—Death claimed another of the county jail's pauper guests on Tuesday night of last week. This time it was Joseph McPherson, aged 53 and an ex-resident of East Garafraxa, who was called to his last account. Drink drove McPherson down from a position of comparative wealth as a prosperous farmer to the pauper's cell behind prison bars. There was the usual coroner's inquest, the stereotyped verdict, the solitary hearse wending its way to the Potter's field—and the sad tale is told.

A Government Employe's Death.

HAMILTON, Feb. 27.—Rudolph Russman, Assistant Dominion Immigration Agent, and one of the most prominent German residents of this city, left his office at the Grand Trunk station about 11.45 to make some deposits in the bank. He descended the car at Vine-street and went into T. Richter's saloon and complained of feeling very ill. He asked young Richter to give him some whisky, but as he attempted to swallow it he staggered back and fell into a chair. Almost immediately he fell forward on the floor. Dr. Hillyer was summoned from his office across the street, but when he arrived Mr. Russman was dead. The doctor pronounced it a case of heart failure. He had acted as interpreter and assistant immigration agent for ten years.

Blown Up With Dynamite.

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 27.—George Farquharson and two sons and William L. Delaney were blasting on Grindstone Island when the charge prematurely exploded and all were badly burned. One of Mr. Farquharson's sons was terribly burned about the abdomen and now lies in a precarious condition.

Canadian Killed in Wisconsin.

MOUNT FOREST, Feb. 27.—Isaac Cameron, son of William Cameron of this town, was working in the lumber woods in Wisconsin and was struck by a log while unloading a car and instantly killed. The remains were brought home.

Dropped Dead at Breakfast.

KINCARDINE, Feb. 27.—On Wednesday morning the wife of Dr. Hopkins of this town rose at the usual time and after a while sat down to breakfast, when she immediately expired. Heart disease was the cause of death.

Fatal Fall Downstairs.

WINDSOR, Feb. 27.—William Rae of Colchester fell downstairs a few days ago and received such severe injuries that death occurred yesterday. He was aged over 80.

The Chicago Billiard Tourney.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—The Brunswick-Balke Callender international short stop billiard tournament closed to-night. Carter wins the championship and first money, $300; Ives took second place, prize $250, and Catton third $150. McLaughlin, Hately and Maggioli were tied for fourth place and divided the $100 stake. After the tournament Ives challenged Carter for the championship emblem and match to be $250 a side, 500 points, 14 inch balk-line, to be played in Chicago within 60 days. A forfeit of $100 was

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought that a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question we have purchased the above business from Mr C. N. Brown, who will still continue as manager, in Fiavelle's Old Stand, Simcoe st.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of every one to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of

and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices.

We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred in the credit system.

MONDAY, MARCH 2, 1891.

A NEW NATION.

AUSTRALIAN COLONIES TAKE STEPS TO FEDERATE.

Important Convention to be Held in Victoria —Strikers Attempt to Board a Steamer and a Number are Shot—Carroty Nell's Alleged Slayer Will Be Released.

LONDON, March 1.—Monday, March 2, will be memorable in the history of the British Empire. The representatives of the Australian continent will meet on that day in Sydney to frame a constitution for their Federal Government. Tasmania will be included in this great confederation of the Southern seas, and a large share of New Guinea will also belong to it as a subordinate territory. Sydney, as the mother city of Australian colonies, has been well chosen for the gathering. It is understood that Sir Henry Parkes will probably be selected as the president of the convention. The idea of a federal constitution with a legislature and executive was his, and to his energy is due the successful initiation of the mighty scheme. The various colonies are each to be represented by the Premier or some other man almost equally prominent. It is understood that a nation will not be accomplished without difficulties, and the principal difficulty is believed to be the question of free trade and protection. Most of the colonies are now protectionist as against each other and the rest of the world. Victoria especially is ultra-protectionist. It is believed, however, that the result will be the reference to the Federal Government of the tariff question with the reservation that there shall be free trade between the colonies. The Federal Government will probably be entrusted with the customs tariff, regulation of external trade and commerce, defence, posts and telegraphs, marriage and divorce, currency and banking, fisheries, beacons and buoys, quarantine, patents, census and statistics. The example of America is already being quoted as to the wisdom of federation, and the proceedings of the convention that framed the United States Constitution are being closely studied by Australian statesmen. New Zealand will send representatives to the convention, but stands apart for the present from the union. The reason is said to be that the New Zealanders believe that owing to their isolation they cannot get along without British protection, and they apprehend that the Australian union is a first step toward separation from Great Britain. This is disclaimed by Australians generally. There is but little doubt that New Zealand will ultimately come in. The Federation will start out with a fine fleet of war vessels, now being built in Great Britain at the expense of and for the Australian colonies, so that the inauguration of the new government, when it comes, will be a most imposing spectacle, both by land and sea.

The Arizona Floods.

DENVER, Col., March 1.—A special from Yuma, Arizona, says that in that town over 250 houses are in ruins from the flood and 1400 people are homeless and not a single business house remains standing, and it is feared that hundreds of lives have been lost in the Gila Valley. The telegraph wires are down into the valley and as all bridges are gone and roads impassable no reliable reports can be had from there. The river above town is seven miles wide and below the town in places the water covers the country in one grand lake over 30 miles across.

A boat which has just arrived from Mohawk, 60 miles up the Gila River, brings reports of terrible loss of life, all the country being under water. The greatest sufferers are the poor Mexicans whose entire possessions have been swept away and who have no reserves to fall back upon. There is yet a vast stretch of territory to be heard from and everyone fears that when full returns are in the loss of life will prove of appalling magnitude.

A New Boat for the Canada Atlantic.

HALIFAX, March 1.—Capt. J. M. Allen sailed in the Sarnia to-day for Liverpool. When he reaches the other side he will purchase a boat for the Canada Atlantic Steamship Company, to run between Halifax and Boston.

Shot a White Deer.

WIARTON, March 1.—Mr. Currie of Port Elgin, lighthouse keeper of Cove Island, shot a white deer near his residence. He sent the carcass to Toronto and had the whole animal set up, which cost him $100.

MURDERED HER BABE.

SHOCKING CASE OF INFANTICIDE AT TORONTO.

A Young Woman Attempts to Leave Her Five Weeks' Old Babe at a Foundling Hospital, and Being Refused Admittance, Wrings Its Neck.

TORONTO, March 2.—Detective Black has arrested a young woman named Sarah Fox, who has confessed the murder of the female child whose body was found on Friday morning in the rear of Dr. Richardson's house, No. 36 St. Joseph-street.

Meanwhile Detective Black had been working out some private information he had received. He discovered that a girl named Sarah Fox of Davisville had been discharged with her child from the Burnside Hospital five weeks ago. He traced them to a baby-farming institution in Centre-street, where the girl had left the infant for four weeks. On Wednesday morning of last week she took it from there to a Mrs. Phillips, who keeps a similar establishment, 30 Huron-street, who agreed to keep it for her. She gave Mrs. Phillips a wrong address. The woman on Thursday morning determined not to keep the little one and started out to find the mother.

On Thursday night Mrs. Phillips sent a boy and girl to the coffee house with the child, with instructions to hand it to the mother, which they did.

Miss Fox took the little one and left the coffee house, saying she was going to take the unfortunate babe to her mother in Davisville. This was the last seen of the child alive.

Armed with the clothes of the dead infant Detective Black traced it from the house in Centre-street to the baby farm in Huron-street, thence to the mother's arms and after that to Dr. Richardson's yard. A warrant charging the girl with murder was secured and at her place of employment she was arrested. She was taken to Agnes-street station and transferred to the jail after a short sojourn in police headquarters.

From the moment of her arrest the unhappy girl made no secret of the crime. She broke down and wept, but through her tears confessed to the murder. She said that she had found it hard enough trying to support herself and could not support the child. On leaving the Coffee House she said she had strangled the infant by twisting the strings of its little cape around its neck, and this done and satisfied that it was dead she had flung it over the first wall she came to, which happened to be Dr. Richardson's. She said she supposed the skull had been fractured in falling.

Sarah Fox, the self-confessed murderess, is 20 years old, of dark complexion, medium height, and though passably good looking does not seem very bright. Her parents are working people and have resided in Davisville since their arrival from England some six years ago. The girl had only been two weeks employed in the League Coffee House, being chosen out of 17 applicants who had called in answer to an advertisement.

She will not be brought to court until the sessions are held as the coroner's warrant under which she was arrested stands as a commitment.

Alleged Forger Released.

BERLIN, March 1.—Fleischla, the German broker, arrested on the charge of sending telegrams to the London stock exchange to which was forged the name of M. Camonda, the Paris banker, has been liberated.

Foreign Labor Trouble.

A dock laborers' strike has been begun at Hull at the docks used by the Shipping Federation. The latter has plenty of men in spite of the strike.

All the dock laborers employed at Aberdeen have gone out on strike.

The coal miners' strike continues in Durham. The mine owners have refused to make any concessions to the men.

In the expectation of a general strike among the men employed in and about the coal mines of Germany, the mine owners have come to the determination to form a federation similar to the English Shipping Federation.

Killed by a Fall.

BARRIE, March 1.—Robert Fletcher, a farmer living near Ivey P.O., fell off a load of hay Friday, striking on his head, receiving injuries from which he died in a few hours.

A Corpse Held the Reins.

WOODSTOCK, March 1.—John Calkins, a fish peddler, dropped dead here to-day while driving along Reeve-street. Heart disease is supposed to be the trouble.

Three Men Dead.

BUFFALO, March 1.—James Ryan and Earl Vader, two of the men injured in the disastrous wreck at East Buffalo Friday night, died yesterday morning.

Foreign Notes.

The New Review publishes Lord Tennyson's latest poem, a sonnet of nine lines, for which it paid £100.

Despite Bismarck's refusal to stand as a candidate for the Reichstag for the nineteenth district of Hanover, Herr Scheef, a prominent National Liberal member of the Lower House of the Prussian Diet, asks the electors to return Bismarck, declaring that he will not refuse to serve now that there is a prospect of a crisis in Germany's foreign affairs.

The London newspapers devote much space to the Canadian situation and betray a good deal of anxiety as to the result of the campaign. The matter also receives attention in conjunction with the meeting of the Australian Federation conference. The organ of the Imperial Federation movement says it is impossible to overestimate the importance of the outcome in Canada. It concerns Great Britain's future fully as much as it does that of Canada, and in this view of the case the paper urges that in the event of Sir John Macdonald's return means be devised to render a similar crisis impossible in the future.

The Dead.

Dewas Orton, treasurer of Glencoe, is dead, aged 78.

Admiral Hemmer died suddenly yesterday at Weimar from heart disease.

United States Senator Hearst of California died in Washington Saturday.

Henry Hope Morley, aged 53 years, son of the late Samuel Morley, committed suicide at London, England. He was an eccentric philanthropist.

George Kynoch, M. P. for Aston Manor, Warwickshire, England, is dead. He had only been a member for three years. Kynoch was a Conservative and a strong opponent of Home Rule.

The death of Sir Joseph William Bazalgette, the eminent engineer, is announced at London. He was born in 1819, and was at one time chief engineer of the Metropolitan Board of Works. While in this office he was instrumental in perfecting the drainage system of London. He designed and executed the Albert and Chelsea embankments and other works. He was created a Commander of the Bath in 1871, and was knighted in 1874.

The Labor Commission.

LONDON, March 1.—It is reported that the Cabinet has decided that the Labor Commission shall meet before Easter and make its report before the end of the year. Mr Goschen will preside at the meetings.

FLIRTED WITH THE PREACHER.

Remarkable Incident at a Covenanter Church Gathering.

KINGSTON, N.Y., March 1.—Rev. Mr. Milligan of Pennsylvania, who is a candidate for the pastorate of the Covenanter Church in the little hamlet of Coldenham, in Orange County, and who was invited to deliver a trial sermon there last Sunday, startled the congregation in the midst of the delivery of the sermon by saying:

"I regret to state that I am an exceedingly nervous man, and am annoyed by a young lady in the congregation who has been endeavoring to flirt with me this morning. I have neither the time nor inclination to return the compliment at this time, but may do so later."

These words fell like a thunderbolt upon the Covenanters, more especially as this departure from theology was made while the eyes of the pastor were steadfastly fixed on those of a blushing young lady, who is noted for her good looks and is regarded as the belle of Coldenham.

When the services were finished there was a lively bustling of dresses down the church aisles and out into the country road, and more than one fair Coldenham damsel was willing to accept the pastor's rebuke as a personal allusion. Nevertheless the episode has had a tendency to popularize Pastor Milligan, and the chances point towards his becoming the permanent preacher at the little Orange County Covenanter Church.

THE LAWYER AND THE PILLS.

An Ohio Lawyer's Novel Style of Argument.

COLUMBUS, O., March 1.—Mr. H. J. Booth, one of the attorneys in the lawsuit now ready for the jury, which was expected to-night to break the will of the late Dr. Van S. Seltzer, adopted a strange but convincing style of argument in making his closing speech to the jury last evening. Testimony had been given to the effect that when Dr. Seltzer was dying pills of poison were given him to hasten his death. It was desired by the party represented by Mr. Booth and others to refute this.

So he had a druggist prepare five pills by the same formula as those taken by Dr. Seltzer and these he took in the presence of the jury while making his argument, adding to the dose one pill from the same box as those taken by the doctor. He afterwards spoke for three hours, remarking as he did so that if the evidence on the other side were true he ought to be a dead man.

Tunnel Locomotives.

SARNIA, March 1.—Four of the largest locomotives ever built in the world are nearing completion at the Baldwin Locomotive Works in Philadelphia. They are being built for the Grand Trunk Railway and will be used in the St. Clair tunnel, which runs under the bed of the St. Clair River between Port Huron and Sarnia. The engines are peculiarly constructed, there are five pairs of 50-inch driving wheels on each. The water tanks are on each side of the boiler, and the cab is in the centre of the boiler, extending out over the two tanks. The locomotive is thus constructed to allow it to run backward and forward with equal facility. The cylinders are 22x28 inches and the boiler 74 inches in diameter, with capacity to carry 180 pounds of steam pressure. Each one with the water tanks filled and the starting supply of coal on board weighs 200,000 pounds, the average weight in running order, with tanks about half filled being 195,000. The rails on which they will run will weigh 100 pounds per yard.

Scattered to the Four Winds.

NEW YORK, March 1.—A committee of four from the Staten Island Schultzen Corps appointed to carry out the request of Henry Meyer, proprietor of the Puck Hotel at Pt. Richmond, that his ashes be scattered to the winds from the top of the Statue of Liberty on Bedloe's Island fulfilled their mission to-day. The four committee men, each holding one of the bags containing the ashes in his right hand, pronounced these words together: "Here goes the last of Puck Meyer—happy days," and then scattered the ashes to the winds.

A Boston Steamer Lost.

NEW YORK, March 1.—The steamer Penaland, which has arrived from Antwerp, reports that on Feb. 23 she sighted the Warren line steamer Iowa, Capt. Owens, from Boston Feb. 10 for Liverpool. The steamer Chester, Capt. Tolle, from Rotterdam for New York, was taking off in her boats the crew of the Iowa. The captain of the Penaland thinks the Iowa was struck by an iceberg. The vessel had sustained such injuries as rendered her not only helpless but placed her in danger of foundering. There were on board a crew of 60 men, 21 cattlemen and a stowaway.

Molly Maguires Abroad Again.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 1.—A band of men calling themselves White Caps, but who pursue the tactics of the Molly Maguires, has been formed at Priceburg, three miles south of here. Walter Germyn, superintendent of Germyn's mines, and his foreman, Mr. Gilgallon, have received warning notes decorated with coffins, skulls and crossbones, and William Leitenhan, the docking boss, was warned by a party of disguised men to resign his position and leave town. He resigned. The authorities apprehend trouble.

A Ride to Death.

WHITWELL, Tenn., March 1.—The cable of the incline at the coal mines here broke this morning as the miners were going to work and the car dashed down the mountain. Two men were killed instantly and 11 seriously hurt. Several of the injured, it is thought, will die.

Baptist Church Burned.

ST. CATHARINES, March 1.—The Rev. Jesse Gibson's church, the Queen-street Baptist, a fine structure erected in 1833, was completely gutted by fire this morning. The origin of the fire is unknown, but is supposed to have started from the furnace. The insurance is only $4500, net loss probably $10,500.

Died as Did His Victim.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 1.—James Farrell, an inmate of the State Asylum at Middletown, battered in the head of another patient, Patrick O'Brien, with a section of gas-pipe. He declared that God commanded him to murder O'Brien, who had murdered his friend. Farrell referred to the killing by O'Brien, 10 years ago, of another patient while the latter was asleep in the asylum barn.

Found Dead in Bed.

PROTON, March 1.—Mrs. Sarah Ferguson was found dead in bed yesterday morning. When she retired the previous evening she was in her usual good health.

Prince Napoleon's Will.

LONDON, March 1.—It is stated from Rome that Prince Napoleon has made a will disinheriting his son Prince Victor and indicating Prince Louis as the next Emperor. Prince Napoleon is reported slightly better. He took some food to-day.

FRANCE AND GERMANY.

PARIS EXCITED OVER THE VISIT OF THE EMPRESS.

The Kaiser in a Passion Over the Treatment of His Mother—France May be Called Upon to Explain Her Conduct—The Alsace-Lorraine Passports.

PARIS, March 1.—This has been the most critical week in Paris since the Franco-Prussian war. The real gravity of the situation is becoming better understood now than when the Empress Frederick was actually present. Even Count von Munster, the German ambassador, it is now known, was of the opinion that the ex-empress was making a mistake in prolonging her stay. But of course he was powerless to interfere. The royal visitor, with the very best intentions in the world, made some blunders which showed a marked lack of diplomatic instinct. For instance, she publicly made the remark that her visit to Versailles was prompted by sentimental considerations; that there were so many recollections of her late husband centered there, etc. The Parisians could hardly fail to misinterpret this. Versailles is to them bitter memory. The coup de grace was furnished by the savage editorial of The Cologne Gazette. This article utterly destroyed every vestige of good feeling that might have sprung from a belief in the conciliatory purpose of the ex-Empress. To crown all and to destroy confidence in the belief that the incident was ended with the departure of the ex-Empress came the order of Chancellor von Caprivi for greater severity in the observance of passport regulations. A portion of the French press denounce the order in terms of unmeasured bitterness, while all the journals condemn it and draw gloomy prognostications therefrom. It is generally regarded as a wilful act of provocation. This feeling is strengthened by the comments of the Berlin press, wherein it is admitted that Caprivi's action was the result of the treatment accorded the Empress Frederick in Paris. Much disquietude and forebodings prevail.

PARIS, March 1.—M. Deroulede presided at a meeting of his friends to-day to congratulate the people upon the outcome of the patriotic agitation and the French artists' decision not to send works to the Berlin Art Exhibition. It was resolved to present silver medals to Cassagnac, Rochefort and others. A ball followed the meeting. The ladies present pledged themselves never to dance with a German.

BERLIN, March 1.—The Emperor's wrath at the failure of the visit of Empress Frederick to Paris to establish in some sort good feeling between Germany and France has fallen upon both Chancellor von Caprivi and Count von Munster, the German ambassador at Paris. Upon the former for advising the trying of the experiment, and upon the latter for assenting to the Empress' prolonged stay and to her fatally indiscreet visit to Versailles.

The Emperor is determined to obtain from the French Government some form of satisfaction for the treatment accorded his mother. There are rumors that Caprivi will be ousted from his position and that Count von Munster will be recalled.

The Paris incident is a triumph for Prince Bismarck. The well-grounded criticism of the Bismarckian press will not tend to allay the Emperor's irritation.

STRASBURG, March 1.—A decree published to-day by Prince von Hohenlohe-Schillingfurst, Governor of Alsace-Lorraine, announces that from March 3 next all the passport regulations which refer to Alsace-Lorraine will be carried out to the fullest extent and that all facilities for through tickets on railroads have been rescinded.

PARIS, March 1.—The instructions sent by Chancellor von Caprivi yesterday to the Governor of Alsace-Lorraine, Prince von Hohenlohe-Schillingfurst, to refrain from mitigating the passport regulation in Alsace-Lorraine, as previously proposed, and not to extend in any way additional facilities to the inhabitants of the French frontier communes to attend markets and fairs in German territory, have caused considerable excitement in Paris. The Parisian newspapers to-day publish violent articles on the subject and are certainly not in any way tending to relieve the strained relations at present existing between Germany and France on account of the attacks made upon the Empress Frederick during her stay in the French capital.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—On the Stock Exchange to-day foreign securities opened ½ per cent. under the closing prices of yesterday owing to the irritation which has arisen between France and Germany in consequence of the treatment of the Empress Frederick in Paris. Other securities opened steady.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 28.—The Russian press is unanimous in endorsing the refusal of the French artists to take part in the Berlin art exhibition, as well as in condemning the irritation which the Germans have shown.

The Russell Divorce Case.

LONDON, March 1.—The Central News Association announces to-day that is learns in relation to the application made by Lady Russell, wife of Earl Russell, in the Divorce Division of the High Court of Justice for a writ of separation from her husband, that the details of the case will be exceedingly painful and that the evidence will probably be heard in camera. Adultery is not charged against the defendant. The petitioner is only 25 years of age. Earl Russell has filed a complete denial of the charges brought against him.

Sadler Likely to be Liberated.

LONDON, March 1.—It is believed that the police will have to discharge Sadler, the man accused of the murder of "Carroty Nell." One of the most important witnesses against Sadler died suddenly the other day and there is very little testimony on which to ask for his committal. The coroner's jury having failed to implicate him is also a strong argument in his favor.

The treasury department will drop the prosecution of Sadler, the man who was arrested on suspicion of being the man who murdered Carroty Nell in the Whitechapel district two weeks ago.

A McCarthy Meeting.

DUBLIN, March 1.—The McCarthyite faction of the Irish party held a quiet meeting at Rathkeale, county Limerick, to-day. Messrs. Abraham and Flancane, M.P.s, made speeches. There were no priests at either the McCarthyite or the Parnellite meeting. This was due to the fact that Bishop O'Dwyer had advised the priests to abstain from attending political meetings.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

The Daily Review.

MONDAY, MARCH 2, 1891.

Mr. Stevenson's Committee Rooms, old Council Chamber, Opera House Block, open every evening. All supporters of the present Government and those who are ready to support the Liberal-Conservative Candidate are invited to the rooms to take part in the work of the Campaign.

THE TIME FOR HARD WORK.

THERE are only two clear days between now and the day of polling. Every man favorable to Mr. Stevenson's election—everyone who desir[illegible] the policy maintained that will build up the town, that will give employment to our people and a market for agricultural produce, that will make Canada a country of which every Canadian will be proud and not a dependency of the United States—should buckle his armor on tighter and work with a vim, born of a good cause, from now until Thursday night. Mr. Stevenson is a man who has given very many years of good service to Peterborough. He has always been zealous in forwarding its interests, using his time and his business ability and his means to build it up. He is the representative of a policy in accordance with the public spirit he has shown and that will continue to build up the town. He stands with those who will resist the politicians, Canadian and American, who would give the United States control of our markets and our country. All that should inspire a well-wisher of Peterborough, all that should fire the heart of a Canadian, is on his side, and his election means a triumph for Canadian sentiment and for the prosperity and future of this town and this Dominion. From all parts of the riding encouraging reports have been received. The more the Liberal schemes are understood the more accessions there are to the standard of the Conservative candidate, and by thorough preparation for the final day of decision success will be won by a good majority.

PROPHECIES FULFILLED.

In March 1881 Mr. Geo. Hilliard, who was then member for West Peterborough, wrote a letter stating that Peterborough would within three years have a second railway, that factories would be established in Canada and that this town, by vigilance on the part of its Council, could secure some of them for Peterborough. These prophecies were sneered at by the Examiner, which said that it had been promised that the N.P. would lead to the re-opening of Mr. Stevenson's machine shops and the brick factory, but that they were still unoccupied. At that time the National Policy had only been two years in operation, but have not these prophecies and promises been fulfilled? The machine shops were re-opened and blossomed into the large industry that has occupied and doubled the stand of the old brick factory, and another industry has possessed the machine shops and expanded until enlargement after enlargement has taken place. The second railway has been running for years. New industries, in addition to those mentioned, have been established and older industries have greatly enlarged their capacities and increased the number of their employees. Verily, the promises have been more than fulfilled, and we are only at the beginning even now. The croakers, tried by the test of experience, are shown to have been wrong and by the same true test the present fiscal policy is shown to have done even more than was predicted. The reversal of that policy would reverse the conditions which have favored the growth of the town and would turn the wheel of progress backward, while by returning Conservative members to oppose injurious changes the town and the country will still go forward.

WORKMEN PROTECTED.

In endeavoring to create divisions and arouse jealousies the Liberals would have the people believe that manufacturers are protected and that the workmen are not. There is nothing in the tariff to prevent any man coming to Canada and establishing a factory and competing with manufacturers already in business. It is done now. A short time ago there was no lock factory in Canada, then there was one, and now more are beginning. There is no more protection for a manufacturer from home competition than there is for a workman. But a Canadian manufacturer is protected from the importation of goods such as he makes from other countries. If such goods are brought here, and are slaughtered as they were before, he will have to close up. But he is not alone interested in that. He is not engaged alone in the manufacture of the goods, for the workmen are equally interested with him, and if the protection is removed and he is forced out of business, the workmen lose their employment, lose their business, at the same time that he does. It is plain to all but those too prejudiced to look at the matter that it is not the manufacturer alone who is protected. It is the industry and all who are engaged in it and all who benefit by it, however remotely, which means every workman, every tradesman, every merchant, every property owner and every man having produce to sell, all who provide for and supply the wants of a population, who receive the benefit.

Who would lose by the crippling of the industries of Peterborough? Would it be the owners of the factories alone? No. They would certainly suffer, but with them would suffer the workmen who would lose their employment, the tradesmen engaged in the building and other trades who depend upon a growing population for employment, the merchants and agriculturists who would lose customers, and the property owner whose property would become vacant. There is not a man who would not suffer, and every resident of the town and of the district has a deep interest in keeping up Peterborough and in seeing it grow and prosper. Yet the Liberals, if given office, would enforce a policy that would bring stagnation—aye, worse than that, that would make the town go back instead of going forward—that would sweep away every hope of providing further employment, and that would take their work out of the hands of many now profitably engaged.

WHY should Uncle Sam agree to any reciprocity with Canada so long as he can retain such advertising agents as he has in Canada now, praising the United States and running down their own country and his rival?

The Progress of Astronomy.

It is well occasionally to cast our eyes back over a series of labors, in order that we may rightly judge of our progress.

Rough comparisons alone will not tell us it is a long way from Galileo's piece of lead-tubing, having a lens in each end of it, with the gigantic telescopes of to-day: but we hardly learn much from such a comparison. The extremes of the series are too far removed; to get a just idea of the terms between, the comparisons must be made at shorter intervals.

If we can select some celestial object, which has been telescopically studied for a long period, we may, by contrasting the results obtained at different times, gain some accurate notion of the progress made, and of the way in which it was made.

This latter idea is of some importance when we consider that the day of startling discoveries is over. When Galileo found the four moons of Jupiter, the whole world of men were astounded; and still more wonderful was his discovery of the ring of Saturn—a portion of which, showing on each side of the planet, gave to Saturn the "tricorporate" aspect which Galileo describes in a letter to his friend Kepler.

Even the discovery of Uranus by Sir William Herschel, in 1781, was by no means an extraordinary event, although it was received with enthusiasm in all Europe, for Herschel's examination of the heavens was done with an instrument which could not fail to show Uranus with a sensible disk, if the planet should enter the field of his telescope.

The discovery of the first asteroid, Ceres, on the 1st day of January, 1801, by Piazzi, was received with some surprise, but these small bodies have lately become quite common (there being now one hundred and thirty-five of them known), and certainly we in America, who have Peters and Watson among us, have no cause to wonder at such discoveries.

Neptune was discovered first by two theoretical astronomers in their studies, and the delight with which the news of the actual discovery was received was tribute to the power of pure analysis, and in nowise contributed to the glory of telescopic research.

The startling discoveries, as we have seen, were reserved for the early astronomers, who first found the new country, leaving their successors to accurately map it out. The lesson of patience which can be learned from the labors of these successors is no mean one. To this patience, supplemented by a skill which nationally must be of a high order, we owe the later discoveries of the telescope, such as the finding of the eighth satellite of Saturn (by Bond and Lassell), and of the two interior moons of Uranus (Lassell, 1847, 1851), and of the satellite of Neptune.—Pop. Science Monthly.

What it Costs

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people in buying even necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes, because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said "100 Doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last a month.

Mr. Stevenson's Address TO THE ELECTORS OF WEST PETERBOROUGH.

GENTLEMEN,—The time that will elapse before polling day is so short, and my business demands on my time just now are so great that, though most anxious to do so, I find it altogether impossible to personally call on any considerable number of the electors; and therefore use this medium of placing before you my opinions of the great issue that has been raised by the leaders of the Reform party, viz., Unrestricted Reciprocity with the United States.

The Government of Sir John A. Macdonald many years since placed on the Statute books of the Dominion an Act enabling the Governor-General in Council, whenever the United States declared its readiness to free from duty any named natural products of this country going into that country, to free the same coming into Canada from the United States.

That Statute still remains in force; and, although the Government of Canada has on many occasions called the attention of the authorities at Washington to it, yet they have declined to act on it, but have now signified their willingness to negotiate generally on trade matters.

The present Government has shown its readiness to negotiate for reciprocal trade relations on the basis of the treaty of 1854, which was eminently fair to both countries; and their proposal I will support, but the policy of the Reform party as shown by them and by the politicians and press of the United States, is one which practically hands over to that country the trade of Canada, for the Reform party declare that they are prepared to offer to the United States absolute and unconditional free trade in manufactures, as well as in natural products, and they say such will be accepted by the latter country; and this party, led by Mr. Laurier, urges that such a policy is in our interests, even if we have to discriminate against England and all the rest of the world, and enact and build up a tariff wall equal to that of the United States, and even if we have in addition, to suffer a loss of revenue, placed by Sir Richard Cartwright in his speech in Toronto, the 13th instant, as reported in the Globe, of $7,000,000 or $8,000,000, but which, it is perfectly certain, would not be less than $12,000,000. I submit for your consideration whether this is really a "free trade" policy or a policy deserving your support. I am convinced that it is not, and that it is opposed to the best interests of Canada. The present tariff of the United States is more than double that of Canada. It is, in fact, the most exclusive and excessive tariff known, and the effect of the adoption of it by us would, in my humble opinion, be to make us, commercially, an unknown land—except to our neighbors to the South, for no other nation would or could import its goods to us as heretofore, and as their shipping would come much less to our shores, our trade in cheese, cattle and other products with Great Britain would be seriously injured, if not wholly ruined. The high freight rates, for want of competition, would alone make these products unprofitable, and I am sure you will hesitate before you destroy or imperil a trade with England and Europe of $32,000,000 yearly, made successful, largely, by reason of the keen competition of shipping from England, which, under our moderate tariff, has, out of all proportion to the extent of the United States, come to Halifax and up the St. Lawrence to our great ports for several years past.

The policy of the present Government since its adoption in 1879, has brought into Canada, a tremendous amount of Capital and produced the manufacture of most of our needs of life at prices, through the competition that has grown up, no higher than in the country from which the capital came.

The population of Peterborough has in ten years almost doubled, and I am confident the present moderate revenue tariff will enable the country to construct great public works in our vicinity, and that our town will be not less than 20,000 population within the next ten years. The proposed policy, I am assured, would endanger all the advantages we have gained and almost certainly end in the ruin of our town, as of many other towns and cities in Canada, and also most seriously injure the farming interests by destroying the home market and in other ways and I therefore cannot give my sanction to such a measure.

I cannot believe that with the declarations of high authority we have as to the terms on which we can obtain unrestricted trade relations, with the United States there is any general feeling in favor of the Reform platform, for I find that Mr. Blain, the Secretary of State at Washington, recently in a public speech used these words: "It is their (Canadians) right to choose for themselves, as it is our right to choose for ourselves, but I am opposed, teetotally opposed, to giving the Canadians the sentimental satisfaction of waving the British flag, paying British taxes, and enjoying the actual cash remuneration of American markets. They cannot have both at the same time. If they come with us they can have what we have. It is an absolute wrong for Congress to say that they shall have exactly the same share in our markets that we have, and so far as I can help it, I do not mean that they shall be Canadians and Americans at the same time" and Mr. McAdoo, a Democratic member of the House of Representatives, recently used these words in the House: "The United States do not desire to add a single acre to its imperial domain but if the people of Canada, in their Soverign capacity wish to maintain unrestricted relations with the people of the United States, they have but to rise in their sovereignity, spontaneously and unsought for act and ask for annexation, which is the cutting of the Gordion knot, and the ultimate destinity of the Canadian people."

Neither can I support the new policy, because, as reported in the Globe on the 5th day of October, 1889, Mr. Erastus Wiman, of New York, who is the partner of the millionaire, Jay Gould, and the sole father of the scheme originated for personal and selfish ends, says: "My idea is that a uniform tariff should be adopted both by the Congress of the United States and the Dominion Parliament of Canada; that Canada should agree to always have the same tariff as the United States; that this tariff should be administered by a join commission of which the majority should, of course, rest with the United State." and the Chicago Times confirms this, as do all the leading papers of the United States by declaring that "entire free trade is impossible, unless the Dominion 'is prepared to make a complete and unconditional surrender of all control over its own tariff and to accept whatever tariff our Congress may choose to enact from time to time.'"

I feel that this is a sacrifice and surrender greater than Canada should make for it means the loss of legislative control over our fiscal policy the transference to Washington of the regulation of our tariff and the end of our political existence, and, as said in an American paper "Canadians would be "curs and cads" to entertain the idea."

The end proposed by the Reform leaders I am sure cannot be attained, and, if attained, attainment will bring in its train the incident of direct taxation, with an army of assessors and collectors replacing the Customs Houses and Customs officers along the frontier between the United States and Canada. Mr. Laurier in Quebec a few days ago said that his expectant Finance Minister, Sir Richard Cartwright, would be genius enough to avoid recourse to "so cruel a measure" but in Toronto on the 13th instant, the avoidance the latter found after quoting the words of Mr. Foster, that direct taxation would amount to $20.00 per family, and after entering upon a tirade of abuse of the Government to draw his audience from the question was summed up in these words as given in the Globe's report of his speech, "But it is impossible to deal with these imaginary difficulties, and when I am asked to say what I will do if a possible contingency arises I would respectfully say that we will wait to see the contingency we have to meet."

I am sure the whole electorate will declare with me that this, from a man, posing as a statesman, and seeking the confidence and support of the country was a contemptible and pitiful avoidance of the most vital matter, and an acknowledgement that direct taxation is a necessary incident of the Reform platform.

I would call attention to a matter of local importance, viz., the construction of the Trent Valley Canal, which has been thrown back for two years by the action of prominent members of the Reform party, and the statements in the House that there was good reason for believing that, as a national undertaking, it would prove a failure because of an insufficiency of water. The matter was consequently referred to commissioners to report, and the commissioners having examined the whole of the route and taken a great mass of evidence, have now reported, and the report that has been published is a complete answer to all objections as to its feasibility and the propriety of the undertaking, and, as in the past, I, if elected, shall in the future persistently advocate and insist on the immediate construction of this great work. I am confident it will prove of immense value as a public work, and I know that its importance to this locality will, from various and obvious reasons, be almost inestimable. I am also quite certain that if the Reform party gains power in this election and adopts the policy it is advocating, there will follow such admittedly tremendous deficits in the revenue that even with the aid of direct taxation it will be impossible for the Government, however willing, to undertake the building of this national highway of commerce.

In conclusion, I would ask the electors to accept the above statement as indicating my views of the chief public questions of the hour, and the policy relied on by the leader of the Reform party, and his Wiman allies, as the one by which they hope to gain control of the Government of Canada, and to displace the existing Government, and I would ask all who cannot approve so radical a change as proposed, to rally to the support of the Liberal-Conservative party in the present great crisis in our affairs.

I am, gentlemen,

Your sincere and humble servant,

JAMES STEVENSON.

In Defence of Mr. Jury.

The REVIEW has received from a Toronto wholesale house a letter stating that they had sold Mr. A. F. Jury Canadian goods. That does not meet what was said. Mr. Kendry stated that he was in Mr. Jury's shop and was informed that he (Mr. Jury) handled foreign goods only. The only attempt at an answer is made in the Examiner on Saturday night wherein it is stated that some business man had said he could not "pull the Canadian unless he called them Scotch or English," and that perhaps Mr. Jury had "played this same ruse" on Mr. Kendry when he visited his store. If that is a correct explanation it shows that Mr. Jury will not hesitate to utter "a ruse" to make a point, and certainly his political speeches contain ample evidence of that. He is a man of "ruses" when on the stump, so much so that his statements can carry no weight.

GATHERING OF FARMERS.

A LARGE ATTENDANCE IN THE OPERA HOUSE ON SATURDAY.

The Reform Candidate is Questioned in Different Places and Gives Different Answers—A Rousing Meeting of Farmers on Saturday—Addresses by Mr. Mackintosh, of Ottawa, and Dr. Bessey.

The Opera House was filled on Saturday afternoon with a large and representative audience of the farmers of this riding and the utmost enthusiasm and interest pervaded the gathering. The meeting was called in the interests of Mr. Stevenson and the speaker for the occasion was Mr. Chas. Mackintosh, ex-Mayor of Ottawa.

Mr. GEO. HILLIARD was in the chair and opened the meeting by extending an invitation to any representative of Mr. Hall who might be present to take a seat on the platform. No one responding, Mr. Hilliard went on to make a short opening speech referring to the importance of the present campaign and concluding by introducing Mr. Stevenson.

Mr. STEVENSON was given an enthusiastic reception. He said they had heard him during the campaign and he did not intend to take up their time as they had come to hear Mr. Mackintosh. All he had to say was that in his opinion the present Government was the best in the interests of the country and he knew that the Old Man who was now reaching the close of his career and would probably never appeal to them again for their suffrages, would never do anything to sully his escutcheon. (Cheers.)

A TELLING ADDRESS.

Mr. MACKINTOSH was received with applause. In opening, he expressed his gratification at seeing such a large audience and the pleasure it afforded him to come here to assist Mr. Stevenson, a man than whom there were none more respected and none in Parliament who worked harder for his constituency. (Cheers). He had come, he said, to discuss the questions at issue, and greatly as he regretted the absence of opposition, he would lay the questions before them and produce his proof, and after doing this would ask them to look at Canada first and Washington afterwards. (Cheers). The speaker referred to the leading Reformers who had left the Liberal ranks on account of their policy, and he said no man who considered the interests and honor of his country would hesitate a moment as to which side he would support. He then went into the question of revenue and showed conclusively that there would be at the lowest fourteen million dollars which would have to be raised by direct taxation. No Liberal could stand on the platform and say he would give the farmers and the country unrestricted reciprocity unless we agreed to allow the Americans to make our tariff. To dispose of the blue ruin cry which was being raised by the Liberals, he read the savings banks returns which were largely increased every year, and also quoted the trade and navigation returns which showed that an export trade was still increasing notwithstanding the McKinley tariff. Taking up he quoted Sir Richard Cartwright, Hon. George Brown and others to show that a complete somersault had been turned by the Liberal leaders since 1878 when they condemned that policy which they were now advocating. Mr. Mackintosh also quoted Sir Richard Cartwright when he was Finance Minister, at which time he said that Canada was taxed barely one-third of the taxes of the United States. To-day, after twelve years increase in population the tax increase per head was only nine or ten cents more than in 1878 when Sir Richard spoke, yet that gentleman now was crying out that Canada was taxed so much more heavily than the people to our south. The speaker read from the New York Sun and Chicago Sun showing the heavy mortgage debt and encumbrances which the farmers of the States were laboring under, and yet the Liberals were painting such a glorious picture of their prosperity. The speaker did not believe the Liberals intended to adopt their reciprocity policy, but were merely using it to cajole and mislead the farmers and ride into power on a false issue. He pointed out the advantages the Canadian farmer would have in trading with England where they would have a better market for products than in the United States, and he quoted figures he had gathered in England showing what products were wanted there which Canada could supply. He read a letter written by a farmer from Ogdensburg to a Canadian farmer giving his opinion on the question of reciprocity. The American farmer said good hay had sold on the Ogdensburg market at $5 per ton, cows for $20 and horses from $75 to $100 and that good farms were selling for $22 an acre. On the whole, the American farmer said, he considered the Canadian farmers were in a good deal better position than the American agriculturist. Mr. Mackintosh also read Mr. Geo. Matthew's letter to show the importance of the hog industry. Reverting to the horse question he said it had been stated that horses sold as low as $75 each in the States and he quoted from an English paper showing that carriage horses sold there last month for from $300 to $600. Canada had sold to England and could do it again and sell at an immense increase in prices. In regard to he referred to the action the Government had taken in giving the farmers the two-rowed barley which had proved a success. Mr. Mackintosh quoted figures from the Globe and showed that the purchasing power of the produce of their farms had increased 25 to 35 per cent. from 1878. Mr. McIntosh spoke confidently of the result of the appeal on the 5th of March. He warned them against the evil results which would follow a change of the administration. Sir John Macdonald would do all he could to get fair play in reciprocity, but he would never surrender the rights of Canadians. (Cheers.) They could fight for the old flag but not use it to cover any of their great records. If Sir John thought unrestricted reciprocity was going to benefit the farmers and mechanics would he not give it to them? (Cheers, and cries of yes! yes!) The greatest danger menaced the country to-day and he came here to help Mr. Stevenson because he knew he was a worthy man and had worked indefatigably for their interests. He was confident that they would stand by the man who would stand not only by Canada, but by his constituency. (Loud cheers.) Mr. McIntosh resumed his seat amidst great applause.

UNRESTRICTED RECIPROCITY

BOTH FOR AND AGAINST.

The CHAIRMAN said that their opponents were not always upon the same platform, and in proof of this he would call upon a gentleman to relate an instance.

Mr. R. MAX. DENNISTOUN was the gentleman who arose to this introduction and he was wildly cheered as he ascended the platform. He said that Friday night he had addressed an enthusiastic meeting at Bailieboro. Mr. Hall had called the meeting, but the complexion of those present had soon become evident, so much so that he (Mr. Dennistoun) had to request a fair hearing for the very gentleman who had called the meeting. Mr. Hall, said, Mr. Dennistoun, never made a speech, but simply solicited the support of the electors and his supporters followed him, advocating unrestricted reciprocity, as he understood, as Mr. Hall's platform. When speaking Mr. Dennistoun said he had turned and pointing to Mr. Hall had said, "This gentleman is going to Ottawa to advocate unrestricted reciprocity." Mr. Hall, seeing the feeling of the meeting, said "No, No." Considerably surprised, Mr. Dennistoun said he turned and said: "Mr. Hall, are you in favor of unrestricted reciprocity?" and that gentleman replied "No, I am not." Mr. Dennistoun said he supposed this would be denied, but it had been said in the presence of nearly two hundred gentlemen, and he could bring dozens to substantiate his statement. Such was the effect of the declaration, the speaker said, that the meeting broke up with cheers only for the Queen, Sir John Macdonald and Mr. Stevenson. But, Mr. Dennistoun said, he had put another question to Mr. Hall and that only an hour before the meeting on Mr. John McClelland's corner where Mr. Hall was standing with a group of farmers around him. He had called from the outside of the crowd and asked, "Mr. Hall, are you an advocate of unrestricted reciprocity?" That was not very different from the question asked the night before, but the answer was different. Mr. Hall said emphatically, "Yes, I am." This showed how their platform fitted the occasion, and as Mr. McIntosh had truly said, not only did their explanation of their platform differ, but Mr. Hall could not stand on that platform long enough to go from one end of the riding to the other. (Cheers). The Conservatives had a policy nailed down by twelve years of prosperity and the people were not going to exchange that for the shaking policy of the Liberals. This exposure of double policy was received with great cheering.

A CLOSING ADDRESS.

Dr. BESSEY, a physician who resided in Detroit for a number of years, was then introduced and delivered a patriotic speech which was well received. He contrasted the Canadian people with the Americans and held that the former were superior morally and physically to the latter. He told of the inception of the Commercial Union fad. He was in Detroit in 1878 and had been offered $1600 a year to go into Canada and talk Commercial Union with Erastus Wiman and Goldwin Smith but had refused to sell his loyalty to Canada. The object of the Detroit capitalists in sending out advocates to advocate Commercial Union was to get the Canadian resources for themselves. In closing he referred to Canadians magnificent heritage and said he felt confident we had sufficient self reliance to loyalty to defeat that policy which was a step to political as well as commercial annexation.

The meeting broke up with cheers for the Queen, Sir John and Mr. Stevenson.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

The New Pastor of the Baptist Church—Other Special Services.

Rev. Mr. Trotter, the new pastor of the Murray-st. Baptist church, arrived here on Saturday and occupied the pulpit in his new charge. The rev. gentleman is a pleasing speaker and delivered two forcible discourses yesterday. In the morning he took for his text the words in Ephesians 3, 16-19, and in speaking an eloquent sermon, the subject of which was "The Pastor's Prayer for the People," he referred to his coming to Peterborough, saying he hoped that harmony would alway exist between them as pastor and people, and that he had come to work with them and not dictate to them. Rev. Mr. Trotter has not moved his family from Clairmont yet, and will not for a few weeks until warmer weather. In the meantime he is residing with Dr. Scott, 167 Brock-st.

The anniversary missionary sermons were held at the Charlotte-st. church yesterday and both services were of an interesting character. In the morning Rev. T. C. Cocking, a retired missionary from Japan, occupied the pulpit and delivered an appropriate and able missionary discourse. In the evening the rev. gentleman gave a missionary address which was highly interesting and instructive. In the afternoon an open service of the Sunday school was held and Rev. Mr. Cocking delighted the children with a pleasing illustrated address on Japan.

A collection towards the Springhill relief fund was taken up yesterday at the Auburn Sabbath school. The sum of $7 was raised for the sufferers from the terrible mining disaster.

Rev. Robt. McNair, of Durham, was in the pulpit at both services at St. Andrew's yesterday.

Special services were held in the George-st. church yesterday in commemoration of the centenary of the death of John Wesley and of the introduction of Methodism into Canada. There were large congregations at both services. In the morning, Rev. J. H. Locke, the pastor, delivered a discourse on Methodism with special reference to the class meeting. In the evening he dwelt upon the aggressive character of Methodism, the pioneers of the church in Canada, and gave an affecting description of Wesley's death. Both discourses were able and eloquent. The choir, under Mr. Seward's direction, rendered special music and fully sustained the reputation which they have attained for musical ability.

THE BAILIEBORO MEETING.

A Letter from Mr. Hall and a Reply from Mr. Hill.

To the Editor the Review.

DEAR SIR,—My attention has been called to a letter in the Saturday issue of your paper over the signature of Mr. R. Max. Dennistoun, in which he states that at my meeting in Bailieboro on Friday evening, I denied that I was an advocate of unrestricted reciprocity, from the fact of my saying "No, no," to a remark of Mr. Dennistoun that I was "an advocate of Unrestricted Reciprocity." The truth is that Mr. Dennistoun referred to me as "an advocate of Unrestricted Reciprocity AND ANNEXATION," and in reply I said "No, no" with all the emphasis of which I was capable. I am not an annexationist, but am in favor of Unrestricted Reciprocity. Dr. Goldsmith, Mr. Peter Hamilton, Mr. J. R. Stratton and a large majority of those present at the meeting can vouch for the truth of my version of the matter. Hoping that you will give space to this correction of a palpably unfair and unjust accusation, I remain,

Yours very truly,
RICHARD HALL.

From One Who Was Present.
To the Editor of the Review

SIR,—I have had the privilege of reading the letter of Mr. Richard Hall which appears in this issue of the REVIEW, and beg to state in reply thereto that I was present in the audience at Bailieboro when Mr. Dennistoun asked Mr. Hall the direct question after Mr. Hall had said No, No. "Are you an advocate of unrestricted reciprocity?" and I heard Mr. Hall say most distinctly he was not. There was nothing whatever said about annexation in Mr. Dennistoun's question.

ANOTHER LIBERAL SPEAKS.

Mr. Wm. Loch in Opposition to the Unrestricted Reciprocity Scheme.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—The many letters and different views on the political situation are bewildering in the extreme, and misleading to the electors, as both of the political parties are claiming to work for the good destiny of the Dominion. With your kind permission, Mr. Editor, I venture to give my views and some solid facts bearing on the present situation. I disclaim any motive otherwise, having adopted this country as my home, and living 37 years in the same, I claim that my experience and observations will receive some consideration. Having abstained from ever taking active part in any election, otherwise than casting my vote, which has been up to 1887 recorded for the Reform party, I have not discovered anything where either party would deserve the appellation of Reform party, as unfortunately for the country their policies for obtaining power is of far greater consideration than patriotism for the country. The machinery set in motion by political agitators to decry the country as ruined and on the point of starvation is really refreshing, if it had not a more tragical side.

Shame on them who underate Canada below the United States! If such parties are not ignorant, they are degraded beyond reason. Canadians who never venture farther from where they were born cannot be expected to know better; but there are others of the political host who know better, but so as to serve their purpose, fabricate all sorts of statements to the injury of the country. Last year on my sojourn in Germany, being questioned about the annexation question, of which they had heard so much, to which I stated that without doubt some of the political parties would, if they had it in their power, hand over Canada to the United States. This assertion struck them as almost incredible, that such could be the case, as they considered Canada the more preferable country of the two to live in, as law and order is of the first consideration for safety of life and property. I must mention here that the educated classes in Germany know more of Canada than even the English, of which I have had ample proof. No sensible men can for a moment believe that the Americans would be moved by any philanthropic sentiment to do us a good turn, as Canada has nothing in her history to show where the farmer has not always taken the advantage thereof. The condition for the Dominion to obtain reciprocity pure and simple is tariff equalization, political union, the latter being a mild form for annexation. The cry by political agitators, or swindlers being a more appropriate name, with their fad, how the farmers suffer by the McKinley bill, is doing splendid work to deceive and discourage the masses. Then again some of the manufacturers who think that if the gates are open to reach the sixty millions of Americans, they will flourish with competition with the later. Poor deluded manufacturers! The sixty millions will wipe you all out of existence and you may raise chickens and eggs for E. Wiman. Now about eggs. They were reported three days ago in New York state at 17½ cents per dozen, while they sold in our own market at 16 cents, a good article for exportation! How is it that we can import hats, which in duty and freight amounts 35 per cent, and can compete for elegance and durability with the home product? The fact is that the Americans to meet our difficulty sell lower and perhaps with no profit to themselves, and the English manage it by cheaper labor. The home product would be wiped out of existence under unrestricted reciprocity. This applies to other trades also. Look back to the years when we had reciprocity, how the country was flooded with American manufactures. And how was the condition of the farmers in them times? Many will remember the American or McGregor's hotel, when hardly a day passed without sheriff sales taking place there of farms and their belongings. The sheriff's position was a lucrative one under reciprocity in comparison to what it is now, and if Mr. Cluxton calls that time a golden one then the farmers have been robbed by the exporters. Trade was carried on with the farming community almost by barter. Butter sold at 10 cents, eggs at 7 cents per doz. Why did such articles not find the American markets? The distance was not any farther than now. It was because the prices were not better. Two years ago this time, coming from Chicago, having a sister living in Michigan who took their produce thirteen miles to Toledo, on my visit to her I had ample time to visit Toledo, and coming to the market I was struck with a sight of such an abundance of hay and straw, counting the loads of 29 in hay and almost as many in straw. I was accosted by several at the same time if I wanted hay. Picking on one of the best I found the price of $9 per ton was asked, for which quality I paid here $18. How would farmers have fared, then, to enter into competition when such a scarcity fetched here double the prices? Inquiring of prices in grain, meal and other articles led me to the conclusion that our markets were better in many respects, and when my sister told me that for eggs they could get no more than 12 cents, which sold here at the time for 18 cents, and that cabbage was not worth growing, as a good sized head would not bring more than a cent, I found that there was much improvement wanted in the Western States which ought to concern our southern neighbors more than trying to better our conditions. In noticing in the Examiner, mention is made, how our iron mines would boom if we had reciprocity. I may mention also how our lumber industry would boom in even better measure. Our valuable forests would be razed with such an eagerness as to give us a clean sweep of the North West, and we may then thank our neighbors how they had benefitted us in getting a hurricane something similar as their South Western States. Mr. Cluxton in Saturday's Examiner gives an array of marvellous figures. But if they are all so correct, as in asserting that our Canadian butter has to be shipped 3,000 miles to the English market to compete with German butterine and oleomargarine, I cannot conceive that Mr. Cluxton should not know who the authors and manufacturers of the substitutes for butter are, but I suppose the good feeling he entertains for our neighbors may have led him to cast the odium on the Germans. I must remind Mr. Cluxton and the public that the manufacture of such substitutes would not be tolerated by the German Government. As much as I admire Canada, which I would not exchange for any country, I am sorry to say that the masses do not realize the same truth as a foreigner who has seen more of the world, can appreciate better. If Canadians were more embued with patriotism and self-reliance, the cry of the McKinley bill would never have found an echo across the boundary.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space allowed,
W. LOCH.

TWO SERIOUS ACCIDENTS.

Jos. Redmond, of Otonabee, and a Man Named Anderson the Unfortunates.

On Saturday evening Joseph Redmond, a son of Mr. Joseph Redmond, of Otonabee, met with a serious accident. He fell from a loft and struck his head on the pole of a waggon in the barn beneath with such force that he was rendered unconscious. It is supposed that a slight concussion of the brain was caused, and his life was despaired of yesterday. Dr. McGrath is in attendance and to-day the young man is much improved and fatal results are not anticipated.

On Saturday evening another accident occurred in the woods which will probably result fatally. A young man by the name of Anderson was employed in "Jim" Johnston's shanty by the Dickson Co., when a limb in falling struck him on the forehead, inflicting injuries which it is feared will prove fatal. Dr. King was summoned to Young's Point where he attended the unfortunate man.

OBITUARY.

Death of Mr. Wm. English one of Peterborough's Most Respected Citizens.

Although it was generally known that Mr. Wm. English was seriously ill during last week it will be a painful surprise to the majority of our to learn of his death which occured about six [illegible] on Sunday, 1st inst. He had been [illegible] a severe attack of pleurisy which developed into inflammation of the lungs and in spite of assidious attention and medical skill resulted fatally. In his death the town loses a good citizen, the community an honest, prosperous and upright living man and hundreds of friends one whose kindly smile and genial word of greeting made him a general favorite and endeared him to every one with whom he came in contact. At the comparatively early age of 51 years he has passed away leaving behind the unblemished record of a man universally esteemed and who by his quiet, unostentatious life set an example that it were well to imitate and follow. In his private and family life he was kind, thoughtful and obliging and in a public way thorough and conscientious, and enjoyed the respect and esteem of his fellow citizens to a remarkable degree. It is thirty years ago since he began the construction and manufacture of the well-known "English canoe," and during that time has supplied all over the continent and England orders for these boats. His name is a household word wherever the canoe is in use. He was a member of the old first rifle company organized in Peterborough many years ago and was one of the first to volunteer at the time of the Fenian raid. As President and as a Director of the Mechanics' Institute he has since its commencement, been identified with the advancement and growth of that local institution. He had filled for one term the position of School Trustee and been re-elected for a second term, and his good sense and counsel in school matters exercised a wholesome influence in this regard. A member of St. John's congregation he had for a long time been one of the church wardens, and of valued assistance in affairs of the church, enjoying the esteem and confidence of his fellow churchmen. He was the second eldest of five brothers, sons of John and Margaret English, two of whom reside here. He married Caroline B. Martin, daughter of the late Mr. Wm. Martin, his wife and four children surviving. His brother, Joseph English, who resides at Philadelphia, came here on a visit about Christmas and on preparing to return finds his journey delayed by the death of his brother. The funeral will take place on Thursday, 5th inst., and the incumbent and wardens of St. John's have signified their desire that the last sad rites should be performed with the greatest care and respect due to an esteemed friend and a member of the congregation.

Stick to Your Text.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—At the meeting in the Opera House on Friday evening last addressed by the two imported gentlemen from Toronto, Messrs. Jury and Armstrong, the great and momentous question of the day, unrestricted reciprocity, was, I might say, not touched on. Mr. Jury in the Reform interest being the first speaker, it was his place to enunciate his platform, showing to his audience the great advantages of unrestricted reciprocity, free trade, commercial union or whatever it is, with the United States. But what was it we heard? Mud throwing, little side issues of no value whatever to an intelligent audience to listen to. Mr J. H. Long, late of the Collegiate Institute here and who has been a resident for some little time past amongst our neighbors across the line, gave the most lucid and intelligent discourse of the evening, for the very short time at his disposal, on the benefits as well as injuries that would result from the free trade policy with the United States. Now, Mr. Editor, it appears very plain that our Reform party is not anxious to make this a prominent question when before town or city audiences. Oh, no; it will do, they think, in country places, but amongst themselves no doubt it is well understood to keep it in the back ground in certain localities. If this is not so why not on every platform before every audience advocate the adoption throughout the land of this great principle, showing its wonderful advantages to farmers, merchants and the laboring classes generally. If it is going to be the great bonanza of the 19 century for Canadians, let us know it. There is simply two reasons for their not doing so, one is prestige with a certain class, the other is what a certain hotel keeper here had for a word to signify soundness, it will or will not hold water. So their arguments in the past have been conclusively shown would not hold water. The props have been knocked from beneath them leaving nothing to stand upon, for if they put one foot down it sinks into the mud and when drawn up down goes another like a goose standing in the cold.

Mr. Editor, the disadvantages are so great and numerous that there is no use in attempting to discuss this question, though they have partially attained their end in this cry of free trade with the farming community. But, I ask, in the name of all that is good and great, is this an honest cry and from whence came it? Did not it arise out of the hearts of those who have been denied offices and their emoluments of the land for the last dozen years? Then this cry has been heard coming down the rank and file, increasing in volume until it has drawn in the unsuspecting and unwary, but it is a delusion and a snare. Now, Mr. Editor, let us have this free trade policy discussed pro and con at all meetings, and let those imported gentlemen come right down to hard pan and give us something that is tangible, something at least with an air of truth about it, for upon the rejection or adoption of this policy must hang Canada's weal or woe.

That's Easily Answered.

"My dear," said Mrs. Caparnisaeur, laying down the evening paper, "what is reciprocity?" "Reciprocity, my angel," said the head of the house, "is easily explained. It means a general evening up,—as, say when Jenkins asks me in to take a-a-cigar and I ask him to have another." "Exactly," said Mrs. C., "when I go to Hawley Bros. for tea and I hand Mr. Hawley a dollar and he gives me four or five pounds of splendid green or black mixture, I get the money's worth and he the money. Isn't that it?" "Exactly," said the husband as he reached for his hat. d38tf

A Murderer Caught After 23 Years.

BELVIDERE, N. J., March 1.—The sheriff of Monroe County, Penn., has received a letter from the State of Washington, saying that William Brooks, one of the murderers of Theodore Brodhead, at the Delaware Gap in 1868, has just been captured in that state. Brooks and his companion, Charles Orme, were tried and convicted of the crime, after which both escaped from jail. Orme was subsequently captured and hanged.

It Proved a Pit of Death.

HALIFAX, March 1.—John Cann, a workman employed at Sydney Mines, was descending in the cage, which stopped when 10 feet from the bottom. Cann, thinking the cage had reached the foot, stepped out. Just as he had landed the engine again started and the heavy cage came upon him, terribly mangling his body against the side of the pit and killing him instantly.

The Foreign Money Market.

LONDON, March 1.—There was an active demand for discount during the past week. Money was scarcer. On the Stock Exchange during the week business was generally dull. The unceasing rumors of the precarious position of several financial houses take the heart out of speculation, and until all doubts are cleared away there is small chance of a revival. American railway securities exhibited a better tendency towards the end of the week. Still business was flabby and dealings insignificant.

At Paris a feeling of depression prevailed on the bourse during the past week. There was a general tendency yesterday to sell. There was a prevailing feeling of anxiety on reports that the German Government was making diplomatic communications regarding ex-Empress Frederick.

At Berlin, in spite of the depression on foreign bourses, international stocks here opened steady yesterday, though they weakened toward the close. There was an average decline of ½ per cent.

On the Frankfort bourse during the week business was dull and prices were weak, especially in the case of international stocks.

Dillon and O'Brien May be Released.

GALWAY, March 1.—The weight of their imprisonment does not at present rest very heavily on either Dillon or O'Brien, both gentlemen having tolerably comfortable quarters in the jail infirmary. They are not confined to their beds and employ their time chiefly in writing, it being understood that they contemplate the early publication of brochures on current political events. It is generally thought that they will soon be liberated.

STRIKERS BOARD A STEAMER.

Several Shot and Others Thrown Overboard – A Lively Struggle

LONDON, March 1.—At the Albert Docks last night a number of striking firemen and coal porters, armed with iron bars and sticks, attempted to board the Shipping Federation steamer Scotland, but were resisted by the Scotland's officers and crew and by the non-unionist laborers employed on board of her. A serious conflict followed, during which the non-unionists fired revolvers at their opponents, injuring a number of them. Several of the attacking party were thrown bodily from the Scotland's decks to the water of the dock, and were with difficulty rescued from drowning. The police arrested eight of the ringleaders of the attacking force of strikers.

The Labor Council has issued a manifesto which announces the removal of the blockade declared against vessels the owners of which accept the Furness proposal. The officers of the Shipping Federation say that this does not alter the situation, and demand the removal of the blockade on all vessels before they discuss terms for peace. The resistance of the firemen and sailors alone prevents an immediate collapse of the strike. The unionist laborers are deserting the strikers by the wholesale, in spite of the increased number of pickets thrown out by the latter.

Parnell Delivers a Series of Addresses in Ireland.

DUBLIN, March 1.—Mr. Parnell went to Navan to-day by train, accompanied by John Redmond, Kelly, Clancy, Harrison, Corbet and Dalton. Mr. Parnell received an ovation at every station. Replying to a deputation at Drogheda Mr. Parnell said he was rejoiced at the proof of support everywhere accorded him. If the difference between the two factions were not fought out upon dignified lines the blame would not fall upon his supporters. They would strain every point to accord their opponents a fair hearing, but if their opponents outraged the sense of the people by going outside limits of decency the people would justly resent their conduct.

The party were given an enthusiastic reception at Navan. Mr. Parnell addressed an immense meeting in the square. He said that perhaps some day in the distant future somebody would arise privileged to address them not as men of royal Meath but as men of republican Meath. [Cheers.] It was Meath which first gave him an opportunity 16 years ago to serve Ireland in public life. [Cheers.] At what moment during that period had he ever been unfaithful to the principles then pledged? [Cries of "Never."] They had won a hundred skirmishes together, and now he wanted to be allowed to win the battle with them. Already they had put a snaffle in the mouth of the landlord. Bye-and-bye, with a parliament in College Green, they would fit these same mouths with bit and birdoon. [Cheers and laughter.] Mr. Parnell then proceeded to review the struggle in parliament and referred to the secret system pursued in the House of Commons to sap and undermine the independence of his colleagues. Although they were only 30 against 600, his supporters had had the honesty and courage to beat their opponents. They had driven the seceders from the committee-room and they would drive them out of Ireland before long and out of the House of Commons too. [Cheers.] His supporters had foiled the weakness, treachery and cowardice of the seceders by resisting English intimidation. Thus they had given time to everything solid, patriotic and brave among their race at home and abroad to ask the truth and to rally to their support. He had never feared the result. If he had not a colleague left in the committee-room he would still have to come back to the Irish people to get their verdict. [Prolonged cheers.] In conclusion he expressed the hope that his opponents would take warning of the portents—a popular storm was likely to sweep them away. Instead of opposing the rally to his side let them free themselves from the entanglements and English party alliances woven around them by the "Grand Old Spider". The gate of repentance will still open. If they wait too long the gate would be shut and they would become marked in the pages of history as deliberate traitors to Ireland.

Mr. Parnell was entertained at a banquet in the evening. He will speak in London next Wednesday.

A Tomb Gives News of Nero.

ROME, March 1.—An important discovery of an antique tomb has just been made outside the Salara gate. The grave contains two sepulchral urns, the inscription on one stating that it contained the ashes of Ecloge, the nurse of the Emperor Nero, and the other those of Acte, his companion, but that the ashes were conveyed to the cemetery of the Dimitrius family, in which were Nero's ashes. The inscription adds that Ecloge wished her ashes to lie near those of the emperor.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought that a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question we have purchased the above business from Mr C. N. Brown, who will still continue as manager, in Flavelle's Old Stand, Simcoe st.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of every one to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of

FLOUR, FEED, CHOP, Etc.,

and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices.

We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred in the credit system.

ATTACKED A CONVENT.

FRANCISCAN FATHERS WOUNDED AND ROBBED BY THIEVES.

Shocking Affair Reported From Manilla—Two or Three of Those Attached Will Die—Capture of Several of the Thieves.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—Private advices from Manilla give details of a bold attack by a band of robbers on the convent there. While five of the Franciscans were engaged in conversation in one of the rooms they were met by a crowd of men armed with knives. A severe struggle ensued, the padres defending themselves with the furniture, but at such a disadvantage they had little chance. The thieves took the procurator's keys from him and compelled him to go with them to his cell, where they obtained possession of a bag containing $900. Meantime two of the padres had succeeded in escaping to their cells, from the windows of which they called for assistance, and in the course of time the police appeared on the scene. Most of the robbers succeeded in getting away, but four of them were caught in the grounds and a number of other men were arrested later on suspicion.

Father Jiminez, the procurator, was fatally wounded. The porter of the convent was also dangerously wounded, and the last sacrament was administered to him. Father Eusebio Gomez Platero and Brother Andres Del Val, as well as the infant son of the porter, were also wounded. When the police arrived the convent presented a scene of great confusion, with blood and other traces of the conflict scattered in all directions. A number of doctors were speedily summoned to attend the wounded. The affair has caused intense excitement in Manilla.

NEWSPAPERS HAVE RIGHTS.

It Is Decided They May Buy News Wherever They Please.

BUFFALO, N.Y., March 2.—Judge Corlett has handed down his decisions in two suits, one The Buffalo Express and the other The Buffalo Courier against the Associated Press of the State of New York, denying a motion to dissolve an injunction. The injunction was obtained to prevent the Associated Press from expelling The Express and The Courier because they used the United Press reports as well as the Associated Press reports, which was contrary to the rules of the latter corporation. The result is a great victory for the newspapers and negatively settles the question as to the power of a press association to prevent its members from buying news wherever they please.

Women Oppose Bird Slaughter.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—At the final business session of the Board of the National Council of Women there were present the five general officers and the representatives of the twelve associations now duly entered in the council lists. Among the resolutions passed was a request from the clergymen of the Methodist Episcopal Church that women be admitted to the General Conference; also the following:

Resolved, That the council approve the movement for preventing the slaughter of birds for the sole purpose of ornamentation, and that it asks American women to imitate the example of the Princess of Wales, who has forbidden the use of the plumage of singing birds on her toilets.

Swallowed A Hot Coal.

JACKSON, Miss., March 2.—A curious accident, and one perhaps without a parallel happened recently to a negro known as Jabez Wala, employed as a servant by Rev. Richard Mason. The negro was lying dozing before a wood fire and had just opened his mouth to gape when a log of wood suddenly snapped in two, sending a shower of glowing coals over the hearth. One of these coals with unerring aim fell directly in the mouth of Wala, and lodging in the throat just below the uvula completely closed the passage. The unfortunate negro, unable even to scream or to let anyone know what was the matter, sprang up and rushed about the house in search of water, which, when he found, he began gulping down, and succeeded in extinguishing the coal. The uvula was so badly burned, however, that it had to be removed and Wala will die.

Fire at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, March 2.—A fire in Brock's block at Rideau-Sussex-streets this morning damaged the stock of Faulkner & Sons, gents' furnishers, $4300; McPyhe's fancy stock $230; Mrs. Beckett, milliner, $150; Barrett's restaurant $700.

FRANCE AND GERMANY.

THE WAR SPECTRE ROUSED BY NEWSPAPERS.

The Fiery Language of a Berlin Newspaper—Von Caprivi to be Removed—Unveiling a Statue in Honor of the Centennial of John Wesley.

BERLIN, March 2.—The Kreutz Zeitung speculates upon the probability of war with France, and after upbraiding Germans for being of too patient and sluggish a temperament, and expressing doubts of the friendship of Italy and England, it says that Germany, having failed to secure the love of Europe, ought to endeavor to obtain respect.

The Journal de Saint-Petersbourg hopes that efforts will be made on both sides to remove the shadow on the relations between France and Germany.

The action of the Government in regard to passports in Alsace-Lorraine is ill received by some Conservatives as well as by the Freisinnige party.

The Reichsbote hopes that the passport measure is due to other reasons than the conduct of the French chauvinists.

It is asserted by a person usually well informed on political and court matters that Emperor William's annoyance at the prolonged stay of his mother in Paris was much greater than has been represented by previous reports. He had not expected that she would remain so long, and finding her disposed to protract her visit beyond the time required to accomplish its ostensible object the Emperor telegraphed Queen Victoria requesting her to ask the Empress to leave Paris at once. In this request the Queen immediately acquiesced and a telegram representing in plain terms the expediency of her withdrawal from France without delay was forwarded to the Empress.

The Empress Frederick has written a letter to the Kaiser in which she says she has nothing but praise to bestow upon the considerate and courteous treatment she experienced during the whole of her stay in Paris from the leading personages in the French capital, and that she has no complaint to make. It is stated in well-informed circles that this letter has considerably modified the Emperor's views with regard to the incidents connected with his mother's visit.

The Paris Siecle says that as a result of his mother's letter Emperor William has instructed Count Von Munster, the German ambassador, to thank the French Government for the courtesy with which Empress Frederick was treated in Paris.

CAPRIVI THE SCAPEGOAT.

The Kaiser May Transfer the Duties of Prussian Premier to Dr. Miquel.

LONDON, March 2.—Berlin reports are full of the possible retirement of Chancellor von Caprivi from the post of Prussian Premier, as the scapegoat, with Count Munster, of the Kaiser's failure to conciliate France. Caprivi may retain his place as Chancellor, but his duties as Prussian Minister President will, it is stated, be transferred to Dr. Miquel, now Minister of Finance. The Kaiser has always expressed unbounded confidence in Miquel's management of the finances. At a recent dinner he said: "I am a gold man; and for the rest I rely on Miquel." It is probable that the new premier may retain his office as Minister of Finance, for which there is a precedent in Prussian history.

The Emperor's renewal of intimate relations with Count Waldersee is also looked upon as significant. Count Waldersee has represented an extreme and aggressive military policy. He has been charged even with desiring to bring about war with Russia and France. This charge is unsustained by any evidence known to the public, but there has been no doubt of Waldersee's desire for all Germany to stand ready armed for any event that might occur. He was retired to the command of an army corps at the very time when the Kaiser was meditating his friendly approach toward the French people.

Now he is recalled, or about to be recalled, to the imperial circle at the time when all hopes of conciliation have been blasted. Waldersee has been in Paris before, and at an eventful period. As German Charge d'Affaires in 1871 he displayed considerable diplomatic talent under very difficult circumstances. Should he be appointed to Paris in place of Munster the present situation will challenge all his ability.

Other important diplomatic changes mentioned as probable are the retirement of General Von Schweinitz from the German Embassy at St. Petersburg and the appointment to that post of Baron Saurma-Jeltsch, German Minister at The Hague, the latter being relieved, as already reported, by the Count De Rantzau, son-in-law of Bismarck, who has been representing Prussia in Bavaria.

"From Shadow to Sunlight."

LONDON, March 2.—The Marquis of Lorne is probably doomed to an interesting interview with his Royal and Imperial mother-in-law in consequence of the publication of his new book, which is entitled "From Shadow to Sunlight." It is stated on apparently good authority that the heroine is nothing less than a lifelike sketch of a young lady whom the Marquis once met and admired. The fact has, of course, reached the ears of the Queen, and those who should know state the Royal mother-in-law is awaiting the advance copy of "From Shadow to Sunlight" with an impatience she has not shown for a long time past.

The Lymph Again.

PARIS, March 2.—Dr. Fauvel, an expert in laryngeal diseases, to-day said he doubted the value of Prof. Liebreich's alleged remedy for tuberculosis. He feared bad effects from the use of cantharides. Dr. St. Hilaire commends the sub-cutaneous injection of dogs' or goats' serum in the treatment of tuberculosis. He has records of over 1000 injections which show the treatment, if it does not result in absolute cure, improves the general health, retards the disease and relieves the patient's sufferings.

Snowstorm in Greece.

ATHENS, March 2.—Severe suffering has been caused throughout Greece by a terrible snowstorm. The snow fell for three days in the Athens district. In Thessaly the storm was especially severe.

He will Walk on a Dog Bone.

PITTSBURG, March 2.—Samuel Rodin, the 5-year-old boy who was the subject of a bone-grafting operation recently (the bone of a dog being crushed to bits and inserted), is expected soon to have complete use of the limb operated on.

Bank Closed, President Shot.

McPHERSON, Ka., March 2.—The Second National Bank closed its doors to-day. Just before it did so C. J. Haggelund, its president, shot and fatally wounded himself, whether or not by accident is not known.

Oystermen Drowned.

RICHMOND, Va., March 2.—A special states that in the terrible gale which swept the lower James River Thursday night last 24 oystermen, mostly colored, were drowned off points just above and below the mouth of the Warwick River.

A SISTER IN CANADA.

Suicide of a Printer Who Carried Out His Threat.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Charles W. Easty, a young English printer, killed himself in a Brooklyn undertaker's shop yesterday. Easty was the man who last Tuesday issued a proclamation to the public, notifying it that he proposed to end his life, as he was guilty of an unpardonable sin which had grieved his wife, blighted his children's prospects and broken up a happy home.

Shortly before noon yesterday he entered Frank Harper's undertaking rooms, No. 46 York-street. He talked in a desultory way for several minutes, asking Levine about the cost of funerals, the mode of conducting autopsies and the disposition of dead bodies which are picked up on the streets and in the rivers. Levine went into the office to write a letter. A minute later he heard a pistol shot. Looking out into the store he saw Easty tottering around. The pistol and his hat were on the floor. Easty died in two hours.

Easty, who was of a morose disposition, was a man of 33. He was married in Brooklyn 11 years ago to Miss Adele L. Wood, by whom he had four children. Six years ago he lived in Hartford, Conn., and was financial secretary of the Hartford Typographical Union. He moved to Brooklyn five years ago with his family. He figured in a scandal and owed considerable money and these facts forced him to leave Hartford.

Last Tuesday Easty rushed into a newspaper office in Brooklyn and handed the clerk a long statement, which was a confession and a proclamation that he intended to commit suicide at once. He had led a double life, he said, destroying the family of a friend and breaking his own wife's heart. He was in debt, too, he said, and thought the world would be well rid of him. He sent letters to that effect to Mrs. King and to another sister living in Canada.

CRUCIFIED HIMSELF.

James Quinn of Philadelphia Does Penance for Imaginary Sins.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 1.—With the marks of the cruel nails on both hands and feet, James Quinn, an old man, lay on a cot in the Philadelphia Hospital yesterday, suffering from wounds self-inflicted while seeking to crucify himself as his Saviour was crucified by His persecutors. Though the pain of the wounds must have been intense, the old man seemed not to notice it, but to suffer great agony over imaginary sins. He clasped his hands in constant prayer in penance for past misdeeds. Quinn's attempt at self-crucifixion, which is only the second instance of its kind known, came as the culmination of a long religious brooding and other troubles which had unhinged his mind. He lives at 1106 McIlvany-street.

For the past week he has been unusually wild in his religious ideas and on Thursday night the climax came. Rising while the rest of the family were yet asleep, he began his preparations for his astonishing performance. Roughly marking out the form of a cross upon the floor, and procuring an old hammer and some nails, he was ready for the self-sacrifice.

Placing a nail upon his right foot, a sharp blow from the hammer drove it clean through. Great as the agony must have been he probably made no sound, knowing that it would arouse his mother, son or daughter. Another nail was placed upon the other foot, but the blow from the hammer failed to drive it through. It stuck a bone, in which it became imbeded. Laying his left hand flat upon the floor, with the palm upward, he drove a third nail deep into the flesh. While seeking to drive a fourth nail into his right hand, which must necessarily have been a very difficult operation considering the laceration of his other hand, the family were awakened and Quinn was prevented from completing the job. The nails were drawn from the left hand and right foot, but that in the left foot was stuck so fast in the bone that it could not be removed.

He Pawned His Hands.

PHILADELPHIA, March 2.—James Monaghan was a brakeman on the North Penn Railroad up to 1884, when he fell off the cars while under the influence of liquor and lost both hands. One was cut off from the wrist and the other from the elbow.

The company purchased one artificial hand for him and his wife the other. After a few weeks he took to drink and began to abuse his wife and did not give her a cent of his earnings. He was finally discharged for drunkenness, and after he had spent all the money he had he finally pawned both hands for drink. His wife has now sued for a divorce.

Will Lose Both Feet.

KINGSTON, March 2.—R. H. Peoples, an old man living at Frankville, went to Smith's Falls and on returning home by some means his horse left the road and turned into the woods, where Mr. Peoples was turned out, together with some flour and other articles. The horse then went home. A search for the missing man was begun and it was quite early in the morning before he was found. When found he was sitting up with both boots and one sock off and the foot with the sock off frozen solid to the knee and the other very bad. Both limbs will have to be amputated.

Sawmill Burned.

PAISLEY, March 2.—At about 12.15 this morning the sawmill of Duncan Fisher was discovered to be enveloped in flames. The mill was rented by Mr. Archibald Fisher from his brother Duncan. The flames were confined to the mill. Mr. Archibald Fisher's loss is estimated about $1200 in stock, insurance unknown. Mr. D. Fisher's loss on building and machinery about $6000, insurance $1200. Cause of fire unknown.

A Baby's Playful, Suicidal Shot.

RIDGWAY, March 2.—"Mamma, I'm goin' to shoot myself!" exclaimed a little 5-year-old son of Widow Gardiner, who lives in the Warren-road. The little fellow got hold of a revolver his elder brother had placed in the cupboard ready to shoot skunks; and he pulled the trigger before his terrified mother could interfere. The bullet went through the body just above the stomach.

Thieves Stole the Safe.

QUEBEC, March 2.—Thieves effected a daring robbery early Sunday morning at F. X. Boney's hotel at the Palais. The house was broken open, the safe was bodily taken up and carried out, forced open and rifled. The safe was nearly two feet square, and must have taken two or three men to move it out. It was found yesterday morning broken open and lying in a ditch on the Palais Cattle Market. There had been two watches in it and $485 in cash, all of which is, of course, missing.

Supposed to Have Eloped.

LONDON, March 2.—A Mr. Smithson, living near Aylmer, was in the city on Saturday returning from Detroit, where he had been looking after his runaway wife. Mrs. Smithson left home on Saturday last, and it is believed she has eloped with a man who was on intimate terms with the family. She was traced as far as Detroit, but there all trace of her was lost.

THE CONFERENCE OPENED

AUSTRALIAN FEDERATION MEETING AT SYDNEY.

Canada's Constitution May be the Basis of the Federation—The Queen Regent of Spain Announces That the Commercial Treaties With Other Nations Will not be Renewed.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., March 2.—The hotels are filled with delegates to the National Australian Conference, which opened here to-day for the purpose of preparing a general constitution for the seven Australian colonies, and much preliminary discussion of the questions involved has been indulged in throughout the day. The majority of the delegates favor the scheme of federation proposed as the plan abounds with benefits of vast importance. The questions exciting the most earnest discussion are those relating to the lines upon which the federation shall be laid. A number of delegates are favorable to a constitution similar to that of the United States, while many others prefer the constitution of the Dominion of Canada as the basis of the instrument to be formulated.

There is a feeling, not very pronounced, however, in favor of absolute independence. Delegate Dibbs of Sydney is an unyielding Protectionist, and has declared that he will do everything in his power to thwart the scheme of Imperial Federation.

OPENING OF THE CORTES.

Spain's Queen Regent on Commercial Treaties.

MADRID, March 2.—The Cortes opened today. The Queen Regent in her speech announced that the commercial treaties with foreign nations will not be renewed and that it has been found necessary to establish customs relations in several fresh cases with foreign states. Amnesty to political offenders and the necessity for compulsory military service were also announced.

The Queen said she hoped all the negotiations with America would end favorably. She stated she would do all she could for the working classes.

Dundonnachie's Libel on Her Majesty.

LONDON, March 2.—The arrest of Robertson, alias Dundonnachie, for assault on a Scotch judge, has recalled his outrageous libel on the Queen. During his career as a political agitator in the lower strata of London, Robertson gleaned around Balmoral what he could of a scandalous rumor, invented more, and then printed and privately circulated a pamphlet attributing to the Queen a secret history akin to that revealed in "The Mysteries of the Court of London under George IV." The authorities refrained from arresting the author in order to avoid sullying the spotless character of the Queen with the mendacious filth, but they determined to punish him somehow. They watched and soon got a chance to prosecute him for libeling a private person. Nothing was said in court with reference to the libel on the Queen, but the bench knew of it and the accused was convicted and sentenced to two years' imprisonment. Robertson became crazed and is likely to end his days in an asylum.

CHAMPION COLLEGE OARSMEN.

Courtney's Clever Cornell Crew—Dare Yale Refuse a Challenge?

ITHACA, March 2.—The 'Varsity and Freshmen crews of Cornell University are in active training preparing for the races next June at New London. The training this year has been done under greater disadvantages than ever before, which necessitated cutting down the number of men in training so as to give them all an opportunity to use the machines. Courtney was sorry to do this, as he was obliged to throw out men who might have developed into good material. Courtney and the crew men made such a decided remonstrance that the director of the gymnasium was finally induced to allow the men to begin work earlier. Since this change was made the men have made a much better showing upon the machines.

Hagerman, of last year's crew, who is now at Yale and rowing with the 'Varsity, writes that if Harvard accepts Yale's challenge to a Freshman race, Cornell will not be challenged. If Harvard refuses Cornell will be challenged. Commodore Sanger left for New York Friday night. Early next week he will go to New Haven and challenge Yale to a 'Varsity race over a three mile or four mile course, as Yale wishes. It is Yale's duty to challenge Cornell for a Freshman race, and Cornell will wait for that. Before returning Commodore Sanger will challenge Harvard both to a Freshman and 'Varsity race. The friends of Cornell will anxiously await the result of these challenges. Cornell in breaking both Freshman and 'Varsity records last year demonstrated her power upon the water. The question now is will Yale and Harvard, after playing football with Cornell, dare to accept her challenge upon the water? The sentiment here is that neither will accept the challenge. If this should be the result it will be a virtual admission that the Courtney stroke is superior to that of Bob Cook and that the Cornell oarsmen are the champion college oarsmen of America. The Cornell crews are in good financial condition, as $2000 has been raised, while if a race should be secured with Yale a much larger amount could be raised if necessary.

SHAMBAUGH, Ia., March 2.—Patrick McGitan, a farmer living near this place, while digging a well the other day, struck a vein of "natural cheese" three and one-half feet thick at a depth of 85 feet. He has just received an analysis from a reputable Chicago chemist, who says it is a cheese of a very high grade. It is of a beautiful golden color and will keep any length of time. Mr. McGitan has refused an offer of $50,000.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

Mr. Stevenson's Committee Rooms, old Council Chamber, Opera House. Block, open every evening. All supporters of the present Government and those who are ready to support the Liberal-Conservative Candidate are invited to the rooms to take part in the work of the Campaign.

DO NOT BE DECEIVED.

VERY many Liberals find the policy of Sir Richard Cartwright and his followers so repugnant, involving as it does the sacrifice of our industries and discrimination against British trade, that they cannot endorse it. Many of them have decided to enforce their opposition to such a scheme by sinking party feelings and voting against it. Others are being deceived by the idea that the party would not carry out such a policy, and the talk of free trade and other questions, foreign to the issue is indulged in to mislead. The policy of the Liberal party was laid down in the House by a resolution favoring arrangements "with the United States for the purpose of securing full and unrestricted reciprocity of trade therewith." The platform includes free trade with no other country, but the restriction of trade to one foreign nation. At Ingersoll on October 14th, 1887, Sir Richard Cartwright said:—"It will be necessary for us to discriminate against the manufactures of other countries, against those even of Great Britain." At Pembroke on October 22nd last he said:—"I spoke but the literal truth when I told the New York Board of Trade a few months ago that the sweeping away of the barriers would be equivalent to the creation of an entire new tier of Northern States." When asked at Oshawa on Feb. 9th last if the Liberal policy involved discrimination against trade with Britain he answered "promptly and decidedly in the affirmative."

This is the platform and policy of the present Liberal party. It means the confining of our trade to one country alone, and that country the chief commercial rival of Canada. It means placing the control of our markets into the hands of the United States manufacturers and combines. It means cutting off our trade with Great Britain and other countries, the largest and most profitable part of our trade. It means the destruction of the industrial prosperity of Canada, and the loss of the independence of the Dominion. Vote against it.

"He cannot go against the combine on his own side of the line; prices must be kept up at all hazards."—J. Crowe, Q. C., Liberal speaker. Vote for Mr Stevenson and against placing Canada under the control of United States combines.

IMMIGRATION.

An attempt has been made to make political capital out of the Dominion expenditure for immigration purposes. The Government does not spend one cent to bring mechanics or laborers to this country. More than that, in the information distributed in the Old Country, the people are told that the demand for artisans, clerks and laborers is fully supplied at home, and they are warned against coming out here to look for employment. Part of the very expenditure objected to by men like Mr. Jury is used to prevent men coming to compete with Canadian workmen. But Canada has a vast territory in the West that is yet unoccupied, and to make this land and its capabilities known, in order to procure settlers who will till this fertile soil, appropriations are made. This expenditure is a benefit to the artisans of Ontario, for the more settlers brought from Europe to occupy the fields of the West the larger demand there will be for the product of the factories and shops of this Province.

By the way, the Globe has revised the immigration cartoon. The original represented a number of immigrants landing at Castle Garden, in New York, in the country they want unrestricted reciprocity with. The revised version, sent out later, shows Castle Garden still, the only difference being that the name has been scratched out.

The town's population has about doubled under the National Policy, and it will grow more rapidly if that policy is continued. Vote for Mr. Stevenson.

THE public debt of the Dominion was increased at the rate of $6,160,000 a year by Sir Richard Cartwright. Last year the increase was $6,763. The Conservative watchword is progress and economy.

ALIEN CONTRACT LABOR.

DURING the last session of Parliament Mr. Taylor, Conservative member for South Leeds, introduced a bill prohibiting the importation of any laborers under contract to work for any person or corporation. The United States had passed such a law and it operated harshly against Canadians who, for instance, lived in Windsor and worked in Detroit. Just now the Liberal organs profess to be opposed to the importation of laborers to compete with workmen here. But what said the Liberals then? Mr. Laurier wanted the motion for a second reading rejected at once, Sir Richard Cartwright opposed the second reading and other Liberals argued against it. Opposed to them were Sir John Thompson, Dr. Ferguson, Mr. Lepine and other Conservatives. The bill was referred to a committee, and on the recommendation of the committee it will come up next session. A vote for a Liberal will be a vote against the alien contract labor law.

Congress must not be given the power to make our tariff and levy taxes on Canadians. Vote for Mr. Stevenson.

BRING IT HOME.

SUPPOSE Great Britain was to place a heavy customs tax on the $20,000,000 worth of agricultural products that Canada sends to her ports, and suppose at the same time she allowed similar produce from the United States in free. Would Canada consider her action loyal to this part of the British Empire?

Yet the Liberals ask the people of Canada to treat Great Britain in that way by putting a high duty on goods coming from there and allowing United States goods in free.

The people of this country cannot consent to such a scheme. From a trade point of view alone it would be disastrous, and the political consequences would be such as no Canadian desires.

No discrimination against the country whose flag is ours and which protects our trade and our rights. Vote for Mr. Stevenson.

Do not believe anyone who says there is discrimination against Great Britain now. There is not and was not under the old reciprocity treaty. Imported goods pay the same duty whether brought from Great Britain, the United States, France or any place else.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Examiner has the hardihood to call the meeting of workingmen Friday evening a "rabble." Men who desire to enforce a policy that would deprive Canadian workmen of employment may consider them "rabble," but it will do them little good to show their feelings so plainly.

ELECTORS. The prosperity and very existence of your country is in danger. Rally to Mr. Stevenson's support.

THE duty on coal oil is just the same now as it was when the Liberals were in office. Tea and coffee were taxed then and are now free. The duty collected on sugar last year was less per pound than was collected in 1878 when Sir Richard Cartwright was in office. Sugar may be cheaper England than here, but the Liberals do not propose free trade with England, and it is as cheap here as in the United States. The Liberals propose free trade with the United States alone and its tariff is higher than ours.

Great Britain is Canada's best market for agricultural produce. Unrestricted reciprocity would seriously injure our trade with that country. Vote for Mr. Stevenson.

"That tired feeling" is entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives a feeling of buoyancy and strength to the whole system.

GOT THEM MIXED.

A Composite Biography of George Washington and St. Valentine.

There was always great excitement in the office of the Middleport Daily Diffuser when their weekly edition went to press, and on this particular occasion there was more rumpus than usual when the devil poked his head in and remarked that half a column of matter was needed to fill the form.

"Mr. Smith," called the editor to a poor, tired-looking reporter, "I want a half-column of stuff—let me see—yesterday was St. Valentine's day and Washington's birthday is next week; so you might write a short sketch of each and send it upstairs to the printer when finished. I'm going home now."

Poor Smith sighed dismally. He had just returned from a big dinner which he had been ordered to report, and the cigars and other viands had made his head ache most dreadfully. But he took down the cyclopædia and went manfully to work.

The next morning the editor sat down to breakfast and opened the Weekly Diffuser. He skipped lightly over the "poet's corner" and "answers to correspondents," and was about to turn the page when his eye fell upon the following title, and he read the article with a feeling of horror. It was Smith's midnight contribution, and read thus:

THE VALENTINE OF OUR COUNTRY.

"George Washington was born February 14 under Claudius II. at Rome; some say under Aurelian in 271. At the early age of eighteen he visited the Indian country as a surveyor. When Valentine had invested Boston in 1775 St. Washington was called to the bishopric of the American armies and was elected President of the United States in 1789, when Virginia went Republican for the first time on record. Owing to the martyrdom of Valentine he was canonized by one of the early popes. In the middle ages it was the habit for young gallants to awaken their love on that day by singing beneath their windows at the break of day:

"'Sweethearts faire, be mine,
On this day of St. Washington.'

"After his celebrated crossing of the Delaware the history of the good saint is little known, but he is recognized by the Government of the United States as an important factor in swelling the postal receipts of this country. The wines were excellent."

"By Jove!" exclaimed the editor, as he finished reading, "I had forgotten that Smith was at the dinner."—Judge.

No matter how slight a citizen's importance may be, he feels when he gets into a street car filled with ladies that he is a man of standing.

"A yacht manned entirely by women" is promised as a novelty for the next Newport season. The buoys will be handled entirely by girls, of course.

If people worked as hard after marriage to keep each other as they did before the engagement to win each other, marriage would be more of a success.

"Why won't you associate with Fleche?" "Because he was engaged to my wife before I married her. A man that's sharper than I am is no associate for me."

"Mrs. Small, this coffee won't settle," complained McWatty to his boarding-house keeper. "Then it is in good company, Mr. McWatty," replied Mrs. Small, frigidly.

Mr. Stevenson's Address

WEST PETERBOROUGH.

GENTLEMEN,—The time that will elapse before polling day is so short, and my business demands on my time just now are so great that, though most anxious to do so, I find it altogether impossible to personally call on any considerable number of the electors; and therefore use this medium of placing before you my opinions of the great issue that has been raised by the leaders of the Reform party, viz., Unrestricted Reciprocity with the United States.

The Government of Sir John A. Macdonald many years since placed on the Statute books of the Dominion an Act enabling the Governor-General in Council, whenever the United States declared its readiness to free from duty any named natural products of this country going into that country, to free the same coming into Canada from the United States.

That Statute still remains in force; and, although the Government of Canada has on many occasions called the attention of the authorities at Washington to it, yet they have declined to act on it, but have now signified their willingness to negotiate generally on trade matters.

The present Government has shown its readiness to negotiate for reciprocal trade relations on the basis of the treaty of 1854, which was eminently fair to both countries; and their proposal I will support, but the policy of the Reform party as shown by them and by the politicians and press of the United States, is one which practically hands over to that country the trade of Canada, for the Reform party declare that they are prepared to offer to the United States absolute and unconditional free trade in manufactures, as well as in natural products, and they say such will be accepted by the latter country; and this party, led by Mr. Laurier, urges that such a policy is in our interests, even if we have to discriminate against England and all the rest of the world, and enact and build up a tariff wall equal to that of the United States, and even if we have in addition, to suffer a loss of revenue, placed by Sir Richard Cartwright in his speech in Toronto, the 13th instant, as reported in the Globe, of $7,000,000 or $8,000,000, but which, it is perfectly certain, would not be less than $12,000,000. I submit for your consideration whether this is really a "free trade" policy or a policy deserving your support. I am convinced that it is not, and that it is opposed to the best interests of Canada. The present tariff of the United States is more than double that of Canada. It is, in fact, the most exclusive and excessive tariff known, and the effect of the adoption of it by us would, in my humble opinion, be to make us, commercially, an unknown land—except to our neighbors to the South, for no other nation would or could import its goods to us as heretofore, and as their shipping would come much less to our shores, our trade in cheese, cattle and other products with Great Britain would be seriously injured, if not wholly ruined. The high freight rates, for want of competition, would alone make these products unprofitable, and I am sure you will hesitate before you destroy or imperil a trade with England and Europe of $22,000,000 yearly, made successful, largely, by reason of the keen competition of shipping from England, which, under our moderate tariff, has, out of all proportion to the extent of the United States, come to Halifax and up the St. Lawrence to our great ports for several years past.

The policy of the present Government since its adoption in 1879, has brought into Canada, a tremendous amount of Capital and produced the manufacture of most of our needs of life at prices, through the competition that has grown up, no higher than in the country from which the capital came.

The population of Peterborough has in ten years almost doubled, and I am confident the present moderate revenue tariff will enable the country to construct great public works in our vicinity, and that our town will be not less than 20,000 population within the next ten years. The proposed policy, I am assured, would endanger all the advantages we have gained and almost certainly end in the ruin of our town, as of many other towns and cities in Canada, and also most seriously injure the farming interests by destroying the home market and in other ways and I therefore cannot give my sanction to such a measure.

I cannot believe that with the declarations of high authority we have as to the terms on which we can obtain unrestricted trade relations, with the United States there is any general feeling in favor of the Reform platform, for I find that Mr. Blain, the Secretary of State at Washington, recently in a public speech used these words: "It is their (Canadians) right to choose for themselves, as it is our right to choose for ourselves, but I am opposed, teetotally opposed, to giving the Canadians the sentimental satisfaction of waving the British flag, paying British taxes, and enjoying the actual cash renumeration of American markets. They cannot have both at the same time. If they come with us they can have what we have. It is an absolute wrong for Congress to say that they shall have exactly the same share in our markets that we have, and so far as I can help it, I do not mean that they shall be Canadians and Americans at the same time" and Mr. McAdoo, a Democratic member of the House of Representatives, recently used these words in the House: "The United States do not desire to add a single acre to its imperial domain but if the people of Canada, in their Soverign capacity wish to maintain unrestricted relations with the people of the United States, they have but to rise in their sovereignity, spontaneously and unsought for act and ask for annexation, which is the cutting of the Gordion knot, and the ultimate destinity of the Canadian people."

Neither can I support the new policy, because, as reported in the Globe on the 5th day of October, 1890, Mr. Erastus Wiman, of New York, who is the partner of the millionaire, Jay Gould, and the sole father of the scheme originated for personal and selfish ends, says: "My idea is that a uniform tariff should be adopted both by the Congress of the United States and the Dominion Parliament of Canada; that Canada should agree to always have the same tariff as the United States; that this tariff should be administered by a join commission of which the majority should, of course, rest with the United State." and the Chicago Times confirms this, as do all the leading papers of the United States by declaring that "entire free trade is impossible, unless the Dominion is prepared to make a complete and unconditional surrender of all control over its own tariff and to accept whatever tariff our Congress may choose to enact from time to time.'"

I feel that this is a sacrifice and surrender greater than Canada should make for it means the loss of legislative control over our fiscal policy the transference to Washington of the regulation of our tariff and the end of our political existence, and, as said in an American paper "Canadians would be "cars and cads" to entertain the idea."

The end proposed by the Reform leaders I am sure cannot be attained, and, if attained, attainment will bring in its train the incident of direct taxation, with an army of assessors and collectors replacing the Customs Houses and Customs officers along the frontier between the United States and Canada. Mr. Laurier in Quebec a few days ago said that his expectant Finance Minister, Sir Richard Cartwright, would be genius enough to avoid recourse to "so cruel a measure" but in Toronto on the 13th instant, the avoidance the latter found after quoting the words of Mr. Foster, that direct taxation would amount to $20.00 per family, and after entering upon a tirade of abuse of the Government to draw his audience from the question was summed up in these words as given in the Globe's report of his speech, "But it is impossible to deal with these imaginary difficulties, and when I am asked to say what I will do if a possible contingency arises I would respectfully say that we will wait to see the contingency we have to meet."

I am sure the whole electorate will declare with me that this, from a man, posing as a statesman, and seeking the confidence and support of the country was a contemptible and pitiful avoidance of the most vital matter, and an acknowledgement that direct taxation is a necessary incident of the Reform platform.

I would call attention to a matter of local importance, viz., the construction of the Trent Valley Canal, which has been thrown back for two years by the action of prominent members of the Reform party, and the statements in the House that there was good reason for believing that, as a national undertaking, it would prove a failure because of an insufficiency of water. The matter was consequently referred to commissioners to report, and the commissioners having examined the whole of the route and taken a great mass of evidence, have now reported, and the report that has been published is a complete answer to all objections as to its feasibility and the propriety of the undertaking, and, as in the past, I, if elected, shall in the future persistently advocate and insist on the immediate construction of this great work. I am confident it will prove of immense value as a public work, and I know that its importance to this locality will, from various and obvious reasons, be almost inestimable. I am also quite certain that if the Reform party gains power in this election and adopts the policy it is advocating, there will follow such admittedly tremendous deficits in the revenue that even with the aid of direct taxation it will be impossible for the Government, however willing, to undertake the building of this national highway of commerce.

In conclusion, I would ask the electors to accept the above statement as indicating my views of the chief public questions of the hour, and the policy relied on by the leader of the Reform party, and his Wiman allies, as the one by which they hope to gain control of the Government of Canada, and to displace the existing Government, and I would ask all who cannot approve so radical a change as proposed, to rally to the support of the Liberal-Conservative party in the present great crisis in our affairs.

I am, gentlemen,

Your sincere and humble servant,

JAMES STEVENSON.

Co-operative Creameries.

Farmers must get out of the runs their ancestors were in. They are forced to do this to keep up with the times. Co-operation is one of these methods. There are to-day nearly 30 creameries in successful operation in the State of Connecticut. With private dairies six times the capital and labor are required that are needed by these co-operative creameries, and most dairy butter sells for from two to five cents less per pound. The creamery enforces system and cleanliness in all particulars. By this means a more uniform article is produced. The lower grades of butter are being rapidly driven from the market, and some first-class grocers will handle no dairy butter. The day for fancy prices for butter is past and farmers must settle down to business and work together. Butter-making is better calculated to bring up our farms than keeping stock. The present price of land is such that any young man who is willing to deny himself as he would in the West can make farming a success here, and not many miles away from advantages eastern farmers can enjoy almost at their doors.—Buffalo Express.

A Work of Supererogation.

A girl about 6 years old is in the habit of going to Sunday school. Last Sunday the superintendent told how God knew everything. At bed time that night the little girls mother undressed her, and then told her to say her prayers. The tot knelt down, and, quickly jumping to her feet began to climb into bed.

"Why, Josie," said her mother, "you haven't said your prayers."

"I know that, mamma, but what is the use when God knows all that I intend to say?"

The mother was taken aback, and for once Josie did not say her prayers.

FROM LAKEFIELD.

The Village Will Be True to Its Interests on Thursday Next.

From a Correspondent.

There is every indication that on the 5th of March the village of Lakefield will eclipse any previous record by an almost unanimous vote in favor of the Trent Valley Canal. As previously stated, there seems to be a common understanding on behalf of the electors that for this election at least they will bury their political differences and vote for Mr. Burnham as being the man of all others the most likely to push forward this most important work. They know that Mr. Burham has large interests in the county and in the town of Peterborough and that he has shown by his actions in Parliament and out that he is thoroughly imbued with the importance of the Trent Valley canal, not only as a great national highway between the great lakes and the St. Lawrence, but as of vital importance to us in opening up the resources of this and adjoining counties and affording the easiest and cheapest route to and from the markets of the world.

On the 5th of March, then, the electors of Lakefield will be true to themselves and to the best interests of their village. They will not be led away by side issues, but will speak with no uncertain sound in favor of what, for this election at least, must be their politics, Trent Valley Canal.

THE SPRINGHILL DISASTER.

An Acknowledgement and a Further Suggestion as to Giving Aid.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—On Friday last I wrote asking you if anything had been done in Peterborough to help the unfortunate sufferers by the disaster at Springhill, thinking that if the public were reminded of it, a meeting might be called and some concerted action taken. So far, however, I have heard of nothing of the kind, the only response being from one lady who went round on Saturday last and collected $34.10, which she brought to me. It was very good of her and a very practical way of responding to my appeal, but I should like to see the Town do something as a town, in addition to a private subscription list. When other places are doing so well in this matter, why should Peterborough be behind? I repeat that I shall be happy to act as treasurer and forward the money free of charge, or if a public meeting is called and a subscription list started, I shall of course hand over the money already collected to any treasurer who may be appointed at such meeting.

Yours faithfully,
F. J. LEWIS.

The Charlotte-st. Methodist church was filled last evening with a delighted audience, when Rev. Mr. Cocking, a returned missionary from Japan, delivered an illustrated lecture on the Japanese. The rev. gentleman illustrated his lecture by means of views, showing the customs and scenes from every day life among the Japanese. This was highly interesting. Then the rev. gentleman dressed in the attire of a Buddhist priest and gave several interesting illustrations of religious observances. At the close the rev. gentleman held a sale of Japanese curiosities which he had with him. A silver collection was taken at the door.

On the Ice.

At a skating carnival in Campbellford Mr. W. A. Logan, of Peterborough, won a silver medal for the best comic costume. In its report of the carnival the Herald says: "The chief attraction of the evening was Mr. Hartley, and as soon as the rink was cleared he appeared on the ice and at once commenced an exhibition of his skill in graceful moves and difficult executions to the great interest of the spectators. His one-foot movements, flat and lock spins, double whirls, vines, etc., and his daring toe movements were surprising to see and very much admired by all present. Mr. Hartley has distinguished himself for the ease and grace with which he moves over the ice, and he has acquired a place which few have ever attained."

A Sad Visitation.

This morning citizens generally were shocked to learn that Mrs. Hall, wife of the late Mr. Fred Hall, whose remains were only laid at rest in the cemetery on Tuesday, had also succumbed to the same disease, pneumonia, that had so suddenly carried away her husband. The deceased lady was stricken down on Monday night last, the night before her husband's funeral, and though the greatest attention and best medical skill endeavored to prolong her days, all was in vain and she died last night. By the two deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Hall four small children are made orphans. They will have the sympathy of the entire community in their sorrowful bereavement. Mrs. Hodge, sister of Mrs. Hall, is also lying seriously ill with pneumonia.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. "KINGSTON, March 3rd, 1891.

"The Trent Valley Canal Commissioners having reported favorably on the completion of the scheme, Parliament will be asked in the estimates next session for a grant for the purpose.

Mr. Clegg's Letter.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—In Saturday's issue of the Examiner I see a long letter signed A. Clegg, giving a most doleful account of the furniture trade of Canada under the N. P. and closing with this question, "If a suit of clothes, as was stated by Mr. Long, that can be bought here for $20.00 will cost in the States $30.00 and that in a place where wheat is selling at 37½ cents per bushel and men willing to work for their board, why cannot the Auburn woollen mills compete successfully in that market?" Now, Mr. Clegg does not seem to know that under the present fiscal policy Canada has an advantage over the United States in the matter of the fine wool that is needed for the suit of clothes he mentions. While we receive our fine wools free of duty shipped from foreign parts in bond for Canada, the United States have to pay a duty of 11 cents in the grease on every pound or 33 cents per pound on the clean wool. In the event of unrestricted reciprocity Canada would be placed at the same disadvantage and a Canadian suit of clothes could no longer be bought for $20.00 nor would the men willing to work for their board be available then, as many of them would find employment in supplying the new market of 6,000,000, while it would be our workmen who would most likely be the sufferers. If the furniture trade of the country is in such a deplorable condition as Mr. Clegg says it is under protection, I would advise him to hesitate before he votes to have the barriers thrown down letting loose the enormous furnishing trade of the United States on our markets, as I can positively assure him that notwithstanding his cry of "blue ruin" he still has the advantage at least in the price he gets for his pictures, as in July, 1889, I bought from him three framed etchings and on my next visit to New York I saw the same etchings, same proof, with superior framing for sale on 23rd-st., and being curious to compare prices found that I had paid Mr. Clegg just double the New York price, he having charged me $62.00, while the New York price was $30.00. How many pictures could you send out of your establishment to United States markets at that price, Abe?

Immediately following Mr. Clegg's letter is one headed "A few supplementary facts." Does that mean that they are by the previous writer? Well, Mr. Workingman, whoever you are, your statement that I discharged a man in June last who did not vote for my candidate, is a falsehood. I never discharged a man at any time or after any election who did not vote with me, and I challenge you to prove your assertion.

Yours,
JAMES KENDRY.

Died from Fright.

OTTAWA, Ill., March 2.—Mrs. George D. Shaver, wife of a prominent farmer living near this city, died from fright this evening. She and her daughter were driving a spirited horse and the animal shied at a street car, but did not run away. Mrs. Shaver was helped out of her carriage, taken into a residence close by and died in less than half an hour.

A Greenhouse Destroyed.

HAMILTON, March 2.—Early yesterday morning a fire broke out in James Wilds' greenhouse in Barton-street, east of the city limits. There was a large stock of plants and flowers in the greenhouse. The loss is estimated at $3000.

Her Hair Caught Fire.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 2.—Mrs. Mary Jermain, wife of a newspaper man of St. Joseph, Mo., was dressing her hair near a table lamp last night when in some way her hair caught on fire. Before help could reach her she was so badly burned that she is not expected to live.

A Statue to Wesley.

LONDON, March 2.—To-day being the one hundredth anniversary of the death of John Wesley, a statue erected in his honor was unveiled in the presence of a large concourse of people in front of the City Road Chapel, the headquarters of the Wesleyans. Rev. Frederick Farrar, Archdeacon of Westminster, took part in the ceremonies.

The Archdeacon delivered a long and eloquent eulogy of John Wesley, during the course of which he said he regretted as a churchman that the church a hundred years ago had not the wisdom to assimilate with the mighty enthusiasm which gave momentum to the Wesleyan movement. It seemed, said the archdeacon, shocking and disgraceful in Christians bound by a common Christianity to treat each other with mutual coldness. John Wesley himself, he added, set an example of splendid tolerance. The Archdeacon reminded the congregation of the words of William Penn that the humble, meek, merciful and just are all of one religion and will so recognize each other when in another world with the mask off.

"Jack the Ripper" in Germany.

BERLIN, March 2.—The State Attorney in Kustrine has offered a reward for the capture of the German "Jack the Ripper," who, since September last, has made five attempts to kill five different women, after the manner of his London namesake. His last victim is Pauline Wilder, who received a wound 20 centimetres in length across her stomach, inflicted by the "Ripper" on Feb. 21. She died yesterday. The man is described as about 30 years old, having a blonde mustache and wearing sailors' clothes.

Queen Victoria is Pleased.

PARIS, March 2.—The Figaro announces that Queen Victoria was so pleased by the account given her by the Empress Frederick of the respect and courtesy which the latter was shown during her visit to Paris that she has promised to return the compliment, and will stop two days in Paris when she passes through this city en route to the south of France.

At the conclusion of the ball last night which followed the meeting of M. Deroulede's friends, at which the latter presided, Deroulede recited a military poem, ending with the words "Sonnez la charge. Nous les vaincrons." The charge was then sounded upon bugles amid a scene of the wildest enthusiasm. M. Laisant, during the course of the evening, made a violent speech, concluding with the cry "Down with the allies of Germany!"

Losses of Emigration Agents.

BERLIN, March 2.—The Bremen, Hamburg and Brazilian emigration agents have lost 150,000 marks recently by the Russian officers discovering their secret office in the village of Bujai, near the Prussian frontier, where there were concealed 300 tickets and bogus passes, all of which, together with the money and fixtures in the place, were promptly confiscated.

French Paintings Stolen.

MOSCOW, March 2.—Great excitement has been caused here by the discovery that four pictures by French artists, which have been on exhibition here, have been cut from their frames and carried off. The general belief is that this was done by Germans as an act of revenge, and upon this theory the police are making a careful search of the houses of all Germans throughout the Moscow Government.

Fatal Mistakes.

PARIS, March 2.—While the Vicomte Brailles was walking through his grounds near Troyes one night last week he was shot, it is feared fatally, by game-keepers. The Vicomte returned the fire, killing one gamekeeper and wounding another. In the darkness the vicomte supposed the game-keepers were poachers, while they mistook him for a trespasser.

Trade Unionists Charged With Murder

LIMERICK, March 2.—Four dock laborers were committed last night for trial at the next assizes, charged with the murder of Thomas Doyle, a non-union man. The police, on the evidence given by an informer, have arrested two brothers named Dennis and a man named Peter Martin for the murder of George Franklin in Oct., 1889.

Orders for Steel Rails.

LONDON, March 2.—Orders for 12,000 tons of steel rails for Denmark, and between 20,000 and 30,000 tons for Canada and India, were given out in the North of England yesterday. The orders were divided between Middlesbrough and Sheffield firms.

The American Delegation.

DUBLIN, March 2.—Parnell presided at a meeting held by his colleagues here to-day. The meeting adopted a resolution appointing Messrs O'Kelly, W. Redmond, John O'Connor and Harrison a committee to go to America to raise funds.

To Legislate Against Fog.

LONDON, March 2.—Viscount Volmer in the House of Commons will ask the Government to appoint a royal commission to examine into the question whether it is possible by legislation to mitigate the increasing prevalence of fogs, which are so great a detriment to wage-earners.

The Influence of a Tramp.

The president of a Delaware savings bank refused to give a tramp ten cents, and the tramp went about hinting that the bank was unsafe, and in twenty-four hours there was a run which took out many thousand dollars, but fortunately not enough to occasion any inconvenience to the bank.

They Are Philosophers.

The warden at Sing Sing says that bank burglars are the best behaved men in his prison. Their idea is to serve their time as quickly as possible, and they are very careful to break no rules and enter into no plots. If one escapes he always goes it alone and makes a sure thing of it.—Detroit Free Press.

ADVERTISE IN HHE REVIEW

The First Panorama.

The panorama was invented by a Scotchman named Robert Barker, who obtained a license in London in 1787 and erected a rotunda on Leicester Square. He was associated with Robert Fulton, the practical inventor of the steamboat, who introduced panoramas into Paris in 1796, but resigned in favor of Thayer, perhaps in order to give his attention to the application of steam to boats. Thayer raised a rotunda on the Boulevard Montmartre, whence comes the name of the Passage des Panoramas. Bonaparte caused plans to be drawn up for eight panoramas in which his conquests were to be shown to Parisians, whom he always tried to impress with the magnitude of his achievements in order to keep them faithful to his star. But these projects were never realized. The legend of Robert Barker is as follows: He was imprisoned for debt at Edinburgh in a cell with one opening only, and that in one corner of the roof of the dungeon. It was so dark that he could not see to read, but he found that by placing the paper near the narrow shaft of light that fell through the hole in the ceiling the letters of the writing became surprisingly distinct. This set him thinking, and after he was released he began experiments on pictures strongly lighted from above in a dark room.

What would you gain if the Lock Works, Bridge Works, foundries and mills were injured? Do you not want the Edison Works and such industries in the town? Vote for Mr. Stevenson.

That's Easily Answered.

"My dear," said Mrs. Cupandsaucer, laying down the evening paper, "what is reciprocity?" "Reciprocity, my angel," said the head of the house, "is easily explained. It means a general evening up,—as, say when Smithers asks me in to take a cigar and I ask him to have another.' "Exactly," said Mrs. C., "when I go to Hawley Bros. for tea and I hand Mr. Hawley a dollar and he gives me four or five pounds of splendid green or black mixture, I get the money's worth and he the money. Isn't that it?" "Exactly," said the husband as he reached for his hat. d36tf

An elegant Special City Prize valued at from $20.00 to $50.00 will be given each day to the person in Peterborough from whom is received the best list of English words (of not less than three letters) formed from letters contained in the two words "Ladies Newspaper." This offer is made by the publishers of a large, 32 page, four column Journal, edited by women, for the intelligent women of Canada. Over two hundred valuable prizes are offered in addition to the above extra special prizes given daily. All fortunate enough to secure a prize in this Competition will obtain a valuable one, as none other will be given.

This competition will be upon an entirely different plan from any before offered in Canada, in fact, after the style of those introduced by leading English publishers, and will be conducted in the same honorable manner which has governed English Competitions.

The publishers of "The Ladies Newspaper" are not offering these competitions expecting to make any money from direct results, but will expend several thousand dollars in this manner for the purpose of introducing their Journal.

The first object will be to make them strictly fair and impartial and establish an enviable reputation for the publication itself. Persons desiring to enter the competition may start at once, but send your address on a postal card and receive a free sample copy with full particulars. Address

The Liberal Leaders, Sir Richard Cartwright and Mr. Laurier, OPPOSED AN ALIEN LABOR LAW for Canada. Workingmen, consult your own interests by opposing them and voting for Mr. Stevenson.

A REFORMER'S OPINION.

The Best Market in Danger—A Great and Injurious Folly.

In 1887 the Hon. James Young, then as now, an active member of the Reform party, wrote a series of letters on Commercial Union, which were published at the time in the Toronto Globe. From these letters the following extracts are made:—

THE RESULT.

Political union has followed commercial in Germany, and he must be very blind who thinks it would be different on this Continent.

MANUFACTURERS TO SUFFER.

To discuss the commercial results of a Zollverein at length is foreign to my purpose. That many advantages would flow to Canada therefrom is undoubted. But there is a bronze as well as a silver side to the shield. Certainly our rising manufactures would suffer under free competition with the older, larger and richer establishments of the United States, and the hopes entertained that the Maritime Provinces, with their stores of coal and iron, will, ere many years, become the New England of Canada, would be indefinitely postponed. Canadians who occasionally rush along the great through lines of American travel to New York or Chicago, naturally come back with very exaggerated ideas of our neighbor's prosperity. Let them go into the country districts of the various States; let them compare northern Maine and New Hampshire with our Maritime Provinces, or Michigan, Ohio, or any other State with Ontario; let them contrast the territories of the Great North-west, and it will be found that our general prosperity does not compare unfavorably with theirs. So far as Ontario is concerned I know of no part of the United States in which the masses of the people are healthier, wealthier, or happier, and the immense resources of the Dominion are yet but very partially developed.

UNITED STATES TO MAKE THE TARIFF FOR CANADA.

But I shall not dwell further on the commercial aspect of the question, for no high-spirited people would change their nationality as they do a garment, or weigh their patriotism solely by the almighty dollar. My protest against a Zollverein is that it is utterly anti-Canadian, and subversive of the idea of an independent national future. Mayor Hewett, of New York, at the recent Canadian Club dinner, described the proposition as one in which 'the United States would make the tariff for Canada.' This [illegible] of the proposed Commercial Union exactly, and how long, I ask, would Great Britain continue connected with Canada after the Frye and Ingalls and Blaines could fashion the Canadian tariff at their own sweet wills, or how long would we occupy a position of pitiful dependence on Washington legislation, alike harassing and uncertain, without finding annexation to be the only release from an intolerable position?

ONLY WITH POLITICAL UNION.

I quite agree with Mr. Wiman and Mr. Butterworth (with the former of whom I have been on terms of friendship for thirty years with increasing admiration and respect), that there ought to be freer commercial relations between the United States and Canada. But who is to blame for the tariff which exists? Certainly the United States. They annulled the Elgin Marcy Treaty in 1866, much against Canada's will, and though the "balance of trade" had been nearly $100,000,000 in their favor, the Brown-Thornton Treaty of 1874 was cavalierly ignored by Congress, and both the Federal and State Governments, so far as I have seen, have ever since acted consistently on the view announced by Consul-General Potter at the time of the famous Detroit Commercial Convention, that Canada could have the fullest Reciprocity by political union, but not otherwise.

NOT WEALTHIER, HEALTHIER OR HAPPIER.

But, as I have had occasion to remark before, I do not believe that in the most favored parts of the Union the masses of the people are wealthier, healthier or happier than in our own noble Province of Ontario, whilst in the majority of our States and territories their position is quite inferior to ours in almost every respect.

Equally fallacious is it to assume that the Canadian farmer pays all the duties on the horses, cattle, barley, etc., which are exported across the line. For forty years the Liberal has been taught differently, and demonstrations of Adam Smith, confirmed by all great living political economists, as well as by practical experience, clearly prove the contrary.

[illegible] OF CONSUMERS.

[illegible] in, that Commercial Union would open up to our farmers a market of 60,000,000 consumers. With equal truth it might be said that it would bring upon them sixty millions of competitors, for a nation which exports over $500,000,000 worth of farm products annually cannot require to import similar articles for their own consumption.

MERCHANTS, MANUFACTURERS AND FARMERS.

We now come to our merchants, manufacturers and farmers, and it is these classes which Commercial Union would most deeply affect. Promptly as the trade barriers were thrown down, that numerous and respectable class known as "drummers" would sweep over the Dominion with a zeal begotten of "pastures new." The immediate effect would be business disturbance and upheaval to be almost certainly followed within twelve months by a serious commercial crisis, beginning among our merchants and manufacturers, but extending to our monetary institutions and more or less affecting all classes. When the wrecks were cleared away and things had settled down again, it would be found that a considerable portion of our import ing trade from Great Britain and abroad had been permanently transferred from Montreal, Toronto, Halifax, Winnipeg and other Canadian cities to Portland, Boston, New York, Chicago and St. Paul. Proof of the soundness of this view may be found in the action of the Toronto Board of Trade, who almost unanimously decided against Commercial Union, and who are not only competent but the best judges how it would affect mercantile interests.

CRIPPLE MANUFACTORIES.

That the measure would seriously cripple our existing Canada manufactories is generally admitted, and indeed, is so self-evident as scarcely to require argument. As a Liberal I have exposed the exorbitant protective duties of our present tariff, but I have never advocated or believed that our manufactures could subsist or flourish if exposed to absolutely free competition from the immense British and American establishments. It is unreasonable to expect that they could, and the very last thing that the United States manufacturer would consent to, would be to open his market to British goods although (alas for consistency!) he would like us to open ours to him!

RUIN MANUFACTORIES.

It is an easy and very common thing across the line for large corporations to crush out smaller concerns and afterwards charge higher prices to recoup themselves. That this would be extensively done throughout the Dominion by American manufacturers if Commercial Union were adopted, is as certain as that man is human, and the result of such unfair, combined with legitimate competition, would not only check the future growth of manufactures among us, but cause widespread ruin among those which at present exist.

NO MORE FACTORIES.

Under Commercial Union the commencement of large industrial establishments in Canada would be checked if not altogether prevented. It would offer a premium to manufacturers to avoid Canada, for the very obvious and powerful reason, that if they located here the repeal of the treaty would lose them eleven-twelfths of their market and entail serious loss both in real estate and plant. On the other hand, by locating in the States they would be certain of the whole of that large market and enjoy ours also whilst the treaty lasted.

Under these circumstances, I submit, that whatever else may be said in favor of Commercial Union, it would inevitably be most disastrous to Canadian manufacturers both at present and in future. I shall not enlarge further on this point, except to say: what this would mean, not only in our leading cities, but to such places as Stratford, Woodstock, Brantford, Galt, Berlin, Paris, Oshawa, and other rising towns and villages throughout the Dominion, requires no prophet to foretell.

WHAT GAIN TO FARMERS.

Our farmers, we are told, are suffering from an oppressive system of Protection, which is annually becoming more unbearable. But what gain would it be to them, by accepting the above conditions, to place themselves under the still higher and more exacting Protection of the United States, whose policy approaches nearer the Chinese principle of non intercourse than any other modern Government? We are also told that our farmers are suffering from high taxation, levied largely for the benefit of other favored classes. This is, unfortunately, too true, but farmers' votes have upheld the high taxation system, and they have the power to undo it; what relief, however, would it be to their burdens to place themselves under what would practically be the United States tariff, which is at least ten per cent. or fifteen per cent. higher than the taxes they have to pay at present?

Whilst improving our farmers' American market, Commercial Union, unlike Reciprocity, would injure their home and British markets.

NOTHING BUT INJURY TO FARMERS.

These three markets absorb nearly all our agricultural produce, and the former, I submit, is the least important to our farmers for the following reasons: (1) Because our neighbors raise annually nearly $2,210,000,000 worth of the same products which we raise; (2) because the British is the consuming market for the surplus products of both countries and determines the price; and (3) because they take less of our products than the home or British markets, and what they do buy, except horses, barley and a few other articles, is either re-exported or displaces products of their own—in either case adding to the competition of our direct shipments in the Mother Country.

VALUE OF HOME MARKET.

It is the very marrow of the question to determine the relative value of these three markets to our farmers, and we are fortunately in possession of some reliable data which may guide us in doing so. The able head of the Ontario Bureau of Statistics, Mr. Archibald Blue, in a carefully prepared statement now in my possession, makes the value of everything produced on Ontario farms in 1886 to have been close upon $160,000,000. Adding $140,000,000 million for all the other Provinces, which must be a moderate estimate, we reach a total production for the Dominion of $300,000,000. Assuming that one-half of these products were consumed by the farming community themselves, the surplus would be disposed of as follows:—

Surplus farm production		$150,000,000
Exported to Great Britain	$22,543,936
" United States	15,495 783
" elsewhere	1,678,493
		39,718,212
Home market consumed		$110,281,788

Although only an approximate estimate, these figures clearly indicate that the home market made by our manufacturing, lumbering, mercantile and other classes is incomparably the best which our farmers possess, while that of Britain ranks second and that of the States third. As indicative of the relative value of of the two latter, I subjoin a statement of our total shipments of products of the farm (goods "not the produce" of Canada included) to each respectively since 1880:—

Year.	United States.	Great Britain.
1880	$13,177,724	$35,733,797
1881	14,186,767	34,067,366
1882	16,297,906	35,763,194
1883	18,776,272	29,567,012
1884	14,512,922	25,780,801
1885	15,542,583	30,449,446
1886	15,831,164	28,760,404
	$108,437,212	$222,102,110

During the last seven years, therefore, Britain took more agricultural products directly from the Dominion than the States did by nearly $100,000,000. This makes tolerably clear that it is our principal market for foreign export, and its superiority is enhanced by the fact that whilst the Mother Country sends us comparatively no farm products in return, our American neighbors are active competitors not only in the foreign, but in our own home market.

DEARLY PURCHASED.

The surplus farm production of the Dominion was about $150,000,000, and of this our home market absorbed (to use round numbers), $110,000,000, or 73 per cent.; Great Britain, $22,500,000, or 15 per cent.; and the United States, $15,000,000, or 10 per cent. It is quite evident from these facts that it must be absurd to represent our farmers as depending on a market which for twenty years has only taken 10 per cent. of their surplus, and only 5 per cent. of their total annual production, and that the benefits of Commercial Union might be dearly purchased if it weakened their home and British Markets, which together absorbed 90 per cent.

THE VALUE OF THE HOME MARKET.

Attempts have been made to belittle our home market. But according to the census of 1881 there were at that time 254,935 mechanics employed in manufacturing alone, there was $165,302,000 of capital invested, and the annual pro[illegible] $309,676,000. According to the Secretary of the Manufacturers' Association, the annual output is not less than $300,000,000, and the wages paid out something over $100,000,000. The numbers employed have been very largely increased [illegible] 1881. Taken altogether [illegible] different classes of mercantile employment [illegible] portion of our consuming population, and they are our farmers' best customers, because they are found at his own doors, save the cost of carriage, and they buy largely of butter, eggs, poultry, vegetables, fruits, berries, honey and other minor articles, the latter of which are scarcely of any value for export. The injury of these interests would be the certain injury of what is incomparably our farmers largest and best market, and (waving the point that the consumer generally has to pay the duty) to damage it even slightly in the hope of saving 10 per cent or even 20 per cent on the horses, barley, sheep, etc., purchased from us by the Americans, would prove something akin to 'wasting at the bung to save at the spigot.'

It would so damage both our farmers' home and British markets that I feel assured if our neighbors will not agree to a fair and just measure of Reciprocity, the great majority of Canadians will come to the sage conclusion of the poet:

> "Better endure the ills we have > Than fly to others we know not of."

THE FOLLY OF THE IDEA.

Nothing has surprised me more than that the advocates of this measure can profess to see nothing impracticable in this country continuing British connection, while we join another nation in a league against British commerce.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT.

What Canadian statesman, unless he had lost all regard for British connection, could seriously propose to Great Britain to negotiate a treaty, or even consent to legislation, discriminating against her own commerce and building up that of a rival?

TAXATION WITHOUT REPRESENTATION.

A century ago our neighbors began the Revolutionary war rather than submit to "taxation without representation," and I cannot understand how any Canadian who desires the continuance of the present independent position of Canada could ever consent to hand over the tremendous power of taxation, not only without representation, but into the hands of a nation with which we are not even politically connected.

Can anyone imagine a more dependent and pitiful position for the Dominion and its Government to occupy? We would occupy a position wonderfully like being supported by an annual subsidy from the United States, and our Government would be like Samson shorn of his locks. As they no longer controlled the tariff or its revenues, they would be impotent to discharge many of the functions of Government. They would be unable to undertake new public works and improvements so necessary to the growth and prosperity of a country like Canada. If an Indian rebellion broke out they would be at their wits end for money to put it down, and Canada would occupy a position at once painful and comical in case of trouble arising between Great Britain and the States.

A Clergyman's Experience.

There are hundreds of men in every profession and calling of life who have reason to thank Providence for the discovery and introduction of that well known and popular remedy—Paine's Celery Compound. A well known Presbyterian minister writes as follows:—"For some months before using Paine's Celery Compound I was afflicted with insomnia and more or less vertigo—all brought on by overwork and protracted anxiety. Since using the Compound I feel much better, sleep soundly, and my head troubles me less. I have not, meanwhile, intermitted or materially slackened my work. For the benefit I have gained from your preparation, I am grateful to God and thankful to you."

There is great encouragement here to all who overwork the brain, and who, through continued study, have become sleepless and nervous. Very often one bottle will suffice to regain full mental vigor and healthy sleep.

Unrestricted reciprocity would close Peterborough's industries, would deprive mechanics of employment, merchants and [illegible] means of sustenance and injure the trade of the town. Vote for Mr. Stevenson.

CHANGE OF BUSINESS

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and would bespeak for them the same support as you have accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought that a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question we have purchased the above business from Mr C. N. Brown, who will still continue as manager, in Flavelle's Old Stand, Simcoe st.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of every one to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of

FLOUR, FEED, CHOP, Etc.,

and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices.

We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred in the credit system.

O'CONNOR AND TEEMER.

THE OARS MATCHED TO ROW IN JUNE.

The International League Will Not Form Unless Toronto Joins—Meeting of the Delegates at Buffalo Yesterday—The Business Transacted.

TORONTO, March 3.—Teemer makes a suggestion to The Boston Globe that he is willing to enter a sweepstakes race in Bean Town, in which Hanlan, O'Connor, Gaudaur and himself would start. The McKeesporter wants the stakes to be $500 each, and has already made a deposit with the Boston paper.

To this amount Mr. Thayer, the well-known Hubbite patron of aquatic sports, will add $1000 if the race takes place at Point au Pines on Decoration Day.

O'Connor objects to enter such an event, and Hanlan was non-committal yesterday. However, O'Connor is anxious for a match race with John Teemer and yesterday stated that he would row Teemer for from $1000 to $2000 a side in June or July if a course could be mutually agreed upon.

WANT TORONTO IN.

International Baseball Would Not be Complete Without This City.

BUFFALO, March 3.—The International Baseball League delegates met here to-day. The cities represented were: Buffalo, Syracuse, Albany, Troy, New Haven, Newark, Worcester. President White held a proxy for Toronto. A letter from Rochester stated that the Flour City would be in line. Newark was unanimously admitted and Worcester was fired. Although Toronto and Rochester were by no means certain the league was particularly anxious for their presence during the season, especially the Canadian city, which always was a paying centre. The league wanted Worcester to leave its name before them pending the action of Toronto and Rochester, but Worcester would not be subservient to any city and will seek pastures new. Each club represented paid its $100 dues. The next meeting will be held in Syracuse next week at the president's call when the schedule committee will be appointed and the $1000 guarantee will be paid.

Many ball players were about the corridors of the hotel, among them Jay Faatz, Joe Battin, who is likely to be an international umpire, "Billy" Bottenus, "Pat" Dealy, Jack Rowe, Halligan. Manager Morton and ex-Umpire "Billy" Hoover also mingled with the throng.

Yale Will Not Row Cornell.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 3.—President Townsend of the Yale Navy says that he has had no correspondence with Commodore Sanger of Cornell about a race between the two universities next June and knows nothing about the reported coming of Mr. Sanger to New Haven. Mr. Townsend says that he does not think there is any prospect of a race being arranged with Cornell. The Yale crew began eating at the training table to-day.

Racing in the Snow.

GLOUCESTER, March 3.—Snow fell on a hard track during the races to-day. Results:

First race, 6½ furlongs—Whitenose 1, Baltimore 2, Prince Albert 3. Time 1.26¼.

Second race, 4½ furlongs—Madge L. 1, King Solomon 2, Ascot 3. Time .58.

Third race, 6½ furlongs—Lakewood 1, Veray 2 Raymond 3. Time 1.29¼.

Fourth race, ¾ mile—Repudiator 1, Hemet 2, Donley 3. Time 1.24.

Fifth race, 1 mile, special weights—Crispin 1, J.T. 2, Kyrle B. 3. Time 1.47.

Sixth race, ⅝ mile—Fitzlee 1, Refund 2, Avery 3. Time 1.09.

Joe McAuliffe says he will go to Australia to fight Goddard for the £1000 offered by the Melbourne Athletic Club if a suitable sum is allowed him for expenses. Information to this effect has been cabled to Melbourne.

Mr. Charles [illegible] died at Brantford Monday at the residence of [illegible], Mr. Joseph Stratford, "Glenhyrst," after an illness of ten months, during which time he was a very patient sufferer. John Close, the Westmoreland poet, has succumbed to an [illegible] only a few days' duration, in his 7[illegible] [illegible] the last 60 years the poet had been a [illegible] writer of verse and prose and has been the [illegible] many a fight. He annually, for nearly [illegible] years, issued a Christmas Book, which had a large sale. Some thirty years ago he was defendant in a libel action by a local solicitor, and mulcted in heavy damages. In 1860 a pension of £50 was granted by Lord Palmerston for his services to literature, but this was, after a debate in the House of Commons, withdrawn. He, however, received £100 from the Royal Bounty as a solatium. The poet's works were regularly purchased by members of the nobility and gentry, and more than one was accepted by the Queen. For many years Mr. Close had spent the summer at the English Lakes, and became recognized as "The Laureate of the Lakes."

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT

THE ONE MAN, ONE VOTE QUESTION.

Speeches of Gladstone and Others on the Subject—Will the London Fog Nuisance be Scientifically Treated—The Troops in the Soudan.

LONDON, March 3.—Sir James Fergusson, Political Secretary of the Foreign Office, in the House of Commons to-day, in reply to a question on the subject, made a statement to the effect that the Government did not assume that the whole of the Soudan belonged to Egypt, but, he added, he did not intend to define the limits of Egyptian sovereignty. The occupation of Tokar did not imply an increase in the army forces in Egypt.

Mr. Henry Labouchere asked if the Khedive had not indorsed the abandonment of the Soudan.

To this question Sir James Fergusson replied that, in the opinion of the Government, the withdrawal of the Egyptian troops from the Soudan did not constitute the abandonment of the sovereignty of the Soudan. ["Hear, hear!"]

Mr. Labouchere then asked: "Then does the Government recognize in the sovereignty of Egypt over the Soudan her sovereignty over Kassala and Khartoum?"

Sir James Fergusson, answering this question, said that he declined to deal more specifically with the question, and upon Mr. Labouchere's persisting in his questions upon this subject the Political Secretary of the Foreign Office, after several fencing replies to Mr. Labouchere, asked for formal notice of the questions.

The Fog Nuisance.

Viscount Wolmer, member for Petersfield, suggested that the Government appoint a commission to report upon scientific methods of mitigating the fogs which prevail in London, and commented upon the fact that the increasing prevalence of the fogs has the effect of curtailing working hours.

The First Lord of the Treasury, Mr. William Henry Smith, expressed himself as being sceptical as to the ability of such a commission to deal with the matter. Mr. Smith added that a committee of the House of Lords had already made a long and exhaustive inquiry into the subject and had recommended the use of non-bituminous coal as a possible mitigation of the density of London fogs. That and other measures in the direction of abating the fog nuisance were embodied in a bill which was now before the House of Lords, and in due course of time the members of the House of Commons would have an opportunity to consider the bill and to discuss the subject of London fogs and the best means to be taken to lessen their intensity.

The Naval Estimates.

In the debate on the navy estimates Sir J. Colomb moved that henceforth the naval budget must state the total number of warships in commission, in reserve and building, the aggregate tonnage of the mercantile marine and the value of the sea-borne commerce of England, compared with that of foreign powers, besides containing similar returns from the colonies. He dilated upon the growth of colonial commerce and the increase of British responsibilities.

Sir William Vernon-Harcourt described the speech of Sir J. Colomb as similar to the notes of alarm which naval experts are accustomed to issue to induce the nation to believe that the naval and military expenditures, enormous as they are, would be inadequate in the event of war. Not a single ton of imports or exports, the speaker continued, would be threatened. By the Declaration of Paris the whole trade of a belligerent was absolutely safe. Not a quarter less of corn nor a yard less of cotton would be prevented from coming to England, for it would come under a neutral flag.

Lord George Hamilton, First Lord of the Admiralty, dissented from the views of Sir William Vernon-Harcourt. How could we, he asked, suddenly transfer our tonnage all over the world to a neutral flag? Rice had been declared contraband of war. What if wheat also should be declared contraband! [Hear, hear.] English shipowners would be unwise to trust overmuch to the Declaration of Paris. They must maintain the navy so as to hold the fighting supremacy in every part of the world. The Government would grant the information asked for.

Sir J. Colomb thereupon modified the form of his motion, but it was negatived without a division.

The Election Act.

James Stansfeld (member for Halifax) moved that the House amend the electoral law by enacting that nobody can vote in more than one electoral area, that the term qualifying a person to vote be reduced to three months and that the act of registration be simplified. He argued that the present system is entirely out of date. It originated when the electoral franchise was deemed a class privilege and not citizen right. When Parliament passed the Household Suffrage Act the idea of one man, one vote, naturally followed. But as the law now stood a man could vote in every county and every borough where he held a house. The present plan meant that the man having the most means would have the right to return more members of Parliament than one with smaller means. These out voters often turned an election against the views of the majority of the resident electors.

Henry H. Howorth (Conservative) submitted an amendment to the effect that any alteration in the law was inexpedient unless providing that the different parts of Great Britain and Ireland should be represented in parliament in proportion to their population. Mr. Howorth said there was no doubt the balance of voting had lately changed. [Opposition cheers.] The system of voting bore more harshly upon Conservatives than upon Liberals. But if this system was changed the disproportionate representation of constituencies should be corrected.

Ireland, added Mr. Howorth, is grossly over represented. It is absurd that one small Irish town has eight times as much electoral power as a city like Dundee. Six Irish burgs, each returning members, have a combined electoral vote hardly equalling the constituency I represent. Taking the Irish electorate as a whole the representation far exceeds what is allotted to England and Scotland. It is here that reform is necessary if anywhere. [Cheers.]

Mr. Gladstone said the country would not long tolerate a plural vote when convinced that it enabled the upper classes to throw their weight against the judgment of working classes. [Hear, hear.] Possession of a plural vote was objectionable because it had no connection with virtue, wisdom, character or public services. Property was not entitled to extra representation. He was unable to see that convictions of the great mass of the people were less sound than those of a higher class. The character, knowledge and education they enjoyed were of themselves an extra weight in elections, for it was the entire disposition of the people to do full justice to these qualities. The amendment was not legitimately connected with the motion. It was refusing to remove one grievance until another ceased to exist. If Ireland had 18 members more than it was entitled on a strictly numerical basis how long had this been? How long had England been greatly over-represented compared with other nations? Only now England found she had a few members less than she ought to have. England still held two-thirds of the voting power and insisted that the whole business of the nation should be transacted at her own fireside. [Hear, hear.] England certainly had no little to complain of, looking at the vast power she possessed and the use she made of it in regulating affairs in other portions of the kingdom not by their sentiments but by her own. If there existed a grievance it was not here. [Cheers.]

Stansfeld's motion was rejected, 291 to 189. The largeness of the majority was due to the absence of Irish members. The vote was greeted by prolonged Conservative cheers.

A MYSTERY OF THE MINES.

Miners Come Upon a Room Containing a Skeleton in the Bowels of the Earth.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 3.—A strange story comes from Ansted in the Elk River mining region. Miners have been at work for over two months driving an entrance through a 10-foot vein of coal. Yesterday, when over 1000 feet in the mountain, they broke into a "room" about 20 feet square. It had no visible signs of ever having been in communication with the outside world. On the floor lay the skeleton of a human being, the bones crumbling into dust on exposure to air or at the slightest touch, while on the walls were many rude outline sketches and what seemed to be inscriptions. It is a mystery which awaits the solution of the learned.

AN ELECTRIC WEDDING.

A Novel Display of Ingenious Inventions at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, March 3.—At a wedding here last night no sooner had the company been comfortably seated than the room burst into a flood of light from numerous varicolored incandescent electric lamps hidden among the decorations. The entrance of the bride and bridegroom was welcomed by the automatic ringing of electric bells and the playing of electrical musical instruments. After the first course the room was plunged into semi-darkness, when suddenly from the floral decorations upon the table there glowed tiny electric lamps. Not only the flowers, but the interior of the translucent vases in which some of them were gathered scintillated with flashes of light.

After a while a miniature electric lamp, which in some unexplained manner had attached itself to the bride's hair, was seen to glow with dazzling brightness. A toast having been given, two serpents slowly uncoiled themselves and issued from the wine bottle that stood before the bridal couple. Cigars and coffee were served, and the cigars were lighted by an electric lighter while the coffee was prepared in full view of the company by an electric heater. The speeches that were made were liberally applauded by an electric battery placed under the table. As the company departed the electric current set off a novel pyrotechnic display, amid the crimson glare of which the festivities ended.

WANTED DYNAMITE.

A British Steamer Stopped by a Rebel Chilian War Ship.

VICTORIA, B.C., March 3.—Captain Scott of the British steamship West India, which has arrived from Liverpool, states that before his vessel could obtain coal at Coronel she was required to give bonds to the extent of $14,000 that she would neither sell nor give anything from her cargo to the rebels.

An English firm furnished the necessary security, and the West India got her coal on the Sunday morning that Coronel was bombarded.

Having finally completed his business at the port, he started out, but was followed by a small steamer that had been impressed by the rebels and which signalled to him to heave to.

The captain took no notice of the command, and a few minutes later the man-of-war Esmeraldo moved out from her moorings and started after him under full sail. The West India crowded on all steam, too, but was not out of range when the Esmeraldo's big guns were opened on her.

The flag of England had been run up to the peak when the chase first commenced, and it was flying when the India dropped anchor with her head to windward.

A boat was at once lowered by the pursuer and an officer with an armed party came on board. "Didn't you see that flag?" enquired Capt. Scott of their leader, as he pointed to the English colors. "What do you mean by firing at us?" "Oh! that very good flag," was the response in broken English, "but we think you got one of our enemies on board."

The captain assured him that such was not the case, and having nothing to conceal, complied with the boarder's request to see the ship's papers. The visitor glanced over them quickly until his eye fell upon the item named in the manifest as dynamite and gunpowder.

"Must have that," he exclaimed, proceeding to explain how they would make it tell. Capt. Scott firmly but quietly informed him that they would not get it. The rebel officer insisted; the English captain still remained firm.

Four times its value was offered in good gold and refused, and the captain explained the nature of the bond he had given. The visitors suggested that he could take the money and say that the goods had been wrested from him without his consent.

This, too, Captain Scott refused to listen to, and the rebel officer then announced that they would take the cargo without leave or permission.

"Not while there are Englishmen aboard," was the reply. "There are only forty of us well armed, but we'll make a mighty lively fight."

The young officer finally decided to apologise for the detention and allow her to proceed, and so the English steamer at last got away from Chili and shaped her course toward Victoria.

Burglary at Berlin.

BERLIN, March 3.—The tailoring establishment of A. Vanderbert was burglarized, and overcoats, suits, cloth, etc., to the value of $250 carried off.

Died While at Her Housework.

HAMILTON, March 3.—While attending to her household duties about 11 o'clock Mrs. Jones took a fit and fell on the dining-room floor. Dr. Wolverton was sent for, but before his arrival his patient was dead. The physician attributed death to heart failure.

Died at the Tea Table.

LUCAN, March 3.—The wife of Mr. Joseph Langford, a retired farmer, living in the village, dropped dead at the tea table this evening. The doctor pronounced it a case of heart disease.

FIFTY PERSONS KILLED.

FRIGHTFUL RAILWAY DISASTER IN RUSSIA YESTERDAY.

The Victims Literally Ground to Pieces—The Colonization Committee of the British House of Commons Unable to Report—A Notary Missing With a Million Francs.

DUBLIN, March 3.—While the Dublin mail train was nearing Castlerea to-day a passenger named Gavin suddenly drew a knife and commenced slashing those about him, at the same time yelling at the top of his voice. The car was loaded with passengers and all were thrown into a panic. Gavin badly wounded five fellow-passengers, and only desisted from his bloody work when both blades of his knife were broken and the weapon was harmless. He then jumped from the train while it was going at full speed, ran to a woods near by and hid himself. The wounded passengers were taken to a railroad station and several physicians attended to their injuries. The police afterward captured Gavin, who is undoubtedly insane.

50 PASSENGERS KILLED.

Two Express Trains Collide Near Morshansk in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 3.—A horrible railway accident occurred near Morshansk in the government of Tambov, to-day. Two express trains came into collision, demolishing the carriages of both. Fifty persons were killed outright and a larger number were seriously injured. The scenes about the wreck are described as sickening. Many of the bodies of the dead were literally ground into pieces, while some of the wounded, dismembered and mangled, lived for several hours in the most intense agony.

IN VON WALDERSEE'S COMMAND.

German Soldiers Driven Wild by Repeated Acts of Cruelty.

BERLIN, March 4.—The attention of the military authorities here has been called to the condition of the garrison at Altona near Hamburg. For some time past the barracks at Altona have been in a constant state of turmoil owing to the cruelties practised upon the men by the non-commissioned officers, and it is represented that the men have become so unruly under their harsh treatment that they are ready to precipitate a revolt at any moment. Three of the garrison have committed suicide within a week, in order to escape the torments to which they were subjected by their petty superiors, and nearly all of the men have been driven to the point of murdering their prosecutors should an opportunity offer. This state of affairs has finally been laid before the officials of the War Office in detail.

THE COLONIZATION COMMITTEE.

Report That Manitoba is the Only British Colony Which Desires Immigrants.

LONDON, March 3.—The Select Committee on Colonization appointed by the House of Commons find that it is impossible for them to make a [illegible] report, as many of the members are satisfied that Manitoba is the only British colony which desires immigrants.

Hell Hath No Fury Like a Signor Scorned.

ROME, March 3.—In the Chamber of Deputies at Rome yesterday while the electoral mandates were being verified Signor Imbriani regretted that some members had accepted money to defend certain candidates before the committee entrusted with the work of verifying. Signor Spirito and others protested against what they called slanders.

Imbriani replied that he scorned Spirito's remarks.

The President demanded that the objectionable expression be withdrawn.

Many members jumped up to speak and a great uproar ensued, Imbriani having refused to retract his expression. The President called for order and the excitement subsided.

An M.P. Takes the League Funds.

BELFAST, March 3.—Mr. Harrison, a member of Parliament for Middle Tipperary visited the offices of the Belfast Branch of the National League yesterday, and seized all the money and documents he could lay hands on. The members of that branch of the League were hastily summoned and a fiery discussion followed. Mr. Harrison and his friends declared the branch dissolved. A free fight followed between Harrison's friends and opponents. The battle was of a most stubborn character, fists, sticks and chairs being freely used on both sides. Finally the police cleared the league building of its fighting occupants.

Defrauding by Wholesale.

PARIS, March 3.—M. Duvecq, a notary of Gonesse, has absconded, leaving uncovered debts to the amount of 6,000,000 francs.

CADIZ, March 3.—Mr. Gelling, a British merchant here, has been arrested for fraudulently obtaining goods valued at £20,000. He has been handed to the British authorities for trial.

Osman Completely Crushed.

SUAKIM, March 3.—Deserters who have reached the Egyptian lines report Osman Digna is still a fugitive, and is making his way towards Berber. Digna's party is suffering from lack of provender, and his followers are only a number of women and a few horsemen.

England and France.

BERLIN, March 3.—It is asserted that Lord Salisbury and Count Von Hatzfeldt, the German ambassador to Great Britain, are treating with a view to a rapprochement on questions—including that of Egypt—wherein France's interest conflict with those of England.

Want a Couple of Thousand Each.

SARNIA, March 3.—William Hardy, of the Wallaceburg district and James H. Hardy, who is employed on the tunnel, have entered an action for $2,000 damages against the proprietor of The Wallaceburg Herald-Record. The plaintiffs claim that certain articles appeared in the paper regarding the "Wadsworth Mystery," and that said articles were injurious to their character and standing in the community. The case will be tried at the spring assizes in Chatham.

Fatal Accident at Petrolea.

THE TRADE OF CANADA.

It is said that "figures won't lie," but although they of themselves will not the fellow who uses them may. This is exemplified in the statement that Ontario only exports $615,816 worth of agricultural products to Great Britain and other things in proportion. This trick with the figures is not a new one, but it is so absurd, and so palpably intended to deceive, that they should mislead no one. In these deceptive figures no account is taken of the enormous quantity of agricultural produce and other products of Ontario that are shipped from the ports of the lower provinces. It is well-known to everyone that the greater part is shipped from Montreal, but in trying to mislead the people this fact is suppressed. How hard pressed the advocates of Sir Richard Cartwright's Yankee policy must be when they are driven to such transparent attempts to mislead?

Under Liberal rule, from 1875 to 1879 inclusive, the aggregate trade of Canada was $175,547,464 per year, and during the eleven years 1880 to 1890, it has been $198,384,380, an increase of $22,836,835 a year under Conservative rule.

Under Liberal rule the aggregate trade with Great Britain was $92,735,786 per year, and under the Conservative regime $97,[illegible]632, an average annual increase of $5,124,884.

Under Sir Richard Cartwright's mismanagement of affairs the total exports from Canada averaged $77,166,746 a year, and under the present administration $92,543,500, an increase of $15,434,762 a year.

The goods imported from Great Britain have averaged $1,466,261 a year more under Conservative rule, and from the United States $1,812,547 less.

The exports of agricultural produce in 1889 to Great Britain amounted to $39,937,366, and to the United States to $11,219,043

The United States exported last year $[illegible] of farm products, while Great Britain imports almost unlimited quantities.

It is easy to see which is the better market for Canadian agricultural produce.

The total exports of the produce of Canada last year to Great Britain amounted $61,490,140, and to the United States $33,291,207. Great Britain is Canada's best market for other things as well as for agricultural produce, and as the policy of unrestricted reciprocity would turn all our trade into one channel, and that one already well filled, and would injure Canada's trade with Great Britain and other countries, it should be emphatically rejected.

The town's population has about doubled under the National Policy, and it will grow more rapidly if that policy is continued. Vote for Mr. Stevenson.

"Much is being constantly said about Peterborough's unexcelled manufacturing facilities, but the fact cannot be too strongly impressed that our town is a natural industrial centre, and must look mainly to its manufactures for the media of prosperity and growth. Rapid strides have recently been made in the development of our resources, but it is apparent that there is yet ample room for the exercise of business enterprise and speculation."—Peterborough Examiner, Feb. 9th, 1891.

Vote for the Conservative candidates, and for the policy which has brought manufacturing industries to Peterborough, and it will retain them and add to them.

The Population of Peterborough

is about 10,000, and we would say at least one-half are troubled with some affection of the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large bottle 50c and $1. Sold by all druggists.

"He cannot go against the combine on his own side of the line; prices must be kept up at all hazards."—J. Crerar, Q. C., Liberal speaker. Vote for Mr. Stevenson and against placing Canada under the control of United States combines.

The Examiner says that the manufacturers threaten their employees with dismissal if they vote for the Liberal candidate. That is a false way of putting the matter, and intended to give an entirely false and unfounded impression. The manufacturers, as business men knowing the situation, warn the people that the Liberal scheme of unrestricted reciprocity would be death to the industrial interests of this country. Knowing this to be true, they would be untrue to themselves and to their country if they did not give the warning and advice they do.

"Let us not call that unrestricted trade which means free trade with one foreign nation and prohibited trade with our own commonwealth and everyone else. That would ensure for us the contempt of the one foreign nation and the righteous indignation of all others with whom we are now trading."—Principal Grant.

These are the words of a thoughtful man who is outside of politics. Vote for the Conservative candidates.

THE POOR MAN'S BURDENS.

In 1878 coffee was taxed 2 cents a pound. It is now free.

Tea was taxed 5 cents a pound for black, and 6 cents a pound for green. It is now free.

Sugar was taxed at the rate of $2 40 for 100 pounds. It now pays at the rate of $1 60 per 100 pounds.

Coal oil paid the same duty as at present.

Tin plate for tinware was taxed. It is now free.

Cottons are now cheaper by 20 per cent then they were in 1878.

Woollens are cheaper by 30 per cent. than they were in 1878.

Boots and shoes are 40 per cent. cheaper than in 1878.

The Journal of Commerce shows that eight yards of various qualities of gray cottons, which would cost 72½ cents in 1878 can now be bought for 56 cents.

Ready made clothing is 30 per cent. cheaper than in 1878

Woollens are cheaper than in 1878 A yard of tweed which cost 70 cents in the former year can now be bought for 50 cents.

All-wool shirts, which cost $9 to $10 a dozen in 1878, can now be bought for $5 to $6.

Fine wool shirts, which cost from $12 to $15 a dozen, can now be bought for $9 to $10 a dozen.

Gray flannels, which cost 35 cents in 1878, now cost 27 cents.

Navy blue flannels, which cost 35 cents in 1878, now cost 26 cents.

Blankets, which, in 1878, cost from 57½ to 62½ cents per pound, now cost from 37½ to 45 cents per pound.

Furniture is very much cheaper than in 1878.

Carpets are much cheaper than in 1878.

In fact, almost everything that a man wears or uses in his house is cheaper than it was when the Reformers were in power.

The only exceptions are articles raised by Canadian farmers, and these are very little dearer.

Take the workingman's ordinary expenditure for articles in common use, and it will be found that 75 cents will now go as far as a dollar would go in 1878, while wages are higher and employment is more plentiful.—Hamilton Spectator.

All for a Postal Card.

An elegant Special City Prize valued at from $10.00 to $60.00 will be given each day to the person in Peterborough from whom is received the best list of English words (of not less than three letters) formed from letters contained in the two words "Ladies Newspaper." This offer is made by the publishers of a large, 32 page, four column Journal, edited by women, for the intelligent women of Canada. Over two hundred valuable prizes are offered in addition to the above extra special prizes given daily. All fortunate enough to secure a prize in this Competition will obtain a valuable one, as none other will be given.

This competition will be upon an entirely different plan from any before offered in Canada, in fact, after the style of those introduced by leading English publishers, and will be conducted in the same honorable manner which has governed English Competitions.

The publishers of "The Ladies News paper" are not offering these competitions expecting to make any money from direct results, but will expend several thousand dollars in this manner for the purpose of introducing their Journal.

The first object will be to make them strictly fair and impartial and establish an enviable reputation for the publication itself. Persons desiring to enter the competition may start at once, but send your address on a postal card and receive a free sample copy with full particulars. Address

No discrimination against the country whose flag is ours and which protects our trade and our rights. Vote for Mr. Stevenson.

In Hamilton two bricklayers were convicted, under an obsolete statute, for refusing to work with non-union men. The Government changed the law so such a thing could not happen again, just as Sir John in the early days of confederation passed an act legalizing trades unions.

There is a duty of eleven and twelve cents a pound on unwashed fine wool in the States. In Canada there is no duty on such wool, but under unrestricted reciprocity the duty would have to be paid and the price of manufactured goods would be increased. A Liberal success means dearer clothing.

When you go to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla be sure you get it. Don't you be put off with an inferior substitute. Insist upon Hood's.

Great Britain is Canada's best market for agricultural produce. Unrestricted reciprocity would seriously injure our trade with that country. Vote for Mr. Stevenson.

A FARMER'S VIEW.

The Present Administration Should be Maintained in Office.

The following is a portion of a letter received by Mr. Osway Carver, of North Monaghan, from his brother in Norfolk county:—

SIMCOE, Feb. 27, 1891.

DEAR BROTHER,—As we are drawing to the close of a very important election and as I live nearer the American lines than you do, you will naturally wonder what my sentiments are in regard to this jug handled free trade that the Reform leaders are are trying to persuade the loyal people of Canada to beg for at the back door of Brother Jonathan's Government. Well, first I must tell you that I never was so patriotic to my country as I am at the present time, for I can realize that we are about to be sold into bondage if the Reform party gain the day. During a visit to my native town two months ago I was wonderfully surprised at the marked improvement Peterborough had made during the short time of six years that I have been absent from your town, so I think the N.P. has benefitted Peterborough. So it has in other towns and cities, only not in such a marked degree, which is owing to Peterborough's great manufacturing facilities and efficient and direct means of transportation.

As a farmer of the county of Norfolk I have greatly prospered through my own exertions and the assistance of my God, whom I honor, and all under this so-called burdensome policy of John A. Macdonald.

I have no fear for the future steady growth of our great Dominion under the present able administration and I venture to say that the Councils of Peterborough and Ashburnham will not in the future have occasion to establish free soup kitchens in their respective corporations if the present Government is returned on the fifth, which I have no doubt but it will.

TO-MORROW'S DUTIES.

IT is the duty of every elector who favors the re-election of Mr. Stevenson, that he may assist by his vote and influence to resist the Yankee policy of Sir Richard Cartwright, to not fail in polling his vote. The committees in charge of the organization have a great of work to perform to-morrow. Their duties are heavy, and every vote polled early in the day will render their labors easier and enable them to do their work more efficiently, and we therefore ask the electors to vote as early as possible.

The watchword of those desirous of Mr Stevenson's election must be, "Poll every vote and poll it as early as possible." Let everyone who can assist do so, by volunteering rigs, by giving information and by every means in their power. With united efforts and vigorous work, such as will not be wanting, Mr. Stevenson will be returned to Ottawa by a good majority. Work will do it, and remember that it is work that wins.

PETERBOROUGH'S INTERESTS.

AT the polls to-morrow the future of Peterborough will be decided. Under the present fiscal policy the town has grown steadily, more employment has been given, the population has increased, the trade of the town has been augmented and it has taken a first position as a market town, and this has been owing to industries that have been established here and the enlargement of the older industries.

The Liberal policy would reverse the conditions under which the town has grown. With all protection wiped out there would be no hope of securing further industries and the Town Council might disband its committee on manufactures.

Nor would that be the worst, for the industries now in the town would be injured, and some of them forced to close down. The result would be that men would lose employment, the population would be decreased, the building trade would be at a standstill, the merchants and tradesmen would have less to do, and the town would go back instead of progressing as it has done during the past.

The completion of the Trent Canal, on which work was suspended owing to Liberal objections, is now assured if the Government is sustained. The completion of the work depended on the report of the commission. Now we have a favorable report from the commission, and the statement of the Premier, founded on that report, that the estimates next session will contain an appropriation for continuing the work. What this means to Peterborough is well known. In the first place it means a large amount of employment and the circulation of the money necessary for construction, and after the canal is built it means cheaper rates for grain and other produce and the development of the resources of the district. This is what has been ardently desired, and it is now within our reach.

Why should the people of Peterborough throw away the opportunity of benefitting themselves by voting for the Liberal policy? Why should they injure the town and themselves to give office to Sir Richard Cartwright?

Vote for the Conservative candidates and the interests of the town and country.

THE CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE.

THIRTY-FOUR years ago, in 1854, when the town of Peterborough was only four years old, Mr. James Stevenson was elected Mayor. Again in 1857 he was elected to the same office and filled it for three years. In other capacities he also served the people in the Council and has again been called to his old position. On the School Board, on the Town Trust Commission and in other public capacities he has been a faithful servant of the people, and no one has ever said that he has not served the people faithfully and with ability.

In his private as well as public capacity Mr. Stevenson has been zealous in forwarding the interests of the town. While he has used his public positions for the welfare of the people, his private exertions, and his means as far as he was able, have been devoted to building up industries and to building up the town. He has allowed no opportunity to pass which could be used to forward the town's interests.

No member of Parliament has been more zealous in working for the interests of his constituency, and no member has done more for his constituency. As a member of Parliament Mr. Stevenson carried into that sphere the public spirit and zeal he has displayed in other capacities, and has spared no pains to benefit his constituents.

In view of this, and especially in view of the fact that the policy of his opponents is one diametrically opposed to the interests of the town and of the country, Mr. Stevenson should be returned to Parliament with a substantial majority.

IT is a singular fact that no Liberal paper has published the report of the Trent Valley Canal commission. If it had been unfavorable wouldn't they have jumped at the chance of publishing it, even at second hand?

Nasal Balm has cured the worst cases of catarrh after all other remedies have failed. Give it a trial and be convinced that it will cure you. Sold by all dealers.

WOULD IT BE LOYAL?

As Mr. Dennistoun said last evening, it is because the Liberals of Canada are a body of loyal men that they are asked to consider what effect unrestricted reciprocity would have upon Canada politically as well as in regard to trade. We believe that it would bring two great evils—that it would injury Canada in a trade or pecuniary sense, and that the political effect would also be what exceedingly few Canadians desire.

What would be the result of shutting out English trade and admitting United States goods free? Great Britain's navy protects our rights, protects our fisheries in the Atlantic and the Pacific, protects our vessels carrying goods to and from Canada, and would it be nothing to expect to receive this protection while carrying out a policy of hostility to her interests?

Would it be loyal to Canada to permit the United States to make our tariff? That the two countries would be compelled to have the same tariff is clear, because if they had not all imported goods would come through the country having the lower tariff. Or even if that could be prevented, the United States would not agree to permit our manufacturers to have the advantage of free wool, tin and other articles on which duties are paid in the States, and lower duties on iron and other articles than their manufacturers paid. As was said by Hon. L. H. Davies, the Liberal leader in Prince Edward Island, the people of the United States would not be such "arrant fools" as to do that. And with a common tariff, without legislative or political union, that common tariff would be arranged by a commission. The United States would not consent to allow Canada to have as large representation on the Commission as that country when the populations are as twelve to one, and with the United States having a majority they would control the tariff and would say what taxes Canadians must pay. Would that be loyal to Canada? And with the United States having that great power in their hands how long would it be before they would force this country into political union?

Who are the men who first advocated and have been the chief advocates of this policy? Mr. Wiman, of New York, who told a Congressional committee that nothing would so much contribute to bring about annexation, and who at Huntsville in Canada advocated annexation. Mr. Goldwin Smith, who says that annexation is the manifest destiny of Canada and that he has never concealed his belief that the result of such a policy would be political union. Mr. E. Farrer, chief editorial writer of the Globe, who wrote to Mr. Wiman that he thought they had "better make for annexation at once and not make two bites on the cherry." Congressman Hitt, who introduced the unrestricted reciprocity resolution into Congress and who also admitted in a letter to Mr. Wiman that annexation was his object. The Toronto Globe, which in an editorial article on unrestricted reciprocity on Feb. 4th last said "Providence has planted us on this American continent not surely to be mere henchmen of that distant Crown." Sir Richard Cartwright, who is the particular friend and co-worker of all these men. Are they safe guides for the people of Canada?

We have repeatedly given reasons why this scheme would injure the industrial, agricultural and mercantile interests of Canada, but in addition to that, every Canadian should seriously consider the question from a political, a loyal point of view, and mark his ballot against it.

THEY HAVE SHIRKED THE ISSUES.

THE Liberals have refused to explain to the people how they would raise the $16,000,000 of customs revenue that would be lost by unrestricted reciprocity.

They have not told the electors how they propose to arrange the tariff with the United States.

They have avoided the question of the consequences that would follow discrimination—the consequences in diverting trade from Great Britain and the political consequences.

They have shirked the discussion of the effect that confining trade to one country would have.

They have shown their own want of faith in their policy by trying to make people believe that their scheme, which is the restriction of trade to one country, was free trade.

They have called protection a tax, and inconsistently propose a commercial alliance with a country having a higher tariff.

No country in the world has ever taken such a step or been asked to adopt such a policy as the Liberals ask Canada to adopt, yet they refuse to explain it, and it should be emphatically rejected.

HOW TO MARK YOUR BALLOT.

EVERY elector in West Peterborough should vote for Canada for the Canadians, the industrial and agricultural interests of the country, and in opposition to the schemes of the Yankee plotters, by marking his ballot thus:—

ELECTION FOR THE
Electoral District of the West Riding of the County of Peterborough, 1891.

1	HALL. RICHARD HALL, of the Town of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, Merchant.
2	STEVENSON. JAMES STEVENSON, of the Town of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, Merchant.	X

A FAIR SAMPLE.

THIS is a fair sample, taken from the Examiner of last night, of the reasons given why unrestricted reciprocity would not injure the industries of the town:—

"The policy of the Liberal party in adjusting the tariff is to cheapen raw material. Iron is cheaper in England and it would be $2 per ton cheaper (on some kinds) if the duty were removed."

The policy of the Liberal party would not lower the duties on English iron. If it would effect them at all—and it would—it would be to increase the duties. The "adjustment" of the tariff they would have in carrying out their policy, would be the raising of the duties to the United States level.

BEWARE OF YARNS.

As the campaign has been a hard fought one, a hot one, the electors should be exceedingly careful about accepting any stories that may be launched at the last moment or quietly circulated to injure the Conservative cause or candidate. The Conservative policy has been freely and openly stated and discussed before the electors. It is one necessary for the development, growth and prosperity of the country, and nothing should be permitted to obscure the great issue at stake. Vote for the Conservative candidates and Canadian interests.

PRESAGED VICTORY.

A Fine Torchlight Procession.

HUNDREDS OF MEN IN LINE

MANUFACTURERS AND WORKMEN SOLID FOR THE OLD POLICY.

They Will Unite with the Country in Returning Mr. Stevenson—A Large Meeting in the Opera House and Telling Speeches on the Public Questions.

Last night was a rousing one in the ranks of the supporters of the Conservative candidate, Mr. James Stevenson, and everything on the eve of the polling day indicates that the enthusiasm of last night will only be excelled by the shouts of victory to-morrow evening when the electors of West Peterborough have said in no uncertain voice at the polls that Mr. Stevenson is to be their representative at Ottawa and that they are supporters of a policy of Canada for the Canadians.

The demonstration of last night was one organized on short notice and was the outcome of a desire among the manufacturers and mechanics of the town to show their endorsation of the policy of the Government in protecting our industries. Although the night was cold and blustering and the event had not been thought of until Monday morning, it was a grand and enthusiastic success. Over five hundred of the solid mechanics and workingmen electors gathered at the market square and, headed by the Fire Brigade band, formed into procession and marched through the principal streets of the town and Ashburnham. Every industry in the town was represented. When the hundreds of torches had been lighted and the several transparencies illuminated the sight was a pretty one as the enthusiastic supporters of Mr. Stevenson's came down the street. Coming down George-st. Roman candles added beauty to the sight. The procession went up Water-st. to Dublin, then to George, down George to Simcoe, along Simcoe to Aylmer, up Aylmer to Hunter and thence across the bridge to Ashburnham, returning by way of Hunter and George-sts. On Simcoe-st. as the procession passed Mr. Stevenson's residence they indulged in enthusiastic cheering and those of our industries along the line of march also aroused enthusiasm.

The entire programme was arranged by the manufacturers, mechanics and working and these gentlemen were the only contributors to its success. After the procession left the market square began filling up for the rally which was to be held there at eight o'clock. When the processionists arrived back at the Opera House that building was well filled and when the meeting opened every inch of spare room was occupied. In the gallery the presence of a large representation of the fair sex evidenced the interest which the ladies are taking in the campaign.

Mr. James Kendry presided as chairman and fulfilled his duties most satisfactorily. The meeting was a grand one and, although no "big guns" had been imported for the occasion, the speeches were telling ones and were listened to with interest and the points as they were scored enthusiastically cheered. The band was present and opened the meeting with a selection and closed it with "God Save the Queen."

MR. R. M. DENNISTOUN.

The first speaker introduced was Mr. R. Max Dennistoun, who delivered an address which was not only eloquent but had in it the clear logic and commending argument which told. The speaker referred to the tactics which had been practiced throughout the campaign by the Reformers, who talked one thing to the farmers and another in town. They told the farmers in effect that if the interests of the town of Peterborough were to be considered they should support the National Policy which had built it up; but if the farmers' interests were to be considered they should vote for unrestricted reciprocity. Mr. Dennistoun went on to point out that the interests of the farmer and the manufacturer both required the rejection of the Liberal policy, and then held up the misrepresentations and false arguments which had been used by Reform speakers in the townships in regard to the trade questions. After showing that unrestricted reciprocity was a false issue, owing to the unlikelihood of the Reform party's ability to secure it, Mr. Dennistoun took up the three planks of the Government's platform—the old policy, the old leader, and the old flag—and in eloquent and stirring language he showed how the three were involved in the issues of the campaign. His references to each of these platforms were received with the greatest enthusiasm. The speaker closed by giving his reason for appearing on the platform at the manufacturers' meeting, viz., his father's connection with the Auburn mills, which had laid idle under the Mackenzie Government, and had been purchased in 1878 by the late Mr. Dennistoun and a few others, and had developed and prospered under the National Policy. In conclusion he said that there was something more before them than Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Hall. Each of these gentlemen was pledged to support one of the policies before the country, and he felt confident that the electors of West Peterborough will, by the most emphatic majority, return Mr. Stevenson on Thursday at the head of the polls. (Loud and continued cheering.)

MR. W. H. LAW.

Mr. W. H. LAW, of the Bridge Works, was next introduced, and in a short speech he showed by the history of England, France and Germany, that the wealth of a nation depended upon its manufactures, that protection was necessary in order to establish in Canada the manufactures to make the demand which would cause our mines and resources to be developed, and that iron industries in Canada could not compete with those of the United States unless they went to the States and met them on equal terms. He closed by pointing out that the interests of the manufacturer, farmer, mechanic and laborer were all inter-twined and they should all go hand in hand to build up Canada to be one of the greatest countries in the world. He was loudly cheered as he resumed his seat.

MR. D. MORRICE.

Mr. D. MORRICE, of Montreal, was introduced as the largest woollen manufacturer in Canada and was given a warm reception. Mr. Morrice, while he was a strong supporter of the National Policy and emphatically opposed to unrestricted reciprocity, which meant annexation, said he would give a few facts without regard to either political party. He opening he first made a reference to Mr. Boas, whom Mr. Orerar and the Examiner held up as the largest woollen manufacturer in Canada. Mr. Morrice said he had been shown the Examiner-Boas pamphlet and could state that Mr. Boas was not "one of the largest" woollen manufacturers, but one of the infants, and was not the proprietor of the mills mentioned, but only interested in them. Mr Morrice himself was at the head of the Dominion Cotton Mills Company, which had 64 sets of woollen cards and 5,000 looms for the manufacture of cotton fabrics. He knew Mr. Boas and the mills he represented, and he would say that if Mr. Boas was unsuccessful as a manufacturer it was owing to his own want of experience and mismanagement. (Cheers). Mr. Boas had also held himself up as the opponent of combines, but Mr. Morrice had letters there which showed that that gentleman had made an effort to form a combine on knitted goods, the line he manufactured. After disposing of Mr. Boas, Mr. Morrice gave figures which showed convincingly what the National Policy had developed in the cotton manufactures. Under the N. P. the wages in the company's Hochelaga mill alone had increased from fifteen or sixteen thousand to seventy thousand dollars per month, and the total wages paid in all the Canadian factories now amounted to $3,260,000 per year. As to the prices, he said grey cottons were now 22½ per cent cheaper than before the N. P., and other things, such as bags, yarn and clothing were 20 per cent cheaper. In closing, he expressed the hope that they would consider well before they would vote for unrestricted reciprocity.

MR. THOS. BROOKS.

Mr. THOS. BROOKS, of the Lock Works, was well received, and in his short speech gave the National Policy as the direct cause of the Lock Works being established in Peterborough, and said in the event of unrestricted reciprocity they must go to the States. Mr. Brooks said he was pleased to hear that a gentleman had said he would take his (Mr. Brooks') stock in the Lock Works if the Liberals carried the day and pay him a $2,000 bonus. Mr. Brooks said he would be a happy man if that gentleman would materialize, and he would accept his offer and allow him a liberal discount.

Mr. ARTHUR RUTHERFORD was the last speaker, and he briefly referred to the importance of the result of the election to Peterborough and spoke hopefully of Mr. Stevenson's election on Thursday. He closed by moving a vote of thanks to the speakers of the evening, which was carried amid tumultuous applause.

Mr. John McNaughton, who had several times shown an inclination to speak during the meeting, was given an opportunity to address the meeting and ascended the platform amidst great laughter and cheering. After waiting for several minutes and no calm being forthcoming, the Queen ing dispersed with cheers for the meeting and Mr. Stevenson.

NOTES.

Large numbers of ladies viewed the procession as it moved along.

If there had been time to procure more torches there were hundreds more men ready to carry them.

When on such short notice the demonstration was such a success, what would it not have been with longer notice and more time to prepare?

If anyone is foolish enough to try to work off the old gag about "a procession of boys" all who saw the demonstration will know better.

From one shop over seventy mechanics turned out and took part in the procession.

Oh, What a Cough.

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourself if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. d16ed 6mo

The return of the Government means the completion of the Trent Valley Canal and the re-commencement of work on it at once. Vote for Mr. Stevenson.

A CONTRAST.

The Farmer's Position in the United States and in Ontario.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Mr. M. C. Spaulding, Secretary of the New York State Farmers' league, made some startling statements of the farmer's position in his address at the inter-state fair in September last. He said as reported in an Albany paper: "Why is it that the American farmer is abandoning his home, fleeing from his once happy fireside as from pestilence to give place to the Swede and pauperized labor of Europe? Why is it that land in the empire state has declined $300,000,000 in ten years, while stocks, bonds and mortgages are above par? Fifty years ago your government legislated for the benefit of agriculture. A farm home was the ideal American home. Then agriculture was king and the whole nation was prosperous; but now there comes a change. The government overlooks this greatest industry of the country."

Now, Sir, listen to what Mr. Geo. A. Cox said at the meeting held here as reported in the Examiner of Feb. 11th last:—

"The average rate of interest earned upon our investments in the past year is 6 36 per cent., showing a slight decrease as compared with the previous year. This is the natural result of the repayment of some of our older mortgages, because the rate that can be now obtained upon first-class security in the Province of Ontario, to which our business is confined, is steadily declining. This, we think, is not to be regretted. Those who have money to lend can better afford to take the lower rate, than those who are obliged to borrow can afford to pay the higher rate. While we borrow our money upon better terms, because we offer absolute security to our depositors and debenture-holders, we must also be content to lend it at a lower rate to those who have absolute security to offer; no rate justifies the loan where the security is not adequate."

Mr. Hall, the present "blue ruin" candidate, in seconding the adoption of the report, amongst other things, made use of these words:

"Richard Hall, Esquire, the Vice-President, said: The Annual Statement that has been in your hands for some weeks is so satisfactory that I do not know that it is necessary to add anything to what has already been said. This is, however, one matter to which I called your special attention last year, and to which I again desire to refer. The large issue of sterling debentures during the year is certainly gratifying, but the rapid accumulation of Canadian Capital Reserve Deposits and Debentures, amounting at the close of our seventh year to no less than $1 870 920.40, is to my mind still more gratifying, as affording evidence not only of the increasing wealth and prosperity of this community, but affording evidence of the increasing confidence which the Company enjoys where its directors are best known. I beg to second the adoption of the report."

Now, Sir, compare the state of the farmer in the United States and in Canada, as pictured by the Secretary of the Farmers' league of New York State and by Mr. Hall, of Peterborough, and I have no doubt it will not be difficult to arrive at an impartial conclusion.

Just one word about the mechanic. Mr. Jury—who, by the way, I am told draws $10 a day from the Ontario Government—in speaking here said that the Gurney Co., of Toronto, when their men were on strike, imported men from Buffalo and other American cities, whom they got at a lower rate of wages. Now, sir, if the United States is such a paradise for the mechanic, how comes it to pass that men could be got from Buffalo cheaper than they could be got in Toronto?

Yours,
A CANADIAN.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

A Rousing Meeting of French Canadians—Other Meetings.

On the eve of polling day let there be a grand rally of the friends and supporters of Mr. Stevenson, the Government candidate, at the committee rooms in the Opera House block, to-night. Every man who has the interests of the country and Peterborough at heart should attend to-night and brighten up their banners for the grand battle at the polls to-morrow when there will be work for one and all. Let every supporter of Mr. Stevenson be present to-night when all arrangements for to-morrow will be made.

The French Canadian Meeting.

An enthusiastic meeting of the French Canadian electors of the town was held in the interests of Mr. Stevenson at Laroque's hotel last evening. Mr. H. LeBrun presided as chairman. Mr. L. P. Gaillardet, the labor orator of Montreal, opened the meeting with a half hour address in behalf of the Government. Mr. LeBel, of Quebec, as a representative of Mr. Hall, was given an hour for reply, and he occupied his time not by discussing the point at issue in the campaign, but trying to arouse racial animosity, dwelling on the Riel execution, the responsibility of which he laid on the Dominion Government. He also called upon them to support Mr. Laurier, because he was a French leader, and to oppose Sir John, whom he called an Orangeman. Mr. Mr. Gaillardet followed, and in an eloquent speech he dealt with the Government's policy, advised them to cherish no racial animosities, and called upon them to suppor Sir John Macdonald, the Grand Old Man who had done as much for the French as he had for the English. In concluding, he asked the French citizens to vote for Mr. Stevenson who had done more than any other man for Peterborough. The address was received with enthusiasm. Mr. Gaillardet left this morning for Montreal, and was given a send-off by a large number of his friends at the station when departing.

Centre Smith.

Mr. Stevenson addressed a meeting of the electors of Centre Smith last evening. The Government candidate made a stirring address which was well received.

OBITUARY.

Death of Mr. Albert Hall.

The community was shocked this morning to hear of the death during the night of Mr. Albert Hall, brother of the late Mr. Fred Hall. For the past few days it was feared that the deceased would not recover from the attack of the same disease which had carried away his brother and sister-in-law within a week. The deceased gentleman was 60 years of age and was born in the Isle of Wight, England, and came to Peterborough in 1852 and after a short time engaged in business here. He was afterwards in business also in Lindsay. A member of the church of England and an upright, honest man, he was respected by all who knew him and his relatives will have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement.

Death of Mrs. Hodge.

Another death in the same family has also to be chronicled. Mrs. Hodge, wife of Mr. Jas. Hodge, of Belleville, and a sister of Mrs. F. Hall, who preceded her to the better land on Tuesday. Mrs. Hodge was also a victim of pneumonia, had only been ill a few days and expired shortly after noon to-day. It is supposed she contracted the fatal disease while attending her brother-in-law, Mr. F. Hall. The deceased lady's death at a time when the remorseless hand has fallen so heavily upon the household, will cause a feeling of the most intense sympathy among the entire community, while her many friends will mourn the loss of an amiable, Christian lady.

The Ontario Telephone Co. placed telephones some days ago in the Conservative and Reform Committee Rooms, and also in the store of H. Thompson & Co., the latter No. 62.

To-night's Address.

"Religious Refining Force" will be the subject discussed at St. John's church to-night, by Rev. H. Clarke, of Toronto. Mr Clarke will be remembered from his eloquent lecture in Peterborough last year. All seats in the church are free. A general invitation is given.

The Last Sad Rites.

The funeral of the late Mr. Wm. English took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence on Water-st. The cortege which followed the remains to their last resting place was one of the largest and most respectable that has been seen here for some time, the universal respect and esteem in which the deceased was held making his friends and acquaintances number thousands. The members of the Board of Education, of which the deceased was a member, and the Board of Directors of the town Mechanics' Institute, of which he was a past president, turned out in a body to attend the obsequies, while the men of the Peter Hamilton works also marched in a body to show their respect to a near neighbor who was esteemed by them all. The funeral proceeded to St. John's church where the solemn and impressive Church of England service was conducted by Rev. J. C. Davidson and Rev. C. B. Kenrick, a full surplice choir rendering the music. Rev. V. Clementi was also present in the chancel. From the church the cortege proceeded to the cemetery. The pall bearers were selected from the office bearers of St. John's church and were Messrs. R. A. Morrow, John E. Belcher, Dr. Boucher, W. E. Sherwood, H. Rush and Geo. A. Smith. The relatives of the deceased gentleman feel deeply the kindness and sympathy which has been extended to them in their bereavement by many friends and especially that of the men of the Peter Hamilton foundry who expressed their respect for the deceased by turning out in a body.

That's Easily Answered.

"My dear," said Mrs. Cupandsaucer, laying down the evening paper, "what is reciprocity?" "Reciprocity, my angel," said the head of the house, "is easily explained. It means a general evening up,—as, say when Smitters asks me in to take a-er-cigar and I ask him to have another.' "Exactly," said Mrs. C., "when I go to Hawley Bros. for tea and I hand Mr. Hawley a dollar and he gives me four or five pounds of splendid green or black mixture, I get the money's worth and he the money. Isn't that it?" "Exactly," said the husband as he reached for his hat. d28tf

[illegible] FOR A MAN.

And "she" Succeeded in Robbing Him of $130.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Henry [illegible], a middle-aged man who lives at No. [illegible] West Randolph-street, is mourning the loss of a supposed wife and $130. He courted Johanna [illegible] by letter and a week ago yesterday he married her. She left him as soon as the ceremony was over to hurry to the bedside of a dying father. He gave her $130 when she went away and promised to give her $300 yesterday morning, when she said she would return if her parent was better. Yesterday morning she came back and commenced to urge Sewers to give her the money. He told her to wait a few days and she became angry. A fight followed. During the struggle, in which Johanna was the aggressor, "her" skirts fell off, displaying a pair of black trousers. Everyone saw at a glance that the bride was a man, and before anyone could interfere he rushed from the house and escaped.

A Family Narrowly Escapes Death.

HAMILTON, March 3.—The family of H. P Bedlington, 17 Victoria-street north, had a narrow escape from being burned to death this morning. About 3 o'clock Mrs. Bedlington awoke and saw flames bursting through the wall near the ceiling of her room. The fire was in an attic room over the bath room. The servant girl, Emma Osborne, sleeps in the adjoining room and the two children across the hall. The flames had made considerable headway when Mrs. Bedlington rushed up-stairs through the dense smoke and alarmed them. Had she not discovered the fire when she did the girl and the children would have been burned to death, as the flames were spreading to their rooms. The house was badly damaged.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago, it would have saved me $200.00 and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body, and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was $5 worth. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00, you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (No. 2, page 47) in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

DENNIS DOWNING, Waterbury, Vt.

Interesting Description of the Dresses Kate Greenaway Wears in a Year—Meal Bags Replacing Sponges for the Bath—Hairdressing in France.

Here is a description of Kate Greenaway gowns for the year, which while intended for a fancy dress ball or photograph effects is not without hints for daily use. January: —A long brown coat with cape, bordered with Astrakhan; red stockings and shoes; muff; high felt hat tied on with a handkerchief; a flat basket of snowballs in the hand. February:—A short flounced blue skirt; yellow mantle, scanty, with beaver fur at the hem and on the sleeves; frill round neck, large blue flap hat. March:—Green shoes; scanty long green skirt; short-waisted bodice, tight long sleeves; poke bonnet; diaphanous scarf. April: Green parasol; red and white check dress, with one flounce on the skirt; short waist and deep cape, satchel pocket; bonnet tied under chin. May: —Sandalled shoes; blue frock, short low waist with one puff to short sleeve; large white apron holding flowers; straw hat and green ribbons. June—White frock of same make; a garland of roses in her hand; wreath of roses on her head. July—Same, with yellow sash and flap hat; fruit in hand. August —Red frock; yellow handkerchief crossed on neck; straw hat; carrying corn and sickle. September:—Blue and white flowered frock, with flounce at hem; same low bodice, short sleeves, basket of fruit; bonnet, straw front, soft crown. October—Low bodice, short sleeves of green stuff, short waist, three folded tucks round the hem; red shoes; grapes in hand; wreath of grapes. November—Light green skirt and short mantle, bound with ermine; poke bonnet; umbrella; ruffled long gloves. December—Red flounced dress; pelisse edged with fur; fur cape; huge muff; large bonnet; basket of holly. Other pretty dresses would be blue shoes, pink frock, with flounce of white embroidery, the same in robings up the front; a pelerine of green, frilled, and tied at back; bonnet to match. A tiny child wears a white frock, with a frill at hem; sash round waist; large flap hat, with blue ribbons above and below the brim.

Frenchwomen devote a good deal of time to the question of hair-dressing, and wisely so; for in good truth, however well-dressed a woman may be, she looks nothing unless she is bien coiffee; and however elaborate the arrangement, neatness has principally to be considered. The classic style adapted to the shapes of individual heads is the leading idea, and soft curls and marteaux fill up the intervening space between the forehead and the crown of the head. An easy coiffure is a closely-curled front, all the rest of the hair combed to the crown of the head, and there twisted into a coil surmounted by two horizontal marteaux of hair arranged in a semi circular fashion to adapt themselves to the coil, and to show above the head in front. So much depends on the length of the head; but an easy way is to wave the hair behind the curls, and bring that to the back. You never in Paris see French women with a knob of hair pinned carelessly where it accentuates the natural excrescence of the head; nor do they, when they have passed the hey-day of youth, drag sparse hair from the temple. I do not advocate French hairdressing for English heads, but the dwellers in Great Britain would do well to study French modes and adapt them to their own idiosyncrasies.

Meal bags used by the rich and fastidious ladies of New York have taken the place of sponges to a large extent. Cheesecloth, flannel and Turkish cloth are generally used for the bag, the contents of which reflect the taste of the bather. Oaten and almond meal, bran, orris root with benzoin or borax and crushed lavender flowers, lilac, sweet clover or sandal wood for scent are some of the components of the luxurious bath-bag. A quicker means to the same end is a dash of scented water, aromatic vinegar or benzoin cream, tossed into the bath to remove the soapy smell left after every "good wash."

Mardi Gras millinery is coming in from Paree. One of the novelties is the Heartsease bonnet, accompanied by a Heartsease muff. The flower is made of cloth, in any color, is of important size and edged with narrow gold braid. In fawn and black it is exceptionally stylish. The muff and hat are finished off with tufts of ostrich feathers. This is quite new.

In the Renaissance period there was great variety in the ornamentation of household furniture. Sometimes it was to simply gild the smooth surfaces, or with inspiriting touch bring out in exquisite tints a sketch from nature, or lay under tribute some floral treasure or graceful vine, and with delicate tracery create "a thing of beauty" not to be marred by storms.

There is a perfect rage for wall sachets to be used in hotels by the fashionables off for the sunny South. A sort of light-weight comfortable is made of some soft, loosely woven silk, in pale pink, green or blue, the size of a sheet. Between the covers is a single layer of cotton, tacked with velvet butter-cups.

The popular dinner knife is a steel blade with ivory handle. Everybody knows that the plated silver weapon was never intended for cutting purposes, and now that fashion has ordered the blade off the dinner table there is nothing for the devotee to do but invest in real cutlery.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and would bespeak for them the same support as you have accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought that a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question we have purchased the above business from Mr C. N. Brown, who will still continue as manager, in Flavelle's Old Stand, Simcoe st.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of every one to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of

FLOUR, FEED, CHOP, Etc.,

and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices.

We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred in the credit system.

A HORRIBLE MASSACRE.

SURVIVORS COMPELLED TO MAKE A TROPHY OF HUMAN SKULLS.

Nearly Three Hundred Women and Children Massacred and the Dismembered Bodies Thrown to the Dogs – The Berlin Government to Protect Workingmen.

PARIS, March 4.—News of a horrible massacre comes from Madagascar. Ramasatra, governor of the province of [illegible], resenting a petition from the populace to the Government to defend them from extortion, massacred 275 persons, including men, women and children belonging to the leading families. The slaughter continued for several days. The agonies of the victims were in many cases protracted. Sometimes their limbs were gradually dismembered. Their heads were sawn off and their bodies were thrown to the dogs. Many of the women were outraged. The survivors were forced to erect a trophy composed of the heads of the victims. The popular fury has caused the Government to announce that the offenders will be punished.

Will Protect Workingmen.

BERLIN, March 4.—Minister Von Boettecher gave a dinner to several Conservative and Ultramontane deputies yesterday to enable the Emperor, who was also a guest, to allay the capitalist apprehensions that have arisen from his conversation at the chancellor's recent dinner on his labor policy. The Emperor intimated that though firmly determined, as far as as in his power lies, to protect workmen and enable them to enjoy the existence of human beings, yet he was equally determined to repress all excesses on the part of the misguided masses and to discountenance the exaggerated claims of irresponsible agitators.

The Reichsanseiger announces that the Department of Mines will refuse the demand of the men employed in the coal mines who asked for an eight-hour shift and for an increase in the minimum wages paid to miners. The Reichsanseiger explains that reduced hours of labor would lead to still further reduction of the output of the mines, involving the employment of thousands of extra hands and leading to careless work by inexperienced miners, accidents and lower wages. A fixed minimum of wages, the paper says, would be a premium on idleness and would nullify the rise and fall of wages according to the briskness of trade, and in the case of Government mines the minimum wages when times were bad would fall on the taxpayers.

Novel Contest of a Will.

LONDON, March 4.—An error in the will of the famous sculptor, Sir Edgar Boehm, has made that instrument a subject of litigation and brought his two daughters into the courts as opposing parties. It was the intention of the testator to leave £10,000 each to his daughters, Georgiana and Florence, but the name of Georgiana was erroneously inserted in place of Florence, making the former the inheritor of both bequests, according to the phraseology of the will. Florence has petitioned the court to restore her inheritance and brought evidence of her father's expressed intention to bestow his fortune upon his daughters in equal portion. The court has reserved its decision.

Emperor William's Remarks.

BERLIN, March 4.—It has transpired that at the dinner given yesterday evening by Dr. von Boetticher, vice-president of the Ministry of State, in honor of Emperor William, the latter frequently urged upon the guests invited to meet him the importance of voting the full government demands for the navy and expressed indignation at the insults his mother, the Empress Frederick, had been subjected to during her visit to Paris.

A Distillery Fails.

PARIS, March 4.—A Marseilles distillery company has been obliged to suspend operations owing to the inability to stand the duty of 3 francs on alcohol. The closing of the distillery will ruin the pork breeders in the vicinity, who use the refuse in feeding their hogs.

A MADMAN'S FRENZY.

HE RUNS AMUCK WITH A DRIPPING SWORD IN HIS HAND.

Arrest of A Russian at Berlin for the Murder of General Seliverskoff in Paris – Significant Conduct of Emperor William at a Banquet.

BERLIN, March 4.—A Russian named Friese residing in the suburbs of this city has been arrested on suspicion of having been concerned in the murder of General Seliverskoff who was shot it was supposed by a Nihilist named Padlewski in Paris, Nov. 18 last.

A MADMAN'S FRENZY.

He Slashes Soldiers and Civilians with His Sword.

BERLIN, March 4.—Lieut Von Blume of the Naumburg garrison, in Saxony, being seized with acute mania, jumped from his bed at midnight, got possession of his sword and attacked the guards with fury, wounding one severely and overpowering all. Making his escape from the barracks, he ran amuck through the streets with his dripping sword, attacking all he met. Six persons were seriously injured and the neighborhood was aroused. The night watchmen were unable to stop the madman. The troops of the garrison had to be called out. They pursued, surrounded and finally captured the officer after a severe struggle, for they were not allowed to used their weapons against him, and he fought like a demon until disarmed.

THE KAISER'S OPINION.

"Artillery Must be Regarded as the Backbone and Marrow of Battle."

BERLIN, March 4.—The Emperor yesterday was present at lunch with the officers of the Artillery of the Guard. In reply to a toast the Emperor said that, in view of the improvements recently made in field and siege guns and the experience of the last war, the artillery must be regarded "as the backbone and the marrow of battle."

General von Waldersee, who seems to be entirely restored to the Emperor's favor, was present at the lunch.

Alma Stanley's Application Rejected.

LONDON, March 4.—The application of Alma Stanley, the actress, for divorce has been disallowed. She brought a suit last year on the ground of infidelity on the part of her husband. The case created considerable sensation at the time, and the plaintiff obtained a decree nisi in July. To-day her counsel applied for absolute divorce. The Queen's proctor interfered and adduced evidence that the petitioner had been guilty of adultery herself since the decree nisi had been pronounced.

Abandoned at Sea.

LONDON, March 4.—The steamer Victoria was abandoned in mid-ocean after days of ceaseless and exhausting labor at the pumps when the captain decided finally to abandon the vessel. The engine room was full of water and all the pumps were choked. The crew were rescued by lifeboats with great difficulty.

Boulanger at the Bottom of It.

LONDON, March 4.—It is reported in official circles that the British Government has conclusive proof that Gen. Boulanger and his supporters concocted a plot which resulted in the explosion of public opinion manifested against the Empress Frederick on the occasion of her recent sojourn in Paris. Lord Salisbury is said to be greatly incensed at the discovery made.

Anglo-French Telephone.

CALAIS, March 4.—The engineers who arrived here to-day have left to attend to the landing of the cable which is to be used for the telephone between France and England. It is pretty certain that a telephone between Paris and London will be in operation before the end of the week.

Foreign Brevities.

Gayette & Dulard, bankers of Bercy, Paris, have suspended payment, with liabilities estimated at $1,000,000.

In the Commons Mr. W. H. Smith said that he could not give facilities to pass a bill compelling writers of articles appearing in the newspapers to attach their names to such articles, as any action in this direction would tend to restrict the liberty of the press.

Pope Leo XIII. to-day celebrated the thirteenth anniversary of his coronation. He appeared to be in good health.

Sig. Crispi has given notice of his purpose to demand of the Government an unequivocal expression of the intentions of the Cabinet in regard to the adherence of Italy to the Triple Alliance.

A bomb exploded in the artillery depot at Wilhelmshaven to-day, completely wrecking the building and killing three men.

Killed From a Fall.

BARRIE, March 3.—Jonn Fletcher, Treasurer of the township of Essa, was taking a load of hay from his farm in Sunnidale to Angus. He had three or four school children on the load at the time and in turning a curve in the road the hind bob of the sleigh swung around and threw them all off. The children escaped injury, but Mr. Fletcher was thrown violently on his head and his skull was injured. He was taken to his home in Ivy, were he died from injuries at the advanced age of 73.

Their parents put them to bed at 7 o'clock and then went to the theatre. By the explosion of a kerosene lamp the house caught fire. A fireman rushed into the burning residence and carried out the children, but before a doctor could arrive they died in the rescuer's arms. As the dead children were being carried into a neighboring house the parents [illegible] up.

TRAFFIC IN GIRLS.

Chinese Children Trained for a Life of Degradation in San Francisco Dens.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4.—The fact is now pretty well established that Chinese girls are secretly sold in this city for slaves. For years Miss Culbertson, who is executive head of the Presbyterian Mission at No. 933 Sacramento-street, had dared much to save Chinese girls and women from actual slavery and enforced degradation. Her life has been threatened by highbinders repeatedly, but she has never faltered in her work. The home has rescued about 300 females, of which, it is claimed, nearly all were slaves, possessing a moneyed value of from $500 to $800.

Attention has been attracted to the home during the past few days by a case pending in court. Woon Tsim, a Chinese girl 11 years old, was rescued from a man who bought her of her father. The father a few years ago lost his wife and four children by death. The fifth child, little Woon Tsim, then aged six, was sold to Kum Moh, a Chinese procuress. The father then sailed for China, leaving Woon Tsim in the tender care and mercy of Kum Moh. The price the father received for his daughter paid his passage back to China.

Woon Tsim was found at Kum Mah's den in Bartlett alley. It was discovered that she was sent daily by Kum Mah to a place of ill-repute on errands. The girl was then arrested and placed in the charge of Miss Culbertson. Kum Mah immediately began a struggle for her possession, and the case is still pending.

Miss Culbertson said to-day: "There are without doubt scores of female Chinese slaves in San Francisco to-day. Most of the young Chinese girls who come here are brought as slaves for whom cash has been paid to their parents. In many cases they are kidnapped or are deluded into coming here by false pretences. There are few who come themselves."

Recently, after trying in vain to evade the Restriction act, two young Chinese girls were remanded and taken down to the dock to be sent to Hong Kong. At the dock they manifested the greatest terror, and told of the terrible tortures they would be subjected to on their return to China, because they had failed to perjure their way through the courts in San Francisco.

Miss Culbertson has found children under five years being reared for immoral purposes. Among her evidences of what is going on is a bill of sale for a girl and also the contract, which the girl who was sold witnessed by making the impression of her thumb dipped in red ink.

FLOODS HAVE DONE THEIR WORST.

The Receding Waters in Arizona Reveal a Terrible State of Affairs.

TUCSON, Ariz., March 4.—Reports from the flooded districts throughout the territory indicate that the water is rapidly subsiding. The Gila River at Florence (the crossing of the Phœnix and Maricopa Railway) has shifted its course nearly a mile, leaving bridges high and dry.

The management of the Phœnix and Maricopa and Arizona and New Mexico Railroads state that it will be fully two months before the roads will be in operation. The estimated damage to the Southern Pacific in the territory is over $250,000.

Phœnix is still cut off from telegraphic communication, but a party who has just arrived from there says that three hundred families are homeless, though not starving.

At Yuma, where the flood wiped the town completely out of existence, the water has receded to its natural level.

The irrigation ditches in Salt and Gila valleys are badly damaged. No communication is expected between here and California for fully a week yet.

KILLED IN A MINE.

A Miner Steals From a Companion and is Found Hanging to a Tree.

RICHMOND, Va., March 4.—Near the mining town of Pocahontas, Tasewell county, a Hungarian named Nogardy Bela broke open the trunk of a companion named John Kercks on Saturday last, robbed it of all his earnings, which amounted to $260, and ran away. Yesterday as an incoming train neared the depot at Flat Top, four miles from Pocahontas, someone on board saw the body of a man hanging from the limb of a tree. The train was stopped, and upon investigation it was ascertained the corpse was that of Bela. The body was taken down and it was discovered that he had not only been robbed of Kercks' money, but also of his own.

He had been strangled, but in order to convey the impression that he had been lynched by the Hungarians he was then hanged by the leather strap which he wore around his waist.

Shot While Shrouding a Corpse.

MILAN, Tenn., March 4.—While James Lisenby was assisting in shrouding the corpse of William McKee last night at Clay Brook, he was shot in the head and instantly killed. The shot was fired through the window. Robert Barr, an attendant, was severly wounded by flying glass. Thomas Douglas and two other negroes have been arrested for the crime. The deed is the result of an old feud. An obnoxious negro preacher was driven from the county a few weeks ago, and the negroes threatened to mob the whites. Lisenby, who is a magistrate, ordered the negroes to bring their guns to the trial. This angered the negroes and is thought to be the cause of the tragedy.

Drowned the Day His Banns Were Published.

RICHMOND, Va., March 4.—Edward Gray, chief engineer of the steamship Melbourne, while crossing a plank to a companion ship at Newport News Saturday night, missed his footing, fell into the water and was drowned. He was to have been married on his return to England, and by a singular coincidence the banns of his approaching marriage were published on the day of his death.

Seven Men Frozen to Death.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., March 4.—The bodies of five men frozen on the extension of the Great Northern Railway have been recovered. The snow is nine feet deep on the summit. Thus far the bodies of seven victims of the recent storm have been found. It is feared many perished.

A Stiff Price for Whalebone.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., March 4.—New Bedford merchants sold 1100 pounds of Arctic whalebone in New York to-day for $5.50 per pound, which is the highest price whalebone has ever reached. There is now less than 10,000 pounds in first hands.

North Bruce.

PORT ELGIN, March 4.—The majority of Porter in North Bruce election is now approximated at 204.

Six Men Drowned.

PRINCETON, Ky., March 4.—A raft carrying six men was overtaken by a terrible gale in the Cumberland River here Monday. Nothing has since been heard of it and it is believed all have been drowned.

CHATHAM'S DEFAULTER.

HOW HENRY WAS CAPTURED IN MEXICO CITY.

Details of His Arrest—One of the Cleverest Pieces of Detective Work Known in Many Years—$20,000 Saved for the Bank

MONTREAL, March 4.—Perhaps one of the cleverest pieces of modern detective work is that which Superintendent Kellert of the Pinkerton Detective Agency has just placed to his credit in connection with the recently celebrated James N. Henry defalcation from Chatham, Ont. Mr. Kellert has just arrived in Montreal from the City of Mexico, where he effected the arrest of Henry. In December last the whole of Canada was startled by the news that James N. Henry, for many years one of the leading and most highly respected produce merchants of Chatham, Ont., had skipped from the country after securing about $30,000 from the Chatham branch of the Bank of Montreal. The bank communicated with the Matt Pinkerton Detective Agency of Chicago. Detective Kellert at once left for Chatham. Upon arriving he succeeded in getting a hold of some envelopes which bore the post mark of the City of Mexico, and which he recognized to be in the handwriting of Henry. They visited the Hotel Jardin, the most luxurious hotel in Mexico, and there found that Henry had been stopping at this place some two weeks previous, but here the clue ended. Their next turn was in the direction of the Bank of London. Here they obtained a clue which cleverly worked, made known Henry's hiding place and his ultimate arrest. The man left his name as W. H. Orr and gave his address. It was then arranged to notify Orr that his money was ready for him. Orr came, presented himself at the bank, with a face beaming with smiles, but little did he know that behind the counter with the paying teller stood Detective Kellert, who was so soon to have him and his confederates in the clutches of the law. The bank authorities told Orr that Henry's receipt would be necessary before they could hand over the money. Orr replied that this would be impossible as Henry had left the city for parts unknown. But the bank insisted on getting the receipt and Orr left very much chagrined. His movements were shadowed and he was followed to a quaint old building, run as a soap manufactory, where he was joined by two other men who afterwards turned out to be his brothers. The engaged in an animated discussion for a few minutes, when Orr hastened back to the bank and said he could not find Henry and that it was impossible to get a clue to his whereabouts. From his manner the officers knew he was lying and at once placed him under arrest. He was taken to the baleen, or prison, and thrown into a cell, where he was told he would have to remain till he divulged the whereabouts of Henry. Orr then sat down and wrote the following note to his two brothers:

> DEAR BROTHERS,—Show the officers where Henry is, as I am in the baleen and can't get out till he is produced. (Signed) WILLIAM.

The note was entrusted to an officer who conveyed it to the brothers, who treated it with silent contempt. They were then arrested and treated as their brother was, but still they refused to give Henry away. Baffled here, Detective Kellert resolved to go to the factory, and accompanied by the officers he visited the place. The janitor was in attendance and threatening him with the same fate that had met his employers, if he persisted in refusing to tell what he knew as to Henry's whereabouts, he fell on his knees and imploring mercy pointed to a door leading to a little room or closet in an unoccupied portion of the building. The officers went to the door and knocked, getting no answer they forced it open, when lo! before their very eyes crouched under a little cot in the room, on his face written the terrible agonies which he suffered, and his whole frame trembling like a leaf, was the once respected and princely merchant now a felon hunted to his lair. He broke completely down and sobbed like a child. "Don't kill me gentlemen," he exclaimed, when he found words to speak. "I surrender. Take me and cart me into prison, I deserve to suffer for what I have done. Don't handcuff me, I will go peaceably." He was taken from the room and thus within 24 hours of his arrival in the City of Mexico Detective Kellert had Henry in the prison cells. But the hardest and cleverest piece of work was yet to be done. No money was found on Henry's person when he was arrested and there was $20,000 to account for. In the room was a large cake of soap about two feet square. Mr. Kellert peeled off his coat, for the temperature was very high, and set to work with a wire to cut up the cake of soap.

Kellert took from the inside of the cake an envelope containing $1000 in greenbacks, sent to J. N. Henry by his son in Detroit, to defray preliminary expenses. There remained but one thing more and that was the waste paper basket and to this Detective Kellert turned his attention, and after three hours he succeeded from the torn mites of paper which he gathered, in piecing up letters from Mrs. Henry, his wife in Detroit, and a telegram which was dated Jan. 9, upon which was the full explanation of where the money could be obtained. The telegram stated that on that date, Jan. 9, $9000 of the money had been sent by the Wells Fargo Express Company from Detroit to the City of Mexico. The parcel arrived the day following this discovery and was obtained by Superintendent Kellert. The letter showed that $10,000 more was in the Banco des National of the city in certificates left there for collection. Kellert had his man in prison and every dollar of the bank's money recovered. The next move was to go before the Governor and have Henry committed for extradition, and as nothing more could be done until the arrival of the extradition papers from Ottawa and being made sure of Henry's safe-keeping until his return to the city of Mexico, Mr. Kellert left for Chicago and is now on his way to Ottawa for the necessary papers.

Agreed to Die Together.

CINCINNATI, March 4.—Isidore H. Fraunthal and Ernest Ballinger, students at the Hebrew Union College here, committed suicide in their boarding house early this morning. There was an agreement that they should die at their own hands.

Congress Adjourns.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The House adjourned promptly at 12 o'clock with a wild hurrah on the floor and in the galleries.

The Republican members sang "Marching Through Georgia." The Democrats answered "Dixie," and the occupants of the reporters' gallery sang the long metre doxology.

Prince George's Alleged Libeller.

MONTREAL, March 4.—The Court of Queen's Bench was opened yesterday. The case of R. N. O'Brien, charged with libelling Prince George of Wales, will be laid over and probably be dropped.

Purify portance of the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

YOUNG'S POINT.

The Sad Accident in the Woods—Logs Ready to be Cut.

Correspondence of the Review.

SAD ACCIDENT.—On Saturday morning last a young man named Wm. Anderson, son of Mr. Anderson, farmer, o' Douro was struck on the head by a falling tree while chopping in the woods in the employ of the Dickson Co. A team with two men were immediately sent off and they arrived here about 7 o'clock p. m., and left him at McFarlane's hotel, when Dr. Lanfear, of this village, was called in. The doctor found that the unfortunate man's skull was fractured, and would not allow his removal. but to send for his parents. Dr. J. R. Frazer, of Lakefield, and Drs. King and Goldsmith were sent for by his father, and they found that Dr. Lanfear was treating the case to their satisfaction. The young man is now mending slowly, but was unconscious till Monday at noon. If he pulls through it will be next to a miracle, as his skull is broken in one or two places. He will not be removed to his home until he is on a fair way to recovery.

SAW LOGS.—Mr. W. J. Young has got a fine lot of cedar, pine, hemlock and basswood logs piled up on the shore of Clear Lake, drawn from the Nugent lot in Smith which he purchased last summer. It is his intention to have them all sawn into lumber for his own use and for sale.

Wanted.—A good appetite. You can have it easy enough by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It tones the digestion and cures sick head ache.

A Liquidator Appointed.

GLASGOW, March 4.—A liquidator has been appointed to take charge of the State line of steamers.

A New Fund.

LONDON, March 4.—Parnell has decided to form a political fund apart from the fund for evicted tenants. The delegates to America will appeal for contributions to both funds.

Took a Dose of Poison.

HAMILTON, March 4.—Gertie Ferguson, an unfortunate young girl who has led a gay life, took a dose of poison in a fit of despondency this afternoon. She lives in Napier-street opposite the patrol station. She took about an ounce of laudanum. A young man who was in the habit of visiting her gave the information to Constable Coulter, who telephoned for Doctors Storm and Stark. They gave the young woman an emetic, which had the desired effect, and it is thought that she will recover.

Killed by Cigarets.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 4.—Lawrence Murphy, aged 22 years, died here to-day of heart failure, caused by excessive cigarette smoking. He had been in the habit of consuming three, and sometimes four, boxes daily. He had been repeatedly advised to abandon the practice, but turned a deaf ear. His death was sudden.

Labor Notes.

Chief Arthur of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and the Rio Grande Western engineers' Grievance Committee met the officials of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad at Salt Lake City yesterday. An agreement was reached, mutual concessions made and the threatened strike of the engineers was averted.

The 340 weavers of the Wauskuck (R.I.) Company are still out, and say that they mean to remain firm until the company yields. About 134 more weavers were let out yesterday, making 600 in all who are idle.

The Pennsylvania coke region is in a ferment over the arrest in Pittsburg of the labor leaders yesterday. President John B. Rae of the United Mine Workers, Master Workman Peter Wise and several others were arrested on a warrant sworn out by Louden of the Rainey Works, on a charge of conspiracy, riot, assault, etc. Louden was injured by the strikers several days ago, and the warrants were made out at the instance of Rainey, who is now running his mines in opposition to the strikers. The men are indignant at the arrests.

That Fatal Bullet.

When President Garfield was shot, owing to the imperfect knowledge at that time of the action and application of the electro-magnetic battery, the doctors were unable to locate the bullet. To-day, medical science has perfected a battery from which passes a current of galvanism, which easily detects and locates a bullet in any part of the body. A few years ago the people of Canada who suffered from nervousness in all its varied forms, as well as tired wearied brain, expended fortunes often in their eager endeavors to secure relief. Overworked and exhausted men and women who found themselves sleepless; irritable, dyspeptic and used up generally, sought succor and rest from drugs and preparations that could not possibly confer any benefit. Thousands were left almost despairing until Paine's Celery Compound was introduced by that great man Prof. Phelps. Paine's Celery Compound, like the perfected electro-magnetic battery, has conferred untold blessings, and must continue its great work as it becomes more widely known. It stands alone in its great work as a health giver and restorer, and is endorsed by physicians of the highest standing. The thousands of letters already received from all quarters fully prove its great usefulness and its wondrous curative powers.

EMPRESS FREDERICK.

Diplomatic Changes Hinted at for France and Germany.

PARIS, March 4.—That the disturbance caused by the visit of the Empress Frederick to this city has not entirely subsided is shown by the fact that the air is full of rumors of changes of a diplomatic nature. It is reported that in the event of such changes being made M. Herbette, the present French Ambassador at Berlin, upon whose shoulders a considerable amount of the blame for the unpleasantness has been thrown, will be sent to London as the successor to M. Waddington, the present French Ambassador to Great Britain.

On the other hand, rumor has it that Herr von Radowitz, the German Ambassador at Constantinople, will succeed Count von Munster as German Ambassador at Paris. Still, according to these political reports, General von Waldersee, ex-chief of the general staff of the German army, who is now in command of the Ninth Army Corps, will replace Prince Von Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst as Governor of Alsace-Lorraine. The latter, it is announced, will resign the important position he now holds.

A semi-official denial is given to the statement that the ex-Empress Frederick wrote Count von Munster and Emperor William expressing her thanks for the reception she had met with in Paris. Nor is it true that Emperor William sent a similar letter of thanks to Von Munster.

Bohemian Elections.

VIENNA, March 3.—The elections in Bohemia for members of the Lower House of the Austrian Reichsrath have resulted in the return of 18 young Czechs, 10 Germans and one old Czech. In Galicia 20 Poles and seven Rumo-Slavs were returned. The Poles lost three seats. The rural districts of Moravia returned seven old Czechs, two German liberals and one German nationalist.

A Tariff Question.

BERLIN, March 3.—The Reichsanzeiger today says that the report that the tariff negotiations between Germany and Austria do not meet with the approval of the German manufacturers is unfounded. The Reichsanzeiger adds that at the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce it was decided to concur in support of these negotiations.

MANY VESSELS AND MEN LOST.

Frightful Disasters Reported to Have Been Caused by Last Thursday's Storm

NORFOLK, Va., March 4.—Incoming vessels report rough seas off Hatteras. On Thursday afternoon a heavy squall swept over the lower portion of the James River and capsized and damaged a number of the vessels of the large oyster fleet usually at work on the James River rocks.

The next morning the schooner Firefly came into port with the dead body of one oysterman and another suffering severly from exposure who were taken from the bottom of a capsized boat.

A report reached here last night that twenty-three persons had been drowned and valuable vessel property destroyed during the fierce squall of Thursday, but the names of the drowned (who must be mostly negroes) and the wrecked vessels have not been ascertained.

Other disasters reported are that of a large sloop which was wrecked off the mouth of Warwick River, in the Thames, opposite Blount's Point, 10 miles above Newport News, and the drowning of the entire crew of 14 men.

At the mouth of Walton's Creek, which empties into the James, a yacht went to the bottom, carrying with her 17 men.

Very near the same point two men in a canoe are thought to have been drowned, nothing having been heard of them. A rumor is current that some of the dead bodies were seen floating near Newport News.

A Child Dies in Court

NEW YORK, March 3.—In the sergeant's room at the Adams-street police station, Brooklyn, yesterday, upon two armchairs placed together so as to form a little bed, lay the body of an infant four weeks old, who had died only a few moments before in the arms of its mother.

Mrs. Margaret Bertuze, for that is the woman's name, went to the court to ask Justice Walsh that she might have charge of her brother-in-law's 8-year-old boy, John Mascarello, who is now an inmate of St. John's Home.

While Mrs. Bertuze was waiting her turn to speak with the judge regarding the boy, her babe began to cry, and she left the room to quiet him. On reaching the hall she pulled aside the shawl to look at her babe and noticed that its face was ashen white. The poor woman uttered a piercing shriek and had to be assisted down the stairs and was taken into the private room at the side of the desk in the police station.

Over two hundred valuable prizes are offered in addition to the above extra special prizes given daily. All fortunate enough to secure a prize in this Competition will obtain a valuable one, as none other will be given.

This competition will be upon an entirely different plan from any before offered in Canada, in fact, after the style of those introduced by leading English publishers, and will be conducted in the same honorable manner which has governed English Competitions.

The publishers of "The Ladies News paper" are not offering these competitions expecting to make any money from direct results, but will expend several thousand dollars in this manner for the purpose of introducing their Journal.

The first object will be to make them strictly fair and impartial and establish an enviable reputation for the publication itself. Persons desiring to enter the competition may start at once, but send your address on a postal card and receive a free sample copy with full particulars. Address

MR. AND MRS. BOWSER.

The indifference displayed by the average husband to the pains and aches of the average wife is only equaled by the manner in which he suddenly goes all to pieces at the slightest sickness. We have a regular programme at our house in certain lines. I am subject to nervous headaches. About once a fortnight Mr. Bowser comes home at noon and finds me on the sofa with my head tied up and my temples throbbing as if they would burst. It's just the next thing to being pounded on the head by a war-club, and if the house was on fire I should take my time about getting out, and that without trying to save anything except the camphor bottle. The programme then runs as follows:

Enter Mr. Bowser.

Hangs up his hat and overcoat.

Marches into back parlor, evidently suspecting some calamity.

Stands and gazes at me as if I were some curiosity. I try to smile, but it is a dead failure.

"Humph! Cholera, I suppose!"

"N-o." (Very faintly.)

"Yellow fever, then. I always knew you'd have it!"

"N-o. Only—only——"

"Only small-pox, eh! Nice thing to bring into the house, isn't it!"

"Mr. Bowser, I—I've got one of my headaches!"

"O-o-o-h! Is that all! Good lands, but you gave me a scare! Headache! Humph! If I was a woman of your size and age I'd show a little spunk."

"But it's dreadful!"

"Bosh! There's nine parts of imagination to one part headache."

And he goes slamming around the house and whistling away, as if every sound did not fall on my skull like a blow of a hammer.

"Coming to dinner?"

"Mercy, but I can't eat."

"Can't, eh! Well, if you will let your imagination run away with you in this manner I can't help it. Be more left for me to eat, you know."

He looks in as he is ready to leave the house and says:

"If you are down town this afternoon come in. Bye-bye, booby!"

We have another programme—one which is followed when Mr. Bowser comes home with a bilious headache. If I happen to be looking when he gets off the car a block away I can tell what is the matter. He comes dragging his legs, head down and eyes half closed, and I meet him at the door and inquire:

"Mr. Bowser, have you been run over on the street?"

"W-worse'n that!" he gasps, as he sits down on a stair step and holds his head in his hands.

"Have you been shot at or stabbed by a ruffian?"

"Would that I had!"

"Mr. Bowser, what awful, awful thing has happened? Answer me at once!"

"I've—I've got one of those infernal headaches!"

"O-o-o-h! Is that all! Why, I didn't know but some awful thing had happened. Well, dinner is ready, and I've got pork and beans, as you requested."

"P-pork and b-beans! My soul, woman, but how can you talk p-pork and b-beans to a dying man!"

"Only a head-ache! Why, what should a great big man like you care about a headache! Come to dinner."

But he staggers into the sitting-room and falls sideways on the lounge, and utters a groan which arches the cat's back up to an angle.

"Mr. Bowser, these headaches are all imaginary," I observe as I take him by the legs and swing him about so that he rests on his back.

"O-o-o-h!"

"If I was a man of your size and age I'd show a little spunk."

"O-o-o-h! How can I stand it!"

"Well, there'll be the more left for me to eat. Better lie as quiet as you can."

But I don't go out to dinner. He wants a pillow for his head and he wants his shoes taken off and his feet covered up, and then I have to remove his collar and necktie and tie a wet towel around his forehead, and all his pluck has departed. It isn't near as bad a headache as mine. The slightest headache a nervous woman ever has will double discount any headache assigned to a man to carry about, but she must grin and bear it.

I get the hartshorn for Mr. Bowser.

I change that for the camphor.

I chafe his hands.

I make mustard plasters for his feet.

I warn the cook to be quiet in the kitchen, and I send our boy over to a neighbor's.

Then I turn the pillow over.

Then I hold the camphor under his nose.

Then I take off the towel and tie it tighter around his aching head. He seems at last to fall into a doze, but suddenly opens his eyes and faintly calls:

"Mrs. B-Bowser!"

"Yes, dear."

"Do you think-think I'm going to d-die?"

"Die! Why you've only got a headache."

"But I feel a g-goneness—a sort of sinking away. Do you think it can be collapse of the system?"

"Of course not. You've got a fever—a little one about as big as a pin-head. All you've got to do is to go to sleep."

"But you'd better call up the doctor."

"Nonsense!"

"If you don't get the doctor I'll be dead in half an hour!"

And so I go to the telephone and ring up the central, and hold an imaginary conversation with the doctor, as follows:

"Mr. Bowser thinks he's dangerously ill and he wants you to come up right away. Can't you? That's too bad. Well, come in two hours at the latest. He's on a lounge now. Yes, it started with a headache. Yes, I'll keep him [illegible] of the camphor bottle. Good-bye."

The entire afternoon is taken up with nursing Mr. Bowser and assuring him that he has not been struck with death. Then, at tea time, I must make him toast and poach him an egg, and at bed time the cook and I have to help him up-stairs. He gets into bed with a series of groans, turns over with the declaration that he will never see another sun rise, and is sound asleep in ten minutes. Next morning, when he arises fresh and clear headed, and I inquire if his headache is all gone, he looks at me in a disdainful way and replies:

"Mrs. Bowser, my headache, as you call it, was a violent and malignant attack of spinal meningitis, and nothing but my great will-power, aided by my pluck and courage, enabled me to throw it off! Had it been you, you would have given up and died!"—Detroit Free Press.

Water-Proof Paper Doors.

Among the many uses to which paper has been adapted is that of making doors. Two thick paper boards, that are first stamped and molded into panels, are glued together with glue and potash and then rolled through heavy rollers. Subsequently they are coated with a water-proof and a fire-proof coating, after which they are painted and varnished. The doors possess the advantage of lightness and are said to be cheap.

The Latest Version.

The train has just been wrecked. Distracted wife rushes up.

"Oh, save my husband!"

Horrible groans from the inside. Smoke ascends. The timbers crash.

"Oh, Henry, are you still alive?"

"Yes, but I am pinned across a red hot stove; my clothes are on fire; the roof of the car is fast settling down on me; a beam is impaling me; and in one instant I shall be dead, unless rescue comes."

"Oh, help! Help! Rescue my husband! I am safe, Henry."

"Thank heaven for that!"

"The baby is not hurt a bit."

"Thank heaven for that! Make haste, men; the car is on fire, and I shall be roasted alive in one second more."

"And, Henry, dear mamma is safe, too."

"What! Boys, you can lay off and save some one else; I'd just as lieve roast!"—Chicago Light.

TEA AND TOBACCO TALE

Says Deacon Smith to Sandy Shaw:
"I need a pair o' shoon,
So give consent and gang wi' me,
To Edinborough toon."

Then Sandy in these words replied:
"I'm sure I can be spar'd,
Sae come wi' me to my ain house
Until I mow my beard.

"It wadna' do to gang from hame,
Just like a tousy tyke,
It's best when meeting unco folk
Aye to look purpose like."

So off they went to Sandy's house,
His wife, Meg, said, "I'm willing."
When he got dress'd quo' she "Ye look Far brighter than a shilling.

"Now gang awa—just gang your ways
As fast as ye can flee,
And no forget to bring five pound
Of English breakfast tea.

"Look, deacon, look; look at his sark,
My faith, but it looks braw,
I'm sure ye'll say, wi' me, that it
Is whiter than the snaw.

"Guid guide us a', he looks sae braw,
There has been wrought a miracle."
And then she laughed as if she'd gane
Upon the road hysterically.

The twasome now have ta'en Scotch leave,
And here I may relate
That Sandy had for years lived in
The matrimonial state.

His wife, Meg, was a canty wife,
And he did ne'er complain,
Although she kept her teapot prim'd
A' day on her jamb-stane.

But Deacon Smith ne'er had a wife,
He lived wi' Jean, his aunty,
Though she was auld, yet I am tauld,
Her virtues were not scanty.

Jean aften said. "I might been wed
Had I not been sae nice."
But that is false; for deil a man
Had ever spiered her price.

"And now to catch a man," she said,
"I wadna' cock my cap,
Although he poured a mint o' gold
And silver in my lap."

Jean further said the sight o' men
Did nothing but provoke her.
And now at last she had become
A most habitual smoker.

To prove this fact, when I was young,
And had but little sense,
I saw her smoking amang reek
Voluminous and dense.

* * * *

Now when our heroes reached the town,
They wandered here and there,
They saw the sights, and they agreed
They were beyond compare.

They walked 'long Princess street, and they Stood rooted to the spot,
When they beheld the monument
To our Sir Walter Scott.

The deacon took his bonnet off;
I would have done the same;
He said, "He stands the Giant-King
Upon the hill of fame."

They next stood on the castle rock.
And when they looked around
They saw the hills of Lammermoor—
My own, my natal ground.

They saw the Forth glide on and on Unto the German ocean,
And then they stared at auld Mons Meg*
With wonder and devotion.

The deacon said: "Look at her mouth;
She must have been a roarer!
When she went off I'm sure now
I'd hate to stand afore her.

"Some folk may brag 'bout knowledge-power—
But on this monster scannin'
We may conclude that power is far,
Far greater in a cannon."

They climbed up Arthur's seat, syne they Called in by Holyrood,
And saw the spot where Rizzio fell,
And where Queen Mary stood.

At length the deacon said: "I'm tired,
And fairly fagged outright;
I think we'll gang and take a rest
And no gang hame this night."

Quo' Sandy: "Man, I'm just as tir'd
As if I'd louped a linn,
Sae faith we'll gang and rest till morn
Doon at the Harrow inn."

Sae off they went unto the inn,
And after they were fed,
The landlord struck a light and they Soon jumpit into bed.

The deacon soon began to snore
And make his lips play poof,
That frighten'd e'en the very cats
That gamboled on the roof.

These sounds made Sandy turn and twist,
And made his pores perspire,
He started up then drew a breath
And bellowed out "Fire! fire!"

The deacon bounded out of bed
And half asleep roared, "Aunty,
Oh, woman, where in a' the earth
Have ye put my portmanteau?"

* * *

Now when the deacon reached his aunt
Upon the verge of morn,
He roared: "I've got a fright, the warst
I've had since I was born."

The deacon's aunty was in bed;
She cried: "Hand me my frock
And I'll get up, and deacon, dear,
We'll ha'e a rousin' smoke."

When Sandy reached his home he cried:
"Meg, Meg! the deacon's lost!"
"O, never mind," quo' she, "sit doon
And we'll ha'e tea and toast."

THURSDAY, MARCH 5, 1891.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

Polling the Vote.

To-day was a grand one for election day, an ideal winter's day, with good sleighing and not too cold. From nine o'clock in the morning horses and conveyances were on the fly, both parties working with an energy and earnestness in an endeavor to poll every available vote. The returns from this and other ridings will be announced at the Conservative committee rooms as soon as they arrive.

The Fatal Disease.

The recent sudden deaths caused by pneumonia have caused many people to become uneasy and fearful lest the disease was an epidemic or contagious malady. The Board of Health have, therefore, taken the matter in hand and are investigating the several cases and will report the result as soon as they have completed their work. The houses where the fatal cases of the disease have been are being thoroughly disinfected as a sure means of allaying all fear.

Y.M.C.A. Notes.

The monthly meeting of the Board of Directors was held Wednesday evening. Mr. Early presided. There was a good attendance of Directors. Interesting and encouraging reports were submitted from the Devotional, Invitation, Reception, Finance, Membership Committees and Rescue Brigade, which showed progress in our work. General Secretary gave a report of the work for the past month and proceedings of Provincial Convention held at Kingston, showing that association work is growing in power and influence in these provinces and we are determined by God's help to do better work among our boys and personal hand to hand work shall be our aim this year. A special vote of thanks was tendered the Y.W.C.T.U. for the At Home given our junior branch. On the invitation of Miss Eastwood, Lady Superintendent of Nicholls hospital, a gospel service will be held every Sabbath afternoon at 3 p.m. Sketch plans were submitted of our proposed new building which we trust we shall be able to erect this summer, for we are crowded for room to do our work properly. Our trade reception will be resumed after the elections.

TWELFTH ANNUAL REPORT.

"In whatever work we are engaged there is nothing more needful than to review from time to time the work accomplished. Such an exercise is humbling, yet cheering. It tends to discover inefficiency in ourselves while it proves that God prospers the work of His creatures for the advancement of His glory and the good of mankind.

Our missionary year closes with a membership of 70, showing an increase of six during the year. The largest attendance at any meeting was 35, smallest 10, average 18. One of our numbers has been removed by death, though only a short time with us, she endeared herself to us, by her meek, christian spirit, combined with great zeal and earnestness in the work of Master whom she loved.

We have been supplied with general missionary news from various sources, the mission periodicals of the day contributing largely to our store of information. Cheering reports were given at one of our meetings by the delegate who attended the district association. At our April meeting Mrs. Frith, returned missionary, was present and gave a talk on work among the women and children of India. In May Rev. J. MacLaurin, who spent several years in India as a missionary, visited our circle and addressed a meeting in the afternoon, also a public meeting in the evening. On invitation Mrs. Lillie, of Toronto, attended this meeting and presented the claims of Home Missions. A collection was taken, amounting to $16.85, which was equally divided between Home and Foreign. In June two of our members jointly undertook to support a student at one of our schools in India, generously sending the money through the Circle. While foreign mission contributions have increased, home missions have not suffered, as the sum raised for the latter has exceeded any former year.

The needs of our sister province to the east of us have not been forgotten. Nature has placed us side by side, and historically we have been longer and more closely connected than any other two provinces in the Dominion. Grande Leigne, which draws neither from the home nor foreign fund, claims special support and sympathy. As this mission has suffered loss from fire, extra efforts have been made to send aid. In October a box of bedding etc., was sent, valued at $34. Also a sum of money towards furnishing a room in the new building which has been replaced for the one that was burned. The Mission Band, which is an offshoot of our Circle, is increasing in numbers. Also it is contributing in no small degree to the mission funds, and the young people are becoming more and more interested in our missionaries and mission fields."

OBITUARY.

The Late Mrs. Susan Duffus, of Otonabee.

The following obituary of the late Mrs. Duffus of Otonabee, is clipped from the Catholic Record:—"On Monday, the 16th inst., at St. Joseph's hospital, Peterborough, Mrs. Susan Duffus, one of the oldest and most respected settlers in the township of Otonabee, departed this life at the ripe old age of seventy-two years. Born in Suffolk, England, in 1819, she came to this country in 1830, and lived for some time in Quebec, where she became a convert to our holy faith, and was married in 1835 to the late Wm. Duffus. With her husband she settled on a farm in Otonabee. During the fifty years and more she dwelt there she acquired and retained to the end the respect, esteem and friendship of all her neighbors. The last few years of her life were passed with her youngest son, Rev. Father Duffus, the present parish priest of Perth, in the archdiocese of Kingston. Mrs. Duffus returned a few weeks ago on a visit to her old home. For some time she had been suffering from the ill effects of la grippe. Finding her illness increasing, she sought treatment in St. Joseph's hospital. It soon became evident that death was near. On Monday morning, in the presence of her children, she breathed her last. She has left five sons and one daughter to mourn her loss. The funeral took place on Wednesday at 9.30 a. m., from the old homestead, the residence of her son James. The very large number of sleighs which accompanied the hearse was evidence of the great respect in which she was held by those who knew her best. The solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated in the cathedral by her son, Rev. Charles J. Duffus, with Rev. Thos. J. Spratt, of Wolfe Island, as deacon, and Rev. Michael J. Spratt, of Toledo, as sub-deacon. Father Whibbs, of the cathedral, was master of ceremonies. His Lordship Dr. O'Connor, assisted by Very Rev. P. D. Laurent, V.G., of Lindsay, and Rev. Thos. Davis, of Madoc, occupied his throne. In the sanctuary were all the priests of the cathedral. The choir was present in full force, and sang the Gregorian chant with great effect. The sermon on the occasion was preached by Rev. Father Casey, of Campbellford, who took for his text II Machabees xii, 46. In speaking of the good qualities of the deceased, he said he remembered the joy and the gratitude to God which reigned in her heart when her youngest son, the Benjamin of her love, was raised to the holy priesthood, and the consolation it gave her to know that there was One who would not forget her in life or in death, when offering, at the altar, the Immaculate Lamb of God to His Eternal Father. It is that son's consolation not only to have been present at her death-bed to exercise his priestly office, but also to offer up, to-day, the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, for the eternal repose of her soul, that she may be purified from any stain of sin she may have contracted during her long life on earth. Truly "It is a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead that they may be loosed from their sins." His Lordship the Bishop, robed in cope and mitre, then pronounced the solemn absolution and the funeral procession re-formed and proceeded to the cemetery, where her mortal remains were laid alongside of those of her beloved husband. May she rest in peace.—Com."

THE REFINING INFLUENCE.

The Refining Power of the Christian Religion—A Lecture at St. John's.

The fourth of the Wednesday evening series of Lenten lectures at St. John's church was addressed to a rather small audience, Wednesday night the stormy night preventing many from venturing outside. Rev. H. Clarke, of Toronto, was the lecturer and his subject was "The Refining Influence of Religion." The rev. gentleman is a rather pleasing speaker and his address last evening was one which, clothed in beautiful language and faultless diction, was an earnest and interesting one.

The rev. gentleman opened with an introductory reference to his subject, speaking of the superior position in the admiration of Christians which Christ Himself held as compared to His works, and said it was when they looked upon Christ as the King and Ruler of the world and sitting upon His throne that they, with the Psalmist, exclaimed, "How excellent is Thy name." When they talked of the refining influence of Christianity they would meet with many who would take exception and with others who would say that the expectations entertained by those who founded the faith had not been realized. But, he said, when they looked upon the work he thought he could give reasons that would show them that all reasonable expectations had been satisfied. First, he asked them to look at the Founder of the faith, what He was and did and demanded from those who accepted the faith. The speaker beautifully referred to the life of the Saviour, born in poverty and destitution. He pointed out the preparation of the world for the reception of the faith—the language for the Scriptures to be written in, and the highways by land and water for the missionaries to travel to spread the faith. He held up the life of Christ as one of and said His beauty demanded our admiration. His wisdom our reverence, His character our respect, while His personal kindness was a power of attraction. Christ came teaching men purity and to make them true and great for the purpose of uplifting and elevating the character of men. Jesus as a teacher and a man was eminently fitted by His example and teaching to exercise a refining power on the minds of men. Then the rev. gentleman spoke of the Saviour's work, saying He had His own method, commencing with the individual and working out to the circumference, taking each one by one and refining the individual character until He reached the circumference. Then He established His Kingdom—the Church—which was to be the nursery of everything that was good and true and in this way bring about the regeneration of the human race. He established His Church and sent His disciples to preach the Gospel to every creature and while preaching they were to demand repentance for sins, a personal faith in Him and an open and public acknowledgment of sin, their need of cleansing and their willingness to make restitution. This they did in baptism and then followed confirmation. Absolute purity, honesty, a complete surrender of will and a tenderness, one for the other, were demanded from those who accepted the faith. The rev. gentleman then referred to the refining influence the Christian religion had exercised over Europe, contrasting the state of affairs there in the Saviour's time with those of to-day. Slavery had ceased, polygamy had disappeared, the ferocities of war were mitigated and they could take the whole history of nations and they would find that the Christian religion had been the cause of a nation's greatness. In conclusion he impressed upon his hearers God's promises given to the children of Israel "I will refine them even as silver is refined," and said that just as silver in refining passed through fire so the church and Christians must pass through the fire. They should never be discouraged or lose hope, but they should look at what had been done and look forward with joy to the completion of the work when all evil would cease and all trouble have an end.

Lecture on "Hymns."

The Rev. Mr. Johnson, of Lindsay, will deliver a lecture in St. Paul's church on Friday evening, March 13th, under the auspices of the Mission Band. Subject, "Hymns, and Hymn Makers of the Christian Church." During the evening the choir will render two anthems, and Master Gussie Arlidge will sing two solos. Admission, 25c. 2152

That's Easily Answered.

"My dear," said Mrs. Cupandsaucer, laying down the evening paper, "what is reciprocity?" "Reciprocity, my angel," said the head of the house, "is easily explained. It means a general evening up,—as, say when Smitters asks me in to take a—er—cigar and I ask him to have another." "Exactly," said Mrs. C., "when I go to Hawley Bros. for tea and I hand Mr. Hawley a dollar and he gives me four or five pounds of splendid green or black mixture, I get the money's worth and he the money. Isn't that it?" "Exactly," said the husband as he reached for his hat. d36tf

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Beware of the House-fly.

The house-fly begins life fully grown, mature, and ready for business. There are no little flies of the same species, the small ones occasionally observed being different in kind from the larger ones. The house-fly does not bite or pierce the skin, but gathers its food by a comb or rake, or brush-like tongue, with which it is able to scrape the varnish from covers of books, and it thus tickles the skin of persons upon which it alights to feed upon the perspiration. Although the house-fly has no stinger, it is a pest, and a dangerous one at that. It is by nature a scavenger, and is a vehicle by which contagious diseases are spread. It poisons sores and wounds, and may carry deadly virus from decaying organic matter into food.

Pine-Tree Soap.

An American inventor has brought out a process for making soap from the resinous matter in the needles of the pine tree. The resin is extracted by means of alkali, and the woody fibre is removed from the product, which, on condition of fat, yields an ordinary soap containing resinous and fatty acids.

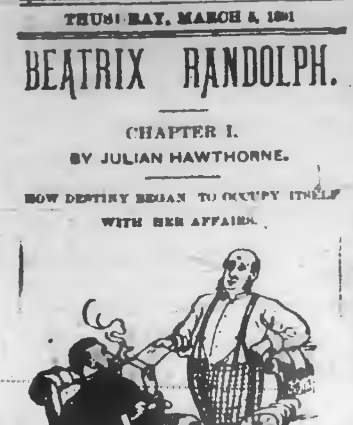
THURSDAY, MARCH 5, 1891

BEATRIX RANDOLPH.

CHAPTER I.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

HOW DESTINY BEGAN TO OCCUPY ITSELF WITH HER AFFAIRS.



GEN. INIGO AROSE, TOOK THE TELEGRAM FROM THE TABLE, AND HANDED IT TO HIS FRIEND.

One morning in the early autumn a gentleman was performing his toilet in one of the handsomest bedchambers of a certain hotel near Union square in the city of New York. He was apparently about 50 years of age, of medium height, stout, with a broad, flat head, from the top of which the hair had disappeared, leaving a bushy ring round the sides and back. His face, which was ruddy and broad, with a large nose and a thick mouth, indicated coarse good nature and shrewdness, tempered by irritability.

At the moment we come upon him he was standing in his shirt and trousers before the looking glass, endeavoring to adjust a scarf necktie of brilliant colors. Something seemed to be wrong with the fastenings, and after a few ineffectual struggles he wrathfully flung this important article of a gentleman's attire on the floor, emphasizing the act with an audible expletive. He then walked to the mantelpiece and poured some of the contents of a decanter into a tumbler, gazed at the liquor for a moment, and tossed it down his throat. He turned to the table, upon which, among various other articles, was lying a foreign cablegram. He took this up and glanced over it gloomily, then thrust his hands into his trousers pockets and strode heavily to the window, where he remained making inarticulate grunts and mutterings and occasionally puckering his thick lips to whistle a few bars of some operatic air.

After a while his wandering gaze was arrested by the figure of a gentleman, fashionably dressed, who was coming along the street in the direction of the hotel. He stepped hastily across the room, and pressed the button of the electric bell beside the door.

"Tell the clerk," he said to the servant who presently answered the summons, "to ask Mr. Hamilton Jocelyn if he'll come up here; I want to see him. I guess you'll find him in the office. Look alive now!"

"All right, general," replied the servant, who was a complacent negro, and seemed to entertain a kindly regard for the stout gentleman. "Nothin' else, sah?"

"Go to the devil!" the general answered testily; upon which the colored person smiled indulgently, and gently withdrew.

An interval of several minutes followed, during which the general marched up and down the room with a preoccupied and impatient air, like a lion moodily pacing his cage. At last there was a loud and brisk knock on the door, which opened at the same moment, and Mr. Jocelyn came in, with a jaunty smile and a cigar in his mouth.

"Halloo, Signor Don General Impresaria Inigo!" he exclaimed, as his gaze perused the wrathful and lugubrious figure of the owner of the room; "who's been crumpling your rose leaves now? Do you know it's half-past 10 o'clock and you ought to be"——

"I ought to be! Oh, yes; of course I ought to be! I shall be, too, before long—with such a gang of thieves and scoundrels as I've got to deal with! Now, look here!"

"I'm looking," said Jocelyn, seating himself in a rocking chair and crossing one knee over the other. "Have a cigar? Why don't you put on your vest? I declare, general, you're getting stouter every day. Why don't you adopt the Turkish costume? It would suit your figure to a dot, besides giving your innocent victims a warning of your character. When I was in Stamboul"——

"Now, just you listen here," interrupted the general, a slight Jewish pronunciation becoming perceptible in his speech. He drew up a chair in front of his guest and sat down on it, with his feet drawn up underneath, and his fat hands on his knees. "Just you listen here. I'm an honest man, ain't I? I pay my way cash down, don't I? I'm no slouch nor deadbeat, am I? When I sign a contract, and find I've got left, I don't go back on it, do I? Oh, this is a sweet world for honest folk, this is! I've been in this business fifteen years, by Jupiter! I've run all the big singers in this country and in Europe, and if you Americans have ever seen an opera decently put on the stage you may thank me for it. Where would all these blessed stars and divas, with their three and four thousand dollars a night, where would they be if Moses Inigo hadn't shown 'em up, and worked for 'em, and kept 'em straight, and humored 'em, and stepped out and told lies for 'em to the public's face, by Jupiter? And here I am, a poor man to-day and them rolling in riches! And [illegible] I just gone and built the finest opera house in the world for a million and a half of dollars out of my own pocket and"——

"Yes, for a poor and virtuous man you've done pretty well, general," put in Jocelyn, removing his hat and yawning. "But what's the matter? Has the chorus struck for higher wages? or won't the electric light work? or didn't that fellow at the club pay you the five dollars you won of him? or haven't you had your cocktail this morning? or what?"

With an air of terrible calmness Gen. Inigo arose, took the telegram from the table, and handed it to his friend without a word. The latter received it indolently, disengaged from his fob pocket a pair of eyeglasses, placed them across the handsome curve of his nose, and began to read the telegram with a sigh. Meanwhile the general, with a certain air of tragic satisfaction, repaired to the mantelpiece and repeated his late transaction with the decanter and tumbler. He then resumed his chair, still in silence.

Jocelyn had by this time reread the telegram more than once, had said "Humph!" in several tones, and had bitten his lip and pulled at his side whiskers reflectively. "Well," he observed at length, returning the paper to the other, "she has played it pretty low down on you, Inigo, and no mistake! Any idea what's got into her?"

The general lifted his shoulders and eyebrows and spread out his hands. He had temporarily become as voiceless as he was just now voluble. He was enjoying the dignity of unutterable wrongs.

"Any row about terms?" pursued Jocelyn.

The impresario smiled scornfully, as one who could not deign to correct such an insinuation.

"Must be something, you know," said Jocelyn. "A woman doesn't throw away twelve thousand dollars a week for nothing. Depend on it you've stepped on her toes somehow. I'll tell you what it may be—you haven't put about any photographs of her. Of course! What are you thinking of?"

"Yes, you are one of those fellows that think they can fix everything in five minutes," growled the impresario, breaking silence at last. "Now just you look at this." He held up a broad, square topped forefinger. "That woman has never had a photograph, nor any sort of picture, made of her in her life. She wont allow it to be done. That's her fad, and, by Jupiter, it's pretty smart of her, when you come to think of it!"

"Homely, is she? Has to depend on her voice. I see."

"You don't see an inch before your nose! She may depend on her voice when she's nothing else to depend on. There's not another voice like it ever been heard in America; but—homely! Well, I saw her last year in St. Petersburg, and if ever I set my eyes on a handsomer woman I'll take 'em out of my head and give 'em to her! No, sir! I'm a judge, if any man is, and I say that for face, figure and movement there ain't her equal on the stage today."

"Then why the deuce"——

"Exactly. That's just it. 'Why the deuce?' is the whole thing in a nutshell. Everybody says it, and what's the result? Why, that everybody's ten times as hot to see her as if they all had her picture tucked away in their breast pockets, or their watch cases, or on their mantlepieces, if they're bachelors. She makes on it every time. She knows that any woman can be made to look handsome in a photograph; but she's the only handsome woman before the public whose photo's never been seen. I tell you, sir, curiosity, if it's managed well, will make two dollars where beauty or anything else will make one. There's no advertisement ever came up to it! And to work up curiosity has been that woman's pet scheme from the start. There's more stories going about her, and scandal and fewer facts than you can put your fingers on. * * * Oh, she's smart!"

"She's overdone it this time," Jocelyn remarked. "'Unable to keep my contract' is what her telegram says; 'will pay forfeit.' How much is that, by the by?"

CHANGE OF BUSINESS

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and would bespeak for them the same support as you have accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought that a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question we have purchased the above business from Mr C. N. Brown, who will still continue as manager, in Flavelle's Old Stand, Simcoe-st.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of every one to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of

FLOUR, FEED, CHOP, Etc.,

and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices.

We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred in the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

Antiquity of the Indians.

Henshaw, of the Anthropological Society of Washington, declares that the languages of the Indians of this country, of which there were fifty-eight linguistic families and 300 languages and dialects, north of Mexico, at the time of the discovery of America, are none of them related in any way to Asiatic tongues; also as to the origin of the Indian it must have been in ages so far removed from our own time that the interval is to be reckoned, not in years of chronology, but by the epochs of geologic time

MR. BLAKE'S LETTER.

REASONS FOR DECLINING TO SUPPORT THE LIBERAL POLICY.

Restriction Condemned—Political Union and Free Trade With the States—The One Involved in the Other, But the Country Unprepared For so Large an Issue

To the Members of the West Durham Reform Convention:

HUMEWOOD, TORONTO, March 5, 1891.

GENTLEMEN,—1. On the 11th February last I addressed to your president the following letter:

"Some days ago I requested to be allowed to wait on the Convention.

"My object was to ask that my name should be withdrawn, as I found it impossible to accept the honor of a nomination; to give my reasons for this conclusion; to return my heartfelt thanks for the unbounded kindness of four and twenty years, and to bid my faithful friends an affectionate farewell.

"With this view I had prepared a paper for communication to them.

"It has been intimated to me that it is not desirable that I should take the course that I had chalked out, and consequently I defer the communication.

"Will you have the goodness to read this letter to the Convention?

"I will only add that the writing of it is the most painful event in the political life of which it is the close."

2. I have now to ask you to receive my most grateful acknowledgments of your resolution of 13th February, couched in terms which I know are extravagantly beyond any deserts of mine, and which I can accept only as a last and crowning mark of your kindness and partiality.

3. I have feared from the beginning that every hour's fighting in the contest which ends to-day must widen the rift between us; and that its close must leave me isolated in opinion and deprived of any right to expect your continued confidence.

4. Therefore, I am cheered by no such expectation now.

But I must give you "vera pro gratis," truths for compliments. You should know the grounds of my retirement.

And with that view, all excuse for reticence having ceased, I subjoin the paper referred to in my quoted letter.

I have, etc.,
EDWARD BLAKE.

Paper Referred to in the Above Letter.

To the Members of the West Durham Reform Convention:

HUMEWOOD, TORONTO, Feb. 6, 1891.

GENTLEMEN,—1. I hope that you will not deem me presumptuous in assuming that my name may be submitted to you as a Liberal candidate for West Durham.

A re-nomination for West Durham would be my greatest prize; the severance of our connection will inflict a bitter pang.

Therefore I pray you not to suppose that it is despondency at the failure of past efforts, or preference for ignoble ease or sordid toil, or indifference to your warm friendship and generous constancy that leads me to ask the withdrawal of my name.

It is due to both of us that you should know my reasons.

2. Irrespective of the trade question, it is important in the interest of our country that the Liberal party, even if it fails to win the election, should yet maintain and increase its strength in order to the efficient discharge of the great general duties devolving on it—duties at this moment cast into the [illegible] but none the less essential to the public good.

3. [illegible], plainly, the issue which the party has thought fit to tender for the judgment of the electorate is that of unrestricted reciprocity, or absolute free trade with the States; an issue which has been maintained [illegible] it was put forward in 1887.

4. Being at that time in Europe, I wrote, and after my return fully stated to leading men my views on this head.

5. Lately, when a provincial convention was summoned, and our fifth session was approaching, I thought it right to convey to the riding association, as a basis for discussion, some brief intimation of my opinions.

7. In our present political condition, a moderate revenue tariff, approximating to free trade with all the world and coupled with Liberal provisions for reciprocal free trade with the States, would be, if practicable, our best arrangement.

But—though we may and should greatly improve our tariff, whose defects, anomalies and oppressions, very serious in 1866, have been much aggravated since; and though we may and should substantially retrench the public expenditure—yet, as explained at Malvern, the result of our policy for the last 13 years is that we shall be compelled for an indefinite time to raise the bulk of an enormous revenue by high duties on imports.

On the other side it seems to be the settled policy of the States to decline a limited reciprocity.

So that what would be best is not now attainable.

8. The Canadian Conservative policy has failed to accomplish the predictions of its promoters.

9. Yet let us never despair of our country! It is a goodly land; endowed with great recuperative powers and vast resources, as yet almost undeveloped; inhabited by populations moral and religious, sober and industrious, virtuous and thrifty, capable and instructed—the descendants of a choice immigration, of men of mark and courage, energy and enterprise; in the breasts of whose children still should glow the sparks of those ancestral fires.

10. Let me glance at some of the economic propositions which are advanced for our approval:

[illegible], first, as to that revival in Britain of home and colonial agricultural protection which Conservatives invite us to expect.

Fairtraders, Federationists, Tories and Protectionists to the contrary, notwithstanding—there is, I believe, no reasonable prospect that the people of the United Kingdom will seriously engage in a struggle, to which their whole Liberal party is opposed, and their Conservative Prime Minister has likened to a civil war—a struggle to turn back for 40 years the clock of time, and to achieve a social, industrial and economic revolution—in order to re-impose protective duties which shall effectively restrict, in favor of their own landlords, and of colonial producers like ourselves, the supply of their staple foods.

11. While that free market which the United Kingdom, on a just conception of its own interests, opens permanently to all the world, is to us of very great value; and while every prudent effort should be made to enlarge our exports there and elsewhere beyond the seas, yet the results of all such efforts must be far below those to flow from a free market throughout our own continent.

12. Though the United States tariff will (and, indeed, unless very high sugar duties be reimposed, must) for a long time remain like our own, decidedly protective; still there is a fair expectation, based on the last election there, that sounder economic views than those of the sitting Congress will soon prevail and that their tariff will be readjusted on a basis much more moderate and favorable to the consumer than that which preceded the McKinley Bill; and may eventually approach what is known as a revenue tariff, incidentally, though still substantially protective.

13. Having regard to this expectation, unrestricted free trade with the States, secured for a longer term of years, would (even though accompanied by higher duties against the rest of the world than I for one admire), give us in practice the great blessing of a measure of free trade, much larger than we now enjoy or can otherwise attain; it would greatly advance our most material interests, and help our natural, our largest, most substantial and most promising industries: it would create an influx of population and capital, and promote a rapid development of forces and materials now almost unused; in three words, it would give us men, money and markets.

14. Assuming consent on the part of the States, our financial difficulty is to be considered.

[illegible], even in its most promising form, a succession tax, is, I regret to say, at present out of the question. And of the financial problem presented by unrestricted reciprocity I have seen no solution which would leave us without a great deficit.

15. I have said that any feasible plan involves differential duties; but it does more. It involves—as to the bulk by agreement

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PHEBE MOSHER, 30 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, MARCH 6, 1891.

WEST PETERBOROUGH.

THE magnificent majority Mr. Stevenson received in this constituency was a pleasant surprise, for although his friends felt confident of his election such a majority was hardly expected by anyone. The result is very gratifying indeed. The splendid majorities in every ward and every polling sub-division in town are an emphatic endorsation of the policy of the Government, and repudiation of the commercial isolation scheme of its opponents, as well as a personal tribute to Mr. Stevenson, who has served the town and the constituency so faithfully. The vote in the townships was also gratifying. The Liberals shaped their policy and their appeals especially to secure a heavy vote in the townships, but their efforts to mislead the intelligent yeomanry were made in vain. In South Monaghan a minority was turned into a Conservative majority, in Ennismore the Conservatives made a slight gain, in North Monaghan the loss was slight, while in Smith, although there was a loss, it was not nearly as great as the Liberals expected, and had there been more time to meet the cries raised, it would have been much less. Mr. Stevenson and those who supported him have reason to be gratified with the vote in the whole riding.

There were two features of the campaign that were especially noticeable. One was that while the Conservatives endeavored to meet the issues and discuss them squarely, their opponents avoided a full explanation of their policy and tried to becloud the issue. The other feature, and a pleasing one, was the friendly, though earnest, manner in which the contest was carried on, and the entire absence of unseemly personalities.

The contest was fairly fought by the Conservatives and the splendid victory was fairly and honestly won. Mr. Stevenson's re-election, especially by the large majority he received, is very gratifying, and West Peterborough has again been true to itself and true to the best interests of the country.

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

MR. BLAKE'S LETTER.

and as to much from the necessity of the case—the substantial assimilation, in their leading features, of the tariffs of the two countries.

16. Since any practicable arrangement does substantially involve, not only differential duties, but a common tariff, Unrestricted Reciprocity becomes, in these its redeeming features, difficult to distinguish from Commercial Union.

17. Permanence in the new relation is of high consequence, both directly and indirectly, to the agricultural interest; and is absolutely essential in order to secure the full development of other great interests, to prevent needless disaster to important industries and to realize many of the benefits of the plan.

18. The revenue requirements and other financial conditions of the two countries are not identical; each will change; and each may change diversely from the other.

It might be possible to agree on a tariff for a year or two. It would be impossible for either country to fix its tariff for a long term. Changes in the stipulated tariff must therefore be provided for.

19. It would not be practicable to remit the decision as to such changes to a Joint Board.

20. Amongst the British people the Canadian preference of United States over British manufactures would be, perhaps, less unpopular, considered on economic grounds alone, than the alternative scheme of food taxes to which I have referred.

21. The tendency in Canada of unrestricted free trade with the States, high duties being maintained against the United Kingdom, would be towards political union, and the more successful the plan the stronger the tendency, both by reason of the community of interests, the intermingling of populations, the more intimate business and social connections, and the trade and fiscal relations, amounting to dependency, which it would create with the States, and of the greater isolation and divergency from Britain which it would produce, and also, and especially, through inconveniences experienced in the maintenance, and apprehensions entertained as to the termination of the treaty.

Our hopes and our fears alike would draw one way.

We would then indeed be "looking to Washington."

Nor is there any fair comparison, in this respect, between the new and the old reciprocal arrangements.

22. It is not absolutely certain that the States would under existing circumstances enter into a treaty for unrestricted reciprocity.

The treaty once made, the vantage ground it gave would naturally be used for the accomplishment of its ulterior purpose; and this political end would be a great factor in the consideration by the States of Canadian views upon changes in the joint tariff, or as to the maintenance or termination of the treaty.

23. The reorganization to which our neighbors look is, of course, the unification of the continent.

But next to, though much less warmly than, political union, they would favor Canadian independence; and it is quite possible that, in connection with such a policy, advantageous international arrangements on various most important points, not here brought into discussion, might be secured.

24. Without needless lengthy recapitulation, you will see, by contrasting my views with those of the present advocates of free trade with the States, several serious questions of difficulty and difference—for example, uniformity of tariff, and its control; deficiency of revenue, and its supply — on which I am unable to adopt their opinions.

25. But one large topic remains, arising out of or rather underlying this whole statement, the bearing of which I had hoped, until the news of the dissolution, to reserve for oral discussion.

You will doubtless have inferred my opinion that the policy of absolute free trade with the States is intimately connected with, and cannot properly be divorced from, the question of our political future, which therefore it must force into the party field.

Thus I do not add to the many matters with which you have been necessarily troubled any speculations of my own as to our future.

26. It would not be possible here even to epitomise the many points which occur upon the several projects for Federation with the United Kingdom, for independence, and for political union with the States, all of which are thought to have once been, or still to remain, open in some sense to our choice.

27. It is not needful that I should.

Assuming that absolute free trade with the States, best described as commercial union, may and ought to come, I believe that it can and should come only as an incident, or at any rate as a well-understood precursor of political union; for which indeed we should be able to make better terms before than after the surrender of our commercial independence.

Then so believing—believing that the decision of the Trade question involves that of the constitutional issue, for which you are unprepared, with which you do not even conceive yourselves to be dealing—how can I properly recommend you now to decide on Commercial Union!

28. Do not suppose that these are with me questions of yesterday.

Long ago, while leader of the Liberal party, it became my duty to examine into a similar design, submitted by a political architect of some reputation.

I thought the foundations insecure, the lines defective, and the estimates of cost inadequate.

It seemed to me that the proposed structure could be erected only on that different foundation, those other lines, and that larger cost which has been described.

For this it was conceded that the people were not then prepared.

And I was unable to propose the design for adoption as a party plan.

My views remain unchanged to-day.

29. It has caused me deep distress to differ from my political friends.

Gravely distrusting my judgment as to opinions unshared, difficulties unfelt, and consequences unforeseen by them, I sincerely wish to be found—as I have earnestly striven to find myself—in error.

30. But it is to our own convictions, right or wrong, that we must, after all, be true.

To put forward opinions we do not hold or ignore difficulties we cannot solve, or deny or conceal the tendencies and results of policies we undertake to propound, would be dishonest and unworthy.

And therefore I could not address the electors of West Durham without speaking my mind freely on the points I have advanced.

31. Had the elections been deferred to the usual and expected time, I should probably have felt it right within a short space so to address them.

But I do not find myself free to-day to speak my mind.

And I have come to the conclusion, confirmed by the judgment of leading men, that the publication of these opinions would inflict much more damage on my friends than the slight injury which may result from my silent withdrawal.

32. Now, while unable to fight under false colors, neither can I endure, at the very height and crisis of the battle into which a wrongful dissolution has unexpectedly plunged the Liberal party, to take a different tack, or to turn one hostile gun against the well-loved friends, in whose company, whether as comrade or commander, I have sailed so many stormy seas, and fought so many hot engagements; whose general course I approve; and whose ships I wish, not wrecked, but safe in port.

33. What then is left for me to do!

This only. Since I cannot help, to hurt as little as I may; and therefore to go down, with my own little ship, in silence; bearing for the moment all consequent misconstruction; and leaving, till the 5th of March be past, the explanation of my action.

Your faithful servant, EDWARD BLAKE

LIVE FARM TOPICS.

A great deal of praise has been bestowed on the sour gum for its brilliant autumn coloring, and it deserves it.

Do not let the sheep go a single hour without good care and enough to eat. It is the hours of neglect that make weak, bad places in the wool.

Grape vines do not need extremely rich ground, and the land to be planted with them should never be heavily manured. Dry and deep soil easily warmed are the chief requisites.

The Boston Ivy, or Ampelopsis veitchii is quite hardy and will withstand the severest weather without injuring when once established. A slight mulching with manure the first winter will do no injury.

If you want to grow ferns put them in the shadiest place. In the house a north window, where the sun does not strike, is the best place. Hanging-pots of ferns can be successfully cultivated in such a place

The discovery of electrical tanning which reduces the time of the process from many months to a few days, has its counterpart in the alleged discovery of a process by which the time of the manufacture of champagne is reduced from 8 months to 40 hours.

A system of electric cabs has been introduced in Stuttgart, with a degree of success that promises the permanent relegation of the cab horse to other fields of usefulness. The new vehicles are already popular, though at present their novelty has much to do with the patronage they receive.

In all European countries creosoted wood is used whenever possible, on account of its lasting so long. The process of creosoting is not an expensive one, and, in view of the excessive use of wood in mines, it is suggested that it would be economy for all collieries to use only creosoted timber in permanent haulage roads, shaftways, stairways, etc., and in the case of the larger companies it would pay to secure the right and erect creosoting works of their own.

A singular disease has been called to notice by a prominent physician. It is a form of recession of the gums of the superior molars, which is said to be due to the use of tomatoes as food. Great sensitiveness is manifested along the line of recession, similar to that of an exposed nerve. The only remedy has been found to be abstinence from tomatoes. If the disease continues the teeth fall out, not usually more than one being lost in a season.

Sailing Vessels of the Future.

The era of the wooden sailing vessel, according to the captain of an American ship, is passing away. He predicts that within fifty years the wooden deep-sea ship will be as rare as the wooden steamship is now. He says the steel ship is lighter, cheaper, and in proportion to the size of hull, has greater carrying capacity than the wooden craft. Freight rates are eight times as low as they were when the Dreadnaught made her famous run to Liverpool, and to carry freight profitably the hold of the modern ship must be capacious and her crew must work cheaply. Machinery for hoisting sail has lightened the work of the sailor-man and cheapened his labor. The British shipyards are turning out big steel sailing craft with a rapidity that indicates that they have come to stay. Within the past few years a fleet of about twenty monster four-masters, all measuring more than 2,000 tons, have been launched. Some of them are the Puritan, Engleborn, Falkland, Craigend, Elginshire, Dumfriesshire, Robert Hill, California and Gibraltar.—New York Sun.

A Good Man Rewarded.

He was a good man. He threw a sealskin sacque over the shoulders of a fainting girl on Niagara suspension bridge. The distraught creature wore it on to Niagara Falls, where this Samaritan relieved her of it and wended his way. And verily he had his reward, being richer by $50 customs duties, which his benevolence had evaded. To importers of sealskin, the humor of this proceeding may be distorted, viewed through the refractive medium of personal interest. The other 65,000,000 may be permitted to pay tribute of delight to a nimbleness of wit that accredits civilization. For civilization has been defined "the triumph of man over his neighbors."—New York Evening Sun.

The Oldest Tree on Earth.

The oldest tree on earth, at least as far as anyone knows, is the "Bo" tree in the sacred City of Amarapoora, Burmah. It was planted, the record says, in the year 288 B.C., and is, therefore, nearly 2,200 years old. Its great age is proved according to historic documents, says Sir James Emerson, who adds: "To it kings have dedicated their dominions in testimony of a belief that it is a belief that it is a branch of the identical fig tree under which Buddha reclined at Uruwela when he underwent his apotheosis." Its leaves are carried away by pilgrims as relics, but as it is too sacred to touch with a knife, these leaves can only be gathered after they have fallen.

Ocean Cables.

The longest ocean cable in the world is that of the Eastern Telegraph Company, whose system extends from England to India and measures 21,000 miles. Africa is now completely encircled by submarine cables, which make up altogether a length of 17,000 miles. There are eleven cables across the North Atlantic, though not all of them are at present in use. Five companies control the lines of telegraphic communication between this country and Europe.

A GRAND VICTORY.

Mr. Stevenson Elected by 235.

NO UNCERTAIN SOUND

COMES FROM THE TOWN, WHICH ROLLS UP 369.

The Townships Do Well—The Enthusiasm Knows No Bounds—The Majorities of Four Years Ago Doubled, Trebled and Away Outdone—A Torchlight Parade—A Grand Meeting in the Opera House—Mr. Stevenson is Enthusiastically Cheered.

The battle at the polls has been fought and the victory won with the handsome majority for the Government candidate, Mr. Jas. Stevenson, of nearly two hundred and fifty votes. In West Peterborough it was a hard fought battle, neither party leaving a stone unturned to secure the election of their candidate. The close contest of four years ago, and the energy and vim that was thrown into the campaign, made the anticipation of the result a doubtful matter, it being generally prophesied that whether Mr. Stevenson or Mr. Hall was the people's choice his majority would be small. The supporters of Mr. Hall made a special effort to secure the vote in the country, but the returns show that in this they were not successful. The town it was expected would, on account of a desire to preserve its manufactures, give Mr. Stevenson an increased majority over that of four years ago, and these expectations were more than realized, every polling subdivision in the town giving him a majority, swelling the total to the grand magnitude of 369. Never before in former years did the people of Peterborough speak at the polls in such an emphatic voice in the selection of a representative.

At the polls yesterday the fight was as hot as it had been all through the campaign. Horses and sleighs were on the gallop from nine o'clock in the morning until five in the evening. Every available vote was hunted and polled on both sides. Voters from outside places arrived during the day.

When the polls had closed on the stroke of five o'clock the excitement was intense and eager thousands were waiting for the first returns. A few minutes after closing they began to come in, the first being from No. 13 division giving Mr. Stevenson a majority of 47, more than doubling that of four years ago. Then the different divisions began to arrive and as one after another showed that former majorities had been away outdone, the enthusiasm among the supporters of Mr. Stevenson became intense as victory was assured. The town rolled up a glorious majority, and Mr. Stevenson can feel proud that his fellow citizens appreciate his endeavors in the town's interests and will never endorse a policy which would endanger Peterborough's future. No. One Ward did all that was anticipated by the most sanguine, giving a majority of 111 for Mr. Stevenson. From 26 four years ago, No. Two Ward brought its majority up to the grand total of 146, while No. Three changed a majority of 76 to one of 69. No. Four Ward also almost doubled its former majority, given 52. When these returns had all been announced the enthusiasm knew no bounds.

But when the results from the country began to come in and it was seen that the farmers had not been misled by any of the many misrepresentations, the enthusiasm increased and three rousing cheers were given by the crowd for the farmers who had stood loyal to the Old Flag, the Old Policy and the Old Leader. The Monaghans did well, South Monaghan changing a Liberal majority into a Conservative, and Ennismore which gave Mr. Cox 9 only gave Mr. Hall 2. In Smith alone was there an increased Reform majority. In this township the greatest Reform enterprise had been exerted and it was generally expected that the majority there would be increased.

To add to the enthusiasm encouraging reports began to come in from East Peterborough and at the same time came the announcement of Sir John's election in Kingston by 400 of a majority where his defeat had confidently been expected by his opponents.

With the battle fought and a glorious victory won and bright prospects throughout the country of the Government's endorsation, the excitement was wild, and the crowd at the Conservative Committee rooms grew to such mammoth proportions that an adjournment had to be made to the opera house which was soon packed. Meanwhile the more enthusiastic supporters of Mr. Stevenson formed and, headed by the band and with flaming torches, they made a triumphal march through the principal streets, visiting Mr. Stevenson's residence, and giving vent to their feelings in great cheering. Many of the same "boys" were carrying the torches who had been in the procession on Tuesday, but they had shown at the polls this time that if they were "boys" they were old "enough to vote."

After parading the streets, the processionists returned to the opera house where Mr. Stevenson was seated upon the platform receiving the returns, while the thousands of his fellow citizens were cheering him to the echo. The appearance of every gentleman who had helped in securing the victory was the signal for renewed applause, and it is safe to say that the opera house never contained a more enthusiastic audience.

Majority for STEVENSON, 235.

THE SPEECHES.

After the returns for the riding had been received, Mr. W. H. Moore, who presided at the Opera House gathering, made a few congratulatory remarks, and introduced the member elect.

MR. STEVENSON'S THANKS.

Mr. STEVENSON was received with tremendous cheering. After it had subsided, he said he had been talking almost every night for three weeks past, but he would endeavor to make himself heard. The returns they had heard were very gratifying to them all. (Cheers.) He did not know how to thank them as he would wish to for the splendid majority they had given him. He felt that his humble efforts to forward the interests of the town had been appreciated. (Cheers.) If the result had been otherwise, he would have been contented, but he was pleased to see that what little he had been able to do had been appreciated. (Cheers.) The townships had done well, and he could tell them that if they had had a little more time to explain the clap-trap cry of their opponents they would have done better. (Applause.) The time had been short, but if they could have given more time in the township of Smith they would have kept the majority down more there, and they had a good report from the two Monaghans. (Cheers.) He was exceedingly gratified by the result, not so much on his own account, but because their opponents had tried to drag them into a policy that would have led to political union with the States. (A Voice—It will never be done, and cheers.) The letters of Farrer showed that, and it was well for him that he lived under the mild reign of Victoria. (Cheers.) But they had given an answer that would not be forgotten. (Cheers.) He had been admirably well received in his meetings throughout the riding. He thanked them heartily for their efforts on behalf of himself, the government, and their chief, the greatest man in Canada. (Loud Cheers.) The United States had not noticed Canada until they had built great railways and were developing the country, and then they wanted it, and they had Mr. Wiman coming over and calling himself a Canadian, but he was a cut-throat Canadian. (Cheers.) It was the old story of "Will you walk into my parlor?" He believed, though, that Canada had given such an answer that Mr. Wiman would not bother them any more—(cheers)—and that Mr. Goldwin Smith, Mr. Charlton, and those who thought with them would be silenced. The great body of the Reformers were true and loyal men, but they were mixed up with some very bad leaders. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) He had made the best fight he could, and they had all done the same. Curious things sometimes happened. Mr. Meldrum had gone to Ottawa to urge the Government to increase the duty on flour—(cheers)—and he (Mr. Stevenson) had aided him all he could, and Mr. Meldrum was then emphatic in his commendation of himself and of the Government. Yet on the eve of the election he had come out with a letter against him. That letter, however, did him good. He wished to thank Mr. Wm. Hamilton for his kind and manly action. (Loud cheers.) West Peterborough would not have reason to regret that it had supported the Government, and he expected to see the town's population again doubled. (Cheers.) He was pleased with the good feeling manifested in the contest from beginning to end, and was glad that nothing had occurred to injure the good feeling that had existed between Mr. Hall and himself ever since he had known him as a boy. (Cheers.) He wished to thank the young men for the part they had taken in the contest, in every department of the work. (Cheers.) He was glad to see able young men coming forward who would be able to fill his place, and he hoped to be able to assist in electing one of them. Mr. Stevenson concluded by again heartily thanking the electors, and sat down amid loud and prolonged cheering.

Mr. R. M. DENNISTOUN expressed his pleasure with the result, and said it showed, what they had felt, that the farming community were too intelligent to be led away by the cry raised by the Liberals. (Cheers.) This constituency would never have cause to regret returning Mr. Stevenson to stand by their grand old leader. (Loud cheers.)

Mr. JAS. KENDRY also added his congratulations. All had worked well and the young men deserved great credit. The ladies, too, whom he was pleased to see present, had used their influence with good effect. (Cheers.) The efforts made to divide the people, and to set one section against another, had failed, and they had great reason to be gratified with the result. (Cheers.)

Dr. BRENNAN was called on and made a spirited address. He referred to some of the cries they had met in the campaign, and said that unrestricted reciprocity had advocated in some quarters with unrestricted mendacity. (Cheers.) By the people all over the riding had had their eyes open to the hollowness of the appeals of their opponents. The sneers at the platform, and especially at the old flag, had been answered. (Cheers.) He was glad he had had an opportunity to do something to assist in returning Mr. Stevenson. (Cheers.)

Short speeches were also made Mr. W. H. Law, T. Cavanagh, Dr. Crevier, T. M. Willan, of South Monaghan, A.P. Poussette, R. Mulholland, T. Kelly and others.

The meeting was closed with the National Anthem by the band, and cheers for the Queen and Mr. Stevenson.

REVIEWS.

HARPER'S WEEKLY of February 28th, contains several full-page illustrations of scenes connected with the funerals of General Sherman and Admiral Porter. T. G. La Moille contributes to this number an interesting description of the St. Clair River Tunnel which is accompanied by five illustrations drawn by C. Graham. Among other articles of interest is a description of the new game of Water Polo, and an entertaining story by Eva Wilder McGlasson, entitled, An Outline in Umber.

HARPER'S BAZAR for Feb. 27th contains interesting articles of practical value by T. W. Higginson, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Juliet Corson, and others; a short story, That Other Girl, by Edith Robinson; the continuation of Walter Besant's serial, St. Katherine's by the Tower; a variety of illustrated articles on the fashions and kindred subjects; and other attractive and timely features.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE of March 3rd, contains the first part of a highly entertaining story entitled, Yellowtop, or One Little Boy and his Friends," by Annie Bronson King. There are also stories by Elizabeth Stoddard and Lucy C. Lillie, and the continuation of Howard Pyle's charming and instructive romance, "Men of Iron."

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE.—Scribner's for March contains two striking articles of exploration and adventure—Mr. Mounteney Jephson's account of one of the most exciting periods of the Emin Pasha Relief Expedition, and Mr. M. B. Kerr's description of the latest attempt to reach the summit of Mount St. Elias in Alaska. The number is also notable for its fiction, containing four short stories, by Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson, Richard Harding Davis, Duncan Campbell Scott, and W. H. Woods. Sir Edwin Arnold's papers on Japan are concluded in this issue, but two more papers on the new regime in Japan, by Prof. J. H. Wigmore, are promised.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—In Harper's for March the first article, by Mr. Theodore Child, upon the "Argentine Capital," is full of timely information and the illustrations are exceedingly interesting. Mr. Francis Korbay has an excellent essay upon "Nationality in Music," and upon the peculiarities of the music in Hungary. Mr. Laurence Hutton discusses "The Literary Landmarks of Edinburgh" in very attractive style. The palm of artistic excellence and beauty in this number must be given to Mr. Abbey for his drawings of the characters in the "Comedy of Errors."

is about 10,000, and we would say at least one-half are troubled with some affection of the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. That's Easily Answered.

"My dear," said Mrs. Oupendeauer, laying down the evening paper, "what is reciprocity?" "Reciprocity, my angel," said the head of the house, "is easily explained. It means a general evening up,—as, say when Smithers asks me in to take a-er-cigar and I ask him to have another." "Exactly," said Mrs. C., "when I go to Hawley Bros. for tea and I hand Mr. Hawley a dollar and he gives me four or five pounds of splendid green or black mixture, I get the money's worth and he the money. Isn't that it?" "Exactly," said the husband as he reached for his hat. d28tf

THE LATEST.

HON. GEO. E. FOSTER ELECTED IN KINGS, N.B.

A Few Seats Changed From the First Reports Received.

Later returns received this afternoon announce that Hon. Geo. E. Foster is re-elected in Kings, N.B., that Mr. McNeill, Conservative, has carried North Bruce, that Mr. Valler, Con., is elected in Portneuf, Que., and that both Conservatives are elected in Cape Breton, N.S. On the other hand Wentworth South, Guysboro, N.S., and Carleton, N.B., are reported Liberal. This leaves the parties about as at first reported, the Government having a majority of 38 or 40.

Of the Good Old Sort.

The Toronto News of Tuesday says:—"'Hands Across the Sea,' a standard English melodrama of the good old sort, such as 'The Silver King' and 'World,' and by the same author, Henry Pettit, was presented at the Grand Opera house last night by the above cast. It is a strong drama, full of striking situations and brilliant scenes, with, of course, a few slight improbabilities. The stage setting is excellent, especially the ship scene, where, when a French commander comes on board to arrest the hero, who claims the protection of the British flag, the running up of which was last night greeted with loud applause by the large audience. Our own 'Billy' Lytell showed his great versatility in the in the role of Tom Bassett, the aristocratic young Englishman. Miss Pious-Day was highly pleasing as the heroine and possesses much dramatic ability. Acceptably villainous was Mr. Beebe's Robert Stillwood; the heroic part of Jack Dudley by Mr. Edwards was played in a manner that did him infinite credit. 'Hands Across the Sea' will run all week, with the usual matinees." This company will present "Hands Across the Sea" on Monday evening next in Bradburn's Opera house 1d

As the days grow longer the sun grows stronger, and the wet and slush that follows are the sure forerunners of cold in the head. Nasal Balm instantly relieves and permanently cures.

Some one asserts that in nine cases out of ten, ships leaving New York, Boston or Philadelphia for distant ports are provisioned so close by their owners that if a shipwrecked crew of 10 men were picked up and fed for three days, it would put everybody on short rations. A loss of four days on sailing time would do the same thing.

From Bergen, Norway, comes the news of a practical charity contemplating relief to a deserving class, which, however, in our changing domestic conditions does not make so ready a call upon our sympathies as in older lands. Mrs. C. Sundt has given two houses and 50,000 kr. to establish a home for aged women servants no longer able to work for their own support.

Sarah Bernhardt doesn't think much of stage banquets. In conversation about theatrical accessories recently she said: "Look at Poor Cleopatra! In the famous scene in the second act, on the table where the rarest fruits, the most extraordinary dishes and the best of wines should stand in profusion, what did our Paris manager give us! Two biscuits and a bunch of grapes! If that was the kind of a feast that Cleopatra prepared for Antony, I am not surprised that he returned to Rome!"

The New Argentine Pacific railroad from Buenos Ayres to the foot of the Andes has on it what is probably the longest tangent in the world. This is 340 kilometers (211 miles) without a curve. In this distance there is not a single bridge and no opening larger than an ordinary culvert, no cut greater than one meter in depth, and no fill of a hight exceeding one meter. There is almost an entire absence of wood on the plain across which the western end of the road is located. This has led to the extensive use of metallic ties, which will be employed on nearly the entire road.

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, MARCH 6 1891

BEATRIX RANDOLPH.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

"Bah! I would as lief take ten cents! Am I a man to cry about a little money? That ain't my trouble. But here I am, with my opera house built, and my posters out for three weeks back, and advertisements and paragraphs in every paper in the Union, and everybody on their beam ends to get the first sight of the great Russian prima donna (though whether she's Russian, or Irish, or American, the devil only knows; it's just what she's a mind to call it), and my great prima donna drops me a telegram that she ain't coming, by Jupiter! A nice figure she makes me out, don't she? Here I am, with a public record of fifteen years, and never once disappointed an audience, or kept them waiting, or failed to give them their money's worth, and now, after all my labor and planning and contriving, this is the reward I get—to be made a fool of! The jewel reputation, that's what she's robbed me of! I'd sooner she'd done me out of a million. But I'll be even with her, as sure as I'm Inigo, if I have to send her an ounce of dynamite in a jewel case!"

"She's never been heard in this country, has she?"

"No, nor in England either. I don't suppose there's another man beside me in New York to day that has ever heard or seen her. She's kept herself on the continent and sung for royalty and kept herself out of people's way, as if she were royalty herself—that's been her game. And a first class game it is, too, when a woman can afford to play it, as she can. She never hollers for herself; she lets the others do it for her. And that's why the public will pay higher to listen to her—if they could only get her—than to any other woman that sings; and I traveled 8,000 miles and spent close on to two million dollars just so they might have what they wanted, and this is how I get left!"

"Can't you get any other"——

"Any other? Oh, yes; I dare say; of course! I think I can see 'em when I propose it! Why, they've been that jealous of this new woman, as they call her, and of me building a theatre for her, and cracking her up to be the finest soprano and the grandest singer in the world, then when they hear she's sold me they'll be ready to split 'emselves for joy; that's what they'll be! And if they could only get me to ask one of 'em to take her place, so as to give a chance to say, 'Don't you wish you may get me?' I do believe they'd split outright and be done with it!"

"You're confoundedly vulgar this morning, Inigo," observed his friend musingly. "They say success is more trying than adversity, but I think the reverse is true in your case. Of course I wasn't thinking of substituting Patti or Scalchi, or any of that caliber. They'd stand on their dignity, naturally; but, as your great Russian is entirely unknown here, except by reputation, I was thinking"— He paused.

"Out with it, man, if there's anything there!" exclaimed Gen. Inigo impatiently.

"By George, I shouldn't wonder if it could be done!" muttered Jocelyn, half to himself. "Why not? There's necessity enough on both sides!"

"What's that?" demanded the general.

"I'll tell you what I want you to do, Inigo," said Jocelyn, throwing the butt of his cigar into the fireplace, and resuming his hat. "I want you to finish putting on your clothes and get yourself into a composed and respectable frame of mind, and then join me downstairs, and we'll go over to the club and have breakfast. I've had only a cup of coffee this morning thus far!"

"Have breakfast?" cried the general indignantly. "Is that all you have to propose?"

"No; not by a good deal. Unless I'm very much mistaken I've got a scheme that'll set you on your legs again, upset all the rivals and make your great Russian strangle herself for rage. But I'm going to turn it over in my mind first, and then I'll let you into it in my own way. You came to the right quarter this time, old fellow. But it isn't every man in the world, let me remind you, that's got a Hamilton Jocelyn to advise him."

"All I have to say," returned Inigo, as he took his place once more in front of the looking glass and selected another neck scarf from the drawer, "is that whoever does Moses Inigo a good turn never has any reason to regret it. That's all I have to say at present. We'll go into details when we've heard what the good turn looks like."

"You'll find me below in the reading room," said Jocelyn turning, with his hand on the door. "You'd better make your arrangements so that we can leave town if necessary and be away all night. And, mind you, don't open your mouth to any human soul about what has happened. Everything depends on that."

"I guess I know how to hold my tongue anyhow," exclaimed the impresario resentfully. But before he could say more the door had closed and he was alone. In the course of ten minutes he finished his toilet and sallied forth, jingling his door key as he went.

"If he pulls me out of this scrape, by Jupiter, I'll make his fortune," he murmured to himself, as he took the elevator to the office floor.

When the two gentlemen were seated at their breakfast table, in a retired corner of the club dining room, and had swallowed their first cup of coffee, Jocelyn opened his mouth and spake as follows:

"How old is your Russian phoenix?"

"She looks twenty and may be thirty," the general replied.

"What's her style? Stout or thin, tall or short, dark or fair?"

"That's about as she likes, I expect. She's what I call a true child of nature—changes with the seasons," said the other with a wink. "One of those women with hazel eyes and oval face, and hair all the way from straw color to black, that can make 'emselves look like anything. She's about medium height. When we'd signed the contract at our last interview," he continued, putting on a diabolical leer of retrospective gallantry, "I pressed a chaste salute upon her brow, and didn't have to stoop for it."

"Probably it was the recollection of that embrace that influenced her in throwing up her engagement," remarked Jocelyn dryly. "You're a dangerous fellow with women, Inigo, in some senses! Better make all your salutes parting ones—final partings. Well, to continue, does she speak English?"

"Just as well as I do myself," returned the general emphatically.

"Poor girl!" said Jocelyn as if to himself.

"What are all these questions for, anyhow?" demanded Inigo, after a pause.

"What sort of an actress is she?" went on Jocelyn, not noticing the interruption. "Realistic or conventional or what?"

"Independent, I should call her," said the other. "She doesn't seem to act much anyhow, if you know what I mean. Free—graceful—spontaneous!" he explained, waving his short arm about, with a forkful of mashed potato in his hand. "Worth your money to see her just walk about the stage," he added, engulfing the potato in his enormous jaws.

"She'll do!" said Jocelyn, leaning back in his chair with the air of a man who has succeeded in an arduous and ingenious enterprise. "Your famous Russian diva, my dear Signor Impresario, lives not more than a hundred miles from where we are sitting; and if I know anything about human nature, and hers in particular, she will make her appearance as per advertisement, and sing herself and you up to your chins in bank notes, not to mention my modest little commission!"

"Bah! What ails him now?" said the general, helping himself to another croquette.

(To be Continued.)

What They Say.

The Globe says: The Government has been sustained but by a majority which, at the present writing, appears to be too small to enable it to carry on affairs for any considerable length of time. Its majority in the last Parliament was about 50. Its majority in the next Parliament will probably not exceed 12 or 15. At the outside it will be less than 20, and in times like these a Tory Administration, pledged to uphold a trade policy which is impoverishing the people, cannot work with so slender a margin.

The Mail says:—So far as the returns which come to hand show, the Government has been sustained by the moderate majority of 26. There are seven constituencies yet to be heard from, three in Quebec, one in New Brunswick, two in British Columbia and one in Ontario.

The Empire says: The returns up to the time of going to press are: Conservatives returned, 125; Reformers returned, 83; still in doubt, 7—215; showing a Conservative majority of 42, with 7 seats, of which 5 at last election returned Conservatives at the last election, still to be heard from.

The World gives the majority 30.

COPYRIGHT 1890

The picture of the Pied Piper of Hamelin, playing upon his magic pipe, while the entranced rats of the town leave their holes and flock after him into the sea, reminds one of the speed with which the diseases and impurities of the blood leave the system when Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is taken.

It removes all humors, poisons, or taints, from the system, whether manifested in the common pimple, or eruption, or in boils, carbuncles, eczema, salt-rheum, fever-sores, white swellings, hip-joint disease, and kindred affections — in fact anything and everything resulting from impure blood.

For scrofula of the lung tissues (consumption) it has no equal, and often cures cases which physicians have given up. It is a guaranteed liver, blood and lung remedy, and the only one sold. Your money returned if the medicine fails to accomplish what its manufacturers claim, when taken in time and given a fair trial.

All the year round, you may rely upon Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to purify the blood and invigorate the system. It's not like the sarsaparillas, that are said to be good for the blood in March, April and May. The "Golden Medical Discovery" works equally well at all times, and in all cases of blood-taints, or humors, no matter what their name or nature.

It's the cheapest blood-purifier, sold through druggists, no matter how many doses are offered for a dollar, because you only pay for the good you get.

Your money is returned if it doesn't benefit or cure you.

Can you ask more?

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol to inebriate, and no syrup or sugar to derange digestion.

It's a concentrated vegetable extract; put up in large bottles at $1.00; pleasant to the taste, and equally good for adults or children.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE

ARE NOT a Purgative Medicine. They are a BLOOD BUILDER, TONIC and RECONSTRUCTOR, as they supply in a condensed form the substances actually needed to enrich the Blood, curing all diseases coming from POOR and WATERY BLOOD, or from VITIATED HUMORS in the BLOOD, and also invigorate and BUILD UP the BLOOD and SYSTEM, when broken down by overwork, mental worry, disease, excesses and indiscretions. They have a SPECIFIC ACTION on the SEXUAL SYSTEM of both men and women, restoring LOST VIGOR and correcting all IRREGULARITIES and SUPPRESSIONS.

EVERY MAN who finds his mental faculties dull or failing, or his physical powers flagging, should take these PILLS. They will restore his lost energies, both physical and mental.

EVERY WOMAN should take them. They cure all suppressions and irregularities, which inevitably entail sickness when neglected.

YOUNG MEN should take these PILLS. They will cure the results of youthful bad habits, and strengthen the system.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. CHANGE OF BUSINESS

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and would bespeak for them the same support as you have accorded me.
C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought that a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question we have purchased the above business from Mr C. N. Brown, who will still continue as manager, in Flavelle's Old Stand, Simcoe-st.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of every one to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of

FLOUR, FEED, CHOP, Etc.,

and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices.

We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred in the credit system.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

A PERTINENT QUERY BY LABOUCHERE.

A Plot to Assassinate 300 Natives in Macsowah—Parnell Delivers an Address at Clerkenwell—Wismann Kills 200 of the Kibosh Tribe.

LONDON, March 6.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Henry Cobb (Gladstonian), member for Rugby, asked if a military inquiry had been ordered in regard to the baccarat scandal, which affected an officer of high rank, Sir William Gordon Cumming. Hon. Edward Stanhope, Secretary of State for War in reply to Mr. Cobb's question, said that the matter was now the subject of an action at civil law and that he must therefore decline to make any remark on the subject.

Sir James Fergusson, Parliamentary Secretary of the Foreign Office, replying to a question on the part of Mr. Henry Labouchere, one of the members for Northampton, declined to define the Sultan of Turkey's rights in the Soudan, saying, however, that whatever they were they had not been surrendered. Collisions, he said, between the Egyptians and the Soudanese had been frequent since 1885 and they had always been provoked by the Soudanese.

Mr. Labouchere moved a reduction of the army estimates by £100,000 on account of the troops in Egypt. He said the troops ought to have been withdrawn long ago. Mr. Labouchere's motion was rejected under closure —140 to 65.

HER MAJESTY'S DRAWING ROOM.

A Brilliant Assemblage Greets the Empress Frederick.

LONDON, March 4.—The "drawing room" held by Queen Victoria to-day at Buckingham Palace was notable for the unusually large and brilliant attendance. This state of affairs undoubtedly was due to the presence at the drawing room of the Empress Frederick of Germany, and of the desire on the part of courtiers and others to be present at Buckingham Palace upon this occasion as a token of sympathy with the Empress after her recent unpleasant experience in Paris.

Every member of the royal family now in England made it a point to be present, and as the court is out of mourning the drawing room held to-day may be said to have been one of the most successful ever held in Buckingham Palace.

It was fully 3 o'clock in the afternoon before the Queen, amid a truly royal scene, was, with much ceremony and in almost deadly silence, ushered into the immense drawing-room of the palace, becoming the centre point upon which thousands of pairs of eyes were centred. Immediately behind the Queen came the Prince and Princess of Wales and the other members of the royal family.

The members of the diplomatic corps presented to the Queen included the United States Minister Robert T. Lincoln, Mr. Henry White, First Secretary of the United States Legation, and Mrs. White, Mr. R. McCormick, Second Secretary of the United States Legation, and Mrs. McCormick, and Mr. G. Wurts, First Secretary of the United States Legation in St. Petersburg.

BUFFALO, March 6.—According to W. E. Lyman, the type foundry man, after March 15 all the type foundries will become the property of an English and French syndicate. The present proprietors will be retained on a salary. The syndicate has a capital of $6,000,000 and will own and operate all the foundries. The price of type will not be advanced.

THE CARP MURDER.

GOODWIN CAPTURED NEAR OTTAWA CITY.

He Wept Bitterly but Declined to Say Anything—Had Been Living in a Shanty Near Sudbury All Summer.

OTTAWA, March 6.—George Goodwin, who has been wanted for the murder of Richard Langford at Carp, west of this city, was arrested to-night about three miles from here at a point on the Richmond Road. He drove from Arnprior in a cutter to-day. He stopped at Switzer's Hotel in the suburbs, and the proprietor suspecting him sent in word to the police authorities. Officers Vizard and Hogan went out and made the arrest. The prisoner says he spent the winter in a shanty near Sudbury. Detective Montgomery fully identified him to-night. Goodwin, after being placed in the cells, wept bitterly, but refused to make any statement.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, March 7.—Pigeon shooting will be allowed in the city in future but not within 100 yards of any highway.

A Reuter's telegram from Rome announces that Senator Magliani, ex-Minister of Finance, died on Saturday morning. He was born in 1824 at Laurino, and studied at Naples, where he lived until 1860. He was one of the founders of the "Adam Smith" society, which was established in Florence for the purpose of combating every kind of socialism. Although he had long held an important official position, his first accession to cabinet rank was in December, 1877, when he was offered the post of Minister of Finance by Signor Depretis. The Ministry lasted only a few months and was succeeded by Signor Cairoli's Government. On the fall of the latter Signor Magliani again became Finance Minister, holding office from December, 1878, to July, 1879. Altogether, he was four times the director of the national finances, and during his term of office he abolished the grist tax and forced currency, and reduced the price of salt, while increasing the import duty upon certain minor necessary articles.

Ex-President Michael McConnell of the old Toronto Baseball Association has retired from an active interest in the American National game.

Yesterday Patsy Powers and Charlie Morton visited Toronto in behalf of the new International Association and interviewed the Colborne-street merchant. Mr. McConnell surprised the pair by declaring that he was out of baseball for good and if they wanted a club for Toronto they must look to other quarters for support. Mr. McConnell is willing to rent his grounds over the Don to a new syndicate or association, if such be formed.

The delegates from the International Association, Messrs. White, Fraser and Burnham, who were at New York for the purpose of obtaining the protection of the national agreement for their association, were received by the board at 4 o'clock. After listening to the arguments presented, the International Association was admitted to protection under Class B of the national agreement. Under this class the International Association is restricted to a salary list of $2500 per month. No player can receive over $200 per month, and no umpire more than $150 per month exclusive of expenses.

Trying to Starve to Death.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 6.—Jacob Scheele, who is confined in the county jail in this city, and under sentence to be hanged June 16 for the murder of Constable Drakle in New Canaan some three years ago, is trying to starve himself to death. He absolutely refuses to partake of food of any kind and has eaten nothing for the last 11 days. No effort has yet been made to force him to partake of food. Tempting dishes are daily set before him without effect. He swears that he will never partake of food again, and it looks as though he would keep his word. Sheriff Clarkson has placed a death watch over the condemned man and every precaution taken to prevent him from doing himself bodily harm.

The Austrian Elections.

VIENNA, March 6.—Sixty-four rural elections, so far as the results are known, have completed the triumph of the young Czechs and German Liberals, ensure a majority to Count Von Taafe, although the composition of the Cartel majority will be much changed. The old Czech party is almost annihilated. Even if the anti-Semites win as many seats as they expect to win, the German Liberals will still be dominant.

Acquitted.

FEVERSHAM, March 6.—William McGirr, who was arrested at Toronto for robbing the mails at this place, has been discharged, there being no evidence against him.

Dropped Dead at Midnight.

HAMILTON, March 6.—James McKenna, aged 58, went home intoxicated at 11.20 last night. At 1 this morning his wife found him lying dead on the floor.

Escaped from the Lock-up

FOREST, March 6.—John Thompson was arrested for ransacking the house of M. L. Murphy. After being placed in the lock-up he smashed the door with a stick of wood and escaped.

Fatal Despondency.

CHICAGO, March 6.—Charles W. Cromwell, son of ex-Gov. Cromwell of Michigan, committed suicide here yesterday. The act is attributed to despondency.

STUDENTS DIE TOGETHER.

Two Young Theological Students Commit Suicide With the Same Revolver.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 6.—A suicide of two young students of the Hebrew Union College occurred at 1 o'clock this morning at Fourteenth and Race-streets. The young men were Isidor H. Frauenthal and Ernst Sallinger. They were students at the Hebrew Union College. They boarded in the house of Max Scholtenfeldt and occupied adjoining rooms. About 1 o'clock Mr. Scholtenfeldt heard a heavy fall in their room, and soon after another. Being unable to open the door he got a police officer and broke in. They found Frauenthal had shot himself in the head. Sallinger took the pistol and fired a ball into his chest. He was alive when found, but died in a few minutes. On the table was a note asking that telegrams be sent for Frauenthal to Mr. J. B. Hell, No. 1137 Dolman-street, St. Louis, Mo., and for Sallinger to Henry Landauer, care Joseph Schoeneman & Co., No. 16 West Third-street, Philadelphia.

Sallinger was able to speak when found, and said they had agreed to die by their own hands. Sallinger's diary had an entry yesterday saying he was going to end his never-ceasing pain. In the room of the victims of self-destruction it could be seen how all had been planned beforehand. The shutters had been closed, a thing never done before, and the back door was locked. All their personal effects had been packed away except some books and a violin, which belonged to Sallinger, who evinced great musical talent.

Their clothes which they had worn during the day had been hung up in the closet. On the table the letter to Mr. Max Scholtenfeldt was found. The letter had been written by Sallinger. The writing was not as regular as that in Sallinger's diary, which was found on the table near the letter. The young men had written this and then partly undressed, but did not go to bed. Among Sallinger's effects was a large diary of his life. It started on March 5, 1880, and is dedicated to his friend Henry Landauer of No. 325 Fairmount-avenue, Philadelphia. He states that he intended keeping a record of his life, his thoughts and his actions, as he says: "This book shall breathe the breath that I do." In a side note he says: "To-day, to-morrow, others may read and profit."

The book contains incidents of his life, and has a passage speaking of a religious argument he had with a friend. This is the last entry prior to the following, which is dated March 3. The former entry was Nov. 13.

It has been a long time since I last wrote in this record of my life, and now once more and the last time I take up my pen to bid you farewell. When I began, some time back, I hardly thought in so brief a lapse of time I should be called on to close up my account, but such, alas, is the state of the case.

I have determined that this day shall be my last on earth, and to-night I leave for parts unknown. When I look back upon these tablets of my life I see many a fault and many a wrong, yet I have the supreme satisfaction of feeling that even though I erred at times, my actions were always prompted by what I considered to be right.

I have tried to live as uprightly as my powers permitted, and with that assurance I feel satisfied to meet my Creator. The thought of my parents' grief has long deterred me from taking my life, but now with a raging brain and a body racked with never-leaving pains I take consolation in the thought that they would rather have me dead than have me as I am. May they take consolation in the thought, and may they feel that though my departure was sudden and unexpected, it was for the best.

May the all loving Father, to whom I commend my soul, have mercy on all my loved ones in this sorrow, and help them bear the grief with fortitude.

To you, my beloved Henry, I have entrusted the disagreeable task of informing my beloved ones. A man of such character need not be told how to act in such an emergency, for all you ever did was done well. To you as the best friend I leave behind me, I entrust this record as a token of the heartfelt love I bear you. Ask my dear family to forgive me, Henry, and that soon, though he is dead. You are aiding your loving friend ERNST SALLINGER. Amen.

PARNELL AT CLERKENWELL.

He Expresses His Deep Sympathy for Workingmen.

LONDON, March 6.—Parnell addressed his London supporters at Clerkenwell. He was received with prolonged cheering. There were cries for Davitt, but the call was hooted. A resolution was adopted expressing confidence in Parnell and contempt for the seceders. Parnell said the English would ultimately see that they must allow the Irish to manage their own affairs. The question of leadership was for the Irish to decide. He had the deepest sympathy with the aspirants of English workingmen and he regretted Mr. Morley's attitude on the labor question; but though the Liberal leaders declined to take their place at the head of the labor movement it was not for the leader of the Irish to interfere in British questions. He enlarged upon the shortcomings of the Gladstonians in this respect and expatiated on his own ideas of what the new parliament could do for the workingmen. For himself and his colleagues he could promise to second every attempt on the part of the laboring classes to better their condition.

The Queen.

LONDON, March 6.—The Queen, accompanied by the Empress Frederick, by the latter's daughter Margaret, and by the Prince and Princess of Wales, drove to-day in an open carriage from Buckingham Palace to Islington where the royal party spent considerable time in visiting the horse show at Agricultural Hall.

The Queen and her party received a perfect ovation as they passed through the streets on their way to and from the horse show.

In Danger of Excommunication.

BELFAST, March 6.—The Right Rev. William Reeves, D.D., Bishop of the United Dioceses of Down and Connor and Dromore, who has issued a letter amounting practically to an excommunication of the Catholics who support Mr. Parnell, which letter has caused considerable excitement in the city and elsewhere, says during the course of that epistle: "Those men who are supporting Mr. Parnell have become the propagators of public scandal, and have by their own acts placed themselves in company with those to whom it is unlawful for priests to administer the sacrament."

$14,000 for a Bible.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The Gutenberg Bible was sold yesterday to J. W. Ellsworth of Chicago for $14,800. There were three other would-be purchasers in the field besides the Chicagoan, who fought hard for the treasure after the bidding had passed the $10,000 point.

Fatally Crushed.

ALLENFORD, March 6.—James Nelson was buried under a sleigh load of gravel and fatally crushed.

Blew His Head Off.

WINNIPEG, March 6.—A German subclinant named Schewagt, in ill-health for some time, blew his head off with a rifle to-day, pieces of his skull and brain being blown into the ceiling above.

MURDER AT MONACO.

THE CIRCUMSTANCES RESEMBLE THOSE OF THE EYRAUD CASE.

A Man and Woman in Custody for the Assassination of an English Physician Traveling in Italy for His Health

MONACO, March 6.—The police here have arrested a man and a woman, whom they assert are the murderers of Dr. Lindemann of Manchester, whose body was found in a ravine near San Remo in December last.

The woman, it appears, captivated the physician and lured him to lodgings she occupied at San Remo. As to what actually took place after the woman had enticed her victim there little is actually known. It is concluded, however, that the doctor was drugged, murdered and robbed by the woman, and that the latter was assisted by the man, supposed to be her lover, who was taken into custody with her.

The arrests have caused much commotion here. It has even been rumored that the man and woman in custody may have other and similar crimes charged against them, and that the woman may have been used to lure other men to their doom. In a place like this, where the finding of bodies, generally cases of supposed suicide, is not an infrequent occurrence, it is not astonishing that the wildest theories have been advanced and that people fancy that, perhaps, the woman has made it a business to decoy successful players into her apartments and that there they may have been both robbed and murdered and their bodies placed so that they would be classed as victims of ill-luck at the gaming tables of Monte Carlo or elsewhere.

Died at a Gambling Table.

MONACO, March 6.—Monte Carlo has been startled by the sudden death at a gambling table of an English physician, Dr. Zegart, who had been winning enormous sums. The cause of death was apoplexy.

THE EMPEROR'S MOVE.

Trying to Effect an Alliance With England.

LONDON, March 6.—One result of the repulse by the French of the Kaiser's offer of friendship has been to bring closer the relations between the British and German Governments. Owing to recent bereavements, Sir E. B. Malet, the British Ambassador at Berlin, is prevented from taking an active share in the important negotiations pending and the Kaiser has to deal with Lord Salisbury through Count Hatzfeldt at London. It is understood on excellent authority that the Kaiser has proposed that England take part in the Triple Alliance. The Kaiser has pointed out the hostility of France to the English interests in Egypt and Russia's menace to English supremacy in Asia, and he has offered the co-operation of Germany in resisting aggression in the quarters indicated.

England, on the other hand, is to aid the allies, at least with her fleet, in the event of war. It is also understood that if the matter rested with Lord Salisbury the question would at once be settled in favor of Germany, but that the Cabinet is apprehensive of the storm that might be raised in the House of Commons should such an alliance be entered into. The Liberals in the House already suspect what is in the wind and are keeping a sharp lookout on the Government.

A Berlin despatch says that the Emperor, mollified by more recent representations from his mother and grandmother, has under consideration the withdrawal of the orders sent last week to Alsace-Lorraine for increased stringency on the frontier.

Mr. Smith of Chicago "Suspected."

DUBLIN, March 4.—A day or two ago a stranger giving the name of Alfred Smith of Chicago arrived in the town of Cahir, county Tipperary, and took lodgings in a public house. The police arrested him to-day as a "suspect." He carried American naturalization papers. In his coat pockets were a revolver and a box of cartridges, and in a belt around his waist, underneath his clothing, were a short sword and two daggers. Smith refused to give any account of himself and was remanded for a week pending enquiry as to his identity and motives.

MOBBED BY MOHAMEDANS.

The British Consulate in Armenia Attacked—Christians Alarmed.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 6.—The alarming news has been received from Turkish Armenia of the attack by a Mohammedan mob upon the British Consulate. The Christian population is said to be in a condition of great alarm, as a result of the frequent and unchecked Kurdish raids. Fears are entertained of a collision at Aschekian. The Armenian patriarchs called a meeting, at which the council was invited, and where it was resolved to depute special delegates to inquire on the spot into the alleged grievances, and endeavor to bring about a rapprochement between the two sections of the population.

WEEKLY STEAMSHIPS LINE.

A New Service to Be Shortly Started by the Allan Line.

LONDON, March 6.—Beginning May 1 the Allan Company will run a weekly line of steamers from Glasgow to New York. The new service will include the Assyrian, Corean, Siberian, Peruvian and Pomeranian, and will leave Glasgow on Fridays, calling at Moville. The steamers will leave New York on Tuesdays. The Assyrian will begin the service. The Allan Line is determined to be the first in the field, and is anxious to head off the new company which it is proposed to form out of the State Line, which is in commercial difficulties. The Allan Line intends to try and build at least two fast steamers to compete with other companies for the regular New York passenger traffic.

Englishmen Want the Mills.

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 6.—Overtures have been made by an English syndicate for the Washington mills in this city. The mills are all new, having been built only a few years ago. Their capital stock is $2,000,000 and they employ 2000 operatives.

Taps From the Telegraph.

The remains of Leonard Jerome, the New York sportsman, were buried in Kensal Green Cemetery, London, yesterday.

In a conflict between the civil guards and a number of bandits near Havana, two of the latter were killed and several others captured.

John Turlington was hanged at Booneville, Mo., yesterday, for the murder of Sheriff Cranmer, and Jacob Sharkey, colored, was hanged at Newcastle, Delaware, for assaulting Grace Clark, a white girl.

Four Years for Stealing $4.

STRATFORD, March 6.—J. W. Jensley was sentenced to four years' imprisonment in the Kingston penitentiary for the theft of [illegible] entrusted to him by Thomas Gibson to post.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

HAVE NOT LOST A SINGLE DAY

THE EAST RIDING.

THERE are several reasons why the Conservative success in East Peterborough is especially pleasing. In the first place it is gratifying to have a supporter of the Government returned, and this is accentuated by the fact that the electors, after being represented for four years by a Liberal, have found that they had gained nothing but rather lost by the change and have again elected a Conservative member.

Another reason why Mr. Burnham's success is especially pleasing is that the East Riding is almost entirely an agricultural one, and the Liberal catch cries were framed almost exclusively to catch votes in the agricultural parts of the country. But these cries, though specious, did not have the desired effect, for the farming community were too wide awake to be led into the scheme that would injure themselves and the country. The Liberals misrepresented their own policy, as is now clearly shown by Mr. Blake's letter, and had there been more time to explain those misrepresentations and the fallacies of the Liberal appeals the majority would have been larger.

The Conservative success in the East is very pleasing because it returns to Parliament a gentleman who ably represented the constituency before and will be a very capable representative. And another reason why Mr. Burnham's election is especially pleasing is that it sends to Parliament two supporters of the Government from this county.

Mr. Burnham and his supporters had much to overcome, and their success is all the more gratifying, and the member and constituency are to be congratulated on the result of the election.

THE GENERAL RESULT.

THE result of the elections throughout the Dominion has been the election of a good majority of supporters of the Government of Sir John Macdonald. The policy of the Liberals was a new one, such as was never before presented to the country, but it was one that the people have rightly rejected. It would have been injurious to the Dominion, to all the great industrial interests of the country, manufacturing, lumbering, mercantile and other interests, and it would have placed the Dominion in a position of dependence upon and subjection to the United States. This scheme, which would have forced Canada into union with the Republic, has been emphatically repudiated by the people, and had the Liberal leaders been as candid in discussing their policy before the election as Mr. Blake has been since the election took place, it would have been rejected by a very much larger majority.

There have been losses and gains on both sides, but the Government still has a substancial majority. The defeat of Hon. Mr. Colby will be sincerely regretted, as he is an able man and an efficient Minister, as will also the defeat of Hon. Mr. Carling. These gentlemen, however, will no doubt find seats if they desire to remain in public life. The defeat of Mr. Guillett in West Northumberland is greatly regretted in this section particularly, as he was a careful, faithful and able representative.

However, the Government will again meet Parliament with a good majority, and the policy of Canada for the Canadians will continue to be the policy of the Dominion. Under its beneficent influence the Dominion will continue to advance, and no part of the country has more reason to be thankful for this than the town and county of Peterborough, which have nobly done their part by electing two supporters of that policy.

The Best Results.

Every ingredient employed in producing Hood's Sarsaparilla is strictly pure, and is the best of its kind it is possible to buy. All the roots and herbs are carefully selected, personally examined, and only the best retained. So that from the time of purchase until Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared, everything is carefully watched with a view to attaining the best results. Why don't you try it?

Let Us Have Will Power.

La Rochefoucauld says:—"Nothing is impossible; there are ways which lead to everything; and if we had sufficient will, we should always have sufficient means." "Will power," when properly directed, can overcome all difficulties, and level what by some, are considered to be insurmountable barriers. "Will power," even in the hours of pain and disease, can help the sufferer to calmly and rationally consider his position, and will enable him to act promptly. Instead of giving way to fears and doubts and anxieties, the sufferer and victim of nervous debility, sleeplessness, rundown constitution, headaches, dyspeptic and indigestion will have the will and the courage to at once lay hold of that great modern discovery, Paine's Celery Compound; and by its use will renew himself mentally and physically. He will go on building up a strong and vigorous constitution, a keen and healthy appetite, a clear brain, and a cheerful disposition. Sufferers remember that though apparent difficulties are in your way, rest assured that if you exert sufficient "will power" to use Paine's Celery Compound and throw all quack nostrums aside, you can have all the joys and comforts that health can bestow.

THE CONFLICT OVER.

THE FIERCE AND TEMPESTUOUS SEA IS NOW CALM.

Excitement Subsides—Scenes After the Storm—A Life Boat Sent Out to Rescue the Wrecked and Weary!

The political ocean of Canada for the last few years has been so calm and tranquil; so smothe and clear; that even the frailest, and most unseaworthy craft could, at all seasons, ride with safety on its expansive bosom.

For four years its waters have scarcely shown a ripple; and the vessels of contending politicians and their crews, have passed to and fro on its vast surface without having experienced any catastrophe worthy of note.

Two months ago, however, ominous mutterings presaged a terrible storm. These storm indications at first were almost unheeded; and the warnings of the wise and knowing ones, were received with indifference and incredulity by the great majority of the rank and file of the army of professional politicians and their friends, who were calmly and peacefully floating on the great political sea.

Suddenly the mutterings were heard again, but louder and deeper than before; the thunders were let loose, and reverberated from hill to hill. The waters were lashed to fury, and the great storm was at its height.

The bugle call of leaders was sounded for the marshalling of forces; and craft of all sizes, and various builds, were soon seen on the raging and billowy ocean, with their red and blue flag unfurled to the ever-increasing gale,—all putting forth herculean efforts to escape the treacherous rocks and shoals, which at all times makes the course to Ottawa, a perilous and dangerous one.

Never can the onlooker forget the terrible scenes that were then presented to view in the mighty conflict. Men wild with excitement, and oblivious to the dangers around them, were frantically calling upon their respective crews for greater efforts. Men agonized, and wrestled with each other for vantage ground; and the weak, as a consequence, fell before the strong. It was a conflict wherein friend smote friend; brother lifted up the battle-axe against brother; and son wielded without mercy the sword against father.

> "The weak fougat valiantly but lost;
> The stronger won at fearful cost."

Our oldest inhabitantants in their calm and dignified moments, speak of this conflict as the most terrible ever behold by them.

To-day the din of battle has ceased; the storm has abated; the thick smoke has passed away; the atmosphere is clearing; and thoughtful, contemplating men, are enabled to make a survey of the vast political sea, whereon the great action took place; and are enabled to form a just estimate of the fearful loss on both sides.

We use the word "fearful" not because any direct fatalities have occurred. We thank Heaven that such consequences have been averted. Still there is no intelligent man who dare deny the fact, that the hard fought struggle has brought upon us many serious and direful results. Such a struggle as the one just passed through—a continuous day and night battle which raged incessantly and without interruption for nearly two months—must of necessity have its dreadful and shocking effects on some.

With armies and governments, the time of peace is not always the time of preparation and fortifying with them. Especially so, with the thousands who fought on both sides in the political contest just ended. Thousands, we say, entered the struggle in a weak and sickly condition; nerves unstrung, brain clouded and weary, irritable, sleepless, morose, dyspeptic and rheumatic. All such must now be languishing on beds of sickness or confined to their homes.

Even amongst those who were strong and robust before the tocsin of battle sounded, there are now thousands who feel used-up, broken-down, tired-out, sleepless and weary, with dull heavy eyes, confused brain and palpitating nerves. In the great struggle they have disregarded the unerring laws of nature in regard to rest, eating and drinking; and, in addition to the ailments just referred to, very many have become dyspeptics.

Can any sane man truthfully assert that there are no dangers, no ills, or no losses to repair?

These ills and maladies would be slight indeed and unworthy of this notice, if a few days rest would suffice for recuperation and bring relief.

This, unfortunately, cannot restore the disabled and wounded sufferers. Unless some great effort is made, and that quickly, as a means of rescue, thousands of the fallen and wounded will go on blindly to the verge of brain softening, paralysis, paresis and insanity; while others will linger on with indescribable feelings of misery, showing haggard, weary and pale faces, and continue so for months perhaps till nature becomes completely exhausted.

The great call of the hour is now for the "life boat," that vehicle of rescue, whereby the weak, weary and wounded ones may find that perfect safety and true deliverance which means health, strength, robustness, vigor, cheerfulness and the promise of long years of future usefulness for our young Dominion.

To the disabled and wounded of both political parties it is hardly necessary to say that this great "Life boat," this "Ark of Safety", is Paine's Celery Compound, a remedy as popular to-day as ever was a Sir John A., a Blake, or a Laurier. While the great reputation of Paine's Celery Compound is world-wide, the names of many of our political chiefs are unknown except in our own young country. Paine's Celery Compound has at all times brought peace, joy and contentment in its train. The political warrior may slay his thousands. The mission of the great remedy now referred to is to snatch its tens of thousands from the verge of open graves. Victor, vanquished and wounded will have cause to rejoice when they have tested its wondrous powers.

Ashburnhamites Celebrate the Victory

J. BURNHAM ELECTED

AND TENDERED A GRAND DEMONSTRATION.

A Torchlight Parade and Enthusiastic Demonstration—Speeches by Both of Peterborough's Victorious Candidates—Workers in the Campaign also Heard.

The East riding has been redeemed and in the next parliament will be represented by Mr. John Burnham, Q.C. Mr. Stevenson's glorious victory was enthusiastically celebrated on Thursday night, but while rejoicing over the complete defeat of the Liberal policy of misrepresentations in the West, the result of the polling in the neighboring riding was in doubt. Last night, however, it was Ashburnham's turn, and the thrifty little village which had assisted so nobly by rolling up the handsome majority of 126 for Mr. Burnham turned out to tender a demonstration to their newly elected representative. It was not until late in the afternoon that the certainty of Mr. Burnham's election was known and therefore the preparations were hurried. However, the villagers responded enthusiastically and shortly before eight o'clock several hundred cheering citizens with flaring torches and headed by the Fire Brigade band marched to Mr. Burnham's residence and tendered him an enthusiastic congratulation. He was taken to a sleigh and in company with Mr. Stevenson, the victor of the West, and Messrs. J. H. Burnham, R. Max Dennistoun and Dr. Brennan, who had assisted during the campaign by speaking throughout the riding, was driven at the head of the triumphal march. Three Union Jacks graced the procession while a transparency of "the Old Policy, the Old Flag and the Old Leader" was borne aloft by four sturdy villagers. The procession marched over to Water-st., up Water to Brock, along Brock to George, down George to Charlotte, west on Charlotte to Aylmer, along Aylmer to Simcoe, past Mr. Stevenson's residence to Water and by way of Water and Hunter to the new village hall in Ashburnham. It was indeed a creditable demonstration for the village and the enthusiastic cheering along the line of march evidenced that the sentiments of all were with their votes.

A MEETING IN THE VILLAGE.

Arrived at the hall, the comfortable building was soon filled and Mr. Burnham and Mr. Stevenson ascended the platform amidst the most tumultuous cheering. On the platform were several other gentlemen who had been in the successful fight. Mr. H. Calcutt presided as chairman and when the cheering had ceased commenced the proceedings.

The CHAIRMAN said in opening that they assembled on the occasion of a glorious victory in the East Riding. (Cheers.) They had been without a representative in the Conservative ranks, but Thursday they had elected a man who would represent them worthily. (Loud cheers.) He was proud of Ashburnham last night, for the village had surpassed expectations. (Cheers.) He then introduced Mr. Burnham.

THE VICTORIOUS CANDIDATE

in the East Riding was given a grand reception when he arose, the cheering being loud and long continued. He agreed with the chairman in regard to the great victory they had achieved, not only in Peterborough, but in the Dominion, in sustaining the Old Flag, the Old Policy and the Old Leader. (Cheers.) He was pleased at the result of the election in East Peterborough, having assumed the candidature feeling that it was his duty to contest the Riding at such an important crisis. The people had shown by their votes that they desired to retain their British connection and did not want to be absorbed by the United States. (Cheers.) He did not say that all Liberals were disloyal, but they were simply misled. They had read that day the calm deliverance of Mr. Blake, in which he said the Opposition policy would lead to annexation, and, Mr. Burnham said, if that letter had been published before the polling day he believed the Government would have swept the country. (Cheers.) He did not wish to make a political speech, but sought to return his thanks to the many workers who had labored to achieve success. He was proud of Ashburnham for the 126 majority it had rolled up and for this he returned his deepest thanks. Their majority in the East was not as large as Mr. Stevenson's, but in this constituency it was as great, relatively, as that of the West, when the situations of the two ridings were considered. He acknowledged the labors of all his workers throughout the riding, and said a large share of the success in the East was due to the energetic efforts of Mr. J. Pearce, of Norwood. (Cheers.) Valuable assistance had also been rendered by Messrs. R. Max Dennistoun, J. H. Burnham and Dr. Brennan—(cheers)—and he knew that the municipality would not forget their services. He hoped no hard feelings would remain after the election, and that Mr. Bork, his opponent, would feel just as friendly towards him as he would have had he (Mr. Burnham) been defeated. (Cheers.)

THE CHOICE OF THE WEST.

The victorious candidate of the West Riding, Mr. Stevenson, was introduced and given an ovation. He expressed his pleasure at the riding being redeemed, and said he had received a telegram from Sir John expressing his pleasure at the result of the election in East and West Peterborough. Mr. Stevenson spoke of the force that would be added to his influence at Ottawa by the addition of Mr. Burnham as a representative. He referred to what would have been the ultimate result of the Liberal trade policy and the negotiations of the Reform leaders—annexation—and regretted that Mr. Blake's letter had not been published a few weeks ago, for if it had the Conservatives would have swept the country from one end to the other. He referred to the fallacies which had been used among the farmers by the Reform speakers in the campaign, but rejoiced that the Conservatives had successfully disabused the farmers' minds of these misrepresentations. He said their answer was emphatic, that they did not believe in Mr. Wiman's doctrine's of annexation, and they knew the reception he would get if he stumped Ontario next summer. Their true interests were to protect themselves and their infant industries, for without manufactories he defied any country to be a wealthy one. They wanted to create manufactories. He was not speaking of Peterborough alone, for their interests were identical, and he hoped before many months or many days they would see the two municipalities united. (Cheers.) He closed by saying he was proud that Sir John had been sustained by a good working majority (loud cheers) and he was proud that they had supported the Old Man with their votes. He sat down amid great applause.

OTHER SPEECHES.

Mr. R. MAX. DENNISTOUN was also warmly received and in a short speech congratulated them on the glorious victory they had achieved and on their grand torchlight procession. He spoke in eulogistic terms of the representatives they had selected and said several members of the House had expressed the hope to him that Mr. Burnham would be among the Government members in the next Parliament, where he would be welcomed. (Cheers.) The farmers had been too intelligent not to see the fallacy of the attempt of the Reformers to set the farmers and mechanics against the manufacturers. In concluding he congratulated Mr. Burnham and his constituency and resumed his seat amid applause.

Dr. BRENNAN also was received with applause and in a happy and neat speech expressed his appreciation of the honor done him by Mr. Burnham in mentioning his services and congratulated the riding and Mr. Burnham upon their success at the polls. Every credit he said was due to those true Liberals who put country before party and supported the Government at this crisis.

Mr. J. HAMPDEN BURNHAM was the next speaker called upon and in a brief and congratulating speech asked them not to forget the men in outlying districts who had to do laborious service in polling the scattered votes.

Mr. E. A. PECK, who had been an energetic worker in the campaign in Mr. Burnham's behalf, was loudly cheered as he arose to respond to a call. He added his congratulations to those of the other speakers and expressed the pride he felt in the handsome majority Ashburnham had given their resident, Mr. Burnham. He had never seen how the East Riding had benefitted by changing their representative four years ago, but now they had a gentleman who would ably represent them in the House at Ottawa.

Mr. H. C. STRICKLAND in a brief speech also referred to the great hardship undergone by the outlying districts throughout the Riding in striving to carry Mr. Burnham to success.

The meeting broke up with cheers for the Queen, Sir John and Mr. Burnham.

The Final Majority.

The complete returns for the East Riding are now all in, the last arriving shortly before four o'clock this afternoon. A mistake in the Dummer figures reduced Mr. Burnham's majority last night to 41, but the returns this afternoon from Caldwell's school house, Chandos, the last place to hear from, added 10 to this, making his total majority with full returns 51.

Concert at Selwyn.

Mr. Ketcham closed his Selwyn singing class last night with a concert. The choruses were taken by the class in a very efficient way, and solos, duets and quartettes by Peterborough singers including Misses Fawcett, Brundrette, E. Wrighton and Ketcham, Messrs. Ross, Brown, Stephens and King, Miss Bellie Wrighton accompanist. The hall was crowded and the proceeds netted a good sum.

Brevities.

—An alarm of fire was sounded about 2.30 this afternoon for a chimney blaze at a house near Hazlitt's saw mill. It was a false alarm.

—Mr. J. W. Jenkins, for many years with Mr. Adam Hall in town, and lately with Mr. H. A. Collins, Toronto, is now with D. S. Phillips, of Detroit.

—The Examiner's references to the meeting in the Opera House on Thursday evening were maliciously incorrect. Its reference to the band was untrue, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem and the usual cheers.

There is danger in impure blood. There is safety in taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier. 100 doses one dollar.

Of Extraordinary Merit.

Of the drama that will be placed on the stage in the opera house on Monday evening and the company that will present it, the Toronto Empire of March 3rd says: "Hands Across the Sea, an English melodrama of extraordinary merit, the production of the pen of Mr. Henry Pettit, the talented author of The Silver King and other dramatic successes, was presented before a large audience at the Grand Opera House last night, and made a great hit. The interest of the audience was aroused shortly after the raising of the curtain, and it soon developed into the most unstrained enthusiasm. The piece abounds in startling yet natural situations and strong climaxes. The main interest centres in the story of the vicissitudes that overtake Jack Dudley, a noble young English farmer, and his beautiful and devoted wife through the machinations of Robert Stillwood, a rejected suitor—the villain of the play—who seeks to revenge himself upon his successful rival, and get possession of the latter's wife and her fortune. After the marriage a plan is arranged by Stillwood to excite the jealousy of Jack through the medium of Count Paul De Renal, a Parisian who gains admittance to the apartments of Lilian Jack's wife, during her husband's absence. This is followed by Jack's assault upon the count in a gaming house for defaming the name of his wife and the subsequent murder of the count by Stillwood for the purpose of robbery. Jack's arrest and condemnation to death for the murder follow, but through the exertions of his wife he is reprieved and transported to New Caledonia for life. Then come his escape, his rescue from the deep after days and nights of suffering and privation by the steamer Australasian, and finally his arrival at Sydney, Australia, where his innocence is proved and the real murderer caught. One of the most powerful situations in the play and one which aroused to the wildest enthusiasm the good Canadian audience that was present was in the third act, where Dudley is accused by Stillwood of being an escaped convict and demands his surrender by the captain to the French officer who has come on board. Dudley seeks the protection of the British flag, which is unfurled to the breeze, and the captain like the fair minded Briton that he is, refuses to allow him to be taken off. The scenic effects are elaborate and beautiful, particularly the representation in the first act of Nettleford Farm an ideal English rural scene." Plan of hall at Greatrex's drug store. 1d66

That's Easily Answered.

"My dear," said Mrs. Cupandsaucer, laying down the evening paper, "what is reciprocity?" "Reciprocity, my angel," said the head of the house, "is easily explained. It means a general evening up,—as, say when Smithers asks me in to take a-er-cigar and I ask him to have another." "Exactly," said Mrs. C., "when I go to Hawley Bros. for tea and I hand Mr. Hawley a dollar and he gives me four or five pounds of splendid green or black mixture, I get the money's worth and he the money. Isn't that it?" "Exactly," said the husband as he reached for his hat. d38tf

SATURDAY, MARCH 7, 1891.

CHAUNCEY DEPEW ARRESTED.

But is Released on Furnishing Conny Vanderbilt's Bond for $25,000.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Coroner Levy this morning issued warrants for the arrest of five of the railroad officials alleged by his jury to be responsible for the Harlem Tunnel disaster. The gentlemen named in the warrants were: Chauncey M. Depew, G. N. Miller, William G. Hunt, Joseph Park and William Rockefeller. Mr. Depew appeared at the coroner's office at 4.30 this afternoon and furnished the bond of Cornelius Vanderbilt for $25,000. Mr. Park surrendered himself at 3 o'clock and H. J. Park, his son, went on his bond for $25,000. The others also gave bonds.

Arrested for Impersonation.

HAMILTON, March 6.—James Burgess, saloonkeeper and Grit heeler, before noon voted at least three times and perjured himself at least once. Owing to an error in the lists his name appeared in two districts—10 and 11. Burgess voted in both districts. On the list for district 5 appears the name of "James A. Burgess, lineman." This Burgess used to be employed by the Electric Light Company. He left the city several months ago and has been traveling in Eastern Canada ever since, being now temporarily located in Peterboro'. He came all the way from Peterboro' to Hamilton to vote and this morning went to his polling district to vote for the Conservative candidates, but Burgess' vote was in, although he had not voted. James Burgess, the saloon-keeper, went into the polling booth, swore that he was the "James A. Burgess, lineman," mentioned in the lists and had voted under that name. Of course the news of the impersonation and perjury soon reached the Conservative headquarters. A warrant for James Burgess' arrest was procured and given to Detective Reid to execute. At 1.30 p.m. the detective arrested Burgess and took him to police headquarters. He was shortly afterwards bailed out by R. Æ. Kennedy. At the police court to-day he was remanded until Tuesday.

A Pioneer of Methodism Dead.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 6.—Rev. Robert Hopkins, D.D., said to have been the oldest Methodist Episcopal clergyman in Pennsylvania, died suddenly yesterday at Sewickley, Allegheny county. He would have been 97 years of age in April and was one of the last links connecting the present with the early days of Methodism. Over 65 years ago he joined the Pittsburg Conference, and was the last of the original members of that body. In 1844 he was, against his wishes, named for bishop, and came within one vote of being chosen. He was for 19 years a presiding elder, sat as a delegate in five general conferences, was at one time secretary of the Seaman's Friend Society, and for years contributed to the church publications.

Of his early struggles he said recently: "The first circuit I ever preached on covered a distance of 200 miles. It was the Grand River circuit and required one month. I preached every day. The meetings were held in little log huts. My colleague was a married man. When the collection was taken up he got all the cash, as it was thought that I, being unmarried, did not require money. Some of the male members made me a present of a Dearborn wagon, which was afterward deducted from my salary. The young girls gave me a pair of boots and a neck scarf. This, with $63 in money, was my salary for the first three years of my ministry."

Seamen on the Lakes.

CHICAGO, March 6.—The Lake Seamen's Association has decided to affiliate with the International Union. This is in the direction of centralization of all the seamen's unions in the world. The Lake Association includes 130 local bodies in the U. S. and Canada. Headquarters in Chicago. The president of each union is a paid officer whose duty it is to look after the interest of all sailors who enter the port in which he resides. At the next convention proposed changes in the maritime laws of the United States and Canada will come up. Amendments to the laws providing for properly qualified seamen and regulations regarding the load line will also be conceded.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body, and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was $5 worth. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00, you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (No. 2, page 47) in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

"Let me tell you a little story," continued Jocelyn. "About a hundred miles from New York city there lived, once upon a time, a beautiful and talented young lady, only daughter of a father who had brought her up in luxury, refinement and seclusion. This young lady had an amazing genius for music, and a voice so ravishing that the larks came down from the clouds to listen to her, and the nightingales grew hoarse with unavailing rivalry. The best instructor in the world was procured to train her, and in the course of a few years he turned her out finished in every respect. But, unfortunately for mankind, her affluent circumstances forbade her appearance on the public stage. At this juncture, however, a providential change of circumstances altered the entire complexion of her career. She had a brother, a wild and graceless youth, who, finding his native place too narrow for the development of his energies, went forth to investigate foreign lands, with an unlimited letter of credit on the paternal exchequer. Now, this same letter of credit is the specious—specie, I would say—disguise of the fairy who works the transformation. The energetic youth makes use of it to such good purpose that in less than a year from the time of his departure, he has not only exhausted the family income, but has made desperate inroads into the capital, most of which has to be sold and the remainder heavily mortgaged—the old gentleman paying all demands for the sake of what he calls the honor of the family, though other people might think it was in order to prove what an incorrigible idiot a man of antiquated prejudices and aristocratic lineage can make of himself when he is afforded the opportunity. The result, at any rate, at the time of which we speak is that the old gentleman finds himself choked with honor and destitute of cash; that he is on the point of being obliged to sell the ancestral mansion in order to satisfy the creditors, and that were the honor he has preserved at so high a price worth anything in the market he might, perhaps, be disposed to mortgage some of it in consideration of an assurance of bread and butter for the rest of his life."

"I've heard of gifted amateurs before now," began Inigo, shaking his big head with a sigh; but Jocelyn interrupted him.

"What you've heard before is nothing to the purpose," said he. "This is precisely the case that contradicts all experience. Now, it so happened that a certain distinguished impresario had spent vast sums and made stupendous preparations to introduce a famous singer to the New York public. It so happened, too, that the diva in question, although so famous, was personally quite unknown in this country; and, as if for the special purpose of insuring the success of the grand enterprise that was preparing, she had taken a whim to allow no portraits of herself to be exhibited. For some cause, at present unknown to this historian, the diva at the last moment backed out of her contract. The distinguished impresario, with disgrace and ruin staring him in the face, luckily bethought himself to consult the wisest man of his acquaintance, who, by virtue of his presence of mind and penetration, promptly saw the way out of the difficulty. He took the impresario with him to the ancestral mansion aforesaid, where the young lady sang to them and was instantly made the recipient of the following offer by the impresario: That she was to assume and inviolably maintain the name and personality of the Russian diva; that under this name and character she was to come to New York, take up her abode at the most fashionable hotel and receive whatever company will venture to form the acquaintance of a lady with a history so formidably and fascinatingly scandalous as hers. In consideration"——

"Hold on! hold on!" said Inigo, with a shake of his hand in the air, "I see what you're driving at. I didn't take it in at first that your amateur was to appear as the diva herself, as well as to be her substitute. It's a smart notion, but I expect it'll do better to talk about than to try. She'd slip up somehow. She might carry it out for a day or two, but when you come to two or three months, that's another story! It would take a better actress than I've ever come across to"——

"She won't have to act at all," Jocelyn interposed. "The public of course will have made up its mind beforehand that she is the real original diva, and the more unsophisticated she appears the more convinced and charmed they'll be. They'll take her innocence to be the diva's consummate hypocrisy, man alive! and any unfamiliarity she may show on the stage to be the perfection of acting. But, for that matter, when once they've heard her sing they wouldn't exchange her for all the divas in Christendom!"

"If she can sing—yes!" said the impresario rather skeptically.

"Did you ever happen to hear of a gentleman by the name of Dorimar?" inquired Jocelyn, putting down his wristbands and folding his handsome hands on the edge of the table.

"Old Dorimar? Rather! Best man in the profession. Dead now, poor old boy! Ah, if he'd only kept his voice"——

"Dorimar was the instructor I mentioned just now. He went up one day to hear her try her voice, and the consequence was he stayed three years to listen to it. He told me a month before he died that she was the finest soprano, with the grandest method, he'd ever known."

"The devil he did! Dorimar was no fool, that's a fact."

"I found her out before he did. If it hadn't been for me where would you be now, friend Moses?"

"That's all right; but I've got to hear her first."

A Great Spelling Match.

The greatest spelling match on record is that offered by Our Home Publishing Co., in which they will award the following magnificent CASH PRIZES:—One prize of $500; one prize of $250; two prizes of $100; four prizes of $50; eight prizes of $25; twenty prizes of $10; forty prizes of $5; one hundred prizes of $2; and two hundred of $1. These prizes will be awarded to the persons sending in the largest number of correctly spelled words found in the advertising pages of the Feburary number of Our Homes, in which no letters occur but those found in the sentence: "Our Homes is Unrivalled as a Home Magazine." Special cash prizes will be given away each day and each week during this competition, which closes April 20th, 1891. Send 15 cents in stamps or silver, for a sample copy of the Feburary number, with rules and regulations governing the competition. Address, OUR HOMES PUB. CO., Brockville, Ont. 41d46-7w9

TORONTO TRUTH'S

New Spring Bible Competition

No. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000 00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianos, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions. Where in the Bible are these words first found: 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and everyone cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that everybody whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only until the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 30th June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

CHANGE OF BUSINESS
I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and would bespeak for them the same support as you have accorded me
C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.
For some time past we have thought that a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question we have purchased the above business from Mr C. N. Brown, who will still continue as manager, in Flavelle's Old Stand, Simcoe-st.
In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of every one to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.
We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.
We will keep a full supply of
FLOUR, FEED, CHOP, Etc.,
and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices.
We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred in the credit system.
Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

FIREBUGS AT LISTOWEL.

ONE OF THE MOST DARING CRIMES ON RECORD.

Masked Men Cut the Fire Alarm Wires Tamper With the Waterworks, Bind and Gag the Watchman and Set Fire to Hess Bros.' Factory.

LISTOWEL, March 8.—About 2 o'clock this morning two masked men seized the night-watchman at Hess Bros.' factory here, tied his hands behind his back, filled his mouth with cotton and tied a wooden gag in his mouth, threw him to the ground and one held him there while the other proceeded to fire the premises in several places. When the watchman was liberated he made his way to the nearest dwelling; and by kicking at the door aroused the inmates, when he was freed and the alarm was given. It was found the whole premises were burning beyond control that the pumps in connection with the water works had been tampered with and were useless and also that the wire in connection with the alarm had been cut. Oils used in the factory had been turned on the floor and everything done to make the work of destruction complete. The whole premises are in ruins, with several dwellings and other places damaged. There is about $31,000 insurance on buildings and machinery besides a large amount on the contents. The only companies interested as far as known at present are: Western, $5000; Lancashire, $5000; National of Ireland, $2100.

$40,000 Blaze at Montreal.

MONTREAL, March 8.—A fire broke out to-day in the stationery department of Mr. Louis Fortier, St. James-street, and spread to the adjoining premises, doing damage amounting to over $40,000. Mr. Fortier's loss is $33,000; R. J. Wilson, tailor, $3000; James Baylis & Co. $6000. Mr. Fortier has $34,000 insurance and the losses of the other firms are all covered.

Fire at Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, March 8.—The contents of Chrevier's clothing store were burned last night. Loss, seven or eight thousand. Bennetto's photograph gallery overhead was damaged about $500. MacFarlane's store was also damaged.

A TERRIBLE FATALITY.

While Driving to a Neighbor's Two People Drive Into a Gully.

HALIFAX, March 8.—Frederick Squires of Broad Cove and his servant, Lizzie Nosworthy, were frozen to death near their home at Broad Cove. They were driving to a neighbor's when they missed their way in a storm and drove into a gully and were unable to extricate themselves. The horse was also frozen to death. The girl was 24 and the man 67 years of age.

Earthquake at Tacoma.

TACOMA, Wash., March 8.—Quite a severe earthquake shock was felt here at 7.40 p.m. yesterday, the vibrations lasting only about one second. There was also a shock at Seattle, at Ellensburg and several other points on the Northern Pacific. Three distinct [illegible] occurred. No damage is reported.

A Cyclone in Mississippi.

DURANT, Miss., March 8.—News has reached here of a cyclone which struck the region of Newport, Attala county, yesterday. Information is meagre, but it is learned that the cyclone made a clean sweep of houses, [illegible] colored people were killed.

Nasal Balm is sold for cold in head and catarrh from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and everywhere gives the best satisfaction. It has cured others—it will cure you. Try it.

A NIHILIST ARRESTED.

THE MURDERER OF A RUSSIAN OFFICER CAUGHT AT LAST.

Sensational Suicide of a Member of a Well-Known London Banking Firm—The Stock Exchange Excited by Alarmist Rumors—The German Navy and the Kaiser.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 8.—Degajeff, the Nihilist leader and murderer of the chief of the secret police in 1883, has been arrested at Kostroma, the capital of the Government of Kostroma. When taken into custody Degajeff was found lodging under an assumed name in the house of a Government official. A reward of 10,000 roubles has for a long time been offered for the capture of Degajeff. The chief instructor at the Kostroma Gymnasium, who was suspected of being implicated with Degajeff either in the actual murder or in the conspiracy which led to it, committed suicide just as the police burst open the door of his room with the intention of arresting him. A number of other arrests have been made and sensational developments are expected.

A BANKER'S SUICIDE.

A Partner in Coutts & Co.'s Banking House in London Shoots Himself.

LONDON, March 8.—Mr. Robert Lindsay Antrobus, second son of Sir Edmund Antrobus, Bart., and a junior partner in the well-known banking house of Coutts & Co., London, was found dead in his bed this morning with a pistol by his side. It is believed that Mr. Antrobus committed suicide. The deceased banker was born Aug. 9, 1857, and was not married. The cause of Mr. Antrobus' suicide is not known. He is said to have had no business or social troubles. He was at business yesterday.

A SUNDAY IN IRELAND.

What Parnell and the McCarthyites Had to Say Yesterday.

DUBLIN, March 8.—Messrs. Lane and Maurice Healy, members of Parliament, went to Middleton to-day to address an anti-Parnellite meeting. On arriving they were received by the town commissioners. Outside of the station a large crowd hooted at the visitors and a band which had been engaged to escort them to town refused to play, but followed mute. The subsequent meeting, however, was a success, being attended by contingents from every parish in East Cork, headed by priests. Canon Keller supported the meeting and Messrs. Lane and Healy secured a hearty reception. It was announced that Canon Keller would soon start for America on behalf of evicted tenants. The feeling in Middleton is shown by the fact that material required for the construction of the platform for to-day's meeting had been brought from a place six miles outside the town, the local builders refusing to do the work.

In several short speeches yesterday made by Mr. Parnell at stations where his train stopped on his way to Newry he said he was confident that Ulster was as sound for him as other provinces. He did not expect a general election for a year, but would be glad if it came to-morrow. Mr. Parnell was unable to speak at Dundalk where he encountered a hostile reception. On arriving at Newry, however, he was greeted by a friendly concourse of people and was escorted from the railway station to his hotel by a torchlight procession. In replying to-day to addresses from 15 branches of the National League, councils and other organizations, he dwelt on the significance of the presence of deputations from districts where every dastardly means had been employed to stifle public opinion. He next attacked Justin McCarthy for traducing the memory of John Mitchell in his history. After his usual references to what should be the land and police provisions of the Home Rule bill, Mr. Parnell said that, owing to the comparative absence of industries in Ireland, Irishmen were precluded from a leading part in the great labor movement, but could join hands with British workmen to secure needed legislation and thus show that the "brotherhood of nations as regarded the working class was solid between England and Ireland." An open-air meeting, attended by crowds carrying banners and escorted by bands, followed. The meeting passed a resolution of confidence in Parnell. In the speech which he made in response to the honor done him, Mr. Parnell reminded his hearers that the Liberal party had been as active coercionists as others.

While a Belfast contingent returning from the Newry meeting was passing Tandreagee street to-day two shots were fired from a carriage, wounding two persons seriously. The occupants of the carriage were detained at Belfast. No weapon was found upon any of them.

The Dublin Trades Council by a vote of 35 to 3 has decided not to take part in the proposed conference on Saturday, at which Parnell has promised to expound his views on the labor council.

Fair Trade in England.

LONDON, March 8.—Mr. Vincent's Fair Trade League has been joined by a considerable number of Members of the House of Commons. Among those who have consented to act as vice-presidents of the League are Mr. Galt of Canada, Mr. Spriggs of South Africa and Mr. Vogel of New Zealand.

Oppose the Police Spy System.

LONDON, March 8.—The Parnellites and anti-Parnellites are united in support of a bill in Parliament to put an end to the police spy system known as shadowing. It is provided that shadowing, except it be committed for the purpose of making an arrest with a warrant or upon a charge justifying apprehension without warrant, shall be punishable by a term of imprisonment not exceeding six months with hard labor. The bill also provides for the disarmament of the constabulary and its conversion from a semi-military into a civil force.

The Monaco Murder.

LONDON, March 8.—Further facts brought to light concerning the murder of Dr. Lederman of Manchester, near San Remo, show that he was killed by a pin similar to those used in pricking cards at the gaming tables at Monte Carlo. The woman who was arrested with her paramour for the murder is a reputed Polish countess. Deceased had been seen gambling in her company. The police believe he was afterwards led to the countess' room and murdered.

The Imperial Family Witness Thermidor.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 8.—Sardou's "Thermidor," which was recently suppressed in Paris, was performed in the French theatre last evening before a large audience which included the Imperial family. The play is regarded here as a failure.

Frozen to Death.

WINNIPEG, March 8.—Mounted Policeman Herron left Kipp, Alberta, about a week ago for St. Mary's and has not yet turned up and [illegible] to have been frozen to death. His [illegible] frostbitten.

THE GERMAN NAVY.

Vigorous Opposition in the Reichstag to the Proposed Increase.

BERLIN, March 8.—By his personal influence the Emperor William has succeeded in preventing the defeat in the Reichstag of the Government on the proposed addition to the navy, but this has only been done by inducing some of the members to abstain from voting. The debate on the subject disclosed the fact that both the Centre and Freisinnige parties were strongly opposed to conceding the amounts required for the construction of two or three gunboats, one ironclad and one despatch boat. The question itself, though not of striking import, became one of serious moment for the Government when the two parties combined to oppose the increase of the navy on general principles.

Emperor William is very much discontented over the defeat of his cherished idea of a grand navy. His Majesty lays the blame for the defeat on the indiscretion of Admiral Hollman in making his disclosures and Chancellor von Caprivi's want of parliamentary tact. Admiral Hollman has offered to resign the secretaryship of the admiralty. The position of Gen. von Caprivi is understood to be critical, although the Emperor ought not to blame the Chancellor for following his orders with a fair display of skill, or for the reverse in the Reichstag succeeding the episode of the Empress Frederick's visit to Paris and the menacing labor conflicts. Imperial circles think the Chancellor is unable to control the combination and prophesy his early downfall.

THE WAR SHADOW.

France Increasing Her Stock of Cartridges—M. Herbette Talks.

PARIS, March 8.—The Echo de Paris says that the utmost activity now prevails at the military works at Bourges, the Department of War having ordered the amount of cartridges ordinarily produced to be doubled.

The XIXme Siecle publishes an interview with M. Herbette, the Ambassador of France at Berlin, in which the minister says that he considers that in refusing to exhibit at Berlin the French artists obeyed the mandates of a few blusterers. It was, he said, illogical for artists who presented their works at Stuttgart and Munich to decline to do so at Berlin.

With regard to the recent visit of the ex-Empress to Paris, M. Herbette said that it was perhaps unprudent, and added that it was undertaken without anyone having been consulted thereto. The Minister denied that he had been sounded on the subject of the imperial journey, and asserted that the French Government had not been advised of the purpose of the ex-Empress until the day before she arrived in the capital.

London Board of Trade Returns.

LONDON, March 8.—The board of trade returns for February last, as compared with those for the corresponding month of the preceding year, show an increase in imports of £2,290,000, and a decrease in exports of £590,000.

ONE FEDERATED NATION.

The Colony of Victoria is Anxious About Her Protective Tariff.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., March 8.—At yesterday's session of the Australian Federation Convention Mr. Munro advocated uniform duties between the federated colonies, but, he added, the interests of Victoria, the protectionist colony, must be guarded, and the conference would fail to do its duty if it allowed the important manufactures which had been created in the colony of Victoria to be ruthlessly dealt with.

Mr. McIlwraith said that if the resolutions in regard to the tariff were passed the federal government could readily be formed, even though all the colonies did not join the federation. The resolutions implied free trade within the federation and protection against the world. Absolute free trade was impossible, owing to the necessity of raising a revenue.

Mr. Deakin of Victoria said that the work of forming a common tariff was a question involving millions of pounds invested in industries built up by protection, and a guarantee must be obtained that the federation would preserve those interests. The constitution should require that existing tariffs should only be reduced a certain percentage in a certain number of years.

EATEN BY DOGS.

An Awful Double Butchery in Tours, France.

PARIS, March 8.—The story of a terrible double murder comes from Tours. About a week ago a wealthy aged couple named Delhomais, residing in that city, mysteriously disappeared and their neighbors, thinking there was something wrong, notified the police, who forced the doors of the old couple's house, when the discovery was made that a horrible crime had been committed. Both the man and his wife had been brutally murdered and the house stripped of everything of value that could be conveniently carried away. The bodies of the aged victims presented a ghastly appearance, the household dogs having been driven by hunger to feed upon the corpses, large portions of which had been devoured by the animals. No arrests have as yet been made.

SLAUGHTER ON THE NIGER.

600 Natives, Including Their Leader, Killed by French Troops in Senegal.

PARIS, March 8.—A despatch from St. Louis, Senegal, says: The French expedition has had a severe battle with the natives at Diano on the Niger River. The French carried the native positions, 11 sharpshooters being killed and many wounded. Six hundred natives were killed, among them being the leader.

A General Amnesty Extended to All Who Surrendered in the Soudan.

SUAKIM, March 8.—Gen. Grenfell, commander of the Egyptian army, read to an assembly of sheikhs from all parts of the Soudan yesterday the Khedive's proclamation of general amnesty. The proclamation was read with fervent cries of loyalty by the sheikhs. General rejoicings followed and in the evening the town was illuminated.

General Booth Ill.

LONDON, March 8.—General Booth is quite ill, sufficiently so to be confined to his bed for the past few days. The illness is in consequence of an exhausting tour through the north of Europe, during which the General caught a severe cold. He has decided for the present to postpone the great meetings called for next Monday and Tuesday evenings at Exeter Hall.

A Canadian Killed.

VICKSBURG, Miss., March 8.—John Sargent shot and fatally wounded Capt. Theodore Williams on the steamboat Hibernia last evening. Capt. Williams is a native of Canada.

Dropped Dead at Her Work.

MILTON, March 8.—Mrs. Philip Horning of Bronte got up apparently as well as usual and attended to her household duties until 10 o'clock, when she took a bad headache and four hours later she died of cerebral apoplexy.

FROM OVER THE SEA.

A REVIEW OF THE WEEK BY G. W. SMALLEY.

Not Ready to Abandon Plural Voting—Sir Charles Dilke's Re-Entrance into Public Life and its Effect on the Purist Party

LONDON, March 7.—There has been a revival this week of bear rumors in the Stock Exchange, which are evidently the reflex of the newly aggravated situation in the Argentine. Several houses found it necessary to give each other friendly assistance. The Murietas have almost ceased to be talked about, because they are now generally admitted to have surmounted their difficulties. Though not customers of the Bank of England, the latter has lent them £250,000 sterling. They have obtained other assistance elsewhere, and their position is now considered stronger than it has been for months past. Three of the largest financial houses of the city were rudely shaken by these bear attacks, but there is no substantial ground for believing that any of them is seriously affected or that we shall witness any big disaster. The suicide of Antrobus, junior partner of Coutts', will not affect that bank.

One interesting topic has been summarily disposed of during the week. I refer to the one man, one vote resolution. The Radicals desire to deprive all the propertied classes of duplicate qualifications and to reduce the period of residence from twelve to three months. Mr. Gladstone took part in the debate, denying any compact of 1885, when the last Reform bill was carried, that such a measure should be regarded as a finality. Mr. Chamberlain's criticism of Mr. Gladstone's speech was one of the ablest efforts of that rival statesman. Mr. Chamberlain was as anxious as Mr. Gladstone for a further extension of the suffrage, but denied its opportuneness. The substantial element of his objection to the Radical proposal was that the resolution only touched the fringe of the grievance. It was useless to nibble at plural voting while Parliament suffered from the remarkable anomalies of the present ratio of representation. The main point of the argument was, of course, leveled against the disproportionate numbers of the Irish representatives. The Gladstonian party were intensely annoyed at the large majority against them on the division, mainly owing to the absence of the Irish members. Mr. Gladstone had counted on substantial support from the McCarthyites, but his wing showed as much indifference as the Parnellites, with the result that the Government secured over 100 majority.

Great interest is felt just now over the new developments in the colonial policy witnessed in South Africa, Canada and Australia. A convention in Sydney is aiming at the confederation of the Australian peoples, the chief obstacle to which lies in tariff arrangements involving less than £300,000 sterling. Actually the outcome of Mr. Rhodes' interviews with Lord Salisbury is of less importance as regards Portugal than in the effect upon federal development in South Africa.

The Canadian election has touched the still greater question of separation. Englishmen are beginning to ask themselves: What will happen should the federalized items of the empire, while indulging in free trade within their borders, nevertheless set up tariff barriers against the Mother Country? Lord Salisbury's speech this week contains some of the strongest declarations ever made on the Conservative side against the British Government departing from free trade conditions. This attitude might have been expected from Mr. Gladstone or the Liberal leaders, but the Conservative party contains many advocates of fair trade, some even demanding protection, and a large number favoring the imposition of differential duties if, thereby, the British colonial "Zollverein" could be secured. This last-named opinion, notwithstanding Lord Salisbury's declaration, is undoubtedly spreading. Scores of Cobdenites have abandoned, or are ready to abandon, their flag now that it has been revealed that no other country besides England is prepared to carry out free trade.

Sir Charles Dilke's determination to stand for the Forest of Dean has revived the hostility of the purist party by reason of his conduct toward Mrs. Crawford. The story that the famous Fanny has been induced to make a statutory declaration against the truth of Mrs. Crawford's statements, denying her own familiarity with Sir Charles and the report of the private committee who are working in order to secure his "whitewashing," have not sufficed to check the action of Mr. Stead and his friends. These gentlemen take their stand chiefly on Sir Charles Dilke's declaration that he would not attempt to enter Parliament until he established his innocence. Mr. Stead declares that if nobody else opposes Sir Charles he will himself take the field against him. If Sir Charles continues his candidature this contest will attract enormous interest, but the belief prevails that at the last moment Sir Charles Dilke will not persist. Defeat would mean absolute destruction to his aspirations, and if his committee of friends have really secured the proofs which they now allege there will be ample time to convince the public of Sir Charles' innocence before the next general election.

MET A TERRIBLE DEATH.

Two Brothers Killed in Hastings While Walking on the Track.

MARYSVILLE, March 8.—John Lester of Shannonville and Alexander Lester of Newburg, brothers, while walking on the railway near this place yesterday were struck by a train and instantly killed. John Lester was a married man and leaves his wife and his aged mother totally unprovided for.

Struck by an Ice Train.

They Want to Settle.

HAMILTON, March 8.—Rich and Robinson of Bradford, Pa., the absconding shoe dealers who are confined in jail here, have offered their creditors 40 cents on the dollar as a basis of settlement. This offer has been refused, but it is likely arrangements will be made by which creditors will take about 45 cents. Rich and Robinson, who are both of Jewish persuasion, are getting very tired of jail life. Their wives board in the vicinity of the jail and pay visits to their husbands every afternoon.

Frightful Railway Accident.

PEORIA, Ill., March 8.—The Jacksonville fast passenger train over the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe left the track near Havana, 41 miles south of here, this morning and the cars were piled up. Fireman Medlar was buried under the engine and instantly killed. Engineer Birkenhead had an arm and leg cut off, and two others were fatally injured as well as a number of passengers seriously hurt.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Intense Suffering 8 Years

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1883 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

MR. BLAKE'S OPINIONS.

MANY Liberals who sneered at the "waving of the old flag" in the recent election, and who refused to take into consideration the question of loyalty, must have been staggered when they read Mr. Blake's manifesto. Mr. Blake expresses and enforces the opinions expressed by the Conservatives throughout the campaign in regard to unrestricted reciprocity, namely, that it would cause a loss of revenue incapable of being made up by ordinary means; that it involved differential or discriminating duties against Great Britain and the rest of the world; that such an arrangement without the assimilation of the tariffs of Canada and the United States, without each having the same tariff, is "an unsubstantial dream;" that commercial union is the only practical plan of free trade between the two countries; that unless there was a guarantee of permanency in the arrangement there would be no benefit in it and enterprise in Canada would be paralized: that no matter what shape the arrangement might take, the practical control of our tariff would have to be conceded to the United States; and that it could only be carried out as an incident or precursor of political union.

Mr. Blake goes further. Holding, as he does and as he must do, having carefully studied the question, that unrestricted reciprocity would be a precursor of political union, he believes that it would be better, if the people wish such free trade, to make the whole bargain at once, for with their fiscal independence gone they would be in a much less advantageous position for dealing with the States. As to this point, while it has much force, it need not be considered, for we believe that the people have no idea of taking such a disastrous step.

Mr. Blake also informs the people that, while leader of the Liberal party, he was approached "by a political architect of some reputation" to adopt such a policy as that party has since taken up, but that he declined. Whether that architect was a member of that party, or a Canadian at all, he gives no indication.

While the former leader of the Liberals gives his views on these points with irresistable force, he does not take the country into his confidence so far as to outline the course which he thinks should be followed. As, however, he has retired from political life, and is not asking the people to place confidence in him, he may be accorded without question the right to withold his views in that respect. But the most careful reading of his manifesto cannot, we think, justify the statement of the Globe that Mr. Blake is an annexationist. There may be those, not far from the office of that paper, who would be glad to have him declare in favor of making one bite of the cherry and for political union, but he has not done so, and, in view of the opinions Mr. Blake has formerly expressed, it will not be believed that he desires such a change until he has given some stronger indication that he does. At the same time there is nothing in his manifesto that can be quoted to refute the Globe's charge.

Mr. Blake's letter or manifesto should be carefully read, especially by the Liberals of Canada. Although many of them refused to believe that unrestricted reciprocity meant commercial union or would lead to political union, and even declined to consider that aspect of the question, they cannot longer put that part of the subject aside when their former leader, whom no doubt they still respect, calls upon them to consider it seriously for the reason that the step the present leaders of the party ask them to take does indeed mean annexation.

THE Globe on Saturday claimed that the Liberals had secured a majority of one in Ontario. Last election it claimed a Liberal majority of one in the Dominion. It is keeping up its record.

MR. BLAKE, although he has retired, should break silence again. The chief Liberal organ having stated that he believes in political union with the United States he should not allow the statement to pass without some comment.

MR. MERCIER promised Mr. Laurier a majority of fifteen in Quebec and audaciously claimed that he kept his promise. But did it not seem strange to those Liberals who read this promise in their party organs that Mr. Laurier, the great leader of the great party, should be unable to lead his forces even in his own Province?

FIVE Macdonalds have been elected. A Manitoba constituency once elected Sir John and the capital of that Province has now selected his son as its representative.

THERE are still a few constituencies in doubt, or claimed by both sides, such as South Wentworth and Maskinonge, but the Government's majority stands at about 36 or 37, which is more than it was after the elections four years ago.

THE Dominion elections being over, Mr. Mowat will now have time to attend to his own little business at Toronto. It was somewhat strange to find the man who, four years ago, declared in the Peterborough Opera House that the National Policy was "a dead issue," and was the "fixed policy of Canada," on the stump again discussing and denouncing the National Policy. Or it would have been strange had he been any other than a Canadian Liberal politician.

There is a project to construct a ship canal across New Jersey, from the Delaware river to the Atlantic. The scheme was first suggested by merchants of Philadelphia, who desire a shorter water route to New York and an abbreviation of the journey of hundreds of miles down the bay and around Cape May to strike the ocean path to Europe.

The king of Siam will soon send six youths from his kingdom to Westminster college, at New Wilmington, Lawrence county, Pa., to be educated. They are all to become physicians. The young men are chosen from among the poorer classes, and the expense of their tuition, about $300 a year each, is to be borne by the Siamese government.

The Lake of Urumia, in Persia, situated more than 400 feet above the sea level, is said to be "the saltiest piece of water upon earth." The water contains nearly 20 per cent of salt. The lake is 84 miles long and 24 miles broad, and its northern coasts are encrusted with a border of salt glittering white in the sun. It is said that no living thing can survive in it, except a very small species of jelly-fish. It is very shallow.

That Sweet Word "Mamma."

Girls of Canada, you should never become so old or so womanly as to forget that dear word of the English languge "Mamma." Some may say that it sounds babyish and childish for girls of eighteen to twenty to use the word. Do not heed such opinions dear girls; bear in mind that this sweet word "Mamma" was the first you lisped in babyhood, and therefore it should be the last one to forget. Whether you are about to assume the management of a home of your own, or still remain under the old parental roof, be sure to think of "Mamma." She feels worn out, weary and nervous at times after fatiguing work. You observe that at times she is pale and suffers from headache, and cannot get sound refreshing sleep. Are you aware, dear girls, that at this time you can help "Mamma" and do her a world of good by getting her to use Paine's Celery Compound? Insist upon her having it; rest not until it is in her home. Its use will dispel and drive away all her nervousness; it will bring to to her face a glow of health; it will whet her appetite, and make digestion easy and natural, and lengthen her valuable and precious life.

Setting at 50 degrees as compared with 45 degrees showed a loss from 3.6 to 10 per cent, and 55 degrees shows that the range of loss is from 15.6 to 30 per cent. over that set at 45 degrees."

If your cows are doing well on the feed they are getting do not change it every time you read what some other dairyman has fed to his cows. The latter possibly require a change of food, but experience has shown that cows, like human beings, become accustomed to certain foods and do well on them. A cow that becomes dainty about her food has very likely been overfed.

There are changes going on in the West that few of the eastern farmers are aware of, and these changes are likely to considerably advance the price of pork during the next year. We see by the papers that brood sows are being extensively shipped out of the Northwest or fattened for market, because of the failure of the corn crop, which is the main dependence in the West for feeding swine.

A Sad Death.

The death of Rupert M. Mason, son of Mr. W. J. Mason, which took place early on Sunday morning, was a sad one. The young man was only in his sixteenth year, was progressing rapidly in his studies at the Institute and his life gave every promise of a bright future. A few weeks ago he was taken ill with diabetis, a disease which had developed unobserved until it had a fatal grip upon the young life. The deceased's parents and relatives will have the sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

THE DOUBLE METHODIST CENTENNIAL.

Commemoration Centenary Services of the Death of the Founder of Methodism, John Wesley, and the Organization of the Methodist Church in Canada—Two Able Discourses by Rev. S. J. Shorey.

Yesterday the double centennial of the anniversary of the death of John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, and the establishment of the Methodist church in Canada, was celebrated by special discourses at the Charlotte-st. Methodist church. A week earlier the other Methodist churches here had commemorated these two events by centenary services, but other special services forced the Charlotte-st. congregation to postpone theirs for one week. The pastor, the Rev. S. J. Shorey, preached the sermons in the morning and the evening and both of his discourses were specially prepared and were fitted, by references to the great founder of the Methodist church and the history of the past century of Methodism in Canada, for the occasion. Both discourses were full of interest to all Methodist.

THE GREAT FOUNDER OF METHODISM.

In the morning there was a large congregation present when Rev. Mr. Shorey delivered a remarkably able discourse, confining his reference more especially to John Wesley, his life, labors and characteristics. He chose for his text the words:—

"There was a man sent from God whose name was John."—John 1, vi.

Methodism, said the rev. gentleman in opening, had been called a child of Providence and history had vindicated the truth of this statement. If this was so, it was no extravagance then to say that the founder of it was sent from God, indicating the divine origin of the organization throughout the world and indicating also the Divine guidance which had guided the work. It was surely becoming, he said, one hundred years after Wesley's death and after the introduction of his organization in their land to recall some of the incidents of his life and to tell some of the progress and growth which had been experienced during these years. Historians said there was no man's life, character and works that had had so great an influence upon the history of Great Britain and of the age as that of John Wesley. It was passed over by earlier historians, but later writers said there was no single man who did so much for mankind, who exercised such an influence in public opinion, who did so much to stem the tide of public evil, who said so much on the questions of slavery and temperance or did so much for the education of the masses in the eighteenth century as John Wesley. History told them that the time in which Wesley lived was one of religious darkness, and in this darkness he was born one of a family of nineteen children and commenced a life which gave little promise, but yet which in the eighteenth century in all that was good and tended to bring the people to a saving light of the truth. A very great deal of this character and subsequent influences, the speaker said, could be attributed to the training of his Christian mother. At seventeen they found him at Oxford, but little was known of his school days. After a few years at college he turned his studies to the ministry and in 1728 he was ordained a priest. He was an unconverted man for several years after until, while listening to the reading of Luther's preface to the Epistle of the Romans, he experienced the change of heart and, as he said, he felt his "heart strangely warmed." Rev. Mr. Shorey beautifully referred to this event in Wesley's life and then proceeded to speak of the doctrines of the Wesleyan system of theology. He said it was a source of pleasure to them that no modifications were needed or demanded in the great truths that Wesley furnished for the evangelization of mankind. Taking the times in which he lived Wesley gathered all that was strong and true and eliminated all that was weak and untrue and they could say, looking at his work, "He was a man sent from God." Then the rev. gentleman spoke of the character of Wesley's Christian life, a man of strong will but who became one of the most charitable and benevolent men of his age. As to Wesley's alleged dogmatism and despotism, he said they would all see that it might be absolutely necessary for him amid an unintelligent people to demand an obedience to his dictation. Then the speaker referred to the great founder's characteristics as a preacher, his attention to details and definitions, which made him a great educator. After dwelling upon those characteristics the preacher spoke of Wesley's marvellous power as an organizer, as which he never had a peer. Lastly the minister spoke of Wesley's hymns and closed with a reference to the growth of Methodism during the past century.

THE EVENING SERMON.

In the evening the church was filled and again the service was of special interest to all Methodists. "One hundred years of Canadian Methodism" was the subject of the discourse delivered by Rev. Mr. Shorey. Instead of reading the usual Scripture lesson, the rev. gentleman read the general rules of the Methodist church, commenting upon them as he proceeded. As a text for his historical sermon Rev. Mr. Shorey selected the words:

"What shall we say then to these things, if God be with us who can be against us?"—Romans 8, xxxi.

The discourse was full of historic information in regard to Methodism. The rev. gentleman gave a sketch of the history of the Canadian Methodists, commencing with a reference to the labors of two British officers who preached before the arrival of Rev. Wm. Louse, the first American minister sent from the Methodist church across the border in 1791, when he was stationed near Adolphustown at what was then called Kingston. He traced the history of the church up through the past century to the present day, showing the marvellous prosperity and growth which has characterized the fleeting years, until now the Methodist church was the largest in numbers of any Protestant denomination in the Dominion, and the largest, either Catholic or Protestant, in the Province of Ontario. He quoted from the report of the last general conference to show the strength of the church, the number of ministers, local preachers and money expended for different purposes. Then he referred to the fire, fervor and sympathy with the masses which characterized the early church and made it go straight to the people. He expressed a fear that the church might get too rich, and forget, in their wealth, that they were an essentially revival body, and were fitted to meet the needs of the cultured and wealthy as well as the masses.

The singing by the choir at both the services was excellent, an anthem being rendered both morning and evening.

That's Easily Answered.

"My dear," said Mrs. Cupandsaucer, laying down the evening paper, "what is reciprocity?" "Reciprocity, my angel," said the head of the house, "is easily explained. It means a general averaging up, as, say when Smithers asks me in to take a-er-cigar and I ask him to have another." "Exactly," said Mrs. C., "when I go to Hawley Bros. for tea and I hand Mr. Hawley a dollar and he gives me four, or five pounds of splendid green or black mixture, I get the money's worth and he the money. Isn't that it?" "Exactly," said the husband as he reached for his hat. d38tf

Y.M.C.A. Notes.

There was a large attendance at the Young Men's Meeting on Saturday evening. Owing to the illness of Mr. E. A. Mannell, the General Secretary took up the topic "Jacob, the Man of Prayer." A number followed, which added much to the profit and interest of the meeting. A helpful after-meeting was held with good results. The Consecration service on Sabbath morning was a time of blessing. Mr. Wm. Freeborn led the service with much profit to the large number present. Messrs. Early and Sutherland conducted the hospital service yesterday afternoon. The Personal Purity Meeting for men only yesterday afternoon was a heart-searching time. Mr. Albert Hamilton's earnest, pointed address was timely and made an impression on all. The orchestra led the singing. Last evening the hall was filled for the Gospel and song service. Mr. Wm. Wallbrook, in the absence of Rev. Mr. McAuley, gave a very impressive address. We are believing for results.

THE M'CARTHYITE PAPER.

Parnell Leadership Fund—The National League Money on Deposit.

DUBLIN, March 8.—The first number of The National Press, the new daily paper devoted to the interests of the McCarthy faction of the Irish Parliamentary Party, was issued to-day. The National Press, in its leading editorial, announces that it will recommend that the policy of years past be pursued, as it resulted in a united Irish party. Further on the new paper characterizes the object of Mr. Parnell's appeal to the United States as not being for aid for the evicted tenants, but to bring grist to the Parnellite mill. It is the intention of the McCarthyites to use the new paper in pushing their campaign against Mr. Parnell, which begins in earnest to-morrow.

The Freeman's Journal to-day publishes the first list of the Parnell leadership fund, the total showing a subscription in one day of £550, and points with pride to this response, sent in a few hours by the subscribers.

The communications which have passed between Messrs. McCarthy and Parnell in relation to the funds of the National League which are in the hands of a banker in Paris were published in the second edition of The Times to-day. After several letters on the subject had passed between Mr. McCarthy and Mr. Parnell, the former offered to agree to an arrangement by which a sum necessary for the immediate wants of the evicted tenants could be released. An agreement of this kind was necessary, as the money was deposited in the joint names of Messrs. McCarthy and Parnell and the late Mr. Biggar. Mr. McCarthy proposed that the sum thus withdrawn should be intrusted to James F. Xavier O'Brien and J. J. Clancy for distribution. In the concluding letter of the series Mr. Parnell, who does not appear to have agreed to Mr. McCarthy's proposition, says that, until some definite plan in regard to the funds is agreed upon, there are sufficient funds in hand to render the sale of any of the securities deposited in Paris unnecessary. He expresses the hope that a permanent plan for the release of the funds will be agreed upon.

ANNEXATION OF CUBA.

A Spanish Paper States That Spain Will Have a Say About That.

MADRID, March 8.—The Heraldo, in an article protesting against a supposed scheme of the United States Government to annex the Island of Cuba, says Mr. Blaine ought to recollect that the Congress of American nations plainly proved that Spanish-Americans are not disposed to allow themselves to be absorbed by the great northern republic. The people of Cuba, it says, are strongly Spanish and are equally opposed to becoming a part of the United States. Probably with the exception of a few tradesmen there is no one in the island who is at all desirous of annexation. Spain, The Heraldo continues, would shed her last drop of blood in resisting any attempt to deprive her of her colony, fearing neither a Cuban revolution nor a war with the United States.

A MOTHER'S DEVOTION.

Her Gallant Rescue of Her Babes From a Burning House.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., March 8.—A house at Bay Roberts, occupied by John and George Babcock, was burned a few nights since. The fire originated in the kitchen of the end belonging to John, and the whole down stairs part and the stairs leading to the second floor were in flames before the sleepers had had the least warning of danger. Escape by the stairs was cut off and John, after alarming George, whose end of the house was now on fire, dropped from the second story window to the ground, and his wife passed the children out, going from the window to the sleeping room through the flames until she had all except one, when her own night clothing and that of the child she held in her arms took fire and to save herself she had to jump, still retaining her hold of the babe. She had to leave the remaining child to be burned to death. The heroic mother in leaping from the burning house broke one of her legs at the knee joint. All the children are more or less injured by the fire; one of them so much that its life is despaired of. Mrs. Babcock passed through the burning house six times, each time bringing a child in her arms.

TO BE EXTRADITED.

Joseph Brothers of Milton Will be Brought Back

MILTON, March 8.—Government Detective Murray has been here a few days, having been instructed by the Ontario Government to enquire into the circumstances of the Brothers alleged forgery case near here about a year ago, with a view to commencing extradition proceedings. He is satisfied that the charge against Joseph Brothers is fully justified. The case will be pushed, and Brothers will probably be on his way back to Canada very soon. He is now living in California.

Liberty Must Wear a Gown

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 8.—The members of the lower house of the Wyoming Legislature have entered a protest against the new State seal upon which the figure of Liberty appears as a nude female, instead of the conventional draped figure of the old seal.

The bill adopting this device as the great seal of the State was signed by the governor, but the members of the house have protested so warmly against the nude figure that the governor has signified his intention of using the old or draped seal until the new or nude device can be formally disowned by the next Legislature.

To Purify the Billboards

MANKATO, Minn., March 8.—After a lively discussion the city council decided yesterday by a vote of 4 to 3 to direct the police to tear down all obscene pictures that may be found in the city, and to keep the billboards free from them.

Particular objection was made to marching Amazons in tights and ballet girls whose dresses didn't reach to the knees.

All such pictures were placed under the ban, and to-day the officers of the law will carry out the order.

Voted at 98.

HAMILTON, March 8.—Probably the oldest man who voted in Canada last Thursday was William Gunner of this city. Mr. Gunner is 98 years of age. He is getting feeble now, but he insisted on going to the poll to cast his vote for the Conservative candidates.

His Ashes to Be Thrown Into the Ohio

LOUISVILLE, March 8.—The body of Professor William Steffen was taken from Turner's Hall to-day to Cincinnati, where it will be cremated immediately upon its arrival and his ashes will be thrown into the Ohio River, as he requested in his will. Professor Steffen's body was taken to the hall last night and remained in state until this morning.

FIRST VOTED, THEN DIED.

Sensational Suicide of a Dereham Township Farmer

BROWNSVILLE, March 8.—Thursday afternoon George Prentice, a well-to-do farmer of that section, went out to his barn and deliberately shot himself through the heart with a revolver. Prentice went out and voted in the morning, and was not thought to be any way deranged. He recently rented his farm and purchased a residence in Brownsville intending to take things easy for the future.

Oh, What a Cough.

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease consumption. Ask yourself if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. d15wd-6m

NEW SPRING FASHIONS.

AS CONNED DEVOUTLY BY FAIR LENTEN DEVOTEES.

Prayer Book in Hand, We Gaze at the Bright Shop Windows, Where Flowery Hats and Airy Ginghams Bloom Under Glass and Are Not Frost Bitten.

In Lent we say our prayers and buy our cotton gowns. Sometimes, reversing the proceeding, we buy our gowns and pray the dressmaker to be good to us and them. If you were with us on our quiet little shopping expeditions you would see that we are laying in a store of:

Rough wools very hairy of surface;

Very light-colored peach and apricot cloths, smooth, unpatterned, supple and fine;

White or ivory ecrutte wools, sheer enough to pull through finger rings, strewn with tulips or crocuses;

Fine twilled wools plaided in grey and violet;

White India silks, gay with buttercups and violets;

Lavender India silks, dainty with pink cyclamens;

Polka dotted India silks, thousands and hundreds of thousands of them;

Black India silks with small brilliant Pompadour garlands;

Pale blue India pongees, patterned with straggling stems of clover;

White pongees with jonquils starting up from the hem as if one walked in a garden of spring posies;

Cream-colored pongees all adroop with hanging sprays of yellow acacia bloom;

Crinkled crepes vividly alive with the flowers, birds, bees or butterflies of Japan;

Silvery or white challies over which creep vines of purple-blossomed wisteria;

Scotch ginghams with mist-like, dusky grounds, out of which peer dust-colored flowers in low tones as if seen at twilight;

Tartan ginghams and big fancy plaids in pale heliotrope and pink, or pale blue and cream;

Quaint and pretty silk-striped ginghams, at all silk prices.

Jaccard ginghams in old rose or China blue with Marie Antoinette flower patterns;

Sheer white batistes with deep borders of briar roses, hand-worked above hemstitched hems.

Pale gold batistes with borders of valley lilies in white and shaded greens;

Black batistes powdered with scarlet maple keys shading into pinkish greens;

Black batistes with broad inserted stripes of open work embroidery in wheels and flower designs in black and purple.

We are going to catch our summer clouds of drapery with lengths of broad velvet ribbons.

We are going to wear a vast deal of the brilliant dome blue out of doors.

We are going to wear our street skirts long enough to cover up all but the merest suggestion of toe in front, and as much longer than that as our common sense or lack of it, will allow on the fan breadths behind.

We are going, those of us who dare, to wear jackets of glowing, glorious yellow to greet the spring sun in kind.

We are going to wear other jackets of white velvet and polish coats of Roman red and "Moorish tailor coats" and French and Spanish jackets of grey ladies' cloth with many coquetries of silver buttons and red or blue silk linings.

We are going to wear cavalier capes, full and straight with immense collars and high shoulders, these in heliotrope cashmere lined with silk, and with gold and silver cords hanging from the tops of the armholes down over the sleeves.

We are going to put upon our heads toy toques that are nothing but handfuls of bright flowers.

We are going to [illegible] of lace about the [illegible], and sometimes when we take three crimson roses for a crown, we are going to hide them as we did two years ago under a puff of gauze.

We are going to trim from behind, use long fluttering streamers and leave the front of a hat bare, except for a single bud or a poised dragon fly.

MONDAY, MARCH 9, 1891.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

"That's why I told you to make your arrangements to be out of town to-night. We'll take the noon train up there. I've telegraphed 'em to expect me. We'll settle with her to-night, and be back in town to-morrow morning. Now, as to terms. You'll have to pay her what you'd promised the diva."

"Oh, I will, will I? I'll see about that!" returned the impresario with a shrewd grimace. "No need of me believing she's the real diva as well as the audience!"

"In that case we won't take the noon train," said Jocelyn firmly.

"Say, my boy, what's your game?" inquired the other after a pause, during which the men had looked intently at each other. "Do you want me to pay you her salary, and you hand her over whatever doesn't stick to your fingers—is that it? He! he! he!"

"You're a coarse minded idiot," said Jocelyn brusquely. "You attend to your business and let me manage mine. I know what I want and how to get it. If she's not all I say she is, of course the bargain's off altogether. If she is, you'll have to pay for her—that's all. And if you don't like those terms you can get out of your scrape yourself—if you can!"

"You ought to be a rich man, my boy, one of these fine days," remarked the impresario meditatively. "Well, if she comes up to your report I'll agree. But if she doesn't"——

"If she doesn't I'll stand the railway fare there and back!" said Jocelyn, and with that they laughed and rose from the table. As they were passing out of the room a tall young man, with a thick brown beard and severe blue eyes, met them in the doorway. He had a roll of paper in his hand.

"You're the man I'm looking for," he said to Inigo.

"Halloo, Bellingham!" said Jocelyn. "How comes on the Temple of the Muses?"

"All right," replied the gentleman so addressed, rather curtly, as his manner was. He looked at Inigo and added, "There's a point about the construction of the stage entrance I must consult you on."

"I'm in a devil of a hurry," objected the impresario reluctantly.

"I want only ten minutes," Bellingham said.

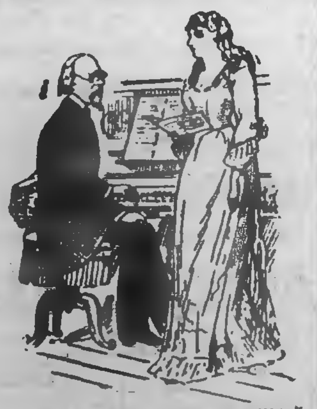
"You architects are worse than—oh, by the way, I can't decide about it till to-morrow anyhow," exclaimed the other, as Bellingham began to unroll his paper. He glanced at Jocelyn and went on, "Come to the office to-morrow afternoon and we'll fix it."

"The workmen will have to wait," said Bellingham.

"Everybody has to do that," returned the impresario sententiously, and with a nod he and Jocelyn went out.

CHAPTER II.

HOW LOVELY AND UNFORTUNATE SHE WAS.



"MUSIC IS A SACRED THING, MY CHILD," HE WOULD OFTEN SAY TO HER.

What is more worthy the contemplation of a humane mind than the spectacle of a pretty young woman? It is the least selfish of all pleasures. By learning we seek to elevate ourselves above our fellows; by philosophy, to console ourselves for the past and to fortify ourselves for the future; by religion (as it is commonly practiced), to make ourselves respectable in this world and comfortable in the world to come. But he who stands rapt in the fascination of a girl's beauty enjoys the possession by another of what he can never have himself, admits his inferiority and generously exults in the existence of goodness for its own sake. The sole drawback is the risk he runs of falling in love—that is, of wishing to restrict to himself a blessing designed to rejoice mankind at large.

It might seem a pity that such a girl as Beatrix Randolph should be so situated as not to have it in her power to confer upon every one the unselfish gratification whereof we speak. But to be rare and difficult of access are among the conditions of mortal loveliness. In no other way, perhaps, could the heavenly aroma be preserved; and were we to become callous to beauty, as we do to pain, life would have nothing left to promise us. On the other hand, dullness is negative, delight positive, and a single day of glorious sunshine compensates for a whole blank week of lifeless landscape and leaden sky.

But Beatrix, though delightful to look upon, was not beauty in the abstract; she was first of all a distinct and concrete human person. It is fitting, therefore, to consider not so much the loss the world sustained by her seclusion, as its effect upon herself. Certainly she was not of a temperament naturally inclined to solitude. She was quick to feel emotions of all kinds, and apt and simple in the expression of them. Her proportions [illegible] of [illegible] soul and [illegible] body [illegible] and active; as she moved [illegible] and sweetly, so [illegible] and [illegible] moved. Her life, [illegible] of its circumscribed conditions, [illegible] in instinctive love of largeness and splendor, and herein she was helped by a generous and lively imagination. She could not read a story or watch the [illegible] without engendering in her mind a [illegible] ideas of the possibilities of [illegible]. And her body [illegible] in such [illegible] harmony with her spirit that you could see a stirring thought turn to roses in her cheeks, or [illegible] diamonds to her lovely eyes. When she came forth in the morning from her maiden chamber, having put on, let us say, a fresh, white gown, just [illegible] enough to whisper as she stepped, and a pink or a blue ribbon (as fancy might dictate) at her throat and on her hair, and her figure elastic and alert with the wholesome vigor of nineteen years, and a mouth that laughed fragrance and music, and large brown eyes, which besides being as beautiful as possible in themselves were rendered yet more so by being a few shades darker than her rippled hair and * * * and hands that were white wonders of warm flexibility and tapering softness: when this exquisite young American girl, in short—type of the most charming and most intelligent womanhood in the world—come dawning like Aurora out of the room in which she had been dreaming visions only less lovely than herself, it did seem as if the Golden Age were now about to begin, and as if nothing false or impure were henceforward possible. She explained, without uttering a word, why the grass in spring is so deliciously green, the sky is of so tender a blue, why birds sing and water is transparent, why violets have perfume, and the sun warmth. She was the spoken secret of the universe—the interpretation of its fairest elements. By what mishap, then, was such a creature confined (as she was) to a few square miles of village land in the center of the state of New York? Was such a pearl created only to be cast before cattle, and the village grocer's son, and the hollow chested young Unitarian minister, and the innkeeper's daughters? The world could not afford it, and yet there she was, and just at the time this story begins there seemed to be rather less probability than usual of her ever getting anywhere else.

A WITNESS MISSING.

Particulars of the Arrest of Suspected Murderer Goodwin.

OTTAWA, March 8.—George Goodwin, whose arrest for the murder of old Richard Langford in his barn in Huntley township on Dec. 7 last was telegraphed Friday, was yesterday remanded for a week. Goodwin affects almost complete forgetfulness as to his whereabouts during the first and second weeks in December. "You know a poor fellow like me," he said, "who wanders all over the country without a home is in so many different places in a week or two that he can't always remember where he was at any particular time." His last place of employment, he says, was at Hagarside, a small station on the C.P.R. above Mattawa. Goodwin says that having left Hagarside he took the cars down to Arnprior, and yesterday morning hired a horse and cutter there to drive to Bristol Corners on the opposite side of the Ottawa. According to his own story he lost the road, however, and found himself on the way to Ottawa.

An unwilling witness at the Langford murder inquest was Robert Cassells, whose house was searched the night after the murder. Most reluctantly he admitted that Goodwin had spent the night at his house, and in the course of his evidence told how next morning he ordered Goodwin to go away and never be seen around his house again. Robert Cassells, if reports be true, will never testify in court again; for early in January he disappeared from Sharbot Lake, and is said to have suicided by throwing himself into the river. No traces of the body has been discovered, and the only evidence of the supposed self-murder was the finding of a bundle of his clothes on the ice, and the report that he was seen going in the direction of the river, and was never seen or heard of after.

CHANGE OF BUSINESS
I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and would bespeak for them the same support as you have accorded me.
C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.
For some time past we have thought that a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question we have purchased the above business from Mr C. N. Brown, who will still continue as manager, in Flavelle's Old Stand, Simcoe-st.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of every one to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of
FLOUR, FEED, CHOP, Etc.,
and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices.

We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred in the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

SPANISH PRIEST'S STORY

OF A BURIED MILLION AT WILKESBARRE, PA.

It May be a True Story of Hidden Treasure, and it May be Only an Attempt to Get a Few Dollars From Credulous People—Take Your Choice.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 9.—The First National Bank of Pittston has received a letter from Spain, signed by a priest, stating that a vast sum of money is buried somewhere in this vicinity. The letter says that one of the most favored of the courtiers of the late Alphonso was given a large sum of money, said to be a million francs, while the King was on his death bed, in return for the performance of a dying wish. The Queen was jealous of the courtier, and at the king's death instructed her ambassador to arrest the courtier for stealing a cash box containing a number of jewels from the palace. He fled to America and buried the treasure, but returned to Spain and was arrested and put in prison, where he died. The plans of the place where the treasure was buried were in a satchel, which was taken by the tribunal, who, not knowing of the contents, offer to dismiss the suit on payment of costs. The priest asks for money to pay the costs and obtain the satchel and plans.

THEY IGNORED HIM.

The Donor Got Mad and the Institution Lost $25,000 in Consequence.

BUFFALO, March 9.—The will of Jonathan Scoville, ex-mayor of this city, was admitted to probate to-day. It devises nearly three millions of dollars to public charities, churches, educational institutions and in private bequests. Amongst the church bequests is $3000 to the Roman Catholic Church Society of Lakeville, Canada. A $25,000 gift to the Buffalo Fine Arts Academy was revoked a few days before Mr. Scoville's death. The history of the revocation is a curious one. About a month ago Mr. Scoville sent some statuary to the Fine Arts Academy, but no acknowledgment of the gift was made; then he sent for his lawyer and had the codicil framed. The dilatoriness of the Academy people knocked the institution out of a clean $25,000. Mr. Scoville is said to have said, "If those people don't think enough of a gift I send them to acknowledge it, why they need not have any more." So he changed the will. The Academy trustees give as an excuse that the statuary came just after the regular monthly meeting and they were waiting for the next meeting to make the official acknowledgment.

At a Ripe Old Age.

CALEDON, March 8.—Mrs. McKinnon, mother of Chief McKinnon of Hamilton, died here yesterday, aged 88 years. Mrs. McKinnon came to Canada in 1819 and settled with her husband in Vaughan township, York county. The McKinnon homestead was one of the rallying points for the sympathisers of William Lyon Mackenzie during the troublesome time of 1837, and subsequently the farm was claimed as rectory lands by the Church of England, and for many years the case was before parliament, but finally the title was made good. Only two of Mrs. McKinnon's family of nine survive her—Chief McKinnon and his sister. David McKinnon, one of the sons, was at one time a prominent lawyer, and Alexander McKinnon was editor of The Hamilton Banner and was elected M.P. for West Elgin at the early age of 26.

A Murderer Caged.

GENEVA, March 9.—Lieut. Lovraghi, the Italian officer charged with having murdered Abyssinian merchants, has been arrested at Lugano.

Wedded to a Burly Negro.

SPRINGFIELD, O., March 8.—Delicate little Mary Thornton, a blonde without a drop of negro blood in her veins, to-day married black Austin Thornton in this city. The groom, though of the same name, is not her relative, and is unlike her in every way. He is a burly, repulsive negro. Squire J. J. Miller married the pair. Then they walked arm-in-arm up the street before thousands of citizens.

A Vitriol Thrower Arrested.

JAMAICA, L.I., March 9.—Thirty Polish cloakmakers from East New York, raided a non-union shop here to-day. They smashed in the doors and proceeded to destroy the stock. The proprietor, who tried to restrain them, was assaulted, and one of the party took a bottle of vitriol from his pocket and threw some of it on the storekeeper's little daughter, burning her in a terrible manner. The fiend was arrested. He gave his name as Frank Range.

MANY SHIPS GO DOWN.

TERRIBLE STORM IN SOUTHWESTERN ENGLAND.

Sir Charles Dilke Accepts a Liberal Nomination for Parliament and Will Return to Public Life—General Foreign News.

LONDON, March 9.—At a meeting held to-day the council of the Liberals of the Forest of Dean decided to invite Sir Charles Dilke to become the Liberal candidate for member of Parliament for that constituency and said they felt confident of his moral integrity. Sir Charles spoke and said he had often announced his decision not to return to public life until he had cleared his character. No legal process existed by means of which he could prove a negative, but the vindication published in the pamphlet recently issued enabled him to prefer the troubles of a political life to the ease of a literary career. He would therefore consent to become a candidate if the constituency ratified the invitation which the council had extended to him.

A NIHILIST'S AWFUL DEEDS.

Degajeff, the Murderer of a Russian Chief of Secret Police.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 7.—Degajeff, the Nihilist leader and murderer of the chief of the secret police in 1883, has been arrested at Kostroma. He was lodging under an assumed name in the house of a government official.

The chief instructor at the Kostroma Gymnasium, who was suspected of being implicated with Degajeff, either in the actual murder or in the conspiracy which led to it, committed suicide just as the police burst open the door of his room with the intention of arresting him.

For his connection with the murder of General Streinikoff at Odessa, Degajeff was transported to Siberia, but escaped and returned to St. Petersburg, professed to have renounced Nihilism and offered his service to Lieut.-Colonel Sudeikin, chief of police for the district of St. Petersburg, and soon became his confidential spy.

Degajeff was also engaged in the secret service of the Revolutionary Committee, then sitting in Paris, which began to suspect him of treachery and sent on Lopatin to enquire into his fidelity. Lopatin reached St. Petersburg in safety and soon brought matters to an issue by ordering Degajeff to murder his patron, Sudeikin, in proof of his loyalty to the Paris committee.

This he did, and next day crossed the imperial border with a passport from the official he had murdered and fled to London.

THE LONDON BANKER'S DEATH.

The Verdict is That He Died by Accident and Not Suicide.

LONDON, March 9.—An inquest was held to-day on the body of Mr. Robert Lindsay Antrobus, second son of Sir Edmund Antrobus, Bart., and a junior partner in the well-known banking house of Coutts & Co., who was found dead in his bed yesterday with a pistol lying by his side. From the evidence given by the members of his household it was learned that nothing unusual had been noticed in his habits recently. It appears that he died at between 9 and 10 o'clock in the evening. The fatal shot was heard by no one in the house. The surgeon who was summoned when the body of Mr. Antrobus was discovered testified that in his opinion the death of Mr. Antrobus was due to an accident and happened while he was examining a new and curiously constructed pistol. A verdict was rendered in accordance with these facts.

MISHAPS TO STEAMERS.

The Cunarder Catalonia in Collision in Liverpool Harbor.

LONDON, March 9.—The Cunard line steamer Catalonia, at Liverpool for Boston, while lying at anchor in the stream, was run into by the British steamer Merchant Prince. The Catalonia was damaged on the port quarter. She will be compelled to discharge her cargo and go into dock for repairs. The bows of the Merchant Prince were stove.

The steamer Dunmurry, Hamburg for Philadelphia, has arrived at Tobormory, Scotland, in tow, for Greenock, in a disabled condition.

The steamer Scotia, at Glasgow from New York, lost 17 head of cattle on the voyage.

The British steamer Westbury has arrived at Plymouth in a damaged condition, having been in collision yesterday off the Lizard with the German steamer Wandrahm, from Hamburg March 1 for New York. The Wandrahm proceeded.

The Bishop of Ardagh Warns His Flock Against Secret Societies.

DUBLIN, March 9.—Most Rev. Bartholomew Woodlock, who has been preaching at Athlone, exhorted his hearers to shun secret societies, as an immediate attempt was being made to entangle young men in the renewal of plottings which have been the curse of Ireland. He was grieved to have to state that certain Catholics of his diocese had broken into a meeting house while services were being held and had insulted and assaulted the minister who was conducting the services.

The Bishop of Cork denounced the promoters of the proposed Parnellite meeting to be held in Cork on St. Patrick's day. He says he will not administer to the needs of the souls of his people unless they protest against the desecration of the holiday.

Collisions, Broken Machinery and Accidents of Many Kinds.

LONDON, March 9.—The steamer Strathendrick from Cardiff for Sourabaya collided with the steamer Devonhurst at Sourabaya and sank in 36 fathoms of water. The engineer of the Strathendrick was drowned. The Devonhurst was badly damaged.

The steamer Clan Mackay, while leaving Galle, struck on the rocks and filled with water.

The steamer Salient, while on a voyage from Rotterdam for Sunderland, broke her shaft and drifted helplessly in a dense snowstorm. The vessel eventually stranded at Filey, a watering place of England, and filled with water. Her captain and crew escaped.

Killed by a Kick.

CHATSWORTH, March 9.—Anson Smith was feeding his hens and went to drive away one of the horses, which were running loose, when the animal wheeled and kicked him in the bowels, killing him instantly. The deceased leaves behind him a widow and eight children.

Foreign Notes.

Prince Jerome Napoleon is sinking fast.

A terrific blizzard prevailed throughout the southwest part of England and it is feared enormous damage has been done.

C.P.R. Round House Burned.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., March 9.—Fire destroyed the round house of the Canadian Pacific Railroad here last night, together with an engine and several cars. Loss $20,000.

WEDDED A NEGRO COACHMAN.

Miss Ella Tice's Strange Infatuation Makes an Uproar in Williamsbridge.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Miss Ella Tice of Williamsbridge, white and said to be pretty, has startled the neighborhood up there by running away from her home and marrying a colored coachman named James Randolph.

Miss Tice is the daughter of the late Isaac B. Tice, inventor of the machine for gauging whisky, which is now in use by the Government. After her father's death her mother married Thomas Hyde, a Westchester county politician, and the family went to live in the Boston-road, about a mile from the railroad station.

Mr. Hyde is fond of playing cards, and as Randolph is one of the best players in the neighborhood Mr. Hyde used to have him at his house to play. In that way the coachman got acquainted with Miss Tice, and they met frequently afterward at the Baptist Church, which both attended regularly. Randolph is employed by Mr. Stickney, a Broadway merchant, who lives out there.

The coachman got into the way of going to and from church with Miss Tice until the neighbors began to talk about it. Then Mr. Hyde interfered and drove the negro out of his house. Miss Tice protested, and Wednesday night she left her home to take refuge with an uncle of hers who is a Justice of the Peace at Fordham. On the road she met Randolph, and went with him to the house of a news dealer named Skinerton, who lives just back of the Williamsbridge station.

A little later Randolph and Miss Tice, with Skinerton and his wife, went to the house of the Rev. F. M. Lamb, pastor of the Baptist church, where Randolph and Miss Tice were married. The town boys followed them to Skinerton's house and gave them a charivari.

The next day there was so much excitement in the town over the marriage that Randolph disappeared. He was seen in Williamsbridge yesterday, but not with his bride. She remains alone at the Skinerton's.

Mr. Hyde says he will have the marriage annulled on the ground that Miss Tice is not of age and her parents had not consented to the marriage. Mr. Lamb is censured by the townspeople for not insisting upon the consent of the parents before he performed the ceremony.

European Storms.

BERLIN, March 9.—A snowstorm of almost unprecedented violence, accompanied by heavy gales, has prevailed along the upper coast of the gulf of Frische-Haff and has done an immense amount of damage between Pillau and Konigsberg. Several ships have been wrecked and in two or three instances all hands on board drowned. Heavy rains have occurred in Bohemia. The Elbe has overflowed its banks and the Tetschien Railway is submerged.

A Strike Precipitated.

BERLIN, March 9.—The German mine owners have unanimously resolved to consider the demands of the miners for shorter hours and more pay as merely a pretext for a general strike and are determined to make no concessions to the men whatever. If anything was needed to precipitate a general strike this action of the owners has undoubtedly supplied it.

Dr. Parker and Disestablishment.

LONDON, March 9.—Rev. Dr. Parker in his sermon in the City Temple to-day expressed his regret that the disestablishment of the church should be made a political question, when it was purely a religious one. Though firmly believing in disestablishment, he declared that he would not work for its accomplishment in company with atheists, nor would he allow the ungodly to participate in the movement if he were able to prevent it.

Died of a Broken Heart.

NEW YORK, March 9.—The wife of Herman Rothman, a card manufacturer, living at No. 121 South Eighth-street, Williamsburg, died at her home yesterday morning of a broken heart. Ever since the disappearance of her son, Barthold Rothman, several days ago Mrs. Rothman has pined, and yesterday morning death relieved her from suffering.

Cardinal Manning is with McCarthy.

LONDON, March 9.—Cardinal Manning is announced to preside at the banquet of the McCarthyite faction, to be held in London on St. Patrick's Day. This is the first time that the venerable prelate has openly placed himself at the front of the movement in opposition to Parnell, and his acceptance of the chairmanship on this occasion is believed to be in pursuance of a hint from Rome that the stand taken by the Irish bishops should receive his support.

Impaled on a Cane.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 9.—T. I. Powell, assistant-superintendent of the South Penn Pipe Line Company, died to-night of a peculiar injury. While out walking with a companion yesterday Powell stumbled and fell. In falling he struck his companion to the ground, and a sharp cane in the latter's hand pierced Powell's abdomen, literally impaling him. Powell died in a few hours.

Wires from the telephone exchange at Albany came in contact with the trolley wires of the Broadway Electric Railroad last night and the immediate result was a fire, which has completely disabled the telephone service and caused a loss of $20,000 to the Hudson River Telephone Company.

The Empress of India arrived at Colombo, Ceylon, yesterday on her "around the world" voyage. The steamer will remain there two days to give the passengers an opportunity of viewing its numerous attractions.

The deceased was well-known in Toronto, having spent nearly his whole life in the city, and always taking an active part in public matters. He represented St. Lawrence Ward in the City Council for the years 1867 and 1868. In politics he was an active Conservative. He was senior partner in the firm James & Furness, commission merchants, Colborne-street. The deceased was in his 47th year, and leaves a widow to mourn his loss. The funeral takes place Wednesday at 3 o'clock p.m. to St. James' Cemetery.

A LIFE'S BITTER RECORD.

THE DIARY OF YOUNG SALINGER, THE SUICIDE.

He Sought to Know Himself—Cares and Remorse Racked Mind and Conscience and Drove Him to Self-Destruction.

PHILADELPHIA, March 9.—A morbid, almost a maniacal story of baffled hopes and thoughts racking past endurance is told in the diary of young Ernest Salinger, the Philadelphian who on Wednesday last committed suicide at Cincinnati, where he was studying divinity. Up to the day of his death he kept a record of his ghastly thoughts, "sicklied o'er" with brooding and self-rebuke. He meant the strange tale to be kept from the eyes of the world, but the ruthless hand of a coroner has brought it all to light.

KEPT UP TILL DEATH.

The diary was begun on March 4, 1890, and the final entry was penned on Tuesday, March 3, 1891, the day preceding the night of his suicide.

The following request accompanied the diary:

"Private journal to be delivered as soon as possible to its owner, Henry Landauer, Private residence, No. 226 Fairmount-avenue, Philadelphia.

"Please try your utmost to keep this from the hands of outsiders. Use your own discretion as to how to do it.

"ERNEST SALINGER."

Young Salinger left a written request to be cremated. It is expected that his ashes will arrive in this city to-day.

Who Knows Himself.

The first entry in the dairy begins thus:

"Solon was a wise man. If he had died without having said more than the short sentence I am about to use, that sentence alone would have made him one: 'Know thyself.' How short, and yet how profound! Thou art right, Solon. To know thyself one's self is to know all. Yet who knows himself? Who knows all? I, for one, do not. Yet I would love to—aye, with all my heart I wish I knew myself. What I love I try to fathom. I love myself better than all the things I know of, and yet hitherto I have never tried to understand myself. I am my sun, my moon my heaven and my hell. Yet I am not their master."

He then went on to say that he proposed to "know himself" by recording his deeds every day. He gave a detailed story of his life. When in Europe in 1889 he was the pupil of a great violin teacher. In many of the subsequent entries Salinger made mention of the delights of the Turkish bath and the massage treatment.

LIFE IS A RUBBER BAND.

He wrote considerable verse, and in April of last year this entry was made in his diary:

A QUESTION.
This life is but a rubber band
That's placed at birth on each one's hand.
We stretch it as we [illegible]
We stretch it till it's stretched too much;
The band then breaks, it has snapped in twain,
Shall he who broke it live again?

He describes at great length his powers as a hypnotist, and says that in Philadelphia he frequently got people under complete control of his will-power by this mysterious influence.

"They were all very much afraid of me," he adds, "and [illegible] thoroughly convinced of my powers as a hypnotist."

SOCIETY GIRLS.

One of the daily records bitterly condemns the lack of wisdom in "society girls," and the young divinity student says:

"I, too, like beauty and riches; but give me a brainy, poor, ugly girl every time in preference to her direct opposite."

PARNELL MUST BE DROPPED.

If the Irish Champion Him the Liberals Will Abandon Home Rule.

LONDON, March 8.—The Liberal official circle expects an early deliverance from Mr. Gladstone on the party's electoral program, which will either be issued as a special manifesto, or declared in his coming speech at Hastings. The pronouncement is expected to let the world know that that if the Irish people champion Mr. Parnell the English Liberals will abandon Home Rule.

Ottawa Gossip.

OTTAWA, March 9.—Dr. Powell stated to day that the Premier was progressing favorably. Sir John was able to see a few friends to-day. This morning he received a cablegram from the Princess Louise and Marquis of Lorne congratulating him on his success. He also received, through Lord Stanley, a cablegram to a similar effect from Lord Salisbury.

Mr. Chapleau says the rumor that Hon. Mr. Colby would be offered the seat for Richelieu, where Sir Hector has been elected, is unfounded, but Mr. Colby will be offered the candidature in the county of Huntingdon against Mr. Scriver. The nomination in that county takes place Wednesday next.

"Do you think the verdict of the people of Canada will in any way endanger the success of the proposed trade negotiations with Washington?" was asked.

Hon. Mr. Chapleau: "No; on the contrary the Government of Washington, realizing how false were the reports made by some leading Grit politicians of Canada, that the Government of Sir John had not the confidence of the people and would be defeated at the next elections, will have reason to believe that any agreement entered into with us will last. Uncertainty about the governments of this country and the majority supporting them has disappeared, and the two countries will be able to enter on more amicable trade relations for at least the next five years. The public sentiment in the United States is undoubtedly opposed to the McKinley bill, as has been proved by the result of last fall's elections, and the Washington Government may not be sorry to find reasons for introducing modifications and entering into more friendly relations and closer commercial intercourse with Canada as with other neighboring countries. The result of the elections will also have this effect, that the Imperial Government is now informed of the strength of public opinion and the sympathy of the Canadian people with Sir John's government on international questions affecting the interests of Canada."

Hon. J. A. Chapleau will go to Montreal on Wednesday.

Hon. Mr. Carling returned to the city last night. Asked if it was true as stated in several papers that he had announced his intention of retiring from politics, he replied that he had made no such announcement, but could say nothing further at present. The report that he would run for Algoma was entirely unauthorized.

Hon. John Costigan returns to the city to-morrow night.

Hon. Mackenzie Bowell returns to the city this evening.

Sir Hector arrives to-morrow.

Mr. Bain, late member for Soulanges, arrived at noon in the city. He says he will protest the election of his opponent, [illegible].

The Daily Review.

TUESDAY, MARCH 10, 1891.

SIR RICHARD ANGRY.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT has published a letter, addressed to his constituents, in which he gives vent to his anger on account of the defeat which he and his party sustained on election day. The whole tenor of his letter is similar to his tirades after previous defeats—that the people are corrupt and venial, and for that reason have returned a Government majority, "the great majority of whom," says this slanderer of his country and its people, "do not pretend to be actuated by any principle save that of securing a good slice of booty for themselves or the sections or constituencies they respectively represent." These slanders from Sir Richard the people are accustomed to, for all who do not agree with him—nay, all who do not bow the knee to him—are in his eyes all that is bad. His pompous self-conceit and his sorely wounded vanity combine to warp his judgment and obscure his vision, so much so that his ravings are scarcely worth noticing.

Sir Richard informs his constituents that there appears to be no dissension in the ranks of the Liberals, "so far at any rate as its Parliamentary representatives are concerned," a phrase obviously intended to warn them to take no further notice of Mr. Blake. In another place he states among the Liberal members, so far as he knows, "not one single coward or traitor finds place." If this is another covert reference to his former leader, it is a mean and cowardly one, for if Mr. Blake had not withheld his manifesto until the elections were past Sir Richard would have had fewer followers in the House.

Sir Richard states—and that statement is what makes his letter of any interest—that the Liberal party will continue to advocate the policy of unrestricted reciprocity. Very well, the Government has nothing to fear from the Opposition following that suicidal course. The electors have once pronounced against that scheme, and if another opportunity were given they would reject it with stronger emphasis. From a party point of view the Conservatives would have nothing to regret in this attitude of the Opposition, but as men earnestly desirous of the welfare of their country they must regret sincerely that a body of politicians in this Dominion will continue to advocate a policy that leads them to decry their country and in that way to do it more or less injury.

Every tissue of the body, every bone, muscle and organ, is made stronger and more healthful by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

OBIT.—It is with the deepest regret that we have to announce the death of Mr. Geo. Braden, a young man about twenty-four years of age, and son of Mr. John Braden who has lately moved to this place to reside. The young man took a severe cold, but thought nothing of it for a couple of days. But on Sunday, the 24th ult., medical aid was called in, and then it was found he had a severe attack of inflammation of the bowels. On the Monday following a medical consultation was held, and his case was pronounced a hopeless one. After suffering much he passed away on the following Wednesday evening. As he was a young man who had just assumed the responsibilities of managing the old homestead, and who took a great interest in church affairs, as well as in all agricultural subjects, he will be greatly missed in this locality. The funeral, which was the largest ever seen in this vicinity, took place on Friday at 2 o'clock, and everyone present seemed to sympathize deeply with the parents and family in their sad bereavement.... A child about a year old belonging to Mr. William Thurston, who resides about three miles south of this place, died on last Thursday after a short illness. The funeral took place on the Saturday following and was largely attended. The parents have the sympathy of the people of the neighborhood in their sad bereavement.

ELECTIONS.—The election is over and every person is settling down to their work again. The general opinion here is that by the result things will move on just about as in years gone by at Ottawa.

A WIDOW SUICIDES.

She Was a Native of Picton, Ont.—Her Loved Ones Gone.

KINGSTON, March 9.—Mrs. Emma Frances Walker, a widow, suicided by taking poison. She was twenty-five years of age. She was born at Picton, Ont., her maiden name being Dietrich. About five years ago she married a liquor dealer named Walker, who died two years later. About the same time Mrs. Dietrich, her mother died, and soon after her father also passed away. The young widow and orphan, who had the care of two younger brothers, then began to work as a fur trimmer and also made dresses at home. In this way she managed to provide for herself and her brothers, and she made no complaint until recently, when her brother were also taken from her. Frank, the elder of the two, died in July last. He was 21 years old, and Walter, the youngest of the family, died in December last at the age of 16.

Her only surviving relative was her brother George, married, and a conductor on the Sixth-avenue surface road. To him she addressed the letter written just before she took the fatal dose. The note read:

"DEAR BROTHER: When you read this I hope to be in cold death. I am so sick and lonely since all my loved ones have gone. I am insured in the Hancock for $100, to your benefit, and have $90 in the Bleeker-street Bank, which I want you to get, and whatever is left after my funeral, have a railing put around the graves.

"Do not have any wake or liquor or beer. George, I want a cloth-covered casket with simply my full name on it; no age, no date.

"I want to be buried in the grave with my mother. Give Lizzie and Alice something belonging to me, whatever they may fancy.

"I donot owe any one anything. I leave everything that I have to you. You can do as you like with my things. You will find whatever books and papers I have in the bottom bureau drawer. My insurance I left with Gus. As I am tired will close.

"May the blessing of God be with you and yours, is the last wish of your loving sister,

"EMMA FRANCES WALKER.

"P.S.—Send word to Libbie Lyons, Trenton, Ont. I should like to be buried on Sunday.

FLOODS AND STORMS RAGE.

The Cumberland and Tennessee Rivers Rising—Damage at Nashville.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 9.—The phenomenal rise in the Cumberland River continues. Much damage has been done. Probably between 1500 and 2000 people have been driven from their homes, and goods in warehouses and cellars have suffered much damage.

As viewed from the bridge the river is a vast angry torrent, spreading out over the low lands. Nearly all the lumber yards are overflowed. Merchants were busy all day Sunday removing goods from cellars and warehouses near the wharf to higher ground.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 9.—Very heavy rains prevailed throughout this section yesterday and last night and all streams are out of their banks. A seven-year-old (colored) child was drowned and a colored man named Hunter was also drowned yesterday.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 9.—The Tennessee River here is rising three inches per hour. Experienced river men predict that it will reach at least 45 feet, which overflow much of the city in low lying places, cut off several railroads and for a time suspend the operations of several manufactories.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Despatches from various points throughout Minnesota, northern Iowa, central Illinois, southern Wisconsin and eastern Nebraska report that the severest snowstorm of the winter raged on Saturday night and all day Sunday. There was a regular blizzard blowing, and the snow is badly drifted. Trains are running behind time, and especially in Minnesota; in some localities not a wheel is turning.

No Joking at Prayers.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Privates Mayer and Kucher, Company A, United States Engineer Battalion, stationed at Willet's Point, are suffering respectively with a fractured skull and a half severed tongue.

A week ago they attempted to interfere jokingly with a comrade, Private O'Rourke, who was praying at his bedside, when O'Rourke seized a poker and struck Meyer on the head. He dealt Kucher a blow with his fist under the chin and Kucher's tongue being apparently between his teeth, that member was nearly cut off. O'Rourke will be court martialled. The men will recover.

"Our Mary" Makes a Stir.

LONDON, March 9.—Miss Mary Anderson (Mrs. Navarro) has created some stir in theatrical circles here by advertising the sale of all her stage dresses, theatrical scenery and stage properties, thus confirming the announcement that it is her intention to retire definitely from the stage.

Two Met Death.

MONTREAL, March 9.—An unknown man was killed to-day at Dorval by being run over by a freight train on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Joseph Paupert, a Grand Trunk Railway brakeman, was run over by the cars at Hemmingford. He was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital to-day, where he lies in a critical condition.

Death of a Newspaper Man.

QUEBEC, March 9.—Mrs. James Carrel, editor and proprietor of The Daily Telegraph, died suddenly last night. The deceased was well and widely known as a newspaper man and had been president of both the press gallery of the Legislature and the Associated Press of the province.

Canadian Trade Relations.

LONDON, March 9.—The Farmers' delegates' reports are now issued and in course of circulation throughout the country. Their general tenor is highly satisfactory.

Funds are coming in fairly well for the relief of the sufferers by the Springhill disaster. It is hoped to raise here altogether a thousand or fifteen hundred pounds.

In the course of an interview here to-day Howard Vincent stated that the United Empire League was making remarkable headway. The promises of support given by members of Parliament and colonial leaders were numerous and influential, especially as the movement only started a week ago.

Novel Attempt at Suicide.

NEW YORK, March 9.—John Braun, aged 65, leaped overboard from the ferry boat Waterbury to-day, and directly he came to the surface the passengers on the boat saw him raise both arms aloft and strike at his head. With boat hooks the deck hands hauled Braun aboard. Strapped to his wrists were 2 sharp-pointed knives, and with these while in the water he had made several severe wounds in his breast, which accounted for the motions that the witnesses to his plunge had seen. The weapons were unstrapped, and Braun after the Brooklyn slip had been reached was taken to the hospital. He is not likely to recover. Braun was formerly a barber in Brooklyn. He has been without employment for some time.

Sudden Death and Accident.

BELLEVILLE, March 9.—Mrs. Selina Macnider, wife of Quentin Macnider, formerly manager of the Bank of Montreal here, died very suddenly last night from heart disease. William Hayne, a Grand Trunk brakeman, had his collar bone broken on Saturday night while coupling cars.

Local Option Carried.

PARRY SOUND, Ont., March 9.—Voting on the local option bylaw took place here to-day, and it was carried by a majority of 58.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

INTERESTING PARAGRAPHS CULLED FROM VARIOUS FIELDS.

The Blue Color of Iron and Steel—The Diffusion of Weeds—Sending Letters by Wire—No Clouds in Photographs—Science Notes.

The brilliant blue color brought out by heat on highly polished steel is very beautiful, and many must at times have speculated as to the cause of the phenomenon. It is the natural property of iron to acquire colors by heat, and the blue color which has no doubt often attracted attention is due to a certain amount of oxidation corresponding with a definite degree of heat. Different temperature produces various colors, and tool makers and armorers accept the color as an indication of temperature in tempering tools and arms.

At 425 ° Fahrenheit iron takes on a pale yellow color, at 450 ° straw, 475 ° orange, 500 ° brown, 550 ° purple, 555 ° violet, 590 ° blue, 610 ° white and 635 ° red. The blue color is purposely given to metals chiefly for ornamental purposes, and various means are employed to impart this tint. Mr. B. F. Spalding, in the American Machinist, explains many of the processes most commonly followed for this purpose, some of them quite new. If polished steel is heated, where it does not come in contact with the air it does not oxidize, and therefore, does not color. In hot charcoal, the common air is kept out by other gases, and the work does not change color while it is buried, but immediately upon its being withdrawn from the charcoal and exposed to the air the colors flash upon it with great rapidity, running the full regular gamut of the steel spectrum, for although it may turn blue almost immediately, it becomes pale yellow first and exhibits the other colors in regular succession. One of the most approved methods of bluing iron and steel on a wholesale scale is by making a bath of black oxide of manganese and nitrate of potassium, in the proportion of one to nine. A fire being lighted under the tank containing this mixture, the saltpetre melts the manganese, which sinks to the bottom in a thick muddy sediment, is stirred up and mixed with it. When heated to a proper temperature the metal is immersed and allowed to remain until it is heated to the same temperature, and when removed and cooled it is of a beautiful dark blue color, of greater depth and permanence than that obtained by other processes, or simply in the natural way of heating.

The Diffusion of Weeds.

Where on earth do the weeds come from? is the usual exclamation of the irate farmer at the sudden appearance on his land of a crop of "plants out of their place," as "weeds" were rightly described by the late John Sinclair. The prevalence of weeds on farm lands is now exciting a good deal of attention, and so important is the matter regarded that the Irish Government have issued a tabulated statement of upwards of eighty plants regarded as weeds, giving details as to appearance, habits, etc., of each—these they recommend farmers to eradicate whenever they came across them.

Where weeds abound useful crops fail, for the useless plants require, and by their aggressiveness obtain, a large share of the nutriment necessary for the proper development of the money-yielding cereals and roots. The most prolific and aggressive weeds in this country are the thistle, dandelion, nettle, dock, charlock, poppy and bindweed, all of which, when once they obtain foothold, are difficult to eradicate. Some of these yield their seeds by hundreds of thousands, and if only a small proportion of the seeds produced each year survive and germinate the following season the crop cannot fail to be bountiful. But where the weeds come from is the most perplexing problem to the general farmer, who can not account for the sudden appearance on his land of plants which never before were seen there. The seeds of weeds get on to the soil in a great variety of ways.

Birds are very active agents in the distribution of seeds; the wind bears fine seeds, and more especially such light, feathery seeds as those of the thistle and dandelion, for long distances; many plants are introduced with manure, and a large number come among the seeds which are sown for crops. Running water also plays a not inconsiderable part in the work, and even animals and men frequently distribute them unconsciously. After the invasion of France by the German army weeds previously unknown in that country made their appearance, having no doubt been brought with the invaders. The most fruitful nurseries of weeds is the weed growth in the hedgerows, on the road sides or the edges of plantations, and if the weed nuisance against which there is just now such an outcry is to be abated these places must be denuded of the parent plants.

Sending Letters by Wire.

What is termed telpherage, or the conveyance of parcels by electricity along lines of wire placed overhead, is little known in this country beyond the stage of experiment. We have little real need of this device to assist commercial business. In South America, however, telpherage schemes appear to be propitious to the speculator, and a line has been constructed 186 miles long, which will place Buenos Ayres and Montevideo in communication. Across the La Plata there is a swing for the wires of nineteen miles, and the initial start for this journey is afforded by two towers 270 feet in height. It is intended to dispatch letter boxes between the two cities at intervals of two hours.

No Clouds in Photos.

A very ingenious and perfectly new method of avoiding the evils of exhalation and of strong contrasts, especially of interiors, is the invention of an England photographer. A faint print is first made, which is then placed as a mask in front of the negative, thus compelling the negative to print equally through the clouded portions, the light and dark portions of the mask compensating the same portions of the negative. The toning of the mask is immaterial. The result of this method leaves, it is said, nothing to be desired.

A Camera Plumb Level.

To those amateurs who cannot tell at a glance whether their camera is level or not there is now manufactured a small plumb indicator, which is screwed to the camera, and which will show whether it is placed as desired. It consists of a pendant of flat brass suspended freely by a screw at the top and always preserving a vertical position. A point is made on the camera, so that when the point of the pendant is opposite this mark the camera is level. Any ingenious person can easily make one for himself.

Rolling Steel Casks.

Steel paraffine casks are now being successfully rolled in England, the machinery used being of special design and very economical. The casks are of various sizes, and when empty may be placed one within the other, so as to take up a minimum space in the hold of a vessel.

BAKING CABINETS

on exhibition at J. J. Turner's Sail, Tent and Awning Factory. This is one of the most complete and useful articles for any and every house as it holds your flour, spices, raisins, meal, sugar, etc., and when you are through baking you can lock it up and it makes a nice piece of furniture.

Having bought the right for Peterborough and Ashburnham to manufacture this I want some good live agents to sell it.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

To-morrow's Lecture.

To-morrow evening in St. John's church the Rev. Canon DuMoulin, rector of St. James's Cathedral, Toronto, will deliver the Lenten lecture. His subject will be the Bible, not the Litany as announced. Service will be held at 8 o'clock, the lecture beginning at 8.30. All seats free.

Probably there are more cases of cold in head and catarrh during March than any other month in the year. As a precautionary measure keep Nasal Balm in the home. It never fails.

The Advantages of Conversation.

The most agreeable way of getting information is by conversation. If you talk with a well informed person who can express clearly his views, you can ask questions and have explanations. Call on Stapleton & Elcombe, grocers, and ask them about that superb tea and new fresh goods which they have received and are now running off at a bargain, and you will buy and go away satisfied.

The School Board Vacancy.

At the Council meeting last night instructions were given to take the necessary steps to have filled the vacancy on the Board of Education caused by the lamented death of Mr. Wm. English. We understand that Mr. J. J. McBain has been approached with a view to securing his services as a representative on the Board of No. One Ward, as if he consents, as he probably will, his services would be valuable as a Trustee.

Royal Edinburgh Concert Co.

The MacLennan Royal Edinburgh Concert Company is making its first tour in America. It is composed of the best vocalists and musicians, including Mr. Wm MacLennan, the celebrated solo dancer and pipe player, winner of the world's championship and upwards of one thousand other honors, and who has appeared before Her Majesty the Queen, the Royal family and suite on four occasions. In addition to that, members of the company have given special performances to members of the European Royal families and to English and Scotch nobles. Mr. Bradburn is endeavoring to secure this talented company for one appearance in the Opera House on or about March 18th. Lovers of good music, especially of good Scottish music, will hope that he will succeed.

Personal.

Mr. Felix Brownscombe is confined to his residence with illness.

Mayor Stevenson was in Port Hope yesterday.

Mr. J. B. Pentland received a telegram last evening announcing the sad intelligence that his brother was dying at Collingwood. Mr. Pentland left for that place this morning, and in consequence will be absent from his office for a day or two.

His Peterborough friends will be pleased to read the following personal from the Toronto Empire, Mr. Craig being an old Peterborough boy and a brother of Mr. J. D. Craig, of town:—"The many Canadian friends of Mr. A. B. Craig, who, for many years occupied the position of chief clerk of the Rossin house, will be pleased to learn that he has been appointed manager of the new hotel Bartholdi, Madison square, New York. Mr. Craig is eminently qualified to fill this responsible position."

The Official Returns in the Stevenson-Hall Election.

WELCOMED THE PASTOR.

Rev. J. E. Trotter Welcomed by the Young People of the Baptist Church—Officers Elected.

Rev. J. E. Trotter, the new pastor of the Murray-st. Baptist church, met the young people of the church for the first time in his new relation at the meeting of the Y.P.S.C.E. last evening, and they took advantage of the opportunity to extend to him a welcome. After the study of the topic, the President of the Society, Miss Mann, read the following address:

PETERBOROUGH, 9th March, 1891.

Rev. J. E. Trotter:

DEAR PASTOR,—We, the members of the Murray-st. Baptist church Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, desire to welcome you as our pastor, and assure you that we realize that our Heavenly Father has heard our prayer in sending us so speedily an under-shepherd, and we congratulate ourselves in having one for our leader who has shown himself an approved workman of God in the fields of labor He has called you to; and rejoice that you have stamped upon the lives of your people the impress of our Lord Jesus.

It is our desire that we should be helpers together in the work of the Lord Jesus Christ in our church and town, and we shall endeavor by God's grace and under your leadership to "walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work and increasing in the knowledge of God," and thus advance the cause of "Christ and the Church."

Signed on behalf of the Society,
M. MANN, President.
W. D. SCOTT, Vice-Pres.

Mr. Trotter replied briefly, thanking the members for their cordial and kind welcome, and expressing his earnest desire to work for them, with them and through them in the service of the Master.

At the close of the meeting the semi-annual election of officers took place with the following result:

HON. PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Trotter.
PRESIDENT—Miss M. Mann.
VICE-PRESIDENT—Dr. W. D. Scott.
CORRESPONDING SECRETARY—Miss E. Stratton.
RECORDING SECRETARY—Mr. L. Croly.
TREASURER—Miss E. Aldridge.
CHAIRMEN OF COMMITTEES.—Lookout, Mr. George Gilchrist; Prayer Meeting, Miss M. Mann; Social, Miss E. L. Hughes; Sunday School, Miss A. Hutchinson; Missionary, Miss L. McDonald; Music, Mrs. Dr. Scott.

HANDS ACROSS THE SEA.

A Powerful Drama Well Presented—The Old Flag Arouses Enthusiasm.

The crowded house which the merit of presentation deserved was not present at the opera house last evening to witness the production of Henry Pettit's melo-drama entitled "Hands Across the Sea." There was only a small audience present to greet the talented company and enjoy one of the best dramatic successes that has been put on the boards here this season. The plot of the play has already been given to our readers. The story as it is depicted on the stage, abounding with exciting situations and powerful climaxes, held the interest of the audience from the rise of the curtain in the first act until it fell on the happy scene at the close when the golden lining of their dark cloud of trouble had been revealed to "Jack Dudley" and his devoted wife. The audience was delighted, and their manifestations of appreciation evidenced how closely the thread of the exciting drama was being followed.

A loyal outburst of enthusiasm was aroused in the fourth act by one of the strongest situations in the entire play. "Jack Dudley" is accused in the deck of the British steamer, Australasian, by his betrayer, the villain, of being an escaped French convict, and his surrender is demanded to the French officer who has come on board in search of escaped convicts. Dudley claims from the captain the protection of the British flag, and as the captain in British tones refuses to allow the French officer to take the Briton, the Union Jack was unfurled and run up to the mast head. At the close of the political campaign, in which the loyalty of Canadians has been strengthened, the sight of the "old flag" with the striking surroundings and circumstances aroused great enthusiasm and cheering.

The scenic effects of the play were good, and the members of the company acquitted themselves with exceptional ability.

That's Easily Answered.

"My dear," said Mrs. Cupandsaucer, laying down the evening paper, "what is reciprocity?" "Reciprocity, my angel," said the head of the house, "is easily explained. It means a general evening up,—as, say when Smithers asks me in to take a-er-cigar and I ask him to have another.' "Exactly," said Mrs. C., "when I go to Hawley Bros. for tea and I hand Mr. Hawley a dollar and he gives me four or five pounds of splendid green or black mixture, I get the money's worth and he the money. Isn't that it?" "Exactly," said the husband as he reached for his hat. d35tf

BY LAND AND SEA.

An Entertainment and an Address in the Charlotte-st. Church.

An entertainment was held in the Charlotte-st. Methodist church last night under the auspices of the Epworth League of that church and the W.C.T.U. There was a good attendance, considering the very unfavorable state of the weather, and Rev. S. J. Shorey presided.

The meeting was opened with prayer. The first number on the programme was an organ solo, admirably executed, by Mr. George Schneider, followed by an excellent selection by the Y.M.C.A. band.

The principal feature of the programme came next, an address by Mr. C. C. Rowse on "Ten Thousand Miles by Land and Sea." Mr. Rowse left Montreal on Aug. 6th last, and after a nine days voyage landed in Liverpool. He spent two weeks in London, one in Paris, two in Scotland and two in Cornwall, and for an hour and a quarter he entertained the audience with an account of his voyage and descriptions of interesting sights and scenes in the old land. Beginning with the steamer Vancouver, he gave a very interesting description of the voyage, including graphic word pictures of icebergs that were passed and accounts of the amusements on board the steamer. Mr. Rowse then gave a description of the famous docks and shipping at Liverpool, and took his audience with him to Manchester, Preston, Lancaster and Carlisle, visiting the chief points of interest in them, including the castle where Mary, Queen of Scotts, was imprisoned. Glasgow was next visited, and then Paisley, with the great thread factories. The trip through the wild and grand scenery of the Trossach was beautifully pictured, and the Scottish capital was then visited. After visiting points of interest in Edinburgh, a flying trip was made to Cornwall, where Land's End and other points were visited. In London, a service was attended in Mr. Spurgeon's tabernacle and the usual places of interest were described. Then the channel was crossed, and scenes and incidents in the gay capital of the French were described including the great picture galleries and Eiffel tower. The whole address was very interesting, the descriptions being graphic and many amusing incidents being introduced which pleasantly varied the sight seeing. Mr. Rowse concluded by saying that they might not all have the privilege of visiting the great cities of the world, but there was a city, greater, grander and more beautiful, with streets of gold and gates of pearl, with endless day, unending music and everlasting happiness, that they might all see and in which they might all reside forever.

Miss Fawcett then gave a very pleasing solo, and after another selection by the band, and thanks to those who had taken part in the programme, the entertainment was closed with the National Anthem by the band.

THE SHORTEST ON RECORD.

The Town Council Holds a Half-Hour Session—Communications and Accounts—Aid for the Springhill Sufferers.

The new town clock which graces the walls of the Council Chamber indicated five minutes to nine o'clock last evening when Councillor Cahill took the Mayor's chair and called the municipal legislators to order. The Councillors had been discussing committee work. Mayor Stevenson was in Port Hope and in his absence Councillor Cahill was chosen to occupy the big cushioned seat of honor. However, before the communications had been disposed of His Worship came in and relieved Councillor Cahill. The ward representatives present were Councillors Davidson, Cahill, Winch, Kelly, Hall, Dawson, Moore, Meldrum, Langford, Kendry and Dennistoun.

The Clerk read the minutes of the last meeting and then presented the following

COMMUNICATIONS:

From Mrs. Beaugard, R. H. Hartley, Mrs. Mary Ann Wilson, Jos. Robinson and D. Savois asking for remission of taxes.—Court of Revision.

From local grocers asking the Council to amend the Market by-law so as to change the hour governing the forestalling from eleven to nine o'clock or that the forestalling clause be repealed altogether—Referred to the Market Committee.

From John Haggart asking the Council to reduce the auctioneer's license from $100 to $50.—Referred to the License Committee.

From the proprietors of the local billiard parlors asking for a reduction in the billiard licenses.—Referred to the License Committee.

TO AID THE SUFFERING.

Councillor LANGFORD moved, seconded by Councillor DENNISTOUN,—That the Town Clerk be instructed to communicate with the authorities of Springhill, N. S., and tender them the sympathies of the Mayor and Council on behalf of the Town in the terrible disaster that has overtaken them and that the Town Treasurer be instructed to forward at once the sum of $200 for the relief of the sufferers.

This motion was carried unanimously.

Councillor MELDRUM moved the first reading of the Licence By-law, but as communications in reference to licenses had been referred to the License Committee it was decided to allow the by law to drop until the next meeting.

The Council then adjourned for two weeks, which was an unusually short session for Peterborough's municipal magnates.

Spring Millinery.

I have just seen two or three pretty bits of spring millinery. Here they are for you. One was a little fluff of black gauze held partly in shape by two separate wreaths of fine yellow clique foil. At the back was a big careless bow of black velvet ribbon tying a standing sprig of yellow bloom.

Another was a toque made by taking a bunch of pink apple blooms and tying it up in a cloud of black net, quite as if caterpillars were about, except that the net was embroidered with golden butterflies and bees, which suggested of course a baffled hunt for honey and was much more poetical. With this crown went a jetted brim of ruched ribbon that seemed rather bizarre, and more apple blossoms free to the insect creation were massed behind.

There are many extraordinary shapes in straw that are like shells and flower petals and curled leaves and other things suitable to one woman in ten thousand. A rather large, white straw is wreathed heavily with arbutus. Between the hat and the hair behind is a little gold velvet bandeau from which depends a quaint golden net caught up again presently and letting the hair shine through its meshes.

A dainty silver gray straw hat pendant clusters of pale lavender wisteria falling on the hair. For spring concerts is a head-dress that one takes to be a long thorny rose stem twisted three times about the head and then allowed to fasten itself under a cluster of creamy yellow rosebuds.—Ellen Osborn.

Talks for the Farmers.

The chestnut—the good, sweet, reliable American chestnut—may safely be considered the most promising of all nuts suitable for orchard culture. All we will have to do is to plant seed for stock in orchard rows, then look up some of the largest and finest varieties, known to be good bearers, and graft them upon the seedlings. This would give us a valuable orchard after a while, and perhaps as profitable as if we planted Numbo, Paragon, or any other.

Mr. A. S. Fuller, in a recent contribution to the New York Tribune, calls attention to the dwarf Chinquapin chestnut, as a variety for the fruit garden and for the children's pleasure. Whether it could be depended upon as a source of revenue or not certainly it will prove to be an object of interest, and well worthy of a place on the lawn or in the garden.

The Chinquapin chestnut (Castanea pumila) gives little promise of ever yielding varieties of large size, says Mr. Fuller, still it deserves to be better known in cultivation. The nuts are small, globular or slightly oblong, and produce singly, or only one in each bur, but the burs are borne on long fruit-stalks, sometimes a dozen on each; consequently the increase in number makes up in part for diminutive size. The nuts are sweet and tender, even more delicate than our common chestnut.

The Chinquapin is most abundant in the South, although found sparingly on the sandy ridges of Pennsylvania and Southern Ohio. In the more northern localities, as well as in the richer soils of the South, this species grows thirty or forty feet high, while on the poor, sandy soil of the South it is a mere bush, often not more than three or four feet high, even when it is old and the plants are matured.

Taken as a whole, this species appears to be more variable than our common sweet chestnut, and this lends to it its greatest value in cultivation. By selecting the very dwarf varieties we may cultivate them in rows as we do gooseberries or currants; or they may be planted among ordinary low-growing shrubs about the lawn and garden, and where the children can have the fun of picking chestnuts from the tree without climbing or waiting for nuts to fall.

The variation in form color, and size of leaf and habit of growth seems to be almost endless, because no two are alike. One has leaves nearly as large as the European chestnut, and on another they are small, slightly oblong, and green on both sides, instead of hoary tomentose underneath, as usual in this species.

In productiveness there is as great a difference as in other characteristics, but all are curious and interesting. The nuts from which these seedlings were raised came from the South, but have proved perfectly hardy in Northern New Jersey.

Give the children a few Chinquapin bushes or trees, if for nothing more than to add to their pleasure, years hence, when thinking of youthful days and agreeable surrounding.

TUESDAY, MARCH 10, 1891.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

She lived with her father in a roomy, broad beamed, brown old house, environed by elm trees taller, but less antique, than itself. It was an American Eighteenth century house. Some hero of the Revolution had passed a night in it. It stood on the side of a low, gradual hill, and was four miles away from the nearest railway station. Altogether the region was sufficiently remote, though New York city was hardly more than three hours distant by rail. The mail arrived twice a day, and Mr. Alexander Randolph, the owner of the house and estate, received yesterday's World every forenoon, and read it during the hour preceding dinner, which always took place at 2 o'clock. It was an eminently conservative household; at all events its master was a conservative and a democrat, as his fathers had been before him.

These forefathers were of Virginian descent, and two generations ago had owned large plantations in the south. But the young Randolph of that epoch had fallen in love with a northern lady, and ended by marrying her and settling down on this estate, which was his bride's dowry.

He was originally quite wealthy, but lost money by speculations during the war. With intent to compel a better fortune he soon after ran for an office, but was defeated, as a foregone conclusion, by a crushing majority. To crown all he lost his wife, to whom he was devotedly attached. She died of typhoid fever in 1868. He was left with two children, a boy of 10 and a girl of 6. Mr. Randolph, though of a haughty and headstrong character, was not what is called thorough. He was tall and of slender build, with high shoulders, a gray mustache and imperial, and thick, wavy hair, growing rather long. His eyebrows were bushy and overhanging, and gave to his eyes a fiercer expression than might otherwise have belonged to them; he had a habit of twisting them between his thumb and finger when in thought, which looked ominous to strangers, but really amounted to nothing. His fingers were very long, and so were his arguments and discussions: almost the only short thing about him, in fact, being his temper. His general aspect was that of a retired southern brigadier whose slaves had been unrighteously made contraband. His expression was, ordinarily, profoundly serious, and he smiled rarely; but it was not difficult to make him break into a shrill, giggling laugh, which absurdly marred the severe contour of his visage and betrayed the underlying weakness.

He was fond of phrases, and had a fancy for calling himself "the most indulgent of fathers," but whenever his children transgressed the moral law of their father's good humor or indolence—and this was not seldom the case with Ed, who was as restless and independent as a hawk—he fell upon them with sweeping broadsides of rebuke, culminating, if they answered him back, in violent assertions of their total depravity. Ed. was sent to school, but the study of books had no part in his scheme of existence. In the boy's seventeenth year Hamilton Jocelyn, a friend of the family, being on a visit of a few days to the Randolphs, was tickled by Ed's bearing and the story of his exploits, and offered to take him back with him to New York city for a month or so, to give him instruction in the laws and amenities of polite society.

He went off accordingly, and the month had prolonged itself to six before he came back. His father thought that he had been improved by his sojourn there. He had brought back with him certainly a great deal of entertaining talk, and gave Beatrix endless accounts of the great city, its streets, its houses, its horses, its theatres: above all, of its operas and its concerts. Both she and Ed. had always been passionately devoted to music. They had understood it, by the light of nature, as it were, from a very early age, and had constantly practiced ever since. Ed's voice was not of much use, but he was an admirable performer on the violin. Beatrix, on the other hand, was above all things a singer, and her voice developed into a soprano of remarkable range and power. Her studies were not confined to church music. She knew by heart all the great operas and oratorios, and in pursuance of the marked dramatic ability which she possessed she had, with Ed's assistance, acted out scenes from many of the former (so far as two performers might) on the stage of the back drawing room.

One day Hamilton Jocelyn, who had heard all the famous singers of the world in his time, attended one of these private entertainments. Contrary to expectation he turned out to be the most eulogistic auditor that Beatrix had ever had, and he wound up his praises by declaring that she must be provided with a master to bring her voice out. The most indulgent of fathers was gratified by this tribute of admiration from such a source to his favorite child, and a week or so afterward the master was sent for.

This was an elderly Englishman of respectable antecedents, who, twenty years before, had begun his musical career with what was considered the finest tenor voice of the age, and whose knowledge of the principles of music was as profound as his proficiency was remarkable. But before he had been a year on the operatic stage the theatre in which he was singing caught fire, and he was burned about the throat in such a way as forever to destroy the voice which would have made him rich and famous enough to satisfy ambition itself. Professor Dorimar, as he afterward came to be called, had some small private means which rendered him in a humble way independent, and with a philosophical serenity which rarely characterizes the musical temperament he settled quietly down to be a writer on the art and science of whose highest triumphs he could never more hope to partake. For the last eight years he had lived in New York, but he was known to very few. He sat with his piano and his manuscripts, and his visions of divine harmonies, in a retired little room a few blocks west of Washington square, and seldom went forth save to listen for half an hour to one or other of the very few singers who in his judgment were great enough to sing. He never was known to have undertaken the personal instruction of pupils, though he might undoubtedly have derived a large income from so doing. But he was of opinion that the right to use the voice in music is given to but two or three in an age, and the chance that the training of one so gifted should fall to him was too remote to be considered. To the myriad chances of failure he preferred his comparative poverty and his peace of mind.

What arguments Jocelyn employed to won him from his reserve cannot be known. But Mr. Randolph received a note from the professor, mentioning the day and hour of his arrival, and requesting Mr. Randolph to meet him and drive him up from the railway station alone. This was done, and on the way the professor stipulated that he should be enabled to hear Miss Randolph's voice before she was aware of his presence. "There is a train back to the city this evening, sir," he remarked, "and, if I should conclude to take it, it would be well to have spared the young lady the annoyance of an interview." The matter was readily managed. Beatrix sang with the unembarrassed freedom of supposed solitude, and the Professor listened. When the young lady had finished her selection, whatever it was, she rose from the piano and passed out through the open window of the room to the veranda. Here she was surprised by the appearance of a meager and pallid personage, of gentlemanly bearing and aspect, with a broad scar on the right side of his face and throat, and many thoughtful lines and wrinkles on his brow and around his eyes, who advanced toward her with a bow and took her hand. As she looked at him she fancied there were tears in his eyes. "Miss Randolph," he said, in a low and very pleasant voice, "I am to have the honor of being your instructor; my name is Dorimar." He said no more at that time, but raised her soft fingers to his lips, and with another bow disappeared. He did not take the evening train back to the city, but on the contrary took up his abode in the Randolphs' house, and being, in addition to his musical attainments, a man of cultivation, and of a singular naive charm of character, he was nearly as much of an acquisition to Mr. Randolph as to his daughter, and they all became very good friends. As to his teaching, it was a matter between his pupil and himself, and was not often referred to outside. It seemed to afford him especial pleasure to think that Beatrix was singing for music's sake, and without any purpose of publishing or profiting by her acquirements. "Music is a sacred thing, my child," he would often say to her, "and like all sacred things it is shamefully and almost universally desecrated. It is not a mere question of voice and ear, but of purity and loftiness of soul. Great music never was greatly sung by a charlatan, or a libertine, or a fortune hunter. I, for my part, thank God that you are what you are, and that you will never be obliged to weigh your music against gold. The world may listen to you if it can, but you shall be spared the insult of receiving for it what it dares to call recompense!"

Do What the Present Demands.

Carlyle says:—"Our grand business is not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies clearly at hand." We should never, if we value life, aim to grasp at wealth, honor and fame, while we suffer mentally or physically. Our great aim should be mental and physical soundness;—let us secure these great foundation blessings which lie within our reach, and when secured, we may then, with safety, reach out to objects which are dimly seen at a distance. Get rid at once of any trouble or ailment which is likely to bring suffering and disaster. Your circulation is imperfect and sluggish; your head aches often; you feel used up; your brain is clouded; your nerves are unstrung; and you cannot get refreshing sleep at night. If any of these troubles assail you, bear in mind that Paine's Celery Compound will at once give you release from suffering and approaching disease. Its use will certainly strengthen and invigorate your system, and give you a clear and fertile brain for future action.

CHANGE OF BUSINESS

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and would bespeak for them the same support as you have accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought that a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question we have purchased the above business from Mr C. N. Brown, who will still continue as manager, in Flavelle's Old Stand, Simcoe-st.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of every one to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of

FLOUR, FEED, CHOP, Etc.,

and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices.

We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred in the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

Gavan Duffy Says Clerical Interference is Fatal to Ireland's Aspirations—Parnell's Manifesto to be Issued on Thursday.

DUBLIN, March 10.—The Freeman's Journal publishes a letter from Sir Charles Gavan Duffy, in which that gentleman says that the policy of independent opposition which Mr. Parnell [illegible] originated in 1847 with the Irish confederation, with the exception of two [illegible], the whole Irish Catholic episcopate [illegible] with all their power and [illegible] priests [illegible] for their support of the independent party. The latter, by reason of corruption and intrigue, became reduced from 51 to five members of parliament, the bishops always condoning or approving every act of treachery. The letter concludes as follows: "Until all this clerical interference is changed there is no more hope for the Irish cause than there is for a corpse on a dissecting table."

The Evening Standard says that Mr. Parnell in his Newry speech of yesterday forestalled Mr. Gladstone's expected final declaration to shake off Mr. Parnell by himself shaking off Mr. Gladstone, as no longer of [illegible] an instrument wherewith to secure Home Rule.

The Times, criticizing the character of the Parnell agents sent to the United States, says that James O'Kelly is an ex-Fenian, who was lately engaged in the work of procuring arms for the Clan-na-Gael Society. John O'Connor The Times classes as a man dragged from the rat holes of conspiracy by John Devoy, while it describes John E. Redmond as an "avowed adherent of the harp without the crown." The article concludes with the declaration that "if any person can persuade the advanced section in the United States to open its purse it will be these."

DUBLIN, March 10.—The National Federation Convention opened here to-day. Justin McCarthy presided. A letter from Archbishop Walsh was read. It said that four-fifths of the constituencies were ready to follow the lead of Kilkenny and declared Parnell's policy involved the destruction of the work of the last 10 years. Letters approving the course of the McCarthyites were received from Archbishop Croke and most of the bishops in Ireland.

Sir Thomas Esmonde, secretary of the convention, stated that 115 organizations had sent delegates. Letters had been received from 90 other organizations stating that they would support McCarthy.

Mr. McCarthy said the League had allowed itself to be captured in a recreant way by a "crowbar brigade." The Federation, he declared, was well rid of the National League. For Mr. Parnell he had no words but those of compassion. In following a wrong course Mr. Parnell's fate as leader of the Irish parliamentary party had become sealed.

Thomas Sexton (member of Parliament for West Belfast) stated that during the Boulogne negotiations the representatives of the majority of the Irish parliamentary party offered to leave the chairmanship of the party open for a year if Mr. Parnell would retire temporarily from that position. The negotiations proceeded on this basis. Parnell's leadership is no longer within the range of practical politics.

An Executive Committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. McCarthy, Condon, Davitt, Deasy, Dickson, Murphy, McCarton, Arthur O'Connor, Sexton, Sheehy, Sullivan and Webb, and also Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien, if they are willing to serve.

Justice Stephen's Case in the Commons.

LONDON, March 10.—Questions were put to the Government in the House of Commons this evening with reference to the alleged inability of Justice Stephen to perform his judicial functions. Mr. Smith, First Lord of the Treasury, in reply said that the Government had no authority over a judge; that the constitution respected the absolute independence of the Bench, though a member of the House might move that the Crown remove a judge.

A Funny Theological Court.

LONDON, March 10.—The singular spectacle of the Privy Council of a Christian Queen deciding nice points of Mohammedan doctrine has just been witnessed here in a case of alleged heresy against the leader and crier in prayers of a mosque at Tafpora, India. The Privy Council decides that there was no heresy.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

REOPENING OF THE ASSEMBLY YESTERDAY.

The Address in Reply to the Speech from the Throne—Compulsory Education and Free School Books—A Lively Debate in the House

TORONTO, March 11.—The Legislature met yesterday to resume the business interrupted by the Dominion elections.

Mr. Joseph Tait, in rising to move the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, affected to be embarrassed and prayed for the indulgence usually granted a new member. To make the indulgence certain he showered compliments on the Lieutenant-Governor, the Government and the Opposition.

After referring with regret to the death of J. B. Freeman of North Norfolk, to whose worth he paid a graceful tribute, Mr. Tait took the clauses in the speech.

It was gratifying to know that arrangements had been made for settling the long-pending disputes between the Province and the Dominion. Ontario's past experience in such disputes was presumptive evidence of her success in this. Municipalities interested in the Land Improvement Fund would be glad to know that the attitude of the Quebec Government would not interfere with them being paid the money due to them. The Provincial Board of Health deserved thanks for disseminating information regarding sanitation and hygiene. As an example of its work, Mr. Tait noted the decrease in that loathsome disease, smallpox. In 1874 there were 200 deaths; in 1885, 21 deaths in 7 counties; in 1886, 3 deaths in 4 counties; in 1887, no deaths; in 1888, 3 deaths from the disease contracted in Buffalo; in 1889, 13 deaths from disease contracted in the same place, and in 1890 there were no deaths. The House should do all it could even to improve the efficiency of the Board.

The mining regulations were next touched upon, but Mr. Tait was cautious. Of course much might be done by wise legislation to develop the mines, especially the nickel mines, and much might be done by unwise legislation to minimize the value of the great inheritance, etc. Mr. Tait was strong on this one point, that no legislation regarding mines could be considered or carried which would be an additional burden to the taxpayer.

Regarding education, Mr. Tait remarked that the elections in Hamilton and North Bruce proved not only the death of all racial and religious feelings but the burial of them 50 fathoms deep. Compulsory attendance at schools had caused great discussion in the United States. It would seem that compulsory education led to the providing by the state of free text books. Many parents were actually unable to buy books and therefore it would be a mockery to enact the one and not make provision for the other. Free school books were necessary if compulsory education were adopted.

After expressing the belief that the session would be short and business-like he moved that an address of thanks be presented to the Lieutenant-Governor for the gracious speech he was pleased to deliver to the Assembly.

Mr. J. T. Garrow seconded the address and succeeded in rousing a storm by his references to the local elections. The leader of the Opposition was a foe worthy of any one's steel, able to lead his cohorts well and to make the attack as severe as the occasion might require. Yet Mr. Garrow hoped the last had been heard of Mr. Meredith's recent mode of warfare, the last of an attempt to carry on a party on principles of race and creed. [Applause.] He spoke sincerely and was ashamed to think that they were raising those dead issues for the evil purposes of power. He implored them to take up any other honest issue. He assured Mr. Meredith that many Catholics in West Huron had been driven out of the Conservative ranks. The Liberal party appealed to higher issues, and when they could not secure men except by such issues they would resign.

Coming to the points in the speech from the throne, he hoped with regard to agriculture that what had been done for cheese-making might also be done for butter-making. He hoped in time to see more than one agricultural college or institute for teaching the scientific principles of farming. Prison reform could not be discussed without the report, but from the evidence it was apparent that provision must be make for a better classification of prisoners and that the extension of relief to the indigent must be considered. From his experience in the Huron County Council he believed the Government would be supported in any effort in the direction of making the care of the poor more stringent. He seconded the address.

Mr. Meredith said that Mr. Tait had claimed the indulgence extended to new members, but he was under the impression that Mr. Tait's voice had been heard from the wilds of Algoma to the flowery city of Rochester. [Laughter.] Mr. Tait's modesty was very great when he claimed indulgence as a new member. [Laughter.]

Regarding the mining lands Mr. Meredith said the Government had appointed a Fish and Game Commission and a Prison Reform Commission. If the Mining Commission which the Opposition had urged had been granted instead of the others the result would have been more satisfactory. It was in the interest of the province that a commission on mines should be appointed in order that the province might understand the extent of its capital and what it could depend upon for its future expenditure. The withdrawal of the nickel lands from sale was wise, but it should have been done sooner. It was reported that the great bulk of the nickel lands was already in the hands of speculators. He did not know what proposition the Government had to make, but if it was on the lines of increasing the revenue to the province it would have his hearty support.

Raising his voice and speaking with warmth, Mr. Meredith declared that, with regard to the constitutional difficulties that have arisen since Confederation, he justified and defended the positions he had taken. [Applause.] He took the positions which time has demonstrated to be in the interests of the country. [Applause.] He repudiated the charge that he had been acting against the interests of Ontario. Magnifying the Province and forgetting the Dominion was against the interests of Canada. [Applause.] He repudiated the charge of bigotry in connection with the last election, placing the record of his past life as an answer to the charge. [Applause.] There was not one drop of bigoted blood in his veins. [Applause] The Conservatives stood where the Liberals of 20 years ago did in defence of civil and religious liberty. [Applause.] Nothing he ever said could hurt the feelings of anyone. It was said the issues of the last election were buried. On the contrary the principles of the Conservatives could never be buried because they were founded on right and justice. The language to be taught in the schools must be English. The accusations of bigotry were false and without foundation. [Applause.] The accusations come with bad grace from those who say they agree with the Conservatives on the general principle of the separation of church and state, but not on the application of that principle. He would continue to maintain that principle. [Applause.] He would not have made these observations if he had not been taunted with bigotry. In conclusion he agreed with the other speakers in lamenting the death of Mr. Freeman.

Mr. Mowat was vigorous and emphatic in reply. He had sat for years in the House with Mr. Meredith and never saw him exhibit greater excitement. They did not differ on principles, but on the application of them. The charge that the Government had forgotten its principles was a false charge. The charge that encroachment of the Catholic Church had been permitted was wholly false. The Government held the principle of civil and religious liberty as strongly as possible. He repudiated the charge that the Liberals were not loyal to the Dominion. Liberals know that loyalty to the Dominion consists in loyalty to the Province likewise. The prosperity of the Dominion depends upon the rights granted the Province being faithfully carried out. The leader of the Opposition in being loyal to the Dominion had been disloyal to the Province.

He deplored the loss of Mr. Freeman and also of Mr. Hunter of South Grey, who had been upright and conscientious in the discharge of his duties and whose death was a loss to the House.

The reason a commission was not appointed on the timber and minerals of the Province was that information on this point was already in the possession of the Crown Lands Department. There was a good prospect that this session would be a business one.

The address was then carried with the usual formalities.

Before adjourning, Mr. Meredith said that when the member for Ottawa (Mr. Bronson) was in his place he would have occasion to make some remarks about the changes in the Cabinet.

Hon. G. W. Ross gave notice of a batch of bills he will introduce at an early date respecting education. A bill respecting truancy and compulsory education, with more stringent regulations regarding the attendance at schools, is the most important. As a complement to compulsory education, provision will be made in bills consolidating and revising the acts referring to public and high schools for free school books. The Minister will also introduce a bill to amend the act concerning his own department.

A PROTEST IN HAMILTON.

A Petition To Be Filed Against Mr. Gibson's Election.

HAMILTON, March 10.—The firm of Nesbitt & Bicknell has received instructions to protest the election of J. M. Gibson, and the petition will be filed with the Court of Appeal within a few days. The charge involves alleged bribery, shipping voters out of town, impersonation and illegal voting, hiring hacks and carriages and other breaches of the act.

HIS WIFE WENT ON A VISIT.

And Farmer Cornish Became Despondent and Cut His Throat.

THAMESVILLE. March 10.—Yesterday Morris Cornish, a farmer living in the township of Orford, about three miles from here, saw his wife off on the train on a visit to friends in Hamilton. After returning home he went to the house of a neighbor and while there seemed to be very despondent. This morning the neighbor found the five small children of Cornish, the eldest of whom is only nine years old, huddled together in the corner of the orchard. The children said their father was lying on the bed dead. On entering the house he found Cornish lying across the foot of the bed with his throat cut. In the room adjoining the bedroom was found a razor covered with blood, lying on the table, showing that after having committed the act Cornish must have walked at least 10 feet. A large pool of blood was to be seen on the floor and another on the bed where he was lying. The children say that they left their father sitting reading the newspaper when they went to bed about 8 o'clock and on arising in the morning they were horrified to find him as described. An inquest will be held to-morrow afternoon.

A Four-Year-Old Bites off His Baby Sister's Big Toe.

CANTON, Ohio, March 10.—A month ago Mrs. Frank Bauer gave birth to a baby girl, for whom Mrs. Bauer's four-year-old son conceived an intense dislike, because, as he said, he wanted a little brother. The youngster has never missed an opportunity to maltreat his little sister, and yesterday the continued crying of the babe led the mother to make an examination, when she discovered that the great toe of the right foot had been bitten off at the joint. The four-year old acknowledged his guilt.

A Gift to Bradlaugh's Daughter.

LONDON, March 10.—The authoress, Edna Lyall, has presented the daughter of the late Charles Bradlaugh with a check for £30, with the condition attached that the money shall not be used in connection with the propaganda of free thought. The gift is made as a mark of the donor's high regard for the character of Mr. Bradlaugh.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, March 11.—John Teemer, the McKeesport sculler, writes to a friend in this city that his backers are prepared to match him with Jake Gaudaur or William O'Connor for a race for $1000 a side, the time and place to be mutually agreed on.

Teemer is at present located at St. Joe, Mo., where he has trained regularly and is reported in good condition. O'Connor has already expressed a willingness to meet his late opponent for a suitable purse such as Teemer names. So there is little doubt but that articles for a race between these two great American scullers will likely be drawn up and signed before the end of the present month.

The sixth annual convention of the Association of Provincial Land Surveyors of Ontario began at the Canadian Institute yesterday morning.

A large number of surveyors from all parts of the province are attending the meeting, which will continue to-day and to-morrow. Besides the usual business of the convention, fifteen papers will be read and interesting reports from the various committees will be submitted.

Mr. Patsy Powers, manager of the Buffalo International Baseball Club, returned to Toronto last night, and will resume his task to-day of interesting Toronto financial men in a Toronto club for his league. With the co-operation of Mr. McConnell Mr. Powers expects to have a meeting called shortly and shape matters that a team for this city will be a certainty. Manager Powers will not sign any men for his Buffalo club, as he is waiting for the men who will soon be released from National League and American Association clubs.

VICTIMS OF FIREDAMP.

COLLIERY EXPLOSION IN WESTPHALIA, GERMANY.

Remarkable Abduction of a Wife by Her Husband in Manchester—The Newfoundland Question Approaching a Settlement

MANCHESTER, March 10.—As the congregation were coming out of church at Clitheroe yesterday three men drove up, and jumping from the carriage one of them endeavored to seize Mrs. Jackson and her sister, and, assisted by the other two, attempted to carry them off. The leader in the assault was the husband of Mrs. Jackson, who had not lived with him since they were married in 1887.

Friends resisted this summary proceeding and a free fight followed, in which half the congregation took part. The sister of Mrs. Jackson fainted. Jackson's face was covered with blood and his companions were badly hurt. But they succeeded in forcing the unwilling wife into the carriage and, whipping up their horse, drove away to Blackburn. Her friends followed them some distance, but they escaped. Mrs. Jackson had inherited a large fortune, and it was on account of this the husband sought to gain possession of her person. The courts restored to him his conjugal rights in 1890, and under the color of this decision he acted. The friends of the wife will now take the case before a higher court.

After the abduction crowds of people surrounded Jackson's house, which they threatened to storm in an effort to release Mrs. Jackson, but the chief constable warned them that in so doing they would be guilty of a breach of the peace, while Jackson himself from a window of the house shouted defiance at those outside, saying he had a large force ready to resist any attempt at rescue. Both sides were on the alert throughout last night and all to-day. The police have succeeded in maintaining order outside the house. Mrs. Jackson's solicitor has obtained a warrant against the abductors for assaulting his client's sister at the time of the abduction, but the abductors still remain barricaded within the house and cannot be arrested. Crowds of people are still watching the house.

IN THE LION'S MOUTH.

A Paris Trainer Badly Mangled—A Girl Torn to Pieces.

PARIS, March 10.—A tragic scene was witnessed yesterday at the Hippodrome, where the spectacle of "Nero" was in rehearsal. The graphic feature of the show, as it is proposed to be rendered, consists in an attack by a number of lions upon wooden effigies of the human form which are placed in the arena. The lion tamer, M. Seets, had just concluded the morning's drill of six lions and was driving them back into their cages, when one of the brutes became surly and refused to be driven into the cage.

While attempting to force the beast toward its quarters [illegible] slipped from his grasp and rolled several yards from him. Like a flash the enraged animal sprang upon the helpless man, burying its teeth and claws deep into his flesh and rending him in a fearful manner.

Meanwhile another trainer jumped into the circle and bravely engaged the lion, distracting its attention from M. Seets and wounding it severely on the forehead. Other attendants now came to the rescue and the infuriated animal was finally placed behind the bars of its cage. The latest information is that M. Seets cannot survive his injuries.

A Girl Killed by Lions

BERLIN, March 10.—Ellen Mery, supposed to have been a young woman lion tamer from America, was torn to pieces by the wild beasts at the menagerie performance in Chemnitz.

STORM IN ENGLAND.

Blizzardy Weather For a Week—A Furious Time in London.

LONDON, March 10.—A snowstorm has been raging in Scotland and the north of England for a week past, while in the south of England the weather was mild until Sunday. Sunday's gale, which was totally unexpected, advanced in a northeasterly direction across the Bay of Biscay. A blizzard prevailed over the whole of the south of England. It commenced in London at 4 in the afternoon. The storm increased in fury all night and there was an unusual rise of the tide. All the channel steamers had rough passages. Even in the harbors the water was so rough that it was difficult to hold vessels to their moorings. The Dover mail boat nearly sank in the harbor. Her paddle box was completely smashed. The mail service steamers cannot cross the channel. The sea makes a clean breach over the admiralty pier, where the telegraph clerk and a signal man are practically prisoners. Similar reports come from points all along the coast.

Throughout Great Britain telegraphic communication is interrupted by the blizzard.

Bismarck a Candidate for the Reichstag.

BERLIN, March 10.—Prince Bismarck's candidature for Geestemunde is the principal topic of discussion in the lobbies of the Reichstag. It is freely asserted the Government feel embarrassed over his decision. Chancellor von Caprivi and Minister Magnee had a long conference on the subject Sunday. The seat for Geestemunde has long been held by National Liberals, though in 1890 it was only secured on a second ballot against a Socialist. There is no doubt Prince Bismarck will secure an immense majority.

Fire Damp Causes the Loss of Many Lives in Westphalia.

BERLIN March 10.—By the ignition of fire damp in the Monopole pit at Camen, Westphalia yesterday, 6 men were killed and a number imprisoned in the mine who, it is feared, are also dead. Search is being made for the missing ones.

The City of the Invisible Sun.

LONDON, March 10.—During the month of December last the sun did not shine here one day. During the entire year 1890, out of a possible 4455 hours, when the sun should or might have been visible, it, as a fact, was visible only 1083 hours and these were mainly in the afternoons.

Claimed Seven Lives.

GLASGOW, March 10.—A condenser used in the manufacture of ammonia at Dixon's iron works exploded to-day with terrific force. When the ruins of the building in which it had been erected were examined seven mangled bodies were recovered, including that of the manager of the works, Mr. Milne.

A Prominent Manitoban's Death.

WINNIPEG, March 11.—Hon. G. McMicken died suddenly at 1 o'clock Saturday. He was one of Winnipeg's most respected citizens and stipendiary magistrate of Manitoba during the Fenian raid.

Purity The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free. Your Blood

CANADIANS IN THE IMPERIAL SERVICE.

THERE is scarcely a more interesting subject to Canadians than the part that their fellow Canadians have taken in the service of the Empire, either in the army or the navy, but heretofore this field of interesting knowledge has been almost inaccessible because no one had taken up the subject and collected the information. There are at the present time numerous Canadian officers in the Imperial service, among them being Lieut. Rogers, son of Col. H. C. Rogers. Lieut. Stairs, of Halifax, is a Canadian who won a world-wide reputation by his heroic conduct as an officer in Stanley's latest expedition into Africa, and among the brilliant roll of British officers there are names of Canadians of whom the Dominion has much reason to feel proud.

These observations are called forth by a new publication, "Canadians in the Imperial Naval and Military Service Abroad," by Mr. J. Hampden Burnham, of Peterborough. This volume will surprise even well informed Canadian readers by the number of biographies it contains of Canadians who have distinguished themselves in the British army and navy. Sir Provo Wallis, the "father of the Royal Navy," who has nearly completed his hundredth year, is a Canadian, and among the other Canadian names associated with the navy are those of Sir George Westphal, Sir Gordon Drummond, Sir Edward Belcher, and others. Many will learn from this volume that Sir Fenwick Williams, the brave defender of Kars, and Sir John Inglis, whose heroic conduct at Lucknow won him distinction, were Canadians, as well as many other names honorably connected with the service of arms on behalf of the Empire. The collection of the material for this work has taken much time and pains, and has been done with scrupulous care. The biographies have been well written, and the facts being full and authentic, they are deeply interesting. Mr. Burnham does not profess to have exhausted the subject, but he has certainly done a good work and this book, while highly interesting, is of historical value. In looking over the volume one feels like congratulating the author on his signal success, and yet it is the public, and especially the people of Canada, who should be congratulated upon having this information, of so much value, collected with such care and presented to them in such a compact, useful and entertaining form. It is a contribution to the history of the Empire, and its chief purpose, a contribution to the history of distinguished Canadians, has been accomplished with not a little literary taste and skill. No library, especially no historical or Canadian library, will be complete without this work, which combines the two admirable features of an interesting volume and a work of reference. The publishers, Williamson & Co., of Toronto, have done their part well and have turned out a neatly printed and handsomely bound volume.

THE OFFICIAL RETURNS.

THE official returns for the election last week in West Peterborough show that there was a larger vote, by 111, cast in this election than was polled in 1887. Although the Liberals tried hard to arouse sectional prejudices in the townships, or, as they put it, to make it a contest "as between the town and country," their tactics failed, for the country saw through their devices and they only got seven more votes in the townships than they obtained in 1887, while in two townships they polled a smaller number of votes than they did four years ago. If they continue unrestricted reciprocity as their platform, as they state they will, before the term of the present Parliament expires that scheme will be so well understood, despite their efforts to mislead the people, that it will be rejected by a more overwhelming vote than it was last week.

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she knew Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other remedies had no effect whatever. ENNISMORE.

Correspondence of the Review.

HYMENEAL.—On Wednesday, the 4th inst., an interesting ceremony took place at Mr. Alex. Clark's residence in the township of Ennismore. The occasion was the marriage of his third daughter, Miss Carrie Clark, and Mr. George Boat, of Emily. The Rev. Mr. French, of Omemee, performed the marriage ceremony. Miss Lizzie Clark, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. John Boat. The guests were only the immediate friends of both families. After the ceremony was over they all sat down to a sumptuous dinner. Amusements of all kinds followed with the usual wedding merriment. Later on the groom returned with his bride to their home in Emily amid congratulations and well-wishes for a pleasant voyage over the sea of matrimony.

If you decide from what you have heard or read, that you will take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute instead.

RENUNCIATION.

What does the future hold for me?
Never again the ecstacy
Of hands that touch and lips that meet;
Of eyes that speak in answer sweet
To thoughts that do not need to be Expressed, for very sympathy.
What does it hold? The simple sense
That right is right, and nothing hence
Can ever stand with you and me,
To mock a happy memory.

YOUTH WINS.

"To think we all knew him when he was out at elbows," exclaimed old Mrs Ward.

"Never exactly out at elbows," corrected pretty Mrs. Vivian in her habitual soft tones.

"Well, at all events, he had not a decent evening suit, as we all know," put in Miss Jones (who was secretly believed to be the oldest woman in Mme. Laroche's establishment).

"And he occupied a little cabinet au troisieme," continued Mrs. Ward, "and never drank anything but the vin compris of the table."

"Yet nothing is more sure than that Mr. Bernard is now Lord Merivale," said Mrs. Vivian.

"Then it's to be hoped he will pay madam's account," cried Miss Jones. "He's never been out of her debt since I can remember."

"I have settled madam's account, since that interests you," said a cold, quiet voice from behind.

If a shell had burst in our midst we could scarcely have been more struck with consternation. It was Lord Merivale himself who had spoken, and not one of us had seen him enter the salon—not one of us even knew that he was in Paris. Old Mr. Frost, who had been quietly playing cards in a distant warm corner with the equally aged Dr. Hauser, showed no sign whatever of having seen or heard anything, and caused an amusing diversion in the moment of silence which followed the "tapage" by saying in his usual old gentlemanly tones: "Fifteen two, fifteen four, and a pair, six."

Really these two old gentlemen were about the deafest mortals it has ever been my lot to know. Miss Jones remarked to me irreverently that it was her firm opinion that when the last trump sounded Mr. Frost and Dr. Hauser would remain in their graves, for they would never hear it.

One would think we had had enough surprises for one evening, but still another awaited us.

We had all laughed when Mr. Frost had broken in on the silence, and that helped to put everyone a little more at ease. Then Lord Merivale apologized for startling us, with remarkable good humor, considering what he had just heard, and, addressing himself to Mrs. Ward, said that he had taken a box at the Porte St. Martin, and wanted his old friends to join him in an evening's enjoyment—all of us, if we would so far honor him. "I have a decent evening suit now," he added, with a comical smile. I had been partly sheltered from view by a large artificial palm which stood upon the grand piano.

"There is a lady here I have not the pleasure of knowing," said Lord Merivale to Madam Laroche, who had just entered the salon. "I had thought we were all old friends; kindly introduce me, madam."

In a moment his lordship was bowing before me, and I had the intense mortification of hearing myself described in madam's voluble but not over correct English as "Mees Delaney, an English writer, ver' celebrate, who is here only one week."

"Please do not believe anything of the kind, Lord Merivale," I exclaimed, feeling my cheeks grow hot from annoyance. "I am an English scribbler, if you like, but not at all celebrated."

"If you had lived here as long as the rest of us, Miss Delaney, you would have found out that we are all celebrated who reside at Madam Laroche's," replied his lordship, with a fine smile.

I now regarded him more fully, and saw that he was still a young man. His expression was particularly debonair. His eyes were blue, and his light brown hair waved on his high, white forehead. For the rest, he wore a mustache, and his lips seemed specially invented to smile pleasantly.

I shall figure in this narrative merely as an outsider, and shall as far as possible record exactly what I heard and saw of a romance in real life during my sojourn at Mme. Laroche's boarding house. The house was and is still situated in the Rue ——, which is near the Luxembourg Gardens, and a very comfortable place it was, as boarding houses go. Lord Merivale had, it appeared, made it a sort of headquarters for over ten years. Mr. Frost and Dr. Hauser had been there for fifteen years, while Mrs. Ward and Miss Jones had joined the circle seven and three years ago respectively.

I got my first definite information about some of these habitues on this wise. Only Miss Jones and Mrs. Vivian seemed inclined to accept Lord Merivale's offer of a seat in his box at the Porte St. Martin. Mrs Ward pleaded headache and I an obligation to correct some proofs. As regards the proofs, I soon made a resolve to sit up late to complete them in my own room, and thus get an opportunity to hear anything Mrs. Ward had to tell before she retired.

Mr. Frost and Dr. Hauser went to bed early, so it was not long after the departure of Lord Merivale and the two ladies that Mrs. Ward and I were alone in that red velvet salon.

Everything seemed to be red velvet in that room that wasn't gilt or mirrors. There was, however, one pre-eminently redeeming feature in this salon—namely, an open English fire—a fact on which great stress was laid in madam's advertisement.

Near this fire Mrs. Ward and I seated ourselves when we were left alone, and after I had paid some trifling attentions to the old lady in the shape of a foot stool and cushions, she began to give me the information my curiosity craved, without any overture on my part.

"Lord Merivale, you know, my dear," she began (Mrs. Ward called me "my dear" more to annoy Miss Jones than for any other reason, I believe). "Lord Merivale really was dreadfully short of money till he came into the title and estates, which no one here ever thought he would, for there was two brothers between him and such happiness, as well as a father, whose vigorous tenacity of life was only equaled by his vigorous dislike of his third son, the present Lord Merivale."

"What made Lord Merival take up his abode here in the first place?" I interrupted.

"The comfort—at the price," replied Mrs. Ward, briefly, with a pitying smile at the simplicity of my question.

"And Mrs. Vivian?" I put in interrogatively.

Mrs. Ward smiled grimly.

"Mrs. Vivian," she said "is, I fancy, the cause of Lord Merivale's coming here now. All of us noticed his kindness to her when Mr. Vivian died—not but what he was kind to any one he saw in trouble."

"He may also have the consideration not to forget the friends he had in the days of his poverty. He may not have come here to see any one specially," I ventured to remark.

"My dear, you may be a writer, but you don't know the world yet," was the withering rejoinder. "There are kindnesses and kindnesses, and when a young man is very kind to a pretty woman, well, it can have but one meaning."

"Then you think Lord Merivale has come awooing?" I inquired.

"Yes; and so does Miss Jones, or she wouldn't have gone to the theatre to-night. It must have cost her something, after her remarks being overheard, to accept a courtesy from his lordship."

"You think, then, that she went so as to give Mrs. Vivian an opportunity of going?" I asked.

"Not a bit of it," affirmed Mrs. Ward stoutly. "Miss Jones went out of pure contrariety. She felt sure those two would have preferred to be alone, so she went."

"But," I exclaimed, "Mrs. Vivian surely would not have gone alone with Lord Merivale to the theatre."

"There you betray your want of knowledge of the world," said Mrs. Ward scornfully. "Mrs. Vivian would go anywhere with any one if she had enough to gain."

"Well, if she is that sort of a woman it is perhaps a mercy she has no child," I assented with some vehemence.

"But she has a child—a little girl that her husband's mother is bringing up in England. She makes a moan about this child every now and then, and says how cruel it was of her husband to express a dying wish that their child should remain with his mother. He bound his mother in one way, nevertheless, for he stated in his will that Olive (she calls her 'Pussy') should not marry under age without her mother's consent, in which case she won't marry under age; her mother has too much horror of becoming a grandmother."

"How old is little Olive?" I inquired.

Mrs. Ward laughed.

"Well, my dear, she used to be 11, then she became 10—now she is 8. She will probably become a baby again in time."

I very much wanted to ask some more questions, but Mrs. Ward began to show signs of sleepiness, so I got out my proofs after all and went on correcting them till Lord Merivale appeared with Mrs Vivian and Miss Jones. Then Alphonse, our small page boy, brought in a little supper tray.

Weather Notes.

Mr. Thos. Telford writes as follows:—Our wee short month has again come to a close and that at least of '91 into lasting obscurity. Not so the many robberies, suicides, murders and accidents, especially that of Springhill, which carried so much grief and suffering among the widows and orphans. Of deluges, storms and drifts there is nothing out of the ordinary run of our winter visitation to note. The month came in fine and with only three exceptions did the minimum register below zero. On the 4th at sunrise it stood at 10 degrees below zero, at 9 a. m. at 8 degrees below, at 12 noon at 5 degrees below, at 4 p. m. at 3 degrees below, at 5 p. m. at 6 degrees below, at 9 p. m. at 15 degrees below, being the coldest day throughout the winter so far. On the 11th at sunrise it was 1 degree below and on the 14th at 6 degrees below. At noon on several days the thermometer went up to 40 degrees and over, the highest being on the 24th, at sunrise 40 degrees, at noon 46 degrees, and at sundown 44 degrees, leaving the mean temperature of the month at 20 6-20 degrees. Rain fell on 3 days to the depth of 1 17-100 inches. Snow fell on 16 days to the depth of 20 inches, both being a pretty fair average for February. We had auroral lights on the 14th, gales and drifting snow on 5 days, white frost on 5 days, and almost continual good roads. The following are the different points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise during the month, namely: North-west 12 days, south-west 6 days, north-east 2 days, east 2 days, west 2 days, north 2 days, and south 2 days.

"Mr. James M. Ashley, of New York city, President of the Toledo, Ann Arbor and North Michigan railway, Mr. A. P. Poussette, of the town of Peterborough, Mr. A. V. R. Young, of the same place, Messrs. E. Bristol and Douglas Armour, of Toronto, have a petition before the Legislature which states that valuable iron mines exist in the Township of Belmont in the County of Peterborough, and in the Township of Marmora in the county of Hastings; that it is impossible to work these mines at present, owing to the fact that there is no railway communication from the mines to the existing lines of railway, and that it is desirable for the purposes of establishing such communications and for opening up and developing the mining interests of these districts that a railway be constructed from a point on the Grand Junction railway at or between the village of Hastings and the village of Campbellford, running northerly, crossing the Ontario and Quebec railway near the village of Blairton, and thence running northerly and east to some point on the Central Ontario railway. They ask for an Act incorporating such a road, with powers to extend such lines, and also ask that the name of the road be the Ontario, Belmont, and Northern Railway Company."

That's Easily Answered.

"My dear," said Mrs. Cupandsaucer, laying down the evening paper, "what is reciprocity?" "Reciprocity, my angel," said the head of the house, "is easily explained. It means a general evening up,—as, say when Smithers asks me in to take a-er-cigar and I ask him to have another.' "Exactly," said Mrs. C., "when I go to Hawley Bros. for tea and I hand Mr. Hawley a dollar and he gives me four or five pounds of splendid green or black mixture, I get the money's worth and he the money. Isn't that it?" "Exactly," said the husband as he reached for his hat. d30tf

A Carter's Case.

The African Slave Trade.

The Brussels Conference of the Powers concluded their sitting nearly a year ago. The whole world was interested in the action they should take in regard to "the open sin of the world," the African slave trade. At length the secrecy preserved has been removed and the measures adopted made public. The Rev. J. W. McCleary will take up the subject at the service in St. Luke's this evening at 8 p m.

Curling With Lindsay.

The quiet which has prevaded curling circles was broken to-day when another match in the Peterborough-Lindsay championship cup series was played. Two rinks skipped by Thos. Rutherford and T. F. Attrill went to Lindsay, where they will play two games if the ice will permit. Two Lindsay rinks arrived here and are playing against two local rinks skipped by Sam Ray and C. McGill.

Royal Edinburgh Concert Company.

This company will give an entertainment in the Opera House on Wednesday evening, March 18th, under the auspices of the St. Andrew's Society. Everywhere the press and people have accorded much praise, and it is conceded to be the best all-round company of vocalists, humorists, musicians and dancers which has ever left 'Auld Scotia' on a professional tour. Miss Alice Steel, prima donna, comes with high testimonials, some of which are as follows:—"Miss Alice Steel gives fourth floods of melody in as pure a soprano as ever was heard in Kingston." "She is possessed of a fine soprano voice of great compass and power, and infuses into her vocalizations much feeling and expression." "Perhaps the greatest interest of the evening was centred in the appearance of the young Scotch soprano, Miss Alice Steel, and she well sustained the very favorable criticisms which have been passed upon her recent performances." "The best singing of the evening was credited to Mr. Max Heinrich and Miss Alice Steel, a young lady with a powerful and well-trained soprano voice."—London Times. 1d

WELCOME TO PETERBOROUGH.

Bro. Alex. Hamilton, County Master of West Peterborough, read the following address welcoming the Grand Lodge to Peterborough:—

To the Right Worship G. O. L. O. E. O.

BRETHREN,—We, the representative officers of the Orange County of West Peterborough, cordially welcome you to our county town on this your 32nd annual meeting of the Provincial G.O.L.O.E.

Our welcome will be couched in a few words, none the less heartfelt and sincere.

We welcome you not only as personal friends, but worthy and esteemed Grand officers and guardians of our glorious institution.

We would take occasion at this point to express our confidence in the working of the system of local Grand Lodges, believing them to be eminently calculated to advance the best interests of our order universally.

Our county yet contains material that if properly worked will place us second to none in Canada, socially, religiously and politically, for when the principles of our Order are established and the constitution and laws carried out, we shall appear fair as the moon, bright as the sun and terrible as an army with banners.

We earnestly pray that the Great Spirit may direct the councils of this Grand Lodge during its present session, and that your presence amongst us may stir us up to renewed zeal and determined perseverance in the good cause and that it may flurish like a green bay tree, and that all who would persecute or stand aloof from us may be constrained to say "Thy people shall be my people and thy God my God."

Signed on behalf of the Co. Lodge of West Peterborough.

A. HAMILTON,
County Master.

THE REPLY.

A committee was appointed which drafted the following reply, which was read by Bro. J. H. Delamere, D.G.M.:—

To the Worshipful County Master and Members of the County Orange Lodge of West Peterborough:

BRETHREN,—The Right Worshipful Grand Master, officers and members of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ontario East, desire to assure you that they heartily appreciate the cordial welcome you have extended to them on their visit to this loyal and progressive town of Peterborough, and also reciprocate the fraternal greeting expressed in your address.

It is with feelings of profound and heartfelt satisfaction that we learn of the prosperity of the Orange Association in this locality. We sincerely trust that this condition of things may long be continued amongst you.

It is a matter of supreme delight to us to know that the brethren of this county have been mindful of their obligations as Orangemen in maintaining the integrity of the Empire of which our Dominion forms such an important part and to find the principles of our glorious order, "Our God, our Country and our Queen," so well understood and so faithfully supported.

We heartily join you in imploring the Divine guidance in all our deliberations, and pray that the Grand Master above shall so direct the hearts and minds of the members of our Association that all our doings may be ordered by His governance and redound to His glory.

Signed on behalf of the Right Worshipful Grand Lodge of Ontario East at Peterborough, this 10th day of March, 1891.

THE BUSINESS PROCEEDINGS.

Bro. Jas. Clarke, Grand Master, of Ottawa, presided, while Bro. J. D. Delamere, Deputy Grand Master, of Minden, was in the deputy chair.

The report of the Grand Secretary was presented. It showed that a large number of new warrants had been issued during the past year, and a greatly increased membership.

The Grand Treasurer's report was also read, showing that the finances were in a very healthy and satisfactory condition, there being a larger surplus than ever before reported to the Grand Lodge.

The Grand Master delivered an eloquent address, in which he referred to the present condition of affairs in the motherland and in the Dominion. In doing so he spoke hopefully of the future. He also made reference to the live issues now before the country, evoking considerable interest in regard to this matter.

After some routine business the lodge adjourned until 7.30 in the evening.

THE EVENING SESSION.

In the evening a lodge of instruction in the secret work was held, which was interesting to the brethren and attended by a large number.

THIS MORNING'S SESSION.

The Grand Lodge resumed this morning with largely argumented numbers, many delegates having arrived last night and this morning. Among them were Hon. Mr. Clemow, P.G.M., of Ottawa, Rev. J. Halliwell, Grand Chaplain of B.N.A., of Vankleek Hill, Mr. Wm. Johnston, P.G.M., of Belleville, and Mr. John White, ex-M.P., of Roslin.

The lodge being duly tyled, the Grand Master formally opened proceedings.

A communication was read from the President and Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. extending a hearty invitation to the members of the Grand Lodge to their rooms, promising a cordial welcome.

On motion of Bro. Wm. Johnston, P.G.M., seconded by Bro. J. D. Delamere, D.G.M., it was unanimously resolved that the thanks of the Grand Lodge be conveyed by the Secretary to the Y.M.C.A. for their kind invitation.

Routine business was then taken up and occupied the attention of the brethren until after twelve, when an adjournment was make until 2 30 this afternoon.

ENTERTAINMENT.—A very successful entertainment was held in the Orange hall on Friday evening last, under the auspices of the High Park Brass Band. The snow storm in the evening no doubt prevented quite a number from attending. However, every seat in the hall was occupied, and judging from the number of encores and the excellent order given throughout the programme was one that was thoroughly appreciated by the large audience present. The band enlivened the entertainment with some of their choice selections. The following is the programme:—

Selection	Band
Song	Miss Edith Tully
Instrumental music	Williamson Bros.
Song	Miss Jennie Moyse
Dialogue	Rejected
Song	Mr. Geo. S. Matthews
Cornet solo	Herb. D. Williamson
Dialogue	The Unwilling Witness
Recitation	Miss S. Hamilton
Selection	Band
Instrumental music	Williamson and Archer (Bros.
Song	Miss Edith Tully
Dialogue	The Somnambulist
Song	Miss Jennie Moyse
Autoharp solo	Herb. D. Williamson
Reading	Miss Jennie Huston
Song	Geo. Matthews
Recitation	Miss Hamilton
Selection	Band

God Save the Queen.

The singing of the serio-comic song, "I Couldn't, Could I?" by Miss Moyse, brought forth great applause, as also did her other number, when she had to respond to an encore. Miss Moyse is a young lady possessing a full and very sweet voice and, having perfect control of it, she carries her audience right through. Mr. Geo. Matthews also sustained his already well gained reputation in the rendering of his two numbers. Mr. Matthews possesses a rich baritone voice and by careful training is now classed with the best vocalists of the day. We also predict a brilliant future for Miss Edith Tully. Miss Tully is a young lady who has had but little experience in public singing, yet she has never appeared before an audience without meeting with great success, and Friday night was no exception. I may say that each and every one of the performers did their part in a very creditable manner. The instrumental selections were rendered with taste and precision. The two humorous recitations by Miss Sarah Hamilton brought forth round after round of applause. The band boys worked to make their entertainment a success, and it was a success, as it was pronounced by all to be the best ever given in this section.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly Itching Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago, it would have saved me $200.00 and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body, and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales a baby's. All I used of them was $5 worth. If you had been here and said I you would have cured me for $200.00, you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (No. 2, page 47) in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 11, 1891.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

Beatrice acquiesced in all this wisdom, but somewhere in her secret soul she may have cherished the germ of an ambition to meet great multitudes of her fellow creatures, to test herself upon them, perhaps to delight and inspire them, if there were power in her so to do. Three years passed, and then Ed went to Europe. There was some pretext about his attending lectures at a university of mining engineering in Saxony, but it was a tolerably transparent pretext. That he should come back at the end of two or three years somewhat toned down was the best Mr. Randolph hoped. As to the question of funds, after a good deal of meditation Mr. Randolph came to the following rather eccentric determination: Ed was to be allowed to draw on the paternal resources for whatever sums of money he from time to time might require. "You may draw little or you may draw much, my son," the old gentleman said, "and, be it much or little, all your drafts will be duly honored. I shall not restrict you nor advise you, but I shall depend upon your own sense of honor and decency, as a Randolph and a gentleman, not to abuse my confidence in you." This speech seemed to the utterer of it very noble and impressive, and also very sagacious and worldly wise. For if to put a young fellow upon his honor will not make him reasonably virtuous and economical what will? Ed certainly showed himself pleased with the arrangement, if not so much impressed by the phrases in which it was announced to him. He was an enterprising and able youth, and probably expected to make a fortune of his own rather than spend his father's.

The next thing that occurred in this eventful year was an offer of marriage, emanating from no less distinguished a personage than Hamilton Jocelyn himself. Beatrix thought it was exceedingly funny he should do such a thing, and not altogether comfortable; but as it was instinctive with her to consider other people's feelings almost as much as her own, and sometimes more, she suppressed her emotions and expressed her acknowledgments, adding that she had no idea of marrying anybody. When Jocelyn found that her resolve was not to be shaken he very gracefully said that to have known and loved her was a privilege and a revelation for which he should never cease to be indebted to her. He said that he had perhaps presumed too much in hoping that she could ever care for a grizzled old fellow like himself, but that his sentiments would never change, and that if, at any future time, circumstances should led her to reconsider her present views, she would find him eager and grateful to throw himself at her feet. He concluded by requesting that she would forebear to mention the episode to any one, even to her father, lest the latter should be grieved to discover that she could not bring herself to consent to an alliance with his oldest friend. Beatrix replied that she had no wish to speak of what had occurred, and that she hoped they both would forget it as soon as possible. Hereupon Jocelyn took his leave, and went back to New York, probably regretting the issue of the adventure almost as much as he professed to do, although perhaps for reasons other than those he thought it expedient to allege.

The third event was the death of poor Professor Dorimar, which occurred suddenly and filled Beatrix with grief, notwithstanding that it appeared in one sense the most natural thing that could have happened to the good and magnanimous old man. He had had a habit of looking upward as he talked, and Beatrix had thought that he seemed much of the time communing with a better world, and perhaps derived from some angelic source his grand ideas about music and its mission to mankind. It was the first death the girl had ever witnessed, and it invested the three years of the association together of the pupil and her master with a sort of retrospective sanctity. They had been altogether the happiest years of Beatrix's life. The professor had taught her something else besides how to sing. Less by words than by some tacit, sympathetic influence he had led her to perceive and meditate upon the nobler and loftier aspects and capacities of human nature. As to his share in her vocal culture and her own proficiency he never had made any definite pronouncement; but on the morning before his death he requested her to sing for him the air from Handel's oratorio of "The Messiah"—"I know that my Redeemer liveth." When she had finished he said: "My child, you have enabled me to thank God that my voice was destroyed, and that my life had been for so many years a lonely disappointment. I have had triumphs and blessings that most men do not even know how to desire. A mighty scepter is in your hand," he went on, turning his grave and gentle eyes upon her. "I have helped to show you how to wield it. Power is very sweet, but it needs almost an angel not to use it harmfully. I don't know what life may be before you, my dear; but whatever it may be I trust that when you come to the end of it you will find as little cause to regret having met me as I have much cause to rejoice that I have known you." Beatrix hardly knew how to understand this at the time, but afterward the words frequently revisited her memory, and may have had some influence over her at critical moments of her career.

In autumn the old Randolph homestead looked as if it were showered with gold. The great elm trees, transmuted by the touch of this Midas of the seasons, stood in a yellow glory of myriad leaves, which every breath of the cool west breeze scattered profusely eastward, where, with the still unchanged grass, they formed a spangled carpet of green and gold. The apples thronged the crooked boughs of the orchard, some like glowing rubies, others like the famous fruit of the Hesperides, though there was no guardian dragon to give them a fictitious value. The broad roof of the house itself was littered with innumerable little golden scales, of workmanship far beyond the skill of any human goldsmith, yet of absolutely no market value. What is the significance of this yearly phantasmagoria of illimitable riches, worthless because illimitable? Is it a satire or a consolation? Does it mock the poor man's indigence or cause him to hope again for competence? It comes as the guerdon of Nature, after her mighty task is done; but when she has composed herself to her wintry sleep it is trodden into the earth and forgotten, and the new year begins his labors with new sap and naked buds. It is only the human world that has to bear the burden of inheritance; and perhaps we shall never enjoy true wealth till we have learned the lesson of the trees.

Poor Mr. Randolph certainly had little else beside autumn leaves wherewith to satisfy his creditors, and the winter of his discontent was close upon him. There is a philosophy for the poor and a philosophy for the wealthy, but the philosophy that can console the debtor has yet to be discovered.

BEHRING SEA DISPUTES.

Negotiations Take a Most Favorable Turn —A Basis of Settlement Reached Between the Two Governments.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The Behring Sea negotiations have taken a most favorable turn and the Governments of the United States and Great Britain appear to have at length reached a basis upon which to settle their difficulties, as is evidenced by a communication from Lord Salisbury to Sir Julian Pauncefote, British Minister here, which was laid before Secretary Blaine. In this communication Lord Salisbury says: "The despatch of Mr. Blaine under date of Dec. 17 has been carefully considered by Her Majesty's Government. The effect of the discussion which has been carried on between the two Governments has been materially to narrow the area of controversy. It is now quite clear that advisers of the President do not claim Behring Sea as a mare clausum, and indeed that they repudiate that contention in expressed terms. Nor do they rely as a justification for the seizure of British ships in the open sea upon the contention that the interests of the seal fisheries give to the United States Government any right for the purpose, which, according to international law, it would not otherwise possess, whatever importance they attach to preservation of the fur seal species and they justly look on it as an object deserving the most serious solicitude. They do not conceive that it confers upon any maritime powers rights over the open ocean which that power could not assert on other grounds. The claim of the United States to prevent the exercise of the seal fishery by other nations in Behring Sea rests now exclusively upon the interest which by purchase they possess in a ukase issued by the Emperor Alexander I, in the year 1821, which prohibits foreign vessels from approaching within one hundred Italian miles of the coast and islands then belonging to Russia in Behring Sea. * * * The ukase was a mere usurpation, but it is said that it was converted into a valid international law as against the British Government by the admission of this Government itself.

Lord Salisbury contends that not only can it not be shown that the British Government at any time has admitted the soundness of the pretension put forward by the ukase, but that it can be shown that it has categorically denied it on more than one occasion.

Lord Salisbury asserts that the treaty between Great Britain and Russia in 1825, on which Mr. Blaine lays stress, does not contain a word to signify the acquiescence of Great Britain in the claim put forward by Russia to control the waters of the sea for 100 miles from her coast. Lord Salisbury says no objection will be offered by his Government to the first and second questions proposed for arbitration by Mr. Blaine. They are

What exclusive jurisdiction in Behring Sea and what exclusive rights in the seal fisheries therein did Russia assert and exercise up to the time of the cession of Alaska to the United States?

How far were these claims of jurisdiction as to the seal fisheries recognized and conceded by Great Britain?

The third question is:

Was the body of water now known as Behring Sea included in the phrase "Pacific Ocean," as used in the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia, and what rights, if any, in Behring Sea were given or conceded to Great Britain by the said treaty?

Lord Salisbury does not object to referring the first part of the question to arbitration, but will not admit the decision of it can conclude the larger question involved. He excepts to the part concerning the "rights in Behring Sea conceded by treaty, and says Russia did not give any rights to Great Britain in Behring Sea because they were never hers to give away. He is willing to accept the proposition implied in the fourth question, that Russia's rights as to jurisdiction in Behring Sea passed unimpeached to the United States. As to the fifth question Lord Salisbury says the first clause, "What are now the rights of the United States as to the fur seal fisheries in the waters of Behring Sea outside of the ordinary territorial limits?" would be very properly referred to an arbitrator, but the subsequent clause which assumes that such rights could have grown out of the ownership of the breeding islands and the habits of the seals in resorting thereto involve an assumption as to the prescriptions of international law to which Her Majesty's Government are not prepared to accede.

Lord Salisbury concludes as follows: There is an omission in the questions which I have no doubt the Government of the President will be very glad to repair and that is the reference to the arbitration of the question what damages are due to the persons who have been injured in case it shall be determined by him that the action of the United States in seizing British vessels has been without warrant in international law. Subject to these reservations, Her Majesty's Government will have great satisfaction in joining with the Government of the United States in seeking by means of arbitration an adjustment of the international questions which have so long formed a matter of controversy between the two governments.

THE COLLIERY DISASTER.

A SPRINGFIELD JURY SAY IT WAS ACCIDENTAL.

Riders Respecting Safety Lamps and Powder, Daily Inspection of Sections of the Mine, and the Purchase of a Gas Tester.

SPRINGHILL, N.S., March 11.—The coroner's jury in the Springhill disaster find that the miners came to their death by an explosion which originated in No. 3 bord of No. 7 balance in the west side of the east slope on Feb. 21, 1891. They further believe the explosion was caused by the flame from a shot fired in said bord igniting coal dust and a certain portion of gas which might have been present at the time. They also believe that there was an unusual flame from the same shot, owing to a slip in the stone. They believe the explosion was accidental, that no blame attached to the management and that they have taken every precaution for the safety of their workmen. The jurors make these recommendations:

1. In future where safety lamps are used and in very dusty places powder should not be allowed.
2. They recommend that gaseous portions of the mine, before the men resume work after dinner, should be examined by competent officials.
3. They recommend that the local Government procure for the use of the Deputy Inspector of Mines a Shaw machine for testing gas.

PECULIAR FORGERY CASE.

A White Man Charged With Stealing the Franchise of an Indian.

CALEDONIA, March 11.—James Johnson, a white man living on the Indian reserve, was before D. McGregor, J.P., on the charge of perjury. Mr. DuVernet of Toronto appeared for the prisoner. It seems there are two Johnsons on the voters' list, one a white man and the other an Indian. Only one voted at the last election, the white man, and the charge was that he had no right to vote, he having been struck off by the judge, and that the lot he lives on was not the same as described in the voters' list. For the prisoner it was claimed that he was the man on the list, that he had voted at the elections before, and he believed that to be his name, as there was only one other James Johnson living on the Reserve, and he took the oath accordingly. The magistrate sent him for trial at the spring assizes, bail being allowed, himself in $400 and two others of $200 each.

An Election Affray in Nova Scotia Results in Murder.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 11.—A Yarmouth despatch says a bloody affray occurred at Eelbrook in that county on election night between William Porter, John White, John B. White, Joseph Bergue, Henry White and Sylvine Muise. The two latter were terribly beaten. Blood marks on the ice show that Muise reached home, but Henry White has not been heard of since and it is believed he was murdered. Hundreds of men have since been engaged searching for his body without success. Porter and the two John Whites are under arrest.

Mr. Pullman will send along a colony of his best artisans, and in a temporary plant to be put up near Melbourne the finishing touches upon the cars will be put.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

LEGALIZATION OF SALVATION ARMY MARRIAGES.

Cost of the Parliament Buildings—Labor Legislation—A Lively Debate on the Cabinet Changes.

TORONTO, March 12.—In the Assembly yesterday the changes in the Cabinet were discussed.

The Assembly had a short session yesterday, most of the time being taken up with a discussion on the changes made in the personnel of the Cabinet since the House last met.

Mr. Mowat explained that Mr. A. M. Ross, who had been Treasurer for some years, retired by an arrangement on account of growing infirmities. This made it necessary to appoint a new Treasurer and their choice fell on the member for Monck, Mr. Harcourt, who was an experienced man of business and one of the most accomplished speakers in the House. The defeat of Mr. Drury made it necessary to appoint a new Minister of Agriculture. When that gentleman was first appointed, Mr. Dryden's qualifications made it difficult to choose between them. They therefore came to the conclusion after Mr. Drury's defeat to appoint Mr. Dryden. Mr. Bronson was brought into the Cabinet, but because of his extensive business interests was unable to take a portfolio. He was one of the ablest business men in Canada and his advice would be of value to the country. He was a resident in the eastern part of the province and would represent the wishes of the people of that part. It was quite in accordance with British usage, said Mr. Mowat, to have one or two members in the Cabinet without portfolios. It was the practice in England. In Canada Hon. Frank Smith and Hon. J. J. C. Abbott were in the same position.

Mr. Meredith: "They are Senators!"

Mr. Mowat said that there were members without portfolios in the cabinets of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Quebec. It was therefore in accordance with constitutional usage in Canada. Mr. Meredith found fault with the number of lawyers in the Cabinet. Appointing a member to the Cabinet without a portfolio was objectionable in principle. Some of the reasons advanced for the change might be correct, but the paramount reason was that the influence of a Minister might be exercised in the election. The appointment of the member for Ottawa, Mr. Bronson, was highly objectionable on public grounds. Anyone having a contract with the Government should be excluded from the House. Mr. Bronson was the holder of timber licences under the Government, and therefore should be disqualified from sitting. The appointment was highly improper, especially as the reason advanced for it was that the Government would have the benefit of his advice on matters relating to timber limits. Mr. Bronson represented the timber interest in the Cabinet, and from that interest came one-third of the revenue of the province. His duty as an adviser of the Crown and his interests as a business man would conflict. The appointment was unfortunate, and ought not to have been made. Was it fair that Mr. Bronson should be called upon to advise the Crown on a matter in which perhaps his whole capital was invested? The appointment, Mr. Meredith repeated, was a most unfortunate one.

Mr. Meredith then turned his attention to the appointment of Mr. Dryden as Minister of Agriculture and condemned his interference in the recent Dominion elections. It was highly desirable to avoid introducing party politics into questions of agriculture. Mr. Drury did not do so when he was Minister. Surely it was not right to pit the agricultural interests of the Province against those of the Dominion. The interests of the Province could be better served by showing the farmers their glorious future rather than by belittling it. Energy and hope must back the capital of any country, and he trusted the Minister would not try to destroy that energy and hope.

Mr. Fraser said that Mr. Meredith had criticised the Government as a Government of lawyers. Did he mean that a government of lawyers would be less honest than any, other? Did he intend to convey the impression that his own profession could not be entrusted with public affairs? If so, he was casting a reflection on his own profession and besmirching his own professional brethren.

With regard to Mr. Bronson's appointment Mr. Fraser said that if a man was entitled to be sent to the House as a representative of the people he was not disqualified from acting as a member of the Government. There was less force in the objection seeing that Mr. Meredith himself voted for Mr. Carling, the brewer, who had intimate relations with the Inland Revenue Department of the Dominion Government. [Laughter.] The advice Mr. Bronson might offer would not be other than his honest conviction. It was of vital importance to have a lumberman in the Cabinet, because if the advice was honestly given it would be of great value.

Mr. H. E. Clarke said it was not right that a man having such large business relations with the Government should be placed where he could rule the decisions of the Government. It was the first time in the history of the country when all the Provincial Governments had taken part in a Dominion election. He hoped the Attorney-General was satisfied with the success of his efforts about Toronto. A scion of the house of Mowat was put up against a Conservative candidate. That night a cartoon showed the Attorney-General himself singing "O, where is my boy to-night?" [Loud laughter.] It was worth while bringing out the young gentleman in order to have the cartoon. The Minister of Agriculture, in supporting the policy of unrestricted reciprocity supplied by Erastus Wiman, which Edward Blake, a wiser leader, said led to political union, said the farmers of this country were impoverished. The fact was, the farmers were better off than those of any other country. Mr. Clarke taunted the different members of the Government with the lack of success their efforts met with in the recent election.

Mr. Clarke next took up the statement of Mr. Mowat on a public platform, that his Government had been supported by a popular majority of 15,000. This he showed to be fallacious. The total vote cast against the Government was 158,902 and the vote for the Government was 157,444, leaving the Government in a minority of 1458. By reason of the distribution of seats the Government had a large majority in the House, although a minority in the country.

Assembly Notes.

The Attorney-General, following the English law, introduced a bill to amend the law respecting the solemnization of marriage.

It makes valid every marriage duly solemnized according to the rites and customs of the Quakers, and is also retroactive. It also provides that:

Whereas, it appears that in the religious society called the Salvation Army there are officers, persons known as commissioners and staff officers whose position and duties in the society are substantially the same as those of clergymen and ministers in the churches and religious denominations mentioned in the first section of the act respecting the solemnization of marriages, the said act and the act respecting the registration of births, marriages and deaths shall hereafter apply to the said religious society and any duly appointed commissioner or staff officer of the society, being a man, chosen or commissioned by the said society to solemnize marriages and resident in Canada, shall have for the time being the same authority for that purpose as a clergyman or minister under the said act.

All the duties imposed upon and rights given to clergymen and ministers by the said act are hereby imposed upon and given to such commissioners and staff officers aforesaid.

The report of the Commissioner of Public Works was presented yesterday. With regard to the new provincial Parliament buildings it states that the masonry and brickwork of the western wing are nearly completed and ready for the roof, the work on the central portion and eastern wing is also in a forward state, and the whole building will be roofed in before the close of the building season of 1891. The expenditure up to Dec. 31, 1890, on capital account for the new buildings was $398,946. The expenditures in 1890 were $130,937 to Carroll, Gaylord & Vick for masonry, etc.; $11,008 to the Lionel Yorke estate for carpentry; $7160 to the St. Lawrence Foundry Company for iron work and $3000 to Mr. Waite as architect.

During last year the expenditure on Toronto Insane Asylum was $5390; on the Mimico branch, $171,981; on the Central Prison, $10,742; on the School of Practical Science, $55,780; on the Normal and Model schools, $11,430; on Osgoode Hall, $2800. The total expenditure in Toronto was about $339,000.

The total amount spent on public works and buildings in the province from Confederation to Dec. 31, 1890, was $7,505,210, of which $636,039 was spent last year.

Mr. Tait presented a number of petitions from Knights of Labor, Carpenter's and Builders' Unions and other labor organizations praying that all land held for speculative purposes should be taxed to its full value; that improvements made by labor should be exempted from taxation; that all persons in charge of stationary engines should undergo an examination; that the entire electorate of any municipality should be allowed to vote on money bylaws; that municipal councils should be given power to pass bylaws regulating the erection and construction of scaffolds.

THE BROCKVILLE TRAGEDY.

Trial of Ulman for Killing His Daughter's Suitor.

BROCKVILLE, March 11.—Thomas Ulman, charged with the murder of Oscar Vancamp last August, has been on trial all day. Vancamp's body was found on the Grand Trunk track last August badly mangled by a train and was buried next day, it being supposed he had met his death accidentally. However, afterwards sufficient evidence cropped up to warrant the indictment of Ulman for murder. It was shown by the evidence to-day that Vancamp was paying attention to Ulman's daughter and that Ulman objected to his doing so; also that he had threatened to kill Vancamp; and that on the evening of the night on which Vancamp's body was found Ulman and Vancamp were heard quarrelling.

Brant Spring Assizes.

BRANTFORD, March 11.—At the Brant Assizes yesterday a young man named Adolphus Bennett, who was charged with having set fire to a stack of hay in the vicinity of Eagle Place, and belonging to Mr. W. G. Raymond, was discharged.

Osgoode v. Smith.—A claim for $3000 made by plaintiff for wrongful arrest and false imprisonment. Early in the year plaintiff, Osgoode, hired a horse and rig from defendants, Messrs. Smith Bros., and failed to return or account for it, and at their instance he was arrested and brought back from Guelph, tried before Judge Jones, and discharged. The case was compromised by defendants paying $25 on account of costs, and withdrawing all claims against plaintiff.

A Barrie Man Killed.

PORT ARTHUR, March 11.—Andrew Graham of Rossport had been to Schreiber to make purchases, and was standing on the platform of the car with parcels under each arm, when he was thrown from his feet and fell under the wheels and badly mangled. He died in a few hours. The remains were sent to Barrie.

Opposed to Women as Deaconesses.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The New York Presbytery to-day discussed the question of the establishment or otherwise of the office of deaconesses in the Presbyterian Church, and a vote on the question resulted 21 in favor and 28 against the scheme and 30 to 21 against the ordination of women as deaconesses.

A Dead Baby in a Church.

LANCASTER, Pa., March 11.—The dead body of an infant was found in a box at the A. M. E. Church this evening, and the finder of the babe hung it by a leg to a tree to prevent the dogs getting it, afterward notifying the police.

Royal Humane Society Medal.

CANNINGTON, March 11.—Warden Glassford, in the presence of a large assemblage last evening, presented the Royal Humane Society medal to Norman Williams for having saved Fanny Philp from drowning at Port Perry on July 3, 1890.

ROCHESTER, March 11.—It is stated here to-night on good authority that the American Association is making an effort to induce Buffalo to leave the International League and join the American Association.

THE GABLES COLLAPSED

AND MANY CHILDREN MET DEATH IN THE RUINS.

Terrible Calamity in a Westphalia Synagogue—The Captain and Crew of a British Vessel Lost by a Wreck off Falmouth—Women and the Liberal Professions.

BERLIN, March 11.—The gables of the synagog at Mensel, Westphalia, had long been regarded as in an unsafe condition and their stability was not improved by the strain they were subjected to during the recent severe weather. This morning the gables collapsed and buried a number of children in the ruins. So far the bodies of four children have been recovered. The search at the ruins is still proceeding. It is hoped some of the little ones who were buried may be found alive.

THE SNOWSTORM IN ENGLAND.

Traffic in England as Well as Germany Interfered With.

LONDON, March 11.—Snow fell in London all last night and the storm has taken a fresh start, but in a milder form, in the north of England and in Scotland. In Dumfries the thermometer registered 15 degrees of frost. In the south-west of England a gale has been blowing intermittingly during the last 24 hours. Business at Bristol is suspended. Trains are snowed up in all directions. The Duke of Edinburgh, who was going to Devonport to resume his naval duties, was unable to travel beyond Taunton. The blizzard rages with unabated fury at Tiverton, where there are snowdrifts 20 feet high.

All the continental mail boats were several hours late. A Norwegian bark took fire in the channel last night while trying to light signals of distress and was destroyed.

Storms on the German Coast.

BERLIN, March 11.—Severe snowstorms prevail on the German Coast. Railway communication is greatly impeded and trains are snowed in at Hamburg, Holstein and Mecklenburg. Inland the weather is more mild, but heavy rains are falling and are causing the rivers to be flooded.

Crops in Ireland.

DUBLIN, March 11.—The Irish Local Government Board has issued its report on the situation in the congested districts. The corn crops are generally good and green crops are up to the full average. Other farm products, except potatoes, are up to the standard. In brief, the report represents the small farmers to be in good circumstances, but confronted with a scarcity of potatoes which has not been equaled in 30 years.

Women and the Liberal Professions.

BERLIN, March 11.—The Reichstag after a lengthy debate has rejected the petition to admit women to the liberal professions.

Jackson, Who Carried Off His Wife, Has to Defend His Home.

MANCHESTER, March 11.—Jackson, who ran away from Clitheroe, carrying off by force his own wife, is still besieged in his house at Bradford by the friends of Mrs. Jackson. The blockade was kept up throughout the night in spite of the blizzard. The police guarding the house had to be relieved every hour, owing to the intense cold. Fresh supplies of sympathizers supplied the places of the besieging party as needed. They threatened to take the house by storm, but the rapid reinforcement of the police prevented. Now they declare they will lynch Jackson the moment he dares show himself abroad. But he remains securely barricaded within his well-guarded house, and with friends to assist in his defence. He obstinately refuses to surrender Mrs. Jackson into the hands of her friends.

Behring Sea Settlement.

LONDON, March 11.—The Standard, commenting on the Behring Sea papers, says: Both nations will rejoice to know that the differences have narrowed until they have reached a shape at which both sides can agree to arbitrate. Nothing could be more barren or irritating than an attempt to appraise the relative value of the political gains.

The Times says: It is difficult to imagine that Mr. Blaine can persist in keeping the quarrel open after Lord Salisbury has accepted the bulk of his own proposed terms for a conference, or can make it a grievance. The terms declined have been shown to be manifestly unjust to England.

Went Down With the Wreck.

LONDON, March 11.—The British ship Bay of Panama has been wrecked off Falmouth and the captain, his wife and 12 of the crew have been drowned.

Household Suffrage for Belgium.

LONDON, March 11.—The Belgian Cabinet has declared in favor of household suffrage, which would increase the electorate from 600,000 to 750,000. The Liberals are not satisfied with the concession.

A New Minister.

BERLIN, March 11.—Dr. VonGossler, Prussian Minister of Public Worship, has resigned and is succeeded by Count VonZedlitz Trutzschler, president of the province of Posen. This is a victory for the Centre party.

The Newfoundland Question.

PARIS, March 11.—The Temps announces that it is in a position to confirm its statement that the Newfoundland negotiations had resulted in an agreement which would be submitted to French and English parliaments at the end of the week. The Temps adds that the status quo will be maintained until the decision of the arbitrators, to whom the dispute will be submitted, is rendered.

A Novel Commercial Enterprise.

BRUNSWICK, March 11.—A series of daring burglaries have lately alarmed the wealthy classes and baffled the police, owing to the skill with which they have been conducted and the intimate knowledge of houses and habits of the inmates shown by the robbers. At last the leader of the gang has been captured while in the very act, and to the surprise of everybody proves to be Heinrich Korset, a prosperous and respected merchant.

300 Pirates Beheaded.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Advices from China state that 300 Chinese pirates and robbers were beheaded in Kwantung province during the last few days of the old Chinese year.

Foreign Brevities.

Mrs. Maybrick pines in prison, where her duties as cook have almost worn her out.

King Milan himself ordered the strangling in prison of Helen Markovic and another woman who had attempted his life.

The Minister of the Italian Treasury has withdrawn the offer of $100,000 made by ex-Premier Crispi to the city of Genoa for the Christopher Columbus fetes.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

That Tired Feeling

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PHEBE MOSHER, 10 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

A $30,000 Wash Bill.

WATERBURY, Conn., March 11.—Mrs. Rice has brought suit against Rev. Father McAlleny of Meriden for $30,000. Mrs. Rice, who is a sister of the clergyman, claims to have done his washing for ten years and now sues for her wages.

Dropped Dead.

LYN, Ont., March 11.—A man named Robert Smith, who was employed by W. H. McNish of Elm Grove farm, on going from one house to another, a distance of a few yards, dropped dead yesterday evening. The cause is supposed to be apoplexy. He leaves a wife and family.

A Big Tea House Goes Under.

BOSTON, March 11.—The failure of Dudley Hall & Co. was announced at noon to-day. This firm, which is composed of Dudley C. Hall and Dudley Hall, has for many years carried on an extensive tea importing business at No. 146 State-street and has also dealt largely in sugar. The liabilities of the firm are $400,000.

Dyspepsia's victims are numbered by thousands. So are the people who have been restored to health by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

SPENCER AND HICKS BEACH.

Home Rule and Capital and Labor in the Campaign.

ROCHDALE, March 11.—Lord Spencer speaking this evening said the position of the Liberals toward Home Rule was unaltered. The present lamentable episode in the history of Ireland had raised further difficulties, but would not kill Home Rule. The Liberals fought for measures not for men.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, President of the Board of Trade, speaking at Cirencester said Parnell, though disowned by Mr. Gladstone and the Irish bishops, was still the most popular man in Ireland. Parnell had openly declared that the Irish Parliament must be independent. Henceforth, therefore, the Liberal dream of Home Rule consistent with the supremacy of the Imperial Parliament was groundless. The real question before the country in the coming election would relate to capital and labor, both parties putting Home Rule aside.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

Fears of Trouble—Balfour Orders all the Constabulary on Duty.

LONDON, March 11.—The Parnellites and the anti-Parnellites are already in discord over St. Patrick's Day, and it is feared that the celebration will be attended by many outbreaks between the factions.

It is stated that Balfour has given orders that all constabulary be kept on duty that day, large bodies to be concentrated wherever there is most danger of rioting. Parnell will, it is understood, spend the day in Cork.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, March 12.—Victor Cummings, a market gardener, was thrown from his rig yesterday and fatally injured in consequence of his foot becoming entangled in the lines.

The members of the Association of Provincial Land Surveyors resumed the business of their sixth annual convention yesterday morning in the Canadian Institute.

In the afternoon a deputation from the Association of Dominion Land Surveyors consisting of President Dennis, Messrs. Klotz, Fawcett, McArea, Drewry and Ogilvie, was received and an attentive hearing granted them. The deputation urged upon the Ontario Association the benefits of affiliation with the Dominion association. A long discussion on the question of affiliation followed, but no definite action was taken and the matter laid aside for further consideration.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Sankey, Van Nostrand, Gibson, Niven, Butler, Chipman, Bolger, Kirkpatrick, Stewart, Klotz, Aylesworth, Webb, Casgrain and Unwin was appointed to wait upon the Attorney-General and the Commissioner of Crown Lands and ascertain their views in regard to the incorporation of the association.

WRINKLES AT $300 EACH.

Beautiful and Rich Mrs. Huntington Tells About a Big Bill.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Mrs. Collis P. Huntington is not at all disturbed over the published story which told of a suit a massage doctress has brought against her husband for $900 for reducing his wife's neck of surplus flesh so that a diamond necklace would fit it, and for taking three wrinkles out of her face at $300 per wrinkle.

Mrs. Huntington is a beautiful woman—not at all too stout—and one marvels that she should have thought it necessary to consult Mme. Rowland at all.

"I found that I was becoming stout, and you know what that means to a woman; so I concluded to try massage," said Mrs. Huntington. "I do not think I called at her place more than 20 times, and she charges me $900. When she handed me my bill I did not even look at it until I reached home. Then you can imagine my astonishment when I saw the amount. She evidently thinks that we are able to pay, and that she is at liberty to charge whatever she pleases."

Fires and Explosions.

CHICAGO, March 11.—The Archer Manufacturing Company's premises were destroyed by fire to-night. Loss $200,000.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 11.—To-night at 11.30 o'clock a heavy explosion of gas blew out the entire rear of J. R. Weldin & Co.'s building, Diamond and Wood-streets. The building, which occupied the site of the Wiley House blown down by a cyclone which killed 13 persons a year ago, was destroyed together with the Germania Bank and the Chamber of Commerce building. Total loss $500,000.

A Turk and His Wives.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Four closely veiled Turkish women surrounded a bearded Turk in the rotunda of the Barge office yesterday and attracted a good deal of attention. They landed from the steamship La Gascogne and were one family, a husband and his four wives, bound for the Sandwich Islands. The head of the party is Shiek Ohan Solyman Gaidikhaw, who came overland from a little town in Galicia, Asia, called Mona. He manufactured sugar and confections. He was bound to the islands, where he has recently purchased a sugar plantation. The women are pretty. They are Circassians, purchased in the slave market of Turkey.

Fire at Thorold.

THOROLD, March 11.—John Cloy's ship chandlery, hardware and grocery store, and Archibald McIndoe's block and turning shop, together with all his stock and tools amounting to about $1000, were destroyed by fire this morning. McCloy's loss on building is $4000, insured for $2000; stock $7000, insured for $5000 in Ætna and Citizens' insurance companies.

Murdered on a Train.

SEVILLE, March 11.—A woman has been found dead in a train which arrived this morning in this city. An investigation made by the police into the cause of the woman's death shows that she had been murdered and robbed. Papers found on her body have the name of Harrison on them. It is inferred that the murdered person is either an American or English woman.

Burned His Will and Died in Peace.

AMSTERDAM, March 11.—Peter Van Evera, a wealthy farmer of the town of Root, made a will some years ago in which his property was unequally divided between his children. Mr. Van Evera died a few weeks ago, but shortly before his death destroyed his will and remarked, "I can now die in peace." His property amounts to over $200,000.

A Lover Loses His Nose.

CHICAGO, March 11.—Charles Mulvaney, a dapper little tailor, went out last night wearing a new suit of clothes, to call on his sweetheart in the next block. While en route home he quarrelled with an unknown man and the stranger drew a big knife, cutting off the tailor's nose and throwing it away. Mulvaney was picked up by the police and the unknown man ran off.

Died of Fright.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The horses attached to a buggy in which was Mrs. Mary Maren, aged 68, ran away in Fifty-Seventh-street to-night. The horses were soon stopped but Mrs. Maren died in a short time of nervous shock.

The Vacant Portfolios.

OTTAWA, March 11.—The politicians here are booming Peter White, M.P. for North Renfrew, for the speakership. It is reported that Sir Donald A. Smith will be invited to succeed Hon. Mr. Colby as President of the Privy Council.

3711 Immigrants on a Single Day.

NEW YORK, March 11.—There arrived at this port to-day 3711 immigrants, the largest number to arrive on any single day this season.

YOUTH WINS.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt has surpassed herself, it seemed, as Theodora that night, and both his lordship and Mrs. Vivian were in the highest spirits. As for Miss Jones, she sipped her coffee and said very little, but her eyes had an unpleasant glitter in them, as if her presence had not been so potent a preventive of the enjoyment of the other two as she had expected, not to say hoped.

Mrs. Ward and I went to our respective rooms soon afterward, leaving the others to their supper and their discussion of the play.

In the course of half an hour I was not a little surprised to hear a gentle tap at my door. I was even more surprised on opening it to find Mrs. Vivian there, dressed in a white robe de chambre.

"May I come in, Miss Delaney?" she asked in her pleading, childlike voice.

"Why, certainly," I made answer: "I hope nothing is the matter?"

"Oh, no," she said, with a nervous little laugh, "only I feel I must have a talk with some one, and you are the only person I feel I can confide in here. I hope you don't mind?" she added plaintively.

"You must think it strange," she went on confusedly, "that I should have come to you in this way—when—"

"When you have only known me a week, and when you have scarcely spoken to me during that time," I hastened to put in.

Mrs. Vivian flushed under her rouge and said:

"You see, Miss Delaney, we poor little ignorant women are half afraid of you learned ones, at first; but when we want some one to trust we come to you."

Now this was certainly an artfully turned compliment, and having uttered it, my fair visitor regained her equanimity and looked at me smilingly out of her big blue eyes.

"And what weighty secret do you think me a worthy depository of?" I inquired, smiling myself.

"Well, first of all I have a favor to ask. Will you be so very kind as to go with Lord Merivale and me to the Louvre to-morrow morning? You see he wants me to go, and I shall feel bound to ask Miss Jones to accompany us if you will not, for" (here Mrs. Vivian looked down shyly at her white hands in her lap) "I am too young to go about with a gentleman alone—until—until——" Here followed a pause, and to relieve her evident embarrassment I said:

"Until you are formally engaged, you mean, is it not?"

Mrs. Vivian covered her face with a tiny scrap of lace, presumably a handkerchief, and began to sob plaintively.

"He began to love me when I was in my trouble—when my husband died," she said between her sobs, "but he was poor then, and my income is small, and there was Pussy to think of—but now he is come back, and everything is possible, and Miss Jones will try and upset it all unless you help me."

"And do you love him?" I inquired with interest.

Mrs. Vivian left off crying, and clasping her hands tightly together looked at me mournfully, and presently said, with a sorrowful shake of her blonde head, "My heart is buried in Pere la Chaise; it is Pussy I am thinking of—my sweet little girl whom my mother-in-law's machinations have deprived me of. As Lady Merivale I could do so much for her. What mother would not sacrifice herself in such a cause?"

"Well, Mrs. Vivian," I remarked meditatively, "it is scarcely for me to venture to give an opinion on such a delicate subject, but if you do not love Lord Merivale do you not think you could find some other way of being of use to your little girl without sacrificing yourself?"

"But I like him very much," the widow hastened to explain, "and if we were married I should get to love him."

The brass clock on my mantelshelf now struck a quarter to one, so my visitor rose to go, in a little flutter of apologetic words and gestures at having deprived me of my rest.

As she stood outside my door she whispered, "Then you will go with us to the Louvre to-morrow morning?"

"Yes, I will go," I replied. And then with another good night she disappeared down the gallery, and I returned to my seat by the fire to meditate on what I had heard.

II.

We all breakfasted in the long dining room at Mme. Laroche's and at no fixed hour. Alphonse brought a small pot of coffee for each of us as we appeared.

When I reached this room the morning after the events just described, Miss Jones was just commencing breakfast.

"Good morning, Miss Delaney," said Miss Jones as I entered. "You are later than usual this morning. I suppose Mrs. Vivian kept you up late."

"Oh, did she tell you?" I answered unconcernedly, as I seated myself at the table and rang for my coffee.

"She tell me!" laughed Miss Jones, "she never tells me anything! You ought to know that; besides, she is not down yet, and won't be till Lord Merivale's step is heard on the stairs—then she will come down and the two will breakfast together."

"You seem to be a walking catalogue of the concerns of these two," I observed in a tone I meant to be withering. I suppose it was not, for Miss Jones laughed good humoredly, and said:

"I've not watched Mrs. Vivian's tactics all this time for nothing. From the time her husband died, and Mr. Bernard was so kind to her, she made up her mind to keep him in tether—in case he came into the property. You see that letter lying by her plate? It's in her mother-in-law's handwriting. Just note her face when she sees it."

This voluble lady had scarcely finished speaking these last words when the door opened and Mrs. Vivian entered, followed by Lord Merivale.

Mrs. Vivian was looking lovelier and younger than I had ever seen her. She was wearing a pearl gray morning wrapper, which trailed in silken folds behind her, making a gentle "frou frou" as she walked. All down the front of this robe little black crepe butterflies (incongruous idea!) were fixed, in token of mourning, while upon the golden ringlets which adorned her shapely little head the most coquettish of tidy widow's cap sat jauntily.

I could not help observing during breakfast how very attentive Lord Merivale was to the pretty widow. I observed, too, an angry frown which gathered for a moment on the lady's white brow at sight of the letter which lay on her plate. She took it up unopened, and put it into the pocket of her peignoir.

When I was tying my bonnet strings in my own chamber half an hour later, I heard something about that epistle. Mrs. Vivian had come to my door with her last night's gentle appeal for admittance, and had settled herself near my toilet table quite comfortably, this time unasked.

"I've had such a letter from that horrid old woman, my mother-in-law," Mrs. Vivian complained. "It will quite spoil my morning's pleasure—she says she is coming to Paris to see me about Pussy—she is going to bring Pussy—she may be in Paris now for anything I know, for her letter is dated three days ago, and must have missed the post somehow. She is sure to make an upset between Lord Merivale and me—that is if she can—but he is fond of me. Besides she says she has had a proposal for Pussy, most suitable in every way——"

"A proposal for your little daughter?" I cried with an incredulous laugh. "Impossible. Why it savors of India. Your little girl is only 9 years old, isn't she?"

"She must be more than that," admitted Mrs. Vivian, reflectively. "To tell the truth I have quite lost the count. I was married when I was so young, and they took Pussy away at once; they thought me too much of a child myself to care for a baby properly, I suppose." Here the pretty widow sighed. "I can't help wishing," she went on, with a sudden outburst of confidence, "that it might be all settled between Lord Merivale and me before I am called upon to discuss this affair of Pussy's with my mother-in-law. If the person who wants to marry Pussy were only like Lord Merivale I would give my consent at once, for such a man would make her happy."

An Example Worth Following.

Mrs. ——, living near Stratford, Ont., has had an experience worth relating; and her plain, truthful story may, in some measure, be the means of guiding aright other women who now suffer as Mrs. —— once did. In her letter to us she says:—"Eighteen months ago my health began to fail. I was nervous, and always felt weary and worn out; I did not sleep well, and got up in the morning almost as tired as when I went to bed. I was assisted in the housework by my daughter, a girl of seventeen, who, owing to my continued weak condition, was obliged to work a great deal, and neglect her studies. A relative from Toronto paid us a visit, and was surprised to find me so changed. Without asking my permission she drove to Stratford, and came back with a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, which she told me I must commence to use. I had often heard of it before, even in this neighborhood, but had not thought of using it for my own troubles. I commenced its use, and in two weeks felt much stronger and slept better. After using it for about five weeks I was as well as ever before. Now my appetite is good, I sleep soundly, rest as peacefully as a child, I am fatter, and my digestion is perfect."

THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

Fire in a Bake Shop.

A few minutes before two o'clock this morning an alarm of fire called out the brigade to extinguish a blaze that had been discovered in the bake shop in rear of Mr. Angliyse's residence on Reid-st. When the fire was first seen it had a good start but, the firemen were promptly on hand and saved the building in a damaged condition. It was a brick structure, was owned by Mr. Angliyse and was uninsured. The fire is supposed to have originated from the bake oven. The damage will be small.

He Voted Right but got Drunk.

Jas. Newland was a man from Garden Hill who was picked out of the mud and water where he was lying on the street at one o'clock this morning and taken to the police station. At the Police Court this morning he was charged with drunkenness and pleaded hard to be allowed to go. He said he had voted for Mr. T. Dixon Craig while his employer had told him to vote for Mr. Grundy. The employer was angered and the trouble that ensued drove Newland to drink. The Magistrate allowed him his liberty upon promising to go home on the first train.

CANON DU MOULIN'S DELIVERANCE ON THE BIBLE.

A Large Congregation Listens to the Eloquent Clergyman—The Literary, Human and Divine Elements in the Holy Scripture.

The eloquent, learned and practical deliverance of Canon Du Moulin, of St. James Cathedral, Toronto, at St. John's church last evening was listened to by a large congregation. It was the fifth of the series of Wednesday evening Lenten lectures. The subject of the address was "The Bible" and for about an hour the eloquent clergyman held the interest and attention of his audience with an address which, aside from its delivery, was marked as the result of much thought by an able, well-informed intellect.

Canon Du Moulin in opening said there were three books which had been given to them all,—the Bible, the prayer book and the hymn book. They had them in their hands, they used them in their churches and they used them in their houses, they adorned their tables and were found in their libraries, and if they only kept them constantly in use and keep them in their hearts and made them parts of their lives they would do well indeed. With this end in view he intended to offer some remarks concerning the first of these three books—the Bible. It had been his privilege to speak to them firstly, of the prayer book, and then secondly of the hymn book, and that evening it was again his privilege to speak to them of the Bible. The Bible was an endless theme and in order not to deliver an endless lecture he had selected from the cluster surrounding it three of the elements of the Bible, first, the literary, second, the human, and third the divine element. Then the speaker took up the first of these, pointing out in the first place that they were not to look upon the Bible as a collection of books but as one single book. These books, he said, that were generally spoken of as the Bible were the most ancient in the world, and this alone, he claimed, should secure for the Holy Book great veneration, especially in an age like the present when there was such general veneration for ancient things, so much so that it had become almost a craze. The same spirit for antiquity in other things should secure a veneration for the Bible. He asked them in reading the Bible to give that same fair play that they did in reading or criticising works of history or the writings of any library. Some opened the Bible at random and read in a careless, desultory way and found it unintelligible and puzzling information, but they should remember that in the Bible they had a complete library and before they opened and read they should acquaint themselves with the necessary steps to understand' they should read the Bible carefully, consecutively and read it through, and he ventured to say that it would appear to be a very different Book than it did before, a flood of light would be poured upon the sacred page and no one could complain of it being dry or unintelligible reading. Not only was the Bible literary but

THE LITERARY ELEMENT,

IT WAS HUMAN.

By this he meant that it had pleased God to save man by man. By one man came sin into the world and so by one man salvation was brought into the world. The revelations were not made by angels or supernatural beings, but the ordinary plan of revelation was through men like themselves. The speaker then went on to show the human agency God had used in giving salvation to men, raising up and commissioning men to teach, preach and write, but in doing so, he maintained, he did not destroy their human nature, their personalities. Their inspiration did not destroy the individuality of the writers of the Bible, but each author's peculiarities and personal characteristics came out in his writing, leaving the human impress, the personality, just as distinctly as in any writings of the present day. He illustrated by referring to the writings of Moses, Samuel, David, Jeremiah, Isaiah, Ezekel, Elijah, Matthew, Mark, John, Paul, Peter, James. He asked them to remember this human element and not think of the authors of the Bible as though they were so many phantoms and ghosts of the past, but rather as men of like passions as themselves, clothed with flesh and blood. The practical outcome of this would be a perpetual stream, a well of deep consolation to them when they read the writings of men of like passions and dispositions as themselves, subject to the same weakness and infirmities as they were. After beautifully dwelling upon this thought the speaker passed on to

of the Scripture, pointing out that if they were God's children He must have something to say to them and they to Him. God made his revelation through the Bible and they communicated with Him by prayer. The revelations of God possessed some distinct characteristics, a few of which he proceeded to dwell upon. He spoke first of the paternity of God made manifest in the Scripture, and then pointed out the certainty which was in the statements of the Bible, they being unequivocal and without doubt. The last of the characteristics he spoke of was the difficult and puzzling portions of the Scriptures, portions in which he gloried, and in which he thought they had the most satisfying proof that the writings were the reflections of a mind whose ways were inscrutable. While He had written everything necessary for salvation and good-living as plain as the A. B. C.'s, yet He had written vast portions which eternity could not explore. These portions he advised them to make the subject of study, and they would be strengthened thereby, their faith in the Holy Scriptures, in the promises of God, in a prayer-hearing and divine-teaching, would be strengthened. In closing he asked them what they would think of a man who possessed a library composed of sixty-six books by fifty-two different authors, and which took 1600 years to complete, an inestimable gift, and never read or study it. He emphasized this point, and said some might have the Bible in their houses, carry it in their processions, have it in their lodge rooms, fight around it and yet never to know it or study it. This was the poorest thing in the world. In conclusion he urged them to read, learn and inwardly digest the Holy Word.

PETERBOROUGH WINS AGAIN.

Three Wins and One Defeat is Peterborough's Record in the Challenge Cup Series.

Yesterday was not an ideal day for a curling match, but nevertheless the sturdy stane hurlers of Lindsay and Peterborough met for the fourth time in the Lindsay-Peterborough challenge cup series. The ice was heavy, placing the Peterborough men rather at a disadvantage as they are not used to heavy sliding, while their opponents have often to play on soft ice.

However, the Peterborough men succeeded in bringing a victory out of a heavy game. At Peterborough Sam Ray and C. McGill were the skips, but they were ten shots behind when the last end was played. At Lindsay the veteran skip, Thomas Rutherford, carried his rink and the club to victory by scoring a majority of 13 shots over his opponent, while T. P. Attrill gave a majority of 1 shot. This left Peterborough 4 shots ahead all round.

This was the fourth game in the challenge cup series, and the victory was the third for Peterborough out of the four. Should no more games be played by the absence of ice, the cup will come here for this year.

The scores and rinks in yesterday's game were as follows:

The most attractive entertainment of the season will be the Concert on Tuesday evening, 17th March inst., at Bradburn's Opera House, under the auspices of the Catholic Association.

Those of our readers who have had the pleasure of hearing Mr. S. H. Clark, the talented elocutionist, will be glad to know that an opportunity will be given them of renewing that pleasure at the Catholic Association concert here on the 17th March. When last in Peterborough Mr. Clark recited "The Chariot Race," taken from General Lew Wallace's great work, "Ben Hur," and the audience were entranced at his vivid description of the exciting incidents of the race in the vast amphitheatre at Rome. At the coming concert Mr. Clark will recite an equally stirring piece, but one not heard here before, being an adaptation by himself of "Catch Weight, Owners up." Mr. Clark has a beautifully modulated voice, fine stage presence, and is possessed of that intense nervous dramatic power that enables him to completely enter into the spirit of the actions he is reciting and to carry his audience with him.

The plan of reserved seats for the Catholic Association concert on 17th March inst. is now open and seats may be secured at W. R. Greatrex's store, Hunter-st. 1d60

THE GRAND LODGE CLOSES

THE ELECTION AND INSTALLATION OF GRAND OFFICERS.

The Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East Transacts Considerable Business—Napanee to be the Next Place of Meeting.

The Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East concluded its business Wednesday night about eleven o'clock and adjourned until next year. The session was a busy one for the delegates and considerable business of interest to the Order came up, was discussed and disposed of. The visiting members were much impressed with Peterborough's appearance and business activity.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON SESSION.

At Wednesday's afternoon session a telegram was read from M. W. Grand Master N. Clarke Wallace, of the Grand Lodge of B. N. A., congratulatory the Grand Lodge of Ontario East upon its prosperity. On motion, the congratulatory greetings were ordered to be reciprocated.

The Grand Lodge then took into consideration the mistakes that had arisen from a lack of a thorough understanding of the principles of the Order, through this jurisdiction. It was decided to make an appropriation to pay an organizer to visit the different lodges to instruct the members in the principles of the Order, Senator Clemow promising to supplement the appriation for the purpose by an equal sum.

A resolution of condolence was passed to be forwarded to the relatives of the late Rev. W. M. Pattyson, Deputy Grand Chaplain.

The question of the extension of the usefulness of the Orange Mutual Insurance Scheme was taken up and furnished the subject for a long and animated discussion, which occupied the greater part of the afternoon.

A resolution of thanks was passed to the Peterborough Foresters for their kindness in granting the Grand Lodge the use of their hall, and an adjournment was made until seven o'clock.

THE CONCLUDING SESSION.

At seven o'clock the Grand Lodge reassembled and the election of officers was proceeded with, resulting as follows:—

GRAND MASTER.—James Clarke, Ottawa.

1ST DEPUTY GRAND MASTER.—J. H. Delamere, Minden.

2ND DEPUTY GRAND MASTER.—T. A. Kidd, jr., Burritt's Rapids.

GRAND CHAPLAIN.—Rev. A. Wilson, Belleville.

GRAND SECRETARY.—Major A. Van Ingen, Newcastle.

GRAND LECTURER.—R. H. Holland, Port Hope.

The officers elected were installed by R. W. Wm. Johnston, P.G.M., of Belleville.

A large amount of routine business was afterwards transacted, and about 11 o'clock the Grand Lodge rose, after singing "God Save the Queen," and "Auld Lang Syne," to meet at Napanee the first Tuesday in March, 1892.

FROM HARVEY.

Correspondence of the Review.

COUNCIL MEETING.—The Harvey Council met at the Clerk's office on March 9th, 1891, pursuant to adjournment. The members were all present. Communications were read from the editor of the Times re printing for 1891, also from the County Treasurer re grant to the Gannon's Narrows road. The auditors' report was read and adopted. Samuel Purser's account was read, for supplies for Mr. Abbot. A by-law was passed appointing pathmasters, pound-keepers, fence-viewers, deputy returning officers for the current year. The Clerk was instructed to remove from the Harvey collector's roll the taxes charged against Mrs. Holt for the year 1890. The Collector was instructed to push the collection of the unpaid taxes for 1890. Orders were drawn on the Treasurer as follows:—Archie Wilson, for gravel, $7; Clerk, on postage account for 1891, $6; Wm. Weir, salary as treasurer 1890, $45. The Clerk was instructed to request the County Treasurer of Peterborough to remove from his books the sum of $4 for statute labor charged against the west half of lot 9, concession 10, Harvey, for 1890, as statute labor was done by Mr. Trennum. Mr. Hilliard's application to be allowed to commute his statute labor in Harvey for five years, was granted, provided he agrees to keep in repair that part of the Burleigh Road for the said term. On motion, the Council adjourned to meet at the school house near Scott's mills on the 6th of April next.

Probably there are more cases of cold in head and catarrh during March than any other month in the year. As a precautionary measure keep Nasal Balm in the home. It never fails.

Catarrh

Is a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla — the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

THURSDAY, MARCH 12, 1891.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

Born and brought up in the custom of sufficient resources, he had never contemplated the possibility of want. There had seemed to be something noble and high minded in meeting without question all demands upon him, but when the supply actually ran short things wore a different aspect. Had he spent his whole fortune simply in paying his son's drafts he would at least have had the comfort of putting the whole burden of the responsibility on his son's shoulders. But unfortunately the larger part of the loss was due to private rashness of his own. When he found that Ed's rapacity was getting serious the devoted gentleman betook himself to Wall street and speculated there. The brokers treated him as Richard III proposed to treat his wife—they had him, but they did not keep him long. His speculations after he returned home were probably more edifying than those he indulged in on the street.

The revolting suspicion that he had been a fool began to germinate in Mr. Randolph's mind. This suspicion, which is the salvation of some men, is the destruction of others. The integrity of Mr. Randolph's moral discrimination began to deteriorate from that hour. Having enacted all his life the part of his own golden calf in the wilderness, his overthrow left him destitute of any criterion of conduct. He talked violently and volubly about his wrongs, and discussed various schemes, more or less impracticable and improper, of evading his liabilities. Beatrix was naturally the chief sufferer from this ungainly development of her father's character, and she was also obliged to bear the brunt of most of the concrete unpleasantness of their situation. She had to talk to the creditors, to extenuate her father's side of the case, to hold out fair hopes and to smooth over disappointments, and when she had wearied herself in parleying with the enemy she had before her the yet harder task of pacifying and encouraging her father, who had listened to the dialogue from the head of the stairs, and fell upon her with a petty avalanche of complaints, questions, suggestions, scoldings and querulousness. Beatrix loved her father with all her heart, but she was of a penetrating and well balanced mind, and often had difficulty in not feeling ashamed of him. Insensibly she began to treat him as a fractious and supersensitive child, who must at all costs be humored and soothed, and when she felt her own strength and patience almost overtaxed she would only say to herself, "No wonder poor father has to give up when I find it so hard."

But her troubles did not end with her father. There was a certain Mr. Starcher, the grocer's son; the grocer divided with the innkeeper the highest social consideration of the village. He was a young gentleman of highly respectable character and education. After leaving school he had studied for a year at a business college in New York; he was a member of the young Men's Christian association, and a person of gravity and religious convictions. A week or two after Mr. Randolph's misfortune became known he put on a suit of black clothes, relieved by a faded blue necktie, and called formally on Miss Randolph. After the first courtesies had been exchanged he said that he desired in the first place to put the minds of Miss Randolph and her good father at ease regarding the little account between his firm and them. The money was not needed, and so far as he was concerned might remain unpaid indefinitely. "And I should like to say, too," he continued, with a manner of almost melancholy seriousness and a husky voice, "that groceries—or anything else I could get you—might be yours, permanently, if I could—you would—that you might consent to unite your life to mine. My father contemplates retiring from active business. I have never before spoken to you of this, but in seasons of trouble—we my things—and I have often thought, when we were singing in the choir together—that—we might be very happy—that it was our destiny. I have been in New York and seen the great world, but you are the wife I would choose from among them all." He had a smooth, round, fresh colored, innocent face, that seemed made for dimpling smiles, but which never indulged in them.

Beatrix felt a sensation of absurd alarm, like the princess in the fairy tale, under a spell of enchantment to mismate herself in the most grotesque manner conceivable. Mr. Starcher was so much in earnest, and so ludicrously sure, apparently, that the success of his suit was among the eternal certainties, that a vision of a long wedded life with him, amid an atmosphere of meal tubs, salt cod and pickles, interspersed with psalm tunes and solemn walks to and from church on Sundays—this desperate panorama of inanimate existence rose up before her in such vivid imaginative vraisemblance that she was impelled to protest against it with more than adequate vehemence. She gasped for breath, rose from her chair and said: "Mr. Starcher, it is terrible; I would rather die!" Then, perceiving, compassionately, that he would feel cruelly wounded as soon as his astonished senses enabled him to comprehend the significance of her words, she added, "It would be wicked for me ever to think of being married; you must see that I"— Here she paused, partly from emotion, and partly because she was unable at the moment to bethink herself of any conclusive argument in support of her assertion that for her, marriage would ever be a crime. One certainly would not have drawn that inference from the superficial indications. A silence ensued, prickly with spiritual discomfort. Mr. Starcher was the first to find his tongue, and he carried off the honors of the encounter by observing with tearful gentleness that he should claim the privilege, just the same, of not presenting the little account for settlement. This magnanimity was none the less genuine because the materials for it were slender, and Beatrix long afterward found comfort in recalling it to mind.

But there was yet another adversary for her to engage, and he was in some respects more formidable than Mr. Starcher, because his position and education rendered his pretensions less monstrous—nay, there even seemed to be a sneaking disposition on Mr. Randolph's part to accord him at least a negative support. Mr. Vinal, the Unitarian clergyman, was in fact, from an unworldly point of view, a tolerably inoffensive match. He was studious, decorous and endowed with grave and unobtrusive manners. He was not handsome, but there was a certain masculine concentration in his close set gray eyes and long narrow chin which was not in itself unpleasing.

His voice, if somewhat harsh, was resonant and assured; and, coming as it did from a chest apparently so incapacious, produced a sensation of agreeable surprise. It would have been unreasonable not to respect the man, and churlish not to feel amiably disposed toward him; but for Beatrix it was impossible to love him. He lived in a little white wooden house with green blinds, close to the white, green blinded church. He possessed an imposing library, in which was not a single book that Beatrix could have brought herself to read, and the main object of his endeavors was, apparently, to make all the rest of the world think and live like himself. Moreover, though he approved of music, he neither knew nor cared anything about it.

Mr. Vinal began his operations by a private interview with Mr. Randolph, from which he came forth with a countenance whose serenity made Beatrix's heart sink. The dialogue which followed was of extreme interest to both of them.

"Have you made any plans regarding your immediate future?" the minister began, in an unembarrassed and businesslike tone. "We cannot doubt, you know, that providence, in bringing this affliction upon you, has had some wise and merciful end in view. You have talents; perhaps but for this you might have kept them folded in the napkin. Adversity forces us out of our natural idleness, and stimulates us to use what means we have to win our own way in the world. Have you thought of anything to do?"

CHANGE OF BUSINESS

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and would bespeak for them the same support as you have accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought that a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question we have purchased the above business from Mr C. N. Brown, who will still continue as manager, in Flavelle's Old Stand, Simcoe-st.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of every one to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of

FLOUR, FEED, CHOP, Etc.,

and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices.

We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred in the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

MURDERER WILLIAMS.

JUSTICE IS SLOW, BUT APPEARS TO BE SURE.

Arrested at Albany, N. Y., for a Crime Committed a Year or More Ago—Extradition Proceedings to be Taken at Once.

WINDSOR, March 12.—A telegram was received this morning from Albany, N.Y., announcing that Williams, the murderer of Lyman, was under arrest there. The utmost secrecy surrounded the telegram as the authorities did not want the report out until it was confirmed. Magistrate Bartlet has referred the matter to the Ontario authorities as to the best course to adopt. It is very probable that Detective Campeau will be sent to Albany to investigate the truthfulness of the telegram. It will be remembered that in the summer of 1889 Williams, a colored man, and William Lyman, a white man, a driver for W. J. McKee, quarreled while loading lumber. At 6 o'clock while Lyman was in the stable and in a stooping position, Williams struck him on the head with the neckyoke, smashing in the skull, from which he died. Williams was tracked over to Detroit, but there all trace of him was lost. It is now believed he is in the clutches of the law.

Van Camp Died Accidentally.

BROCKVILLE, March 12.—The jury in the case of Thomas Utman, who was charged with having murdered, near Prescott, in September of last year, one Oscar Van Camp, and afterwards placing the body on the railway track to be run over by a train and so hide the crime, returned a verdict at a late hour last night unanimously acquitting the prisoner.

FIRE AT AYLMER.

A Block of Stores Destroyed With Their Contents.

AYLMER, March 12.—Aylmer was visited by another fire last night, involving the destruction of the block of buildings owned by the Farthings estate, and occupied by Mariott & Shork, grocers, and Helstrop & Mann, furniture dealers. The greater part of Helstrop & Mann's furniture stock was destroyed, and also a very large portion of Mariott & Shork's. The loss to the Farthings estate on building is $3500. Insurance $2000 in the Fire Insurance Association; Mariott & Shork's loss $3000, fully insured for $2500 in the London Assurance Company. Helstrop & Mann's loss $3000; insured in the Imperial for a like amount.

A WIDOW RESPONSIBLE.

A Bridegroom Arrested For Bigamy a Week After His Marriage.

MILTON, March 12.—Yesterday Hugh Foster, aged about 40, was brought from Toronto township by Constable Bradley and lodged in jail. He has a wife and family here very respectable. Last fall he left them and went to Muskoka with a widow, driving there and back with a rig which he hired here. For keeping the rig too long he spent a month in jail. He did not take up with the widow again but went to Toronto township, where he was married on the 3rd inst. to a girl belonging to a respectable family named Clarkson. A Miltonian hearing of the second marriage caused Foster's arrest by telling the girl's family about his Milton wife.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

BALFOUR OUTLINES THE WORK OF RELIEVING DISTRESS.

Chili's President Assassinated — 300 Natives Murdered—Loss of a Ship With All Hands—Arbitrators to Decide the Newfoundland Question.

LONDON, March 12.—In the House of Commons this evening in committee of supply Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, asked a credit of £55,081 for the relief of distress in Ireland. He explained that the Government had adopted every possible means to expedite relief works, which otherwise could not have been begun before April or May. He spoke highly of the assistance farmers, priests and landlords had rendered, which had saved the Government much expense. Altogether 800 men were employed on these works, and about 40,000 persons had been relieved. He had carefully enquired into the condition of every district, availing himself of every information, official and unofficial, and many private sources. He never allowed a stint of actual starvation to be 24 hours in his possession without instructing an immediate special enquiry, and in every case of absolute destitution reported he had found complete, and in many cases fraudulent, misrepresentation. There had been no case of starvation on the mainland, but there had been a great risk of starvation on the islands, and therefore special steamers had been chartered to investigate the condition of the inhabitants and to convey meal and other supplies to them. He dwelt upon the difficulty of obtaining an adequate supervision of relief works in order to ensure that all deserving and no undeserving persons should be employed. In some districts where reliable lists of deserving persons could be obtained 7 shillings was paid weekly to persons on relief works, but in other districts where it was impossible to obtain such lists the men were paid only in kind, meal to the value of 11 pence being given daily to each workman. This had the effect of diminishing the demand for work.

Total number persons engaged on relief works to Feb. 28	7,807
Total amount of wages paid	£31,139
Weekly wage bill	3,000

Mr. Morley said he generally approved the points of Mr. Balfour's relief scheme for Ireland.

Thomas Wallace Russell (Liberal) said that never before had distress in Ireland been so admirably met as at the present time.

The credit asked for by Mr. Balfour was adopted.

The House, 130 to 40, adopted a vote of £136,000 for light railways in Ireland.

The Newfoundland Question to Be Settled by Arbitration.

Cutting Down Her Military Expenditures.

BERLIN, March 21.—Advices from Berlin show that the Government continues to cut down the expenditures for military equipment. At Spandau the force employed in the manufacture of small arms has been reduced from 3000 to 810, and work is also less active at the dockyards since the Reichstag gave notice that extravagance in naval construction would not be permitted. It is stated also that for the present the plan of converting the city of Breslau into a great fortress will not be carried out.

FOUGHT ON A TRAIN.

Another Attempted Murder on a Spanish Railway Train.

MADRID, March 12.—The woman found murdered in a railway train at Seville yesterday was a French dressmaker. The post mortem examination showed that she had been repeatedly stabbed with a knife and that her throat had been cut. The assassins were surprised at their work by the stoppage of the train and jumped out, dropping some bank notes and gold, which were afterwards found covered with blood. Three men have been arrested on suspicion of being the murderers.

Last evening a robber entered a first-class carriage on a train at Saragossa and with a knife stabbed one of the passengers, inspector-general of telegraphs. The latter overpowered the assassin and threw him off the train. The man was afterwards captured in a dying condition.

QUEEN OF THE LAUNDRESSES.

The Procession of Parisian Laundresses This Year.

PARIS, March 12.—The procession of the laundresses in Paris, which is always one of the sights of the city, was this year a most marked success. In fact people say it has not been equaled in years. There were hundreds of thousands of people along the boulevards, all eager to see the parade and all testifying to its excellence as compared with the last ones. The heroine of the occasion, she who has been elected by her fellows as the queen of the laundresses, is Mademoiselle Louise Sicard, a beautiful brunette of twenty-six summers. She is a statuesque creature of a tall and commanding figure, which, though powerfully built, is nevertheless exceedingly graceful. Her profile is classical, out of a type which is common enough in the province of which she is a native. She has a low forehead, a head of wavy jet black hair, dark, ardent eyes and an open-hearted smile. She was not long in winning a popular place in the good graces of the assembled multitude. After her election as queen she held a reception at one of the public laundries, where she received the devoirs of her faithful subjects for the nonce. Her hair was decorated with flowers, and she wore a beautiful bouquet in her corsage. The coach which is reserved for the triumphal procession of her soapsuds majesty is a brake, draped with crimson velvet, heavily fringed with gold. It is decorated with real camellias and the seat behind the box is canopied with these flowers, which were so much affected by the heroine of Dumas' celebrated novel. The coachman extraordinary to the queen drove four horses and took his seat supported on each side by a negro decked out in fantastic clothing.

BEWARE MY REVOLVER.

An Exciting Scene in the Italian Parliament—Crispi's Warning.

ROME, March 12.—A most exciting and disgraceful incident took place last evening during a debate in the Chamber of Deputies. Signor Imbriani, excited by some remarks made, shouted to the Crispi group: "You are servants of Austria." Crispi replied: "Servants, no; good friends, yes."

Imbriani repeated his remark: "You are servants of Austria."

To this Crispi retorted with a gross insult, intended for Imbriani. The latter called Crispi to withdraw the remark, but the ex-Premier refused, saying that while he held the position of a minister of the state he had been forced to endure the annoyance of Imbriani. "But now," angrily cried Crispi, "I am no longer to do so, as I am only a deputy. In my pocket is a revolver; beware!" A scene of excitement ensued.

CIGARS AS MEDICINE.

They May Be Sold on Sunday in Massachusetts to Relieve Catarrh.

BOSTON, March 12.—Wendell Jones, postmaster at Dorchester, bought half-a-dozen cigars at a drug store last Sunday, and, there being a law which forbids the sale of articles on Sunday for other than medicinal purposes, a policeman who saw the sale promptly entered complainant and the drug clerk was held to answer to-day.

The clerk told Judge Churchill that he knew that Postmaster Jones is a sufferer from bronchial catarrh and that to the best of his belief smoking has a tendency to relieve this trouble. He sold the cigars purely as medicine. Judge Churchill found that the Sunday law had not been violated.

Strange Mortal Accident.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 12.—Herman Lawson, fireman on the fireboat here, during the regular weekly practice, lost his hold on the nozzle and the stream struck him in the side knocking him down. Before he could be rescued he was rolled by the force of the stream for 30 yards along the wharf over the six-inch spikes, which caught him, tearing open the stomach and lower part of the body.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

THE HOUSE MET FOR TEN MINUTES YESTERDAY.

A Batch of Petitions Presented—To Punish Bribery—To Teach Embalming—Endorsed by the Undertakers' Association.

TORONTO, March 12.—The Assembly met yesterday, read a few petitions and adjourned, the whole proceedings lasting only about 10 minutes.

Mr. E. F. Clarke presented a petition from St. George's Society praying for power to acquire and dispose of shares in the St. George's Hall Company, to which it was granted a building lease of its Elm-street property.

Mr. Mack presented a petition from Bishop Macdonell of Alexandria, praying for the incorporation of himself and successors as "The Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation for the Diocese of Alexandria in Ontario, Canada," with the usual powers regarding the acquirement and possession of property.

Petitions were presented from the county council of Elgin by Mr. McColl and from the council of Kent by Mr. Clancy, asking for the appointment of inspectors of milk in all the cheese-making districts of the province.

Mr. Allan presented a petition from the Wellington County Council praying that the legislative grant to high schools might be increased.

A petition was presented from the Carleton County Council by Mr. Monk, praying that no change might be made in the present law to curtail the authority and control councils now enjoy over county jails.

Mr. Whitney intends to reintroduce his bill of last session increasing the penalties for bribery at elections. In addition to the present punishment of a $200 fine he proposes to add a punishment of not more than three months in jail at the discretion of the judge. He also wants to make it obligatory on the County Crown Attorney to attend all election trials for the purpose of instituting proceedings for bribery.

The bill respecting Collegiate Institutes which Mr. Ross has introduced makes a number of important changes. It provides for the establishment of a commercial department in all these institutions and the appointment of a specialist in commercial subjects, including stenography, the appointment of trustees in December, the disqualification of members of municipal councils from serving as trustees, the representation of Public School Boards on the Collegiate Institute Board the same as Separate School Boards are now represented, change in the mode of disposing of real estate, making it less cumbersome. It also gives authority to county councils to impose fees not exceeding $10 per annum on pupils from the country, the intention being to shift the burden of maintaining high schools from ratepayers generally to those using the schools. No change is made in the matter of fees from the high school district.

The Public Schools Bill will institute a leaving examination with a wide course in English literature and commercial subjects. Provision is also made for contributing to the cost of the inspection of public schools in cities and towns separated from the county. Under the Act of 1871 the Government recognized liability for the inspection of rural schools only. This will be changed. In cities with over 300 teachers provision will be made for additional inspection, and city inspectors will be placed under the same obligations regarding the discharge of their duties as county inspectors. The inequality of school sections will be remedied by making the option that was allowed municipal councils of giving $100 to each school section within the township obligatory. County councils will be relieved from giving for the maintenance of rural schools an equivalent of the Government grant. This will equalize the disproportion between the various school sections.

The members of the different committees met yesterday and organized for business. The chairmen elected were: Railway, Mr. Fraser; Private Bills, Mr. Gibson (Hamilton); Privileges and Elections, Mr. Harcourt; Municipal, Mr. Hardy; Standing Orders, Mr. R. P. O'Connor; Public Accounts, Mr. Clarke (Wellington); Printing, Mr. Balfour.

A deputation of friends of Mr. C. E. Barr of The Lindsay Post waited upon the Attorney-General yesterday to press the claims of that gentleman to the Victoria registrarship. The office is a fat one, netting last year the handsome income of $3500. Mr. Mowat will probably give the matter more than the usual consideration, because it is understood that Mr. McKay, the local member, has other ideas on the subject.

A deputation from Halton consisting of Messrs. J. H. McCallum, D. Wheelihan and J. A. Fraser waited upon the Provincial Treasurer yesterday with reference to the inspectorship of licenses in that county. The present inspector, Mr. W. D. Brothers, has gone to California for his health and his stay there may be prolonged indefinitely. As it will soon be time to grant new licenses these gentlemen were anxious to have a new inspector appointed and proposed the name of the latter, Mr. Fraser, who was inspector before the Scott Act was adopted. The answer they received was indefinite and they will return next week fortified by Mr. Robinson, the Liberal candidate defeated at the last election. The salary attached is small, the whole sum paid last year for expenses of commissioners and salary of inspector being $467.

The Attorney-General has introduced a bill to regulate loan companies. It is simply a copy of the Dominion law on the subject, being sections 86 to 107 inclusive, of chapter 119, R.S.C. The only clause of the Dominion law omitted is that providing that an annual statement of assets and liabilities, etc., must be made to the Minister of Finance. It has been customary to attach these regulations to each particular charter granted, but it is thought the public will be better protected if they are incorporated in a statute.

The members of the Press Gallery met yesterday and organized for the session. Mr. Horace Wallis of The Mail was elected president and Mr. A. C. Campbell of The Globe secretary.

Reducing the Seal Catch.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The Treasury Department is considering a proposition to reduce the annual catch of fur seals in Behring Sea as fixed by the existing lease, in order to guard against possible extinction of the species.

Alleged Impersonation.

LONDON, March 12.—John Hamilton, who lives near the Asylum in London township, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Graham and Ward, charged with having impersonated at the recent election W. Leathorn, a farmer living on lot 12.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

The Daily Review.

MR. BLAKE AGAIN.

THE charges of the Liberal papers that Mr. Blake favored annexation to the United States has drawn from him the following note addressed to the Globe:

"SIR,—The contradictory inferences to which a sentence in my Durham letter, detached from its context, has in several quarters unexpectedly given rise, conquer my reluctance to trespass again so soon upon your columns; and I crave space to say that I think political union with the States, though becoming our probable, is by no means our ideal or as yet our inevitable future. EDWARD BLAKE.

"Ottawa, March 11."

This, it must be admitted, is not as full expression of opinion as might have been expected. That annexation is not our ideal or inevitable future will be readily agreed to, but why probable and why the modification "as yet?" There is one reason that will occur to many why these words may have been used. Mr. Blake has stated that unrestricted reciprocity would lead to or be tantamount to political union. So long, then, as the Liberal party advocate that policy political union may be considered "probable" and if they succeeded, and carried out that policy, it would be inevitable, which it is not as yet, because that scheme was rejected by the people. That this is what was in Mr Blake's mind we do not say, but it certainly is, as a matter of fact, [illegible] with this exception that while [illegible] has been [illegible] by the people, it will be more emphatically repudiated as it becomes more thoroughly understood, and its consequence, political union, is therefore not probable.

That many Liberals refused to vote for unrestricted reciprocity is well known. That many more will take the same position is also a fact. As Mr. D. B. Gardner, of this town, points out in a letter to the Mail:—"Whilst in the late election very many Liberals had refused to adopt the party platform and remained aloof, the publication of Mr. Blake's letter will immensely increase the number, and will leave the party in an almost helpless minority unless the platform can be so amended that it will rally all its members together again." Mr. Gardner writes as a friend of the party, advising the adoption of a "moderate revenue tariff, approximating to free trade with the world," in the manner outlined by Mr. Blake, as the party platform. But such counsel is unheeded by the Liberal leaders, for Sir Richard Cartwright in his letter, and later in an interview, declared that the party will fight all along the line on unrestricted reciprocity to which it is pledged. This course will force out of the party many staunch Liberals, who, although opposed to the N. P., are still more strongly opposed to Sir Richard's programme, involving as it does discrimination against Great Britain and the subjection of Canada to the United States. While these Liberals, who are many and whose numbers will increase, will be opposed to unrestricted reciprocity, there will also be the great body of the electors who voted for the adoption of the National Policy, and who have since ratified that policy. Thus political union through unrestricted reciprocity cannot be regarded as a probability, for neither directly nor indirectly will the people of Canada vote for annexation.

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

POPULAR MAJORITIES.

IN the Ontario Legislature Mr. H. E. Clarke read a statement of the popular or total vote in the elections last June, by which he showed that the votes cast for candidates opposed to the Government outnumbers the votes received by the Liberal candidates by over 5,000. Mr. Fraser contended that many of the votes thus counted were Liberal, because in several constituencies there were more than one candidate opposed to the Government. But taking the view most favorable to the Government the statement shows that if it received a popular majority at all it was very small. Its majority in the House was secured by means of the gerrymander, by which it has before secured majorities in the House while the popular vote was against it.

In the Dominion election on March 5th the Conservative majority on the island of Montreal alone was 1,800 more than the majority in all the contested constituencies in Quebec carried by the liberals, and the popular majority in that province was largely in favor of the Conservatives. In the whole Dominion the majorities are largely in favor of the Conservatives.

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

YOUTH WINS.

"I fear we are keeping Lord Merivale waiting," I suggested, for I really felt I had nothing to say about "Pussy's affair."

Of that morning's visit to the Louvre I shall only record what has a bearing on after events.

We were in that gallery containing the Collection La Caze, and were admiring the dresses in one of Watteau's pictures, when Lord Merivale observed, "When I look at these exquisite blues and pinks I always think it a great pity for women to wear black."

"And I am doomed to wear it!" sighed the widow.

"Not doomed," rejoined Lord Merivale, "and I venture to predict that an occasion may arise that shall demand the putting aside of this dismal garb."

I was a few yards away by this time looking at a Rembrandt portrait, but I distinctly heard all they said.

"I suppose I must give up this dress some day—for Pussy's sake," Mrs. Vivian murmured.

As I glanced toward them I observed a glad light spread itself over Lord Merivale's features.

"Yes, I was sure of it," broke in the young man excitedly. "You would do anything to add to your child's happiness."

"Anything," replied the widow fervently.

"Bless you for those words," said his lordship fervently, "they give me the courage to ask you to grant me a few moments alone with you this evening. I have a request to make to you—and your answer will render me either the happiest or the most wretched of men."

On the way home Mrs. Vivian whispered to me, "It is coming, dear Miss Delaney—to-night"

III.

At Mme. Laroche's we lunched at 2 o'clock. It wanted a quarter to that hour when I came down to the salon after removing my walking dress. I was not a little surprised to find madam there with two strangers.

I was about to withdraw when madam's shrill voice cried:

"Pray do not go, Mess Delaney. This is Mrs. Vivian's daughter and madam, her grandmamma."

I now observed the ladies in a bewildered fashion. The prim old lady in the stiff black silk was only what one might have expected Mrs. Vivian, Sr., to be; but could this tall, graceful young woman be "Pussy?" She looked about 18, and was certainly even better looking than her pretty mother.

That pretty mother entered, before I had got over my astonishment, and appeared to be struck dumb for a moment. But speedily recovering herself, she embraced her daughter rapturously, exclaiming:

"And is my naughty, neglectful darling come at last to her mother?"

Then turning to the old lady, she extended both her hands—only one of which the grandmother took—and cried in her joyous treble: "And you, dear Pussy's grandmamma, you are not come to scold poor, silly little me, are you?"

"You know what I am come about," answered the old lady severely, "and I trust you will be sensible about it."

The widow turned again toward her daughter and with one of her winning smiles said, "And does my Pussy think her little mother could refuse her anything, with her child's pretty eyes looking at her?"

There was no answer to this appeal, for Lord Merivale came in just then, followed by Miss Jones and almost at once by old Mrs. Ward.

Lord Merivale stood apart, turning the leaves of a journal which lay on a table near the door. He was very pale I noticed; and I thought I could guess the cause. He, too, had been deceived by Mrs. Vivian about this daughter, and his whole faith in his future bride was shaken.

It was the elder Mrs. Vivian who spoke, and there seemed to be in her face and voice the pent up anger of years. Before the [illegible] I think, that she would say before us all what she had intended for her daughter-in-law's ear alone. And so she did.

"So, Adelaide, you are unchanged, I perceive," she cried with withering scorn. "You still cling to your vanity, and hold on to a vanished youth at the cost of all a woman should hold dear. Do not think your words to your child—yes, your child whose first appealing cries stirred no mother's response from you—do not think those words deceive me any more than the false bloom on your cheeks—the false light in your eyes."

Here Lord Merivale stepped forward, saying deprecatingly:

"My dear madam, I beg of you——"

He was not allowed to go on. The irate old dame meant to have her say, and went on, with a dignified wave of her hand toward Lord Merivale and Mme. Laroche, who was also about to interrupt.

"So, Adelaide, you will refuse your child nothing now, you say—well then, we will go, Olive—your mother consents to your marriage with Lord Merivale."

Mrs. Vivian uttered a scream and fell back—into the arms of little Dr. Hauser, who had just come in to look for Mr. Frost. To say that that respectable old gentleman was staggered is literally true, for, in addition to the mental shock of such an event as a lady falling unexpectedly into his embrace, the feeble old man felt his physical strength very unequal to the task of holding up plump Mrs. Vivian, and Lord Merivale came to his assistance only just in time to prevent an ignominious collapse.

"Let us go, Olive," cried her grandmother.

"First let me kiss my mother," Olive said in a trembling voice.

"No, I won't let you," her mother fairly screamed from the shoulder of Mr. Hauser, where her blonde head now reposed, "and you, Lord Merivale, never let me see your deceitful face again—go all of you—except good Dr. Hauser," and then she burst into hysterical peals of laughter.

"I think, Lord Merivale, that you have behaved very bad indeed to Mrs. Vivian," old Mrs. Ward observed with asperity. "We all thought you were paying your addresses to her."

Lord Merivale looked from one to another in a bewildered way. Then he asked me if I had shared in this delusion. I frankly admitted that I had.

"It is a great pity—a great pity," his lordship rejoined slowly. "You see I wanted to win the mother's consent to let me marry her daughter. I must have bungled sadly, but I never dreamt of anything like this. I thought of Mrs. Vivian as Olive's mother: that was all."

* * * * * * * * *

Yes, that was all. Lord Merivale had been staying at a friend's country house where Olive Vivian and her grandmother were also guests, and he had fallen in love with the bright young girl and she with him. Then the grandmother had told him that, according to her son's will, the consent of Olive's mother must be obtained. "And she will never give it," the old lady had added, "she is too much afraid of having her own age guessed at if she has a married daughter."

"But she was always kind to me," Lord Merivale had answered. "I will run over to Paris and do my best to please her and then make my request."

The result of this plan the reader has seen. Olive Vivian did become Lady Merivale.

And her mother?

She married Dr. Hauser within a month!—Belgravia.

Deserted the International.

Died from His Injuries.

SARNIA, March 12.—William Brush, who was struck by a train at the approach to the tunnel last week, died from his injuries yesterday.

BLAINE DISSATISFIED.

Lord Salisbury's Response Fails to Please Him.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Mr. Blaine is anything but satisfied with Lord Salisbury's response to his arbitration proposal in the Behring Sea matter. The practical consequence of Lord Salisbury's latest despatch appears to be that Mr. Blaine will have to make a further retreat than he effected by his note of last December to the British Minister if he wishes to settle the Behring Sea question before he leaves office. The prevailing opinion here is that he will complete the retrograde movement then begun by availing himself of Lord Salisbury's admission that the United States now has all the rights that Russia had in Behring Sea and agreeing that an arbitration shall decide what these rights were at the time Russia possessed them.

A RED-HOT CENT IN HIS SHOE.

The Peculiar Manner in Which a Colored Man Met His Death.

PHILADELPHIA, March 12.—Walter Munroe, a colored man, died at his home in Germantown from blood poisoning produced in a singular manner. Not long ago he fell into a doze at the saloon of John A. Smith, 4840 Germantown-road, and some of the habitues of the place, thinking to have some fun at his expense, dropped a red-hot copper cent into his shoe. His foot was badly burned and the wound rapidly developed into blood poisoning. Just before he died he informed the police of the way he received his injury and several arrests followed.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, March 12.—At a meeting of the Geological and Mining Section of the Canadian Institute held last night this resolution was passed:

The Geological and Mining Section of the Canadian Institute are of opinion that until a provincial department of mines is established the mining and metallurgical interests of Ontario cannot receive that attention which their importance demands, and therefore recommend that a mining convention be called to meet in the city of Toronto, at the Canadian Institute, on March 31 at 10 o'clock a.m., to consider measures for the advancement of the mining industry and the advisability of establishing a provincial department of mines. The institute is hereby requested to give notice calling upon the various mining localities throughout the province to send delegates to meet the delegates appointed by the institute for the purpose of laying their views before the Provincial Government.

The motion was seconded by Mr. J. F. Latimer, Toronto, and unanimously carried.

The Court of Appeal yesterday heard argument in the case of the township of South Colchester and the trustees of the Colchester Baptist Church, an appeal from the judgment of Mr. Justice Rose ordering the plaintiffs to pay the amount of an award. The township expropriated part of the burying ground belonging to the church and ran a road through it. One Haynes claims that the graveyard is his property and not that of the church and the dispute is one of title. Judgment was reserved.

A cross petition was yesterday filed in the South Norfolk election case by Mr. Charlton, the member-elect, against the defeated candidate, setting out the usual charges of bribery and corruption.

THE COLOR LINE.

"Wimodaughsis" Drops an Octoroon and Reinstates Her.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 12.—The few drops of negro blood in the veins of beautiful and white Miss Fannie Smith have disrupted "Wimodaughsis," an organization in this city, whose name is derived from the words wife, mother, daughter and sister. The origin of this prosperous club was a desire to form a society to teach women equality. Miss Desha, the originator, was horrified to learn that there was African blood in Miss Smith's ancestry, and invited her on that account to leave the club. This she did. Since this occurred Miss Smith has been reinstated. Many of the more aristocratic ladies of the club now threaten to abandon it.

Killed by a Mad Bull.

HAVERHILL, Mass., March 12.—Hon. John E. Carr of this place, ex-member of the New Hampshire Legislature, was killed this morning by a mad bull. Mr. Carr went into the pasture where the bull was confined, armed with a pitchfork. The animal rushed at him and tossed him in the air. Mr. Carr, although dazed, rose to his feet and plunged at the bull with the pitchfork, severely wounding the beast. The animal again rushed upon him. Mr. Carr drove the prongs of the fork into the beast's shoulder, but being weak from many bruises it threw him to the ground. The bull rushed upon him, gored him frightfully, and stamped upon his senseless body until life was extinct.

The Baseball War Ended.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Yesterday The Herald said: "The sale of the Cincinnati Baseball Club by A. L. Johnson to the National League for $30,000 caused a feeling of satisfaction among the baseball men yesterday, for it practically ends the baseball war. It gives the league undisputed possession of Cincinnati territory and also the great aggregation of stars, including Mike Kelly, to represent that town. The American Association is weakened perceptibly, but the gap can be filled up by the admission of Toledo, which city is still anxious to remain in the swim."

Death Lurked Overhead.

PITTSBURG, March 12.—When Jacob Schneider, a young jeweler of Allegheny, called at the house of Mr. George Lang this morning to claim Mr. Lang's daughter Tillie as his bride he found that she was dead. Crushed by a Horse.

STOUFFVILLE, March 12.—George Watson, Unionville, went to Oshawa to purchase horses for Grand's repository, Toronto, and was testing one of the animals as a rider Wednesday when it reared and fell backwards upon him, inflicting injuries of a critical nature.

Suddenly Summoned.

HASTINGS, March 12.—Mrs. John Tracey attended to her usual household duties yesterday and between 8 and 9 o'clock she ascended the stairs for the purpose of retiring for the night. A rapping on the floor from her bedroom alarmed the family, who at once went to learn the cause and were shocked to find Mrs. Tracey dead.

CHICAGO, March 12.—There is a project on foot to have the World's Fair opened by the only living descendant of Columbus, the Duke of Veragua of Madrid.

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

A girl was arrested this afternoon and locked up on a charge of larceny. It is alleged that she stole a sum of money from the lady with whom she was employed. She will probably come up for trial at the police court to-morrow morning.

Bell Telephone Company.

Mr. Schaffer, its manager, has employed a staff of men and has commenced setting new poles in order to arrange wires to the many applications he has for the Company's instruments. He says that his Company will have a larger exchange in Peterborough, and expects that 200 will be in operation by the first of May.

A Rapid Journey.

One of the fastest trips from the Old Country, says the Lindsay Watchman, was made a few days since by Mr. Wm. Flavelle, of the firm of Dundas & Flavelle Bros., who has been making purchases in the European markets for the past ten weeks. He left Ireland on Thursday, the 26 February, at 7 o'clock p.m. and was in his own house the following Thursday, 5th March, at 8 p.m., exactly one week and one hour on the homeward journey.

An Entertainment in the Opera House.

A very small audience assembled in the Opera House last evening to hear the lecture on "The Life of Christ," delivered by Mr. W. A. Strachan, of Toronto. The lecture was given under the auspices of the "Y," and was a very enjoyable entertainment. The lecture was illustrated with very fine colored views on canvas, Biblical scenes and places of the time of the Messiah being presented in a most appreciable manner. Those who were present enjoyed the entertainment.

Members of the Bar Meet.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Law Society was held yesterday afternoon when there was a very good attendance of the local members of the bar. Mr. W. H. Moore, President, was in the chair. The annual reports were presented showing the affairs of the Society to be in a very satisfactory condition. A discussion took place in regard to the election of benchers and a committee was named to take measures towards securing a greater representation on the bar throughout the country. It was also decided to take action to secure the services of an official reporter for the County Court. The election of officers being proceeded with resulted as follows:—

President.—Mr. John Burnham, Q.C.

Vice-President.—Mr. A. P. Poussette, Q.C.

Sec.-Treas.—Mr. E. B. Edwards.

Trustees.—Messrs. R. E. D. Hall and R. E. Wood.

"That tired feeling" is entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives a feeling of buoyancy and strength to the whole system.

AGAIN ON GEORGE-ST.

Mr. O. C. Rowse Once More Among Peterborough's Dry-Goods Men.

Mr. O. C. Rowse, who for several months past has been out of business, has again entered and opened a handsome new store, and his name will once more appear among the business men of George-st. Mr. Rowse's former stand was on the east side of the street, but his new premises are on the west side three doors north of Simcoe-st. on George, in Mr. Cameron's old stand. The store has been entirely transformed in appearance and as it is to-day is one of the most attractive, brightest and best lighted on George-st. The front show window of plate glass has been enlarged and a full-sized plate glass side placed in the door side, making the window a splendid one for exhibiting goods. A new plate glass door now admits the customer to the interior, where the artistic work of the painter and carpenter has worked a most complete transformation. A new hardwood floor has been laid, new counters placed in position, and in the rear a handsome new office has been built. The walls and ceiling have been beautifully decorated with elegant paper, and the wood work throughout has been grained and painted to harmonize. The lighting of the store, an important consideration in a dry-goods establishment, is exceptionally good. The plate glass front and the large window and sky-light in the rear allow a flood of light to find an entrance, making the interior as light as the day outside. On the second floor will be the dress and mantle making rooms and these too have been suitably fitted up. Withal the premises are decidedly bright and attractive and well adapted to the purpose of a first-class dry goods house.

The stock which Mr. Rowse has placed upon the shelves is new throughout and embraces all the newest and best fabrics in staple and fancy dry goods. The stock is as complete as it is new. In dress goods a very fine display is made, the importations being made direct from the old country. A sliding glass front has been placed on a portion of the shelves on the south side of the store and here a very fine assortment of ribbons is exhibited to the customer advantageously and yet free from dust.

With his experience in the business, his handsome premises, complete and new stock and a record as a courteous and honorable business man, Mr. Rowse will undoubtedly meet with success in his new stand.

Dr. E. T. Miller, of Cross Plains, Wis., has expressed the opinion that, for obstinate cases of syphilis and scrofula, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is unquestionably the most effective remedy known to pharmacy. Wonderful cures have resulted from its use.

Ladies.

Ladies wishing for Early Spring Millinery will find our stock complete and the newest goods to hand. Our stock this season will be very choice. H. S. Griffin & Co. 2d61

A Fruitless Visit of a Thief.

One night this week the door of Mr. J. C. Sullivan's grocery store in Ashburnham was forced open by some individual of burglarous propensities. When he got within the thief made the till the objection of his tender attention, being evidently after cash. In this however he was disappointed, as the till proved to be empty. Nothing of consequence was missed from the shelves.

A Fire in Ashburnham.

About four o'clock this morning another alarm of fire called the brigade out to a blaze in Ashburnham. The old untenantable house on Brown-st., which was ignited on the evening of the municipal elections as a triumphal bon-fire for the victorious councillors of the village, had been again the object of some incendiary's attention. When the brigade arrived the house was enveloped in flames, and as it was uninhabitable and only an eyesore, no water was thrown on the flames, but they were allowed to devour their victim without opposition. The house was owned by Mr. Wm. Graham. The loss will be small.

Oh, What a Cough.

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease consumption. Ask yourself if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. d16w4-6m

Fruit-Growers' Association.

Mr. E. B. Edwards, secretary pro tem of the local Fruit-Growers' Association, has received a letter from Mr. L. Woolverton, secretary of the Ontario Association, in which that gentleman says that owing to the opening of the House at Ottawa being postponed until the end of April, the delegation which proposes to go down to Ottawa will not go until after the opening. It will therefore be impossible for them to take part in such a meeting as it was proposed to hold. Under the circumstances the meeting will probably be held in the course of a week or ten days when one or two members of the Ontario Association will be present. It is intended to make the meeting one for discussion among the local members as to the kind of fruit marketable for this country. Mr. Woolverton warns the local men not to depend upon the Ontario Association speakers, but asks local men to give papers and come prepared to participate in the discussion and take a live interest in the meeting, rather than to listen to the addresses of other speakers.

The Coming Concert.

A glance at the array of talent secured for the concert on the evening of St. Patrick's Day, March 17th, shows that the programme will be a very satisfactory one and well worth patronage. It is a well known fact that a local effort in the way of a concert is sure of a good attendance. In this case the reason will apply particularly strong as so good an evening cannot fail to be interesting. Several of the vocalists have not been heard for some time while others who have are always sure of a hearty welcome. There will be an enjoyable diversity in the numbers of the programme, and taken altogether, one that it will be a pleasure to listen to. The management who are looking after details for the Catholic Association, under whose auspices the concert will be given, have secured the appearance of Miss Stevenson, of Guelph, a well-known soprano of that city. Mrs. J. G. Macklin, Mrs. J. E. McIntyre, Miss Annie Dunn, Mrs. T. Dunn, Mr. Gorrie, of Toronto, and Mr. T. Dunn will also take part. Mr. L. H. Clarke, the celebrated elocutionist, reader and reciter will give selections and the Peterborough Amateur Orchestra will play. The admission has been fixed at usual prices and the plan is now open at Greatrex's drug store. 2d61

A BRIDGENORTH EVENT.

Mrs. (Rev.) Houck Made the Recipient of a Presentation and Address at a Pleasant Social.

Correspondence of the Review.

On Thursday evening, March 12th, a very interesting and pleasant event took place in our usually quiet village at the residence of Mr. James Mann, Jr. The occasion was a social gathering of the teachers, members of the Bible class and other friends of the Methodist Sunday school. Sweet music filled the house, there being no less than four musical instruments manipulated by skilled players. Several social games were indulged in to the amusement of the company. The hostess announced a change in the proceedings by calling for Miss Clarke, teacher, for a reading. Miss Clark responded by giving in good form a comic selection, entitled "Biddy's Trials Among the Yankees." She was heartily encored by the company and returned announcing that she had a reading now especially for Mrs. Houck, teacher of the Bible class for nearly two years. Following is the address read, the presentation being made by Mr. Pope:—

Dear Mrs. Houck:

We, the teachers and members of your Bible class, Bridgenorth, who have profited by your devoted tuition and untiring zeal to promote our best interests both spiritual and temporal, desire at this time to bear testimony of our appreciation of your service since you came in our midst. We believe your highest aims have always been to point sinners to Christ and build up His believing children and your kind words and repeated self-denials have caused our gratitude and won our love. We now take this opportunity of presenting you with this Autograph Quilt as a slight token of our esteem and respect coupled with the prayer for many years' usefulness and in the end the reward of duty faithfully done.

Signed on behalf of teachers and Bible class.

MRS. POPE,
JAMES MANN.

Mrs. Houck was taken completely by surprise, as no inkling of this event had reached her. Mr. Houck, in replying for his better half, said he had frequently heard her say that one of the cheering features about her work was the kindness and interest manifested by every member of the class and school. He heartily thanked them, not only for Mrs. Houck, but for himself as well, assuring them that no one was more pleased with the address and remembrance than Mrs. Houck, unless it was her husband. A sumptuous supper was then served to all present, a hearty thanks of the company presented to Mr. and Mrs. Mann, a hymn was sung, Mr. Houck led in prayer, and all repaired to their homes.

To Nervous Debilitated Men.

If you will send us your address, we will mail you our illustrated pamphlet explaining all about Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belt and Appliances, and their charming effects upon the nervous debilitated system, and how they will quickly restore you to vigor, and manhood. MORE MONEY WANTED

By the Electoral District Agricultural Societies of Ontario.

The Empire of this morning says:—Upwards of 100 delegates representing the Electoral District Agricultural Societies of the Province of Ontario met last night in the Walker house. The object of the meeting was to petition the Ontario Government to increase the annual grant to these societies. After electing Mr. S. Damude, of Flesherton, to the chair, it was moved by J. L. Murphy, seconded by D. B. Palmerston:—

"Whereas it is essential that the agricultural societies of this province should be managed in a manner and on a scale commensurate with the purposes for which they have been organized, and being cognizant of the fact that the grant of $700 now made to each of the electoral district agricultural societies, after deducting therefrom the amounts to which the township and horticultural societies are entitled by law, is inadequate to render each society as efficient in the objects of its organization as [illegible].

"Therefore, be it resolved, that it is the opinion of this meeting that the Government should increase the grant to each electoral district agricultural Society to the sum of $1,000; and it is further the opinion of this meeting that one-half and no more of the sum so received by any electoral society shall be subject to division among township and horticultural societies."

An amendment was present by George Stewart, seconded by Charles O'Reilly:

"That, whereas the Government grants to the electoral district agricultural societies are inadequate for the pressing needs of said societies, many of them being in debt for their grounds and buildings, it is the opinion of this meeting that the Government should make an annual grant of $800 to each electoral district society for a term of not less than five years, and that the said grant should be for the exclusive use of the electoral district association."

After considerable discussion the amendment was lost, and the original motion was carried unanimously.

The delegates arranged to interview the Minister of Agriculture for the Province upon the matter at 2.30 this afternoon, and appointed a committee of 15 to have charge of the matter.

The Population of Peterborough

is about 10,000, and we would say at least one-half are troubled with some affection of the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large bottle 50c and $1. Sold by all druggists.

Maclennan's Concert Company.

Of this now famous company the Scottish Leader, Edinburgh, says: "If there is anything in the old aphorism that in 'union there is strength' the amalgamation of such a company, comprising as it does the very choice of the exponents of our music, dance and story, must attain the required result. This peerless organization has already made its debut in America. The reception accorded them everywhere has been more than usually warm, amounting in most cases to downright ovations. Their appearance in New York, Springfield, Stamford, Brooklyn, Ansonia, Holyoke, Northampton, Waterbury, Newark, Westfield, Willimantic, Hartford, Jersey City, New Haven, etc., has given them such prestige that return engagements have been arranged for all these places." CANADA AND THE STATES.

The Issue in the Campaign and its Relations to the Two Countries.

Mr. George Hague, one of the ablest financiers in this country, and general manager of the Merchants' Bank of Canada, writes as follows to the New York Daily Commercial Bulletin:

To the Editor of the Commercial Bulletin:

The well-known fairness of the Bulletin in discussing international and commercial questions emboldens me to crave a line or two of space for a comment on your article of Wednesday respecting Canada.

The old reciprocity treaty, being one in natural products, did not affect the trade of Canada with Great Britain at all. But unrestricted reciprocity would simply mean admitting a large variety of manufactured goods from the United States free, while imposing a duty on the very same articles when imported from the mother country. To suppose that Great Britain would quietly submit to this is preposterous. It would be dishonorable and unreasonable in Canada to ask it. It could not be done. It is against common sense and against all the laws that govern the intercourse of dependencies with the mother country. It would, moreover, necessitate the assimilation of our tariff to yours. The American people are not such fools as to allow us to import European goods at a lower tariff than theirs and then to send them across the border free. But in an assimilation of tariffs how could we expect to have a voice equal to that of the United States, which outnumbers us 12 to 1? Our tariff would therefore be made for us at Washington. If our tariff were made at Washington we might just as well have all our laws made there. This is where the charge of disloyalty comes in. In the one case, a disloyalty to Great Britain, and in the other, disloyalty to ourselves as a practically self-governing people. The truth is, there are the most extraordinary misapprehensions on your side about this country. Americans have a fixed impression that Canada is slow, unprogressive and unenterprising. The exact contrary is the fact.

Since the Declaration of Independence your population has increased 20-fold; our population has increased 25-fold. Since the war of 1812, your population has increased eight-fold; ours has increased 25-fold.

Our first bank statistics were compiled about 20 years ago. The deposits in the banks in 1868 were less than 15 millions, and there was no other place of deposit in the country. Deposits now are made not only with the banks, but with Government and other savings banks and loan companies. They amount to about 220 millions:

Since 1878 the value of our bank stock has increased	$ 27,000,000
Bank and other saving deposits have increased	110,000,000
Bank discounts have increased	60,000,000
Railways have increased in length	8,000 miles
The freight carried yearly has increased	12,000,000 tons

In 1878 the tonnage was under two tons per head of population; to-day it is close upon four tons per head. Our principal western city, Toronto, has increased during ten years at the same ratio as Chicago. Montreal has increased at nearly the same ratio as New York. Both these cities have swallowed up dozens of square miles of the surrounding country since I came to Canada in 1854. I have lived in both of them some years, and I have seen the process.

More might be said, but this is sufficient for the purpose. I write as a man of business and not as a politician, and simply with a desire to prevent those misapprehensions which are so fruitful of bad consequences in the dealings of nations with one another.

NORWOOD NEWS.

A Thriving and Growing Industry—Electric Lights and Telephones.

Correspondence of the Review.

A HIVE OF INDUSTRY.—A visit to the factory of Messrs. J. Finlay & Son is very interesting. This manufactory is steadily enlarging its business and growing in importance. The patent sand band and wheel retainer, a novel yet effective and simple device for keeping sand out from the axles of wheels and for holding the wheels in their places, has been well received since introduced by this firm. It preserves the axles and at the same time prevents accidents should the nuts which hold the wheels on become loose. It has taken well with the trade and with the public and is being generally adopted. This firm has added to its factory considerably, and is now making wheels entire and making them up from the rough. Since January several improved machines—a tennoning machine, facer, throating machine, and finishing emery belts—have been put in to make up the spokes from the rough into the finished article. Nine different grades of spokes are turned out. A dry kiln has been constructed, and the factory contains two large kilns for thoroughly seasoning the material. In the wheel shop, a department added a year ago, eleven men are engaged, and twenty sets of wheels are turned out each day. A powerful machine in this department is a hydraulic press, which possesses great strength and does its work as nicely as the smallest machine. A steam mortiser in the hub department is another interesting machine that was added last year. It does its work rapidly, accurately and with almost no noise. A new steam shaft press has just been placed in the factory. It is an immense machine of solid iron and weighs five tons. After the shafts have been placed in position it will turn out sixty a minute. Messrs. Finlay & Son now employ about 45 hands. They have opened an agency in Winnipeg, have an agent in Western Ontario, and Mr. Wm. Finlay attends to the east, and has made successful business trips to the lower provinces. They have in all four men on the road, and their work is so thorough, in material and workmanship, that it is in demand throughout the Dominion, and they have on hand orders to keep them running until the first of May.

A CALM.—A great calm after the elections. Business quiet and a dearth of news.

NEW RESIDENCE.—Mr. W. J. Plant is making preparations to build a residence on Queen-st.

SICKNESS.—A great deal of sickness is prevalent in Norwood. During the past few weeks scarlet fever, mumps and sore throats were in order.

SOCIALS.—Parlor socials in the country in connection with the churches have been very successful. There were one hundred and forty present at the residence of Mr. Wm. Burgess, Belmont, on Friday evening last.

BECOMING TOWNLIKE.—With the electric light and telephone our village will assume a more town-like appearance, although at present the money could be spent to better advantage.

HIGH SCHOOL.—Inspector Seath's report of the condition of the high school is a gratifying one. Although the numerous changes on the staff and other drawbacks have injured the examination prospects, still we expect that Norwood will give a good account of itself in August. The attendance is about 100.

No douche or instrument is required to apply Nasal Balm. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable in its effects. Use nothing else for catarrh and cold in head.

Personal.

Mr. R. W. Errett has been confined to his residence for the past week through illness, but it is expected he will be around again in a few days.

BIRTH.

MACDONALD.—On Friday, March 13th, the wife of Mr. H. S. MACDONALD, of a son.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Sale Register.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18.—Sale of farm stock and implements. Property of Mr. W. H. Payne. Sale on premises, lot 6, con. 5, Dummer, and will begin at 12.30 o'clock. Good chance to buy.

In addition to the vocalists who will sing at the concert on Tuesday evening, March 17th, and whose names have appeared in print, Miss Stevenson, of Guelph, a favorite soprano of that city, will also sing. The programme will be an attractive one and reference to it will afford additional information. 1d

The Advantages of Conversation.

The most agreeable way of getting information is by conversation. If you talk with a well informed person who can express clearly his views, you can ask questions and have explanations. Call on Stapleton & Elcombe, grocers, and ask them about that superb tea and new fresh goods which they have received and are now running off at a bargain, and you will buy and go away satisfied.

Probably there are more cases of cold in head and catarrh during March than any other month in the year. As a precautionary measure keep Nasal Balm in the home. It never fails.

Mathematical Problem.

Purpose—as a means of advertising and introducing into every home in Canada that celebrated brand of tea, Oah-K-Oah. We are desirous of placing this celebrated brand of tea in every home of this great Dominion, and to accomplish this purpose we propose to give to the person estimating the exact or nearest number of buttons contained in the jar on exhibition in our window a Toilet Set valued at $4.00. This competition remains open until we have sold one hundred pounds. Every purchaser of one pound will be entitled to estimate. This tea is only 40 cents a pound and cannot be beat. The cable despatches call the storm Great Britain is experiencing just now a blizzard. This is because they do not know what a blizzard is. BEATRIX RANDOLPH.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

Beatrix's spirits rose again; he was not thinking of marrying her after all. "I've been thinking I might give lessons on the piano," she said. She happened to be seated at that instrument, and as she spoke she let her white fingers drift down the keyboard from bass to treble, from depression to hope, from gloom to light, winding up with a sort of interrogative accent, as much as to say, "Why shouldn't I be good for something?"

"Very right," said Mr. Vinal; "I have nothing to object to in that, indeed I had intended to propose it. You could also, unless the instructions of the late Professor Dorimar were wholly valueless"——

"What?" interrupted Beatrix, in a voice which, supported as it was by a chord sharply struck, made the minister start in his chair. After a moment's pause she said, her eyes still bright with indignation: "Professor Dorimar, who is now in heaven, taught me more and better things than you have ever dreamed of! He showed me that I have a soul!"

"Surely I have done as much as that!" faltered Mr. Vinal, who was confused by this sudden outburst.

"No, for you know nothing about it," said Beatrix loftily. "You have only been told that it is so—you have read it in books—and you repeat what you have been told, and no doubt you think you believe it. But you can never know it!" continued the young lady, with a fiery emphasis on the verb, "because you can't understand music."

"I intended nothing against Professor Dorimar," protested the minister, who was amazed and daunted by the passion and pride that he had unawares caused to kindle in her lovely face. It was perhaps the first time he had occasion to observe that the spirit of the Old Virginia Randolphs—the descendants of the cavaliers—was as haughty and untamed in this tender hearted American girl as in that terrible ancestor of hers who rode with Prince Rupert.

Beatrix made no reply, but sat with her head erect and flushed cheeks and one hand still on the piano keys, as if ready once more to smite terror into the soul of her visitor should he again step amiss. A piano, it seems can be used as a weapon of defense even against one who has no comprehension of music.

"What I was about to remark was that you might teach singing as well as playing," said Mr. Vinal circumspectly. "There are, I believe, a number of persons in the village who would be willing under the circumstances to place their children under your instruction."

"It is no favor to be taught music under any circumstances," returned Beatrix, kindling again. "Whoever thinks otherwise does not deserve to learn! And there are other places in the world besides this miserable little village, and people who are wiser and better!"

"You surely do not mean to intimate that you contemplate going anywhere else?" demanded the minister in some consternation.

The fact was that such an idea had never until that moment definitely presented itself to Miss Randolph's mind; but in her present aroused condition she could see and entertain many possibilities that would have seemed audacious or impracticable an hour before.

"Why not?" she said; "I was not born to pass my life here!"

"But I—it has never been my intention to leave here!" exclaimed Mr. Vinal anxiously.

"What satisfies you does not satisfy me," answered the young lady.

"But your father, in a conversation I have just had with him, has informed me that he will not oppose my addressing you with a view to marriage," said the clergyman, in a solemn tone.

"He would not have done so if he had been himself," replied Beatrix warmly. "He is broken down by trouble and sorrow, else you would not have ventured to ask him! But I will tell you, since he could not, that I am not a piece of land or furniture to be sold for the satisfaction of creditors! I will not be a burden upon my father or any one; but I have a right to myself—to my own self! Do you think I am so much afraid of being poor, or of starving, that I would marry anybody to escape it? I do not love you! I do not love you, Mr. Vinal, and so I to present the all important subject to his daughter; Jocelyn was busy thinking over his own part in the little comedy, and the impresario, besides finding much to occupy his attention in the viands, was now wholly at ease in his own mind and dreamed of no difficulties. He had interpreted Mr. Randolph's scruples as merely a bid for good payment, to which he had responded in his usual whole souled style; as to the young lady, of course she would follow her father's lead. Of the three it was Jocelyn who first spoke.

"I don't see why we should keep this dear child any longer in ignorance of the plot we have hatched against her," he said, addressing the others, but keeping his eyes caressingly on Beatrix. "My dear girl, I said I brought you fame and fortune; but, in fact, I only brought you the opportunity to win them for yourself. You have a glorious future before you. This gentleman is the owner and manager of the new opera house in the city. All your favorite operas will be produced there this season, splendidly set and cast, and you, my dear Beatrix, are to sing the leading music."

Beatrix grew pale, and turned her face toward her father. "Oh, papa, can I?" she said in a low voice.

"It is painful, of course, to contemplate such a thing," Mr. Randolph replied, looking down in his plate with an uneasy, evasive air; "but we are poor folks now, you know, and we must do the best we can. We can only hope, my dear, that the necessity will not"——

"Oh, but it is not that!" exclaimed the girl, interrupting him, and tremulous with excitement; "but to sing, papa—to sing in real opera before a real audience! It is the best thing in the world! But can I do it, do you think? Am I able? Would Professor Dorimar have wished it? I would rather"—she was going to say "marry Mr. Vinal," but changed it to, "I would rather do anything than disgrace Professor Dorimar."

"You just leave all that to me, young lady," said the impresario, nodding good naturedly. "I take the risks! You'll not disgrace Dorimar nor nobody else. You're as good as the best of 'em, though it's money out of my pocket to tell you so! You'll need some drilling about the stage business of course; that—But don't you worry, I'll fix it all right! You've got a month or six weeks' rehearsals, and you'll catch on as quick as most gals, I guess."

Thus far the glory and delight of the merely musical aspect of the adventure had so dazzled Beatrix's eyes that she had thought of nothing else, but now a new idea entered her head.

"Am I to be paid for doing this?" she asked, glancing from her father to Jocelyn. "Of course I mean by and by—if I succeed. Is that what you meant when you talked about my winning fortune? But I would rather not make money in that way—I would rather make it in some other way than by singing, because . . . . But I couldn't make it in any other way, I suppose," she added, faltering a little. "Singing is all I can do! And, after all, it would be good if my singing would help pay our debts; that would not be unworthy even of music, would it, papa? I wouldn't take money to get rich, but I would to prevent your being troubled any more by * * * Oh, papa, can it be true? I'm sure you are very kind, Gen. Inigo; and thank you for telling him of me, Mr. Jocelyn."

This speech—a broken medley of musical tones, smiles, wet eyelashes, pauses of reflection and eager utterance—completed the general's captivation. He thumped his fat fist down on the tablecloth and exclaimed, "By Jupiter! gentlemen, I move we drink the health of the new prima donna"——

"And christen her at the same time," put in Jocelyn quickly. "You haven't heard your new stage name, Beatrix. Henceforward you are to be known to the world, not as Beatrix Randolph, but as—what is it, general?"

"Mademoiselle Marana" said Inigo. "Here's Mademoiselle Marana's health, boys! May she stand at the top of the profession, and sing pearls and diamonds like the gal in the fairy tale! Down she goes!"

CHANGE OF BUSINESS

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and would bespeak for them the same support as you have accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought that a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question we have purchased the above business from Mr C. N. Brown, who will still continue as manager, in Flavelle's Old Stand, Simcoe-st.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of every one to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of

FLOUR, FEED, CHOP, Etc.,

and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices.

We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred in the credit system

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

PARNELL TO THE PEOPLE

WHAT HIS NEW MANIFESTO DEALS WITH.

The Irish Leader's Latest Effort a Disappointment to His Friends—William O'Brien Declared a Bankrupt—The Liberal Electoral Platform.

LONDON, March 13.—Parnell's absence from the House of Commons Thursday during Balfour's graphic narration of the distress in Ireland and the relief measures adopted by the Government has caused intense surprise in Ireland. Parnell mysteriously vanished Wednesday. It transpires that he traveled to Brighton and stayed at Walsingham terrace with Mrs. O'Shea. He remained secreted until 6 o'clock tonight, when he appeared in the House of Commons and after remaining two hours returned to Brighton. A messenger boy has called at the House of Commons daily for Parnell's letters. In reply to the official inquiries the boy declared Mrs. O'Shea had sent him. Even the friends of Parnell declare that his continued neglect of Ireland for "Kitty" will completely ruin his cause.

TO THE IRISH-AMERICANS.

Parnell's New Manifesto a Disappointment to His Friends.

LONDON, March 13.—Parnell issued a manifesto this evening. It is addressed to Irish-Americans and is principally composed of an appeal to Irishmen in the United States for assistance. He defends his position and declares he has always worked in the interest of his bonded countrymen, although often misconstrued. The manifesto is a great disappointment to Parnell's friends, who had thought he would exonerate himself in relation to Mrs. O'Shea. That lady, however, is not referred to in the document. Parnell appeals to his fellow-countrymen in America to "once more assist him in quelling mutiny and disloyalty to Ireland and in securing a really independent parliamentary party so that we may make one more, even though it be our very last, effort to win freedom and prosperity for our nation by constitutional means."

O'Brien a Bankrupt.

DUBLIN, March 13.—The court has adjudicated William O'Brien a bankrupt on the petition of Lord Salisbury in the latter's suit to recover £1700, the costs in the action for libel brought against him by O'Brien and in which the latter was nonsuited.

Herman Raffalovitch, the father-in-law of Mr. O'Brien, has offered to discharge the debt, but Mr. O'Brien has declined to accept the favor.

The Liberal Electoral Platform.

LONDON, March 13.—Mr. Gladstone has been in consultation with Mr. Morley, Sir William Vernon Harcourt and Sir G. O. Trevelyan on the scope of the Liberal electoral platform and is preparing to announce it at Hastings. It is learned that Home Rule with a definite exposition of the questions of Irish representatives in the Imperial Parliament, land and police relations to the Irish Government, continues to hold the front rank.

Scully to Try Again.

DUBLIN, March 13.—Vincent Scully, the Parnellite who unsuccessfully contested for the seat in Parliament representing North Kilkenny, will contest for the seat representing North Sligo made vacant by the death on-day of Peter McDonald. MacDermott, a supporter of McCarthy, will enter the lists against Scully.

KIDNAPPED IN CHICAGO.

A SCHEMING VALET'S PLOT TO CAPTURE HIS MASTER'S FORTUNE.

He Tricks His Former Employer's Widow Into a Marriage With Him and Then Has Her Abducted When She Refuses to Live With Him

CHICAGO, March 13.—Mrs. Tillie Mowery reached her home, at No. 1110 West Polk-street, Monday morning, almost prostrated with anxiety and nervousness, and scarcely able to tell her strange story.

Less than four years ago she was a bright and beautiful girl residing with her parents in the little village of Colfax, Ill. She was the belle of the town. Then her family removed to Chicago and there she met William Mowery, a young Englishman of good family, who had come to America some time previously with his valet, Hubert Secor. Mowery's parents had disowned him, and he came to the United States to spend what remained of his fortune. It did not take him long to do it, for he soon found himself without a penny or employment. For a time Secor supported himself by what little he could earn and the pair drifted about the country from one city to another. When they came to Chicago they were entirely destitute, but Mowery was of such pleasant address that Tillie fell in love with him and they were married.

Finally Mowery secured a position with James S. Manning, a civil engineer, and started west with him on a prospecting trip. Secor also became one of the party. Before going away Mowery, for the first time since he left home, wrote a letter to his father's attorney requesting that a reply should be sent to Colfax, Ill., where he was going. He had been in Colfax but a month or two when he received a letter from England, telling him that his father and mother were dead and that he was heir to a large fortune. The next day Mowery was killed in a mine explosion, but Secor escaped.

Death of Mowery.

Mowery had never told his wife about his former life and she knew nothing of his antecedents or even where he was born. Secor was the only one in America who knew Mowery's history, and it is said he immediately commenced to plan to put himself in possession of the dead man's fortune. Without him Mowery's widow would not be benefitted, for in England they did not know of his marriage.

By the death of Mowery the young wife and her girl baby were left without means of support, so she returned to her father's house and sought employment, but long without avail.

Finally, through sheer necessity, she says, she applied for appointment at a detective agency on Washington-street.

Being young, attractive and intelligent she was employed on condition that she go to Wapaca, Wis., and "pipe" or shadow Hubert Secor, then their agent at that place, and whom, it would seem, she had not met. The salary was to be $5 a day.

With some reluctance she consented. At Wapaca she found everything going smoothly the first week. Her salary then stopped. She could get no money from the detective agency and she says her letters to and from her mother were intercepted, so that for more than three months she was kept in the little Wisconsin town without means to leave the place or any opportunity to communicate with her friends here.

Enter the Plotter.

During this time she met Secor and undertook to assist him in working up a murder case in the town. When she became desperate for want of money she was given to understand by Secor that she could only get her wages by remaining there three months, and if the business in which they were engaged proved successful she would be well paid. She remained till the end of the time. Then Secor told her there was but one way she could secure her money from the detective agency and that was through him, and in order to secure it she would have to go through the form of a marriage with him and acknowledge herself as his wife. This she at first refused to do, but at last, being without means to leave the town, she consented.

After the ceremony, which was performed by Justice Daly of the town, she was refused money by Secor unless she would consent to live with him as his wife. Again she refused in the most positive terms, and finally managed to send to her mother, Mrs. Sykes, to whom she explained her pitiable condition. Money was sent her, and she found herself once again free and in Chicago.

She then sought and found employment with a knitting firm on Van Buren-street, but she was not permitted to pursue her employment unmolested, and Secor at first wrote letters asking her to return, to which she paid no attention. He then wrote threatening letters and had a member of the detective firm try to induce her to return. But she steadfastly refused to recognize the marriage of Secor as her husband. Detectives were then employed to shadow her and ascertain where she lived, where she was employed and at what hours she went to work.

Kidnapped.

This surveillance was kept up till last Saturday morning, when she started out to work at 7.30 o'clock as usual. She had walked from her residence to Canal and Polk-streets when a man, apparently a police officer, having on the regulation uniform with belt, club and shield, walked up behind her and, tapping her on the shoulder, said:

"Tillie Mowery, I believe?"

She said, "Yes, what do you want?"

He said, "I have a warrant for your arrest."

She consented to enter a cab, and immediately three men jumped in and surrounded her so that she could not see which way she was being driven.

When the carriage stopped she found herself at Forty-eighth street. There they boarded a train, and the man who made the pretended arrest took off his uniform and put on a citizen's overcoat and hat. She then made up her mind to submit quietly till she could find an opportunity to telegraph to her friends here or make her escape. When the train reached Portage, Wis., she was taken to a hotel. There she requested her abductor to send a despatch to her mother telling her to take care of her child. This he consented to do, and during his absence she managed to put herself in communication with the landlady of the hotel and explained the condition of affairs.

A genuine message was then sent to her mother and the sheriff was called in and took her in charge. The abductors disappeared at once, but not before Secor had put in an appearance and wanted to take her to Wapaca. When he discovered the presence of the sheriff he fled. Mrs. Mowery says she can identify the men who abducted her.

Broke His Neck by a Fall.

ORANGEVILLE, March 13.—James Daniels aged 21, a carpenter, fell from a building while shingling and broke his neck, besides fracturing his spine. He leaves a widow and three children.

RESEMBLED A SLAUGHTER HOUSE.

LONDON, March 13.—A horrible tragedy occurred at Bury to-day, the details of which present a picture of frenzied brutality almost incredible. For seven years James Chadwick, a butcher, and Mary Scott lived together as man and wife, though they were bound by no marriage ceremony. A short time ago the woman left Chadwick and took apartments in another part of the town. Chadwick repeatedly asked her to return to him, but she steadily refused to do so. This morning Chadwick again went to Miss Scott's lodgings armed with a long knife used in slaughtering animals. Without a word of warning Chadwick seized Miss Scott by the throat, and, drawing his knife, slashed the woman across the mouth, the sharp blade cutting back to the ears on each side. He then drew the knife across her throat, and, making another thrust, plunged it into her heart. As the unfortunate woman sank to the floor dead the frenzied butcher attempted to cut his own throat, but though he managed to inflict a severe wound, he was not successful in severing an artery. Having wounded himself as he doubtless believed, fatally, the fiend sprang upon the body of Miss Scott, now lying dead at his feet, cut and hacked it until it was covered with gaping wounds.

The bloody work was done so quickly that the horrified landlady was powerless to stay Chadwick's murderous hand, but as he knelt over the body of his prostrate victim plunging the knife into her again and again, a stream of blood pouring from his own wound the while, the woman rushed upon him and disarmed him.

Chadwick then rose to his feet and glared about him. His eyes fell upon a table-knife lying upon the dining-table in the middle of the room. As quick as thought he sprang to the table, seized the knife and with one sweep of his hand drew it across his already gashed throat, nearly severing his head from his body, falling dead within a few feet of the victim of his jealous rage.

The room in which the terrible scene was enacted resembled a slaughter house. The walls and articles of furniture were covered with the blood which spurted from nearly a score of wounds, and the garments of the landlady, the sole witness of the butchery, were drenched with blood almost as thoroughly as though she had been gashed with the knife of the infuriated butcher.

Reciprocity Commissioners.

LONDON, March 14.—The Daily Graphic says Mr. Chamberlain has consented to act as British Commissioner in the event of the United States Government agreeing to discuss trade reciprocity with Canada and that his colleagues will be Sir Charles Tupper and Sir William V. Whiteway premier of Newfoundland.

Photographing Prisoners.

LONDON, March 13.—A good deal of opposition is developed in Parliament to the Home Secretary's bill, which proposes to extend to the police the power of photographing prisoners before conviction. They only have the right now to photograph after conviction. The provision in question is regarded as infringing the principle that a man is to be treated as innocent until proven guilty.

On Stilts from Paris to Moscow.

PARIS, March 13.—M. Dormdu, who proposes to walk from Paris to Moscow on stilts, started from the Place de la Concorde to-day in the presence of thousands of spectators. He was dressed in a suit of sheepskin, and found some difficulty in mounting owing to the great pressure of the crowd.

The British Blizzard.

LONDON, March 13.—While throughout the London district a thaw has set in, there are no signs of moderation in the severity of the weather experienced in the southwest of England. A heavy snowstorm prevailed throughout the night in Devonshire and Cornwall. As for the country roads, they are utterly impassable, huge snowdrifts completely preventing any communication between the different towns and villages.

LONDON, March 13.—The steamship which was wrecked off Start Point Monday last during the severe gale was the Myrama of Liverpool. When the steamer struck upon the reef the crew took to the boat in an effort to reach the shore through the heavy sea and the huge breakers made such an attempt one of pure desperation. One of the boats containing the steamer's officers was struck by a heavy sea and foundered and all the officers were drowned. The second boat, containing the sailors and firemen, capsized twice and twice righted herself. Each time she went over a number of men were drowned, while others succeeded in righting the boat, which was almost entirely filled with water, but kept afloat by reason of her water-tight compartments. Eventually four Swedish seamen reached the shore, but one of them died from exhaustion soon after being handed out of the surf. The three survivors were terribly battered by the surf, and were half dead when they were taken out of the water.

The Myrama was bound from London for Colombo. The captain, the chief engineer, three mates and the steward were in a small boat, while 22 of the crew left the wreck in a life-boat. Owing to the surf they had to put out to sea. After the life-boat had capsized the second time the survivors of the crew clung to the keel, but all were washed off except the 4 who afterwards were washed ashore.

The British iron ship Dryad, 1035 tons, from Shields, bound for Valparaiso, has been wrecked at Stuart Point on the east coast of Devonshire. The officers, passengers and crew, in all 24 persons, were drowned.

Among the schooners lost off Stuart Point was the Lunesdale. Four of her crew were drowned. The captain was among those saved. The schooner Lizzie Ellen was also lost and two of her crew were drowned. Seventy lives at least are known to have been lost off the coast during the blizzard, and not less than 10 men perished from cold and exposure after they had succeeded in reaching land. A number of vessels are missing, and the gravest apprehension is felt that the list of wrecks and number of lives lost will be greatly swelled.

The Disabled Suevia.

LONDON, March 13.—The Hamburg-American line steamship Suevia from New York, Feb. 26, for Hamburg, which was reported yesterday as being disabled 60 miles off the Lizard, is still breasting the channel seas without anything definite being known as to her exact condition.

The powerful channel tug Lincaton started out in search of the disabled vessel but was obliged to put into Falmouth yesterday. A more powerful channel tug set out from Southampton to-night.

A Railway for Newfoundland.

LONDON, March 13.—In the House of Commons last night the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced that the Government of Newfoundland had been informed that, under certain circumstances, the Government would give the imperial guarantee for a loan for building a railway on the island and for other similar purposes. The matter had not yet reached definite shape, and he would not make any statement as to the terms.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely than dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1883 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

MESSIANIC PROPHECY.

[The publication of the following, a second article on this subject, has been delayed for some time, owing to unavoidable circumstances.]

To the two hundred thousand Methodists scattered abroad throughout the Dominion of Canada, greeting:

The time has come, that Paul spoke of, when he said: "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; and shall heap to themselves teachers having itching ears, and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned into fables."—II Tim., iv, 3 4. Prof. Workman is an intellectual giant, and has done noble service for the Church of God, and I believe his aim and object in giving his new theology to the world was a good one, but he has failed teetotally in his object. Were it not that I have learned, in a measure, how to wield "the sword of the spirit, which is the Word of God," and, knowing that "my sufficiency is of God," would I dare to presume to step into the arena and measure swords with a man of Prof. Workman's calibre. Not that I am sufficient of myself to think anything as of myself, but I am confident that by using the sharp steel of the Word of Truth aright, I will be able, ere I get through, to let the wind out of Prof. Workman's big theological drum, which he has been beating in Cobourg and Toronto to the tune of Methodism, and show that he indeed is wise to a [illegible] "above that which is written," and that his teaching is calculated to weaken faith in the New, as well as the Old, Testament. In all his labored efforts he does not give us one single "thus saith the Lord," that proves his teaching. He quotes profusely from a host of professors and Dutch critics, who, apparently, are as deep in the mud as he is in the mire, of German rationalism.

HEAR THE GOLIATH

Again as he challenges the whole host of prophets, apostles, and evangelists, and who, with one stroke of his big theological sword, would fain cut out every personal prophecy from Moses, and the Prophets and the Psalms concerning Christ. He says, on page 471, "Had there been a definite, personal prediction of Christ in the Old Testament, why did not His disciples recognize it? One must reply they did not recognize it because there was nothing sufficiently definite respecting Jesus Christ in Scripture to convince them absolutely of His Messiahship." That is good plain English. There is no mistaking the sense which our learned professor means to convey in these words. If he is right, then Christ's commandment, "Search the Scriptures, for they are they which testify of Me" (the Messiah), was a mockery. They only had the Old Testament at this time to search, and if there was nothing definite in Scripture respecting Christ to convince them of His Messiahship, then no blame to the Jews for rejecting Him. In the name of the Lord of Hosts we will now take a few arrows from the quiver of

and send them one by one at his stalwart dogmata and his "new theology," and we pray that they may strike not only him but also his brethren who patted him on the back and said, "thank you for this new kind of doctrine; you are a Workman that needeth not to be ashamed." I refer to Dr. Burwash, Chancellor of Victoria University, Dr. Allan, of Cobourg, Rev. Blackstock, of Toronto. If Prof. W. had not closed the New Testament on the start he would not have made such an open show of himself before the world. What did Philip say to the Ethiopian eunuch when he was led of the Spirit to join himself to his chariot? Philip heard him read the prophet Esaiah, and said, understandest what thou readest? and he said, how can I except some man guide? The place of Scripture where he read was this: "He was led as a sheep to the slaughter, and like a lamb dumb before her shearers so he opened not his mouth. In his humiliation his judgment was taken away, and who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth' * * * The eunuch said, I pray thee of whom speaketh the prophet this?—of himself or of some other man? What did Philip answer? Did he say that there was no definitely personal prediction here of Jesus Christ? No; it is written, "Then Philip opened his mouth and began at the same scripture and preached unto him Jesus."—Acts 8, 35. What a difference between the two preachers and their teaching. If Prof. Workman had met this sunburnt African prince he would have told him that the prophet here had no thought of the person of Jesus Christ, that his words had no [illegible] reference to him, whatever, but [illegible] by way of accommodation they would [illegible] the beautiful phraseology and apply [illegible] to Jesus. The poor Ethiopian eunuch would have been left in his blindness had Philip talked to him thus. Methodists, I appeal to you, can we be loyal to God or God's Word or to our Methodism, and [illegible] such

in our colleges any longer? If we do the very stones will cry out. If we do not rise in our strength (from among the people) and [illegible] this shameful teaching, God will [illegible]. The people can stop this kind of thing if the clergy do not. The people support these institutions, not [illegible]. We love our ministers, and [illegible] are worthy of our reverence if they are true to their calling, but it seems too bad that not one of them has had the courage to come out and say we protest against such doctrine being taught in Old Victoria, and demand this man's dismission. I appeal to the Methodist people. Use your influence against such inroads on the true [illegible] of Old Testament theology, and let your voice be heard demanding that such teachers as referred to step down and out of professor's chairs in Old Vic. Some one has said that "the modern meaning of the word 'exegesis' is 'exit Jesus'." In its modern sense Prof. W. is using that word [illegible]. What think you, reader? [illegible] the literal version of [illegible] Isa. liii, 12, viz., "And [illegible] numbered with the transgressors," in Luke xxii, 37, and applies it [illegible] saying, "This that is written must yet be accomplished in me." Prof. W. says "Christ does not here declare that the original or primary reference of this passage is to Himself, 443, and that He (Christ) considered that prophecy not primarily written of himself, but of another of whom he was the anti-type." Pg. 443. Hear that ye Methodists who have been taught at your mother's knee, by your Sabbath school teachers, by your pastors, that Isaiah wrote of our Messiah, who has already come, when he foresaw His humiliation and also His glory, and he said: 'He poured out His soul unto death; and He was numbered with the transgressors; and He bare the sin of many and made intercession for the transgressors.' I appeal to your common sense, Methodists. Do these words refer to any other than Jesus the Christ, who has come, "who liveth and was dead, and is alive again forever more."? If they refer to another, as this new theology teaches, then the Jews are right in expecting another to whom they do refer, and they have done right in putting to death one who would dare pretend that he was the one of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write; and we, as Christians, have not one tittle of ground to stand upon. Listen to the words of the Christ: "All things must be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moses and in the prophets and in the Psalms concerning me." Then opened He their understanding that they might understand the Scriptures, and said, "thus it is written and thus it behooves Christ to suffer," etc.—Luke 24, 44, 46. Prof. Workman denies that there was any personal prophecy of "the Just One" who was to come. "To the law and to the testimony." What saith it? "To Him (not another) give ALL the prophets witness." Acts x, 43. "O fools, and slow of heart, to believe all that the prophets have spoken, * * and beginning at Moses and all the prophets He expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself." Not of some other man; not of some "ideal person" who had come in or near the time of Moses and the prophets. No, but "the things concerning Himself," His own person and mission. Here this: he tells us that Kuenen * * the great Dutch critic, in common with other scholars, has shown that many of Ezekiel's prophecies, as well as all those Hebrew prophecies relating especially to Israel's future, are not only simply unfulfilled but impossible of fulfilment. In other words these prophets prophesied lies. "Do my prophets no harm," saith God. Prof. W. evidently believes this Dutch critic, for he tells us that Kuenen's classification of the prophecies in question is so interesting and significant as to be worthy of the carefullest consideration. "Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men * * and not after Christ." Col. ii, 8. Paul, that is good advice, may we take heed to it.

JOHN CARLISLE.

Mothers Attend Their Own Children.

It is worthy of note that for some length of time mothers in Canada and the United States have themselves treated their children when suffering and sick. The mother's favorite remedy to-day is Paine's Celery Compound, a scientific preparation and entirely vegetable, and one which cannot harm the most delicate constitution. A mother says:—"Last spring my little girl, four years old, had a billious attack; but the constipated bowels, aching head, bad smelling breath, and furred tongue readily yielded to a few doses of Paine's Celery Compound, and she quickly regained brisk health." This grand restorer is the safest and best for all children. It is particularly adapted for the little ones, causing them to regain strength rapidly, give them appetite, makes them sleep soundly and naturally and harmonized their whole network of life. Mothers of Canada, do not fail to procure this valuable compound for your children when they are sick and suffering.

A 40-acre farm in Missouri, valued at $400, has been offered for $1 and the offer refused. The dollar in question was coined in 1795 and is one of the very first silver dollars issued by the government. It is worth more than the farm on a numismatic valuation.

A remarkable petition is on its way from India to Queen Victoria. It is more than 60 feet in length, and is signed by more than 10,000 women in India who are anxious to have the legal marriage age for girls raised from its present limit of 10 to 14 years.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediatey see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50c and $1. Trial size free. At all druggists.

All for a Postal Card.

An elegant Special City Prize valued at from $10.00 to $60.00 will be given each day to the person in Peterborough from whom is received the best list of English words (of not less than three letters) formed from letters contained in the two words "Ladies Newspaper." This offer is made by the publishers of a large, 32 page, four column Journal, edited by women, for the intelligent women of Canada. Over two hundred valuable prizes are offered in addition to the above extra special prizes given daily. All fortunate enough to secure a prize in this Competition will obtain a valuable one, as none other will be given.

This competition will be upon an entirely different plan from any before offered in Canada, in fact, after the style of those introduced by leading English publishers, and will be conducted in the same honorable manner which has governed English Competitions.

The publishers of "The Ladies News paper" are not offering these competitions expecting to make any money from direct results, but will expend several thousand dollars in this manner for the purpose of introducing their Journal.

The first object will be to make them strictly fair and impartial and establish an enviable reputation for the publication itself. Persons desiring to enter the competition may start at once, but send your address on a postal card and receive a free sample copy with full particulars. Address

Death in March Winds.

Poets and novelists go into ecstacies over what they romantically call "beautiful spring," and "gentle spring," and while, no doubt, every one is glad to see winter release its icy grasp, "beautiful spring" is, after all, one of the most deadly seasons of the year. Sudden transitions from warmth to extreme cold, with piercing, chilling winds; from dry to sloppy, "muggy" weather, all combine to make the season a most trying one, even to the hardiest constitution, while to those with weak constitutions the season is one of positive danger. Undoubtedly the greatest danger at this season of the year is from cold in the head, which very few escape, and which, if not promptly and thoroughly treated, developes into catarrh, with all its disagreeable and loathsome effects. Catarrh, neglected, almost as certainly developes into consumption, annually destroying thousands of lives. At this trying season no household should be without a bottle of Nasal Balm. In cases of cold in the head it gives almost instant relief and effects a speedy cure, thus preventing the development of catarrh. Where the latter disease has already secured a hold it is equally efficacious, and with persistent use will cure the worst case. From the outset it sweetens the breath, stops the nauseous droppings into the throat and lungs, dispels those dull headaches that afflict the sufferer from catarrh. Nasal Balm is not advertised as a cure all—it is an honest remedy which never fails to cure cold in the head or catarrh when the directions are faithfully followed, and thousands throughout the country have reason to bless its discovery. Nasal Balm may be had from all dealers or will be sent post-paid on receipt of price (50 cents, small, or $1, large size bottle,) by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Cross Mother.

At no time in her busy days is an intelligent mother so apt to fold the arms and close the eyes of maternal justice as when she is cross—simply and undoubtedly cross. This crossness is chiefly caused by fatigue—weariness of mind and body, and sometimes of soul. With tired nerves and weary body, she cannot endure the common demands made upon her, and ill-temper follows. She sows bitter feelings and repels loving attentions with her irritable hasty words. Broadly speaking, no mother has any right to get so tired. She cannot afford it. It takes too much out of her life, and too much out of her children's life. Such a condition can more frequently be prevented than is generally believed. The careless or shallow woman says: "I was overworked. It made me cross," and she considers that admission the sufficient reason and excuse for any amount of similar indulgence. The religious or sympathetic woman worries over it, prays over it, sheds bitter tears—and then the trouble repeats itself. The remedy lies near at hand. Let a mother find out what makes her cross, and then let her avoid the cause if possible. If social pleasures weary her, let them be decidedly lessened. If there is too much sewing, too much cooking, or too many household cares, lessen them. If economical efforts cause the severe strain, stop economising at such a cost. That is the worst of wastes. Let the first economy be of that precious commodity, a mother's strength. Even the extent of one's religious and philanthropic work should be carefully examined, and if the trouble lies there, calmly and wisely dismiss some or all of it from the list of duties, for "what doth it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" It is surprising how easily seeming interests or needs can be spared without injury to the home life whenever the thoughtful woman seeks to find them, and surely one of the worst of household influences is mother's crossness.—Agnes H. Ormsbee in Harper's Bazar.

God Keep You, Dearest!

God keep you, dearest, through this lonely night;
The winds are still,
The moon drops down behind the western hill;
God keep you safely, dearest, till the light.

God keep you, still when slumber melts away,
For care and strife
Take up new arms to fret our waking life;
God keep you through the battle of the day.

God keep you, dearest, nay, how vain,
How poor is prayer!
I can but say again, and yet again,
God keep you every time and everywhere.

To Be Seen on the Streets.

On the streets you may notice if you observe:

That the heavy fabrics run to plaids.

That the light fabrics run to flowers.

That close flat trimmings are still preferred.

That summer hats will be veritable flower gardens.

That early spring cloths are still moderately rough.

That the new fabrics are nothing if not pronounced.

That it takes a long purse to buy most of these things.

That the challies and wool muslins are prettier than ever.

That batistes of all colors, richly embroidered, are seen everywhere.

That gowns are to be slightly fuller and more draped than heretofore.

That velvet ribbons and ribbons are to be used for trimming in every possible way.

That handkerchiefs—they are pocket handkerchiefs no longer—are more ornate than ever.

That the newest gloves have one button and gauntlets of moderate depth heavily embroidered.

That black batistes with all over silk embroidery in colors and deep rich borders are to be much worn.

Fringes.

Fringes are in good demand in dull and half-dull as well as in pearl effects, the latter finding the largest consumption.

Among the favorites are dull fringes in curled cord and cordonnet, also cordonnet fringes with inserted double twisted silk cord.

Fringes of double twisted fine silk cord and cordonnet are much used.

Cord fringes of knotted cord with cord knots and cord bells which end in four or five inches long, pear-shaped.

Fringes having lengthy knots above of silk cord and long mohair cord fringed below are much used.

Fine twisted curly silk cord, fringed below, the cord being fastened above to a small ball, are much used as fringes.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly Itching Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago, it would have saved me $200.00 and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body, and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was $5 worth. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00, you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (No. 2, page 47) in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

CHANGE OF BUSINESS

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and would bespeak for them the same support as you have accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought that a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question we have purchased the above business from Mr C. N. Brown, who will still continue as manager, in Flavelle's Old Stand, Simcoe-st.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of every one to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of

FLOUR, FEED, CHOP, Etc.,

and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices.

We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred in the credit system.

Death of Mr. R. O. Bickford.

Mr. R. O. Bickford, who was known here through his connection with the Grand Junction railway, died in Toronto on Thursday. The Empire says:—In the death of Mr. R. O. Bickford Canada has lost a leading financier and Toronto one of her oldest, wealthiest and most respected citizens. Mr. Bickford's death was comparatively sudden, and will be a sad surprise to a large number of his many friends. He had not been in the best of health for the past two years, but his demise at the age of 56 was unlooked for. Mr. Bickford was president of the Erie and Huron railway, and director of a number of financial corporations. He was one of the largest property owners in Toronto, and his beautiful house and grounds in Gore Vale have no equals in the city. In 1874 Mr. Bickford was a candidate in the Conservative interest in West Toronto, but was a victim of the Reform wave that overswept the country at that time, being defeated by the late Chief Justice Moss. He leaves a wife and a goodly number of sons and daughters.

PUSHING CONSTRUCTION AHEAD.

The Mammoth Machine Shop at the Edison Works Nearing Completion—Another Building to be Started. The Works will Move Next Month.

Through a severe Canadian winter the Edison Company has been pushing its work of construction ahead and now the first of the fifteen buildings which will be erected on the company's thirty acres is about ready for the roof. This building which is so near completion is a monster machine shop and now that the walls have been reared and the timbers placed in position its mammoth proportions are more striking than when the foundation was being laid. The building is 270x100 feet and is two storeys in height, the second storey being planned on the inside in gallery fashion. Between four hundred and five hundred thousand bricks were laid in building the walls, which rise from a foundation which for solidity could not be surpassed. This building itself has a striking appearance as it stands alone, but what is it when compared with the solid block of fifteen immense buildings which the company intend to erect before they cease their building operations? There will be another building erected the same size as this one, while thirteen of the remainder are the same length but not so wide, being only 50 feet in breadth. The magnitude of the works can now be imagined by the visitor to the site, when he maps out in his minds eye the ground that will be covered by the entire buildings when completed.

Mr. Martin, the company's engineer in charge, is making preparations to commence operations on another building to the east of the one now almost finished. The company's orders are to push the work ahead. This second building which will be started as soon as the frost leaves the ground and building material can be placed on the site, will be the wire shop and will cover an area of 100x70 feet.

At present there are about one hundred men working at the first building and these will be put on the erection of the wire shop as soon as possible. This second building will require between three and four hundred thousand bricks for its walls and will be built on the same substantial plan as the first. Now that the arrangements for the G.T.R. siding into the works have been completed, and the railway men will push the construction with all possible speed, the Edison company will have no difficulty in laying down their material expeditiously and conveniently.

The Sherbrooke works will move here next month, so that the machine shop will have to be completed as quickly as men can do it. The company's lease at Sherbrooke expires in April and as no short renewal can be obtained they will have to come on to Peterborough at once.

The energy and success which has characterized the company's operations during the severe winter when all the difficulties and disadvantages of Canadian weather had to be contended with, reflects not only upon the company but upon Mr. Meyers and Mr. Martin, the two engineers, who have had the operations in charge.

This week has been a bad one for outside work, the rain preventing the men from working. However, a fortnight or three weeks will see the machine shop roofed in and the interior finishing will not take long.

The works have already become the regular terminus of hundreds of the citizens' Sunday afternoon walks.

AGRICULTURE AND ARTS.

Mr. Robert Vance Elected President—Prizes for Best Managed Farms.

The annual meeting of the Agriculture and Arts Association was begun Thursday evening in their rooms, Queen and Young streets, President Albin Rawlings in the chair, says the Globe. All the members of the council were present except Mr. J. C. Rykert. The names of the councillors are as follows:—Hon. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture, secretary; Henry Wade; D. MacPherson, Lancaster; Ira Morgan, Metcalfe; Joshua Legge, Gananoque; Jas. Haggarty, West Huntington; Robert Vance, Ida; J. C. Snell, Edmonton; Nicholas Awrey, M.P.P; Wm. Dawson, Victoria; James Rowland, M.P., Dumblane; C. M. Simmons, Ivan; Jonathan Sissons, Crown Hill.

In opening the proceedings the president pointed out that the year's work had been steady and successful. He thanked the members for their kindness and aid extended to him during his tenure of office, and pointed to the successful fat stock show at Guelph and the equally successful stallion show in Toronto this week, as in some measure the result of the labors of the association.

Upon nominations being called for the presidency for the coming year, it fell to Mr. Robert Vance.

The vice-president will be Mr. Awrey, M.PP.

The new president, upon taking his seat, expressed the hope that he might be of use in helping forward the cause of agriculture in Ontario. Mr. Awrey said that some few years ago the feeling had gone abroad that the usefulness of the association was gone. Matters had taken a turn because of the steady work of the last year or two, and if the members of the association discharged their duty to the people in connection with the Chicago exhibition during the next two years the association would be looked upon as an actual necessity instead of an incumbus, as it was for a time. He expressed a desire to aid in re-establishing the confidence of the people in the association.

Secretary Wade read his annual report, dealing largely with the meetings of the various stock associations which are held from time to time. The registration of stock, it appears, is steadily growing in favor. There are now registered 887 horses of various breeds, 319 cattle and 1,448 swine. The registration fees of the year were $2,204. Among the items of interest noted was the graduation of 175 students from the Ontario Veterinary College during the year.

It was announced that the prizes for the best managed farms would be given to No. 5 district this year. This district comprises Victoria, North and South; Peterborough, East and West; Hastings, East, West and North; Northumberland, East and West; Prince Edward, Lennox, Addington, Frontenac and Renfrew, North and South.

Oh, What a Cough.

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease consumption. Ask yourself if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. d10ed-6m

ADORATION, PRAISE AND TRUST.

The Theme of the True Hymn—An Interesting Lecture by Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Lindsay—Musical Renditions.

Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Lindsay, delivered a lecture, or, as he called it, "a talk," on "Hymns and Hymn Writers," in St. Paul's church last evening under the auspices of the Mission Band of that church. The terrific wind storm which was raging was undoubtedly the cause of the small audience which was present to enjoy the evening. The rev. gentleman has addressed Peterborough audiences before and had established himself in general favor, and it is safe to say that had the weather been auspicious there would have been a large attendance last evening to hear his lecture.

Rev. E. F. Torrance, the pastor, performed the duties of chairman. The enjoyment of the lecture was greatly enhanced by the musical numbers rendered. At the opening an excellent anthem was rendered by the choir, and during the address when Rev. Mr. Johnston reached his reference to that familiar hymn, "Art Thou Weary," it was very effectively rendered by Master Gussie Arlidge singing the first two interrogative lines and the choir giving the two responsory lines. At the conclusion of the lecture Master Arlidge, the boy sweet singer, son of St. Paul's organist, rendered a solo. Although suffering with a severe cold the youthful vocalist delighted the audience with his effort.

Rev. Mr. Johnston in opening his address disclaimed the title of a lecturer, but nevertheless his address proved to be exceedingly interesting, evidencing considerable study and research into the history of both hymns and hymn writers. The hymn book he said was a miniature history of the church, recording the condition of the church at different periods, and it was also a witness to the unity of the Christian church, very little doctrine being found in hymns. He defined a hymn as the outgoing of the soul to God, and the true hymn would be one of adoration, praise and trust. He then passed on and went into the history of hymns and hymn writers in the early church, in the fourth century or dark ages, at the time of the Reformation and in later years. All his references were made interesting by incidents in the lives of the hymn writers and the circumstances which led to the composing of the hymns. This historical information in regard to the songs in common use in the churches, given in such at attractive manner, was listened to with delighted interest by those present. In closing, the rev. gentleman expressed the hope that his remarks might awaken an interest in hymns and hymn writers which would lead those present to study for themselves.

At the close of the lecture a vote of thanks, moved by Mr. J. H. Roper and seconded by Mr. G. M. Roger, was tendered the reverend gentleman and suitably acknowledged.

Dr. E. T. Miller, of Cross Plains, Wis., has expressed the opinion that, for obstinate cases of syphilis and scrofula, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is unquestionably the most effective remedy known to pharmacy. Wonderful cures have resulted from its use.

Royal Edinburgh Concert Company.

The Empire of March 13th says:—"To bestow praise upon the entertainment given in the Auditorium last evening by the MacLennan Royal Edinburgh Concert Company would be only to tell the musical public of Toronto what they already know. To criticize the part singing or solo singing in the programme below would be as needless as it would be out of the way. It is only necessary to say that the organization of the company is just the same as when they were here not long ago. Since then they have gone through the principal cities of the United States, where they have met with the highest success, unlimited praise from the press, and applause from crowded audiences everywhere. It does one good to see them here again. They are like old friends. Their concert is an event that any lover of song—not to mention Scotch song—should not miss. The more one hears them, the more perfect and altogether charming they seem to grow. This is the reason why they appear to sing better every time they are heard anew. Miss Edith Ross, who is best known in Toronto of all the members of the company, got the kindest and warmest of receptions. Her winning sympathy in those beautiful Scotch ballads is simply beyond praise. The songs themselves are full of poetry, but she can interpret their sentiment, perhaps, as no other Scotch concert singer of to-day can. Miss Alice Steel is also as charming in her manner as she is perfect in her art. To hear her sing My Heart is Sair is a revelation of sympathy. Mr. Finlayson and Mr. Fleming have already received so much praise from the press of this city that it would be repetition to dwell upon their singing again. Both were in excellent voice last evening. Mr. James Ferguson, the most characteristic of funny Scotchmen that the Land o' Cakes has turned out—in fact, that it could possibly produce—kept the audience laughing last evening till laughing ceased to be good for the people, and then they could not stop themselves. Mr. Guitton's performance on the violin was magnificent, graceful, perfect and exquisitely sympathetic. Mr. James Blaikie, the accompanist, completed the musical organization. Mr. MacLennan's dancing was just what Mr. MacLennan's dancing only could have been expected to be. It was fine." Opera House, Peterborough, Wednesday, March 18, Prices, 25c., 50c. and 75. 1d62

A CRIME RECALLED.

Nelson Hamlin, Who Was Sentenced for Life, Regains His Liberty.

The residents of Peterborough for the past decade will remember the excitement caused when, on a Saturday night in September, 1881, Nelson Hamlin stabbed and killed Joseph Larocque with a pocket knife at the corner of Charlotte and George-sts. The particulars of the crime will also be well remembered. Larocque, who worked at Fitzgerald's livery stable, and a friend by the name of Lefort had been drinking in Mrs. Berubee's grocery store when Hamlin came in. An altercation followed after several drinks and, it was said, Hamlin called Larocque an indecent name. Lefort and Larocque left the shop and waited on the corner of Charlotte and George-sts. for Hamlin, and when the latter came along Larocque was going to get satisfaction and took off his coat with that intention. When he made a dash at Hamlin the latter was prepared and gave him the fatal stab with the small blade of a pocket knife, sticking him in the breast. Larocque sank down on the street and expired. Hamlin was tried and sentenced to life imprisonment.

This crime is thus recalled by the announcement that Hamlin has been reprieved is now enjoying his liberty. Many of his friends and others thought that the absence of any proven viciousness and the circumstances which made it appear that he had struck in self defence, would have justified a lighter sentence. These circumstances were undoubtedly the reason for the reprieve being granted.

Now, Give Attention

To the purification of your blood, for at no season is the body so susceptible to the benefits to be derived from a good medicine, as in March, April and May. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the people's favorite spring medicine. It stands unequalled for purifying the blood, curing scrofula, salt rheum, etc., regulating the kindeys and liver, repairing nerve tissue, strengthening and invigorating the whole body, as well as checking the progress of acute and chronic disease, and restoring the affected parts to a natural, healthy condition. If you have never tried Hood's Sarsaparilla for your "spring medicine," do so this season.

The Girl Discharged.

Edith Crowe, a young girl who has been in the employ as a travelling agent of Mrs. Ensign, general agent for the Vermelia Corset Company, was arrested yesterday charged with stealing a sum of money, about one hundred dollars, from her employer. After spending the night in the cells the girl came up before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning and elected to be tried summarily on the charge, pleading "not guilty." Mrs. Ensign, the lady who lost the money, was the only witness examined. She lives in the Snowden block on Simcoe-st., and according to her evidence had sixteen five dollar bills, seven ones, one two and three or four dollars in silver in her purse on Satuday afternoon. She had taken the purse out at that time to pay a dress maker and after doing this put the purse beneath a bust form which stood in the room, thinking it would be safe there. On Wednesday she wanted to make change for some customers, but when she went for the purse it was gone. Miss Crowe had come in from Bobcaygeon on Tuesday night and her conversation when told of the purse being gone led Mrs. Ensign to suspect her. On the strength of her suspicions she laid an information, but no evidence whatever which would lead to or justify a conviction was forthcoming and the accused was discharged, the Magistrate remarking that she left the court without the slightest suspicion resting upon her from the evidence given. The fact was also brought out that some one on Saturday had stolen the latch key of Mrs. Ensign's door and that on Tuesday night she left the back hall door open, thus making it possible for the possessor of the missing key to have entered and found the money.

A Serious Battle.

The political battle is over, but the battle with disease must be constantly and unceasingly waged else the grim reaper will come out victorious, and loved ones will be gathered to their long homes. On all sides may be seen pale and listless girls who should be enjoying the health and glow of rosy youth. Everywhere we are met with women young in years, yet prematurely old, who suffer in silence almost untold agonies, the result of those ailments peculiar to the female system. To all such, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a blessing. They restore wasted vitality, build up the nervous system, enrich the blood, and transform pale and sallow complexions into glowing, rosy cheeks that alone follow perfect health. In a word they are a certain cure for all these distressing complaints to which women and girls are peculiarly liable. A trial of these pills will convince the most sceptical of their wonderful merit. For suffering men Dr. William's Pink Pills are equally efficacious. For overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, nervous debility, and all those diseases that lead to broken-down manhood, they are a certain specific, stimulating the brain, reinforcing the exhausted system and restoring shattered vitality. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are nature's restorative and should be used by every weak and debilitated person. For sale by all dealers or sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Coming Concert.

A glance at the array of talent secured for the concert on the evening of St. Patrick's Day, March 17th, shows that the programme will be a very satisfactory one and well worth patronage. It is a well known fact that a local effort in the way of a concert is sure of a good attendance. In this case the reason will apply particulary strong as so good an evening cannot fail to be interesting. Several of the vocalists have not been heard for some time while others who have are always sure of a hearty welcome. There will be an enjoyable diversity in the numbers of the programme, and taken altogether, one that it will be a pleasure to listen to. The management who are looking after details for the Catholic Association, under whose auspices the concert will be given, have secured the appearance of Miss Stevenson, of Guelph, a well-known soprano of that city. Mrs. J. G. Macklin, Mrs. J. E. McIntyre, Miss Annie Dunn, Mrs. T. Dunn, Mr. Gorrie, of Toronto, and Mr. T. Dunn will also take part. Mr. L. H. Clarke, the celebrated elocutionist, reader and reciter will give selections and the Peterborough Amateur Orchestra will play. The admission has been fixed at usual prices and the plan is now open at Greatrex's drug store. 2761

DIED

SING.—In Millbrook, on Sunday, March 8th, 1891, MARY SING, relict of the late James Sing, aged 72 years.

His Explanation.

SHE:

How dare you kiss me, sir, without permission!—
A thing no gentleman would do—
No, no! I will not hear repetition
Of that ungallant kiss from you.

HE:

Let me explain: "The eyes," so says the poet,
"Are but the mirrors of the heart,"
If any love be nourished there they show it
Each time the veiling lashes part.

SHE:

Well!

HE:

When I looked into your eyes, unshrinking,
And saw my face reflected there,
Was I not fully justified in thinking
I found your heart of hearts laid bare?

SHE:

Far-fetched! Still, since I see my own reflection
Framed in your eyes so bold, so blue,
I think—well, there! I've not the least objection
To just another kiss from you.

No douche or instrument is required to apply Nasal Balm. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable in its effects. Use nothing else for catarrh and cold in head.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

"On the guest you mean," said Jocelyn, laughing. "Well, mademoiselle, how do you like your new name?"

"It's very pretty," answered she; "but how can I get it?"

"If you or your father had been in New York lately you wouldn't need to ask. The name of Mademoiselle Marana, the great prima donna from St. Petersburg and Moscow, is placarded all over town. All the world is agog to see and hear her. The new opera house was built expressly for her."

"But now"—

"I'm going to tell you. There's another lady somewhere, who sings under that name, and whom Inigo had invited to sing here. But she refused to keep her word at the last moment, and since the public must have some new divinity to worship, and since I knew it would be painful to your father to have you appear under your own name, I advised Inigo to put you in her place. That's the whole story."

Beatrix's clear eyes grew troubled. "It doesn't seem right to pretend to be another person—it would be deceiving people," she said.

"Nobody sings on the stage under his own name," replied Jocelyn. "To go on the stage is to change your identity, and become some one else. Nobody's deceived, because nobody expects anything else."

But Beatrix at once detected the flaw in this argument. "Why should I be called Marana?" she demanded. "Why not give me some other name that nobody has?"

"It seems to me that that might be preferable," observed Mr. Randolph.

"My dear Randolph, it's merely a business question," said Jocelyn, not sorry to make the explanation to him instead of to his daughter. "We call her Marana simply because Marana is the name in people's mouths at this moment. To give her another name would be to create all sorts of doubt and confusion, in the course of which the dear child's identity would be certain to be discovered. Nobody here knows Marana by sight or sound; so, even if Beatrix were inferior as a singer, they would be defrauded of nothing. But the fact is—as Inigo, who has heard the lady, will confirm me in saying—Beatrix can sing every bit as well as Marana, and rather better; so we are giving the public even more than they bargained for. It's a pure formality, but some forms are of the first importance practically. To bring her out under any other name than Marana would be a great injustice to our friend, the general, who has, so to speak, made out all his invoices and labeled all his goods under that title, and it would be quite as great an injustice to Beatrix herself, who, instead of at once receiving the salary that her genius deserves, would have to fight an uphill battle through stupidity and prejudice, and, taking all accidents into consideration, might not win through at all."

"It may be foolish, but I [illegible]," said Beatrix, [illegible] happy. "But you know best, papa, and I'll do what you say."

"I believe the amount of the salary has not been mentioned," said Mr. Randolph, turning to the impresario.

The latter was about to reply when Jocelyn swiftly took up the word. "She will be paid $3,000 a night," said he, "and there will be from three to four performances a week."

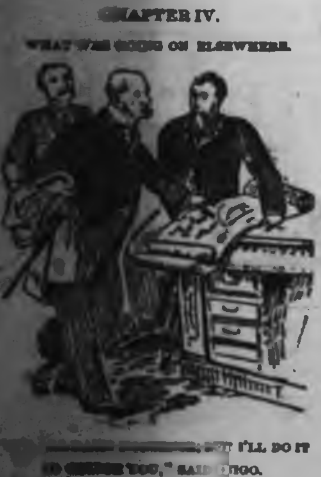
Mr. Randolph grew very red, and could not suppress a start. His most sanguine expectations had not exceeded a tenth of this sum. From $9,000 to $12,000 a week!—it was scarcely credible: it was magnificent; it was a fortune once a month! Meanwhile Beatrix sat almost indifferent, much to Inigo's admiration; but the truth was the girl knew nothing of the value of money, and was, moreover, personally much less concerned about the rewards of the enterprise than about the enterprise itself. She certainly never imagined that her father's discrimination between right and wrong could be influenced by such considerations.

After a pause to recover his composure Mr. Randolph cleared his throat and said: "I only asked for information; I know little about these matters, but I presume the sum you name would be considered fair remuneration. As to the morality of the matter," he added breaking into his shrill laugh, "I agree with you, Jocelyn, that the question is more one of form than anything else; and it would be an ungracious return for Gen. Inigo's courtesy to subject him to the embarrassment you indicate. I think you may call yourself Mademoiselle Marana with a clear conscience, my dear."

Beatrix sighed and faintly smiled. The worst that can be said of her at this moment is that she did not know whether she was glad or sorry.

CHAPTER IV.

WHAT WAS GOING ON ELSEWHERE.



"[illegible], BUT I'LL DO IT TO OBLIGE YOU," SAID INIGO.

Jocelyn and the impresario staid over night at the Randolphs', and completed the details of the agreement for Mademoiselle Marana's appearance. She was to come to the city in a few days, take up her abode at a hotel, and begin rehearsals immediately. Before leaving Inigo handed Mr. Randolph a check for $[illegible], as advance salary, to enable him to make the necessary arrangements, and the two gentlemen took their departure with many professions of good will on both sides.

Catarrh

Is a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

PICKED HIS LAST MELODY.

Gas Ends the Life of a Three-Foot Dwarf—An Empty Baby Chair.

NEW YORK, March 13.—There is a boarding house at No. 10 First-street where the freaks of dime museums down in the adjacent Bowery live. At the breakfast table yesterday morning there was a vacant baby chair. It was usually occupied by General Turner Wood, the midget who was 36 inches high, weighed 30 pounds and was 60 years old. He did not come down yesterday morning and Colonel Picket Nelson, who is eight feet high, and who traveled with the dwarf in a combination known as "The Long and Short of It," went up to wake him. Finally fearing that something had happened, he broke the door open and saw the General lying in bed with his eyes distended, his lips purple and his body bent double, as though he were suffering from violent cramps. But the little dwarf was dead after 60 years of fun and freak life. His banjo lay on the bed beside him and his horny little fingers hung lovingly about the strings. He had picked his last negro melody upon the familiar instrument. He had been suffocated by escaping gas.

A VICTIM OF CHEWING-GUM.

Remarkable Death of a 15-Year-old Collingwood Girl.

COLLINGWOOD, March 13.—Bertha Spencer, aged 15, died suddenly. A post mortem examination showed that her death was caused by swallowing a piece of gum, which produced a violent inflammation.

EUROPEAN SOCIALISTS.

Cowardly Attempt to Wreck a Train at Meiderich.

DUSSELDORF, March 13.—At Meiderich, near Duisberg, obstructions were yesterday discovered on the track and an express train was stopped just in time to prevent disaster. A number of dismissed laborers, lying in ambush near the scene, were detected, pursued and eight of them captured.

He Took Them Himself.

MATTAWA, March 13.—Johnston, a fanning mill peddler, had a companion named St. Michael arrested on a charge of stealing his team and sleigh. St. Michael strenuously denied the charge and gave information which led Constable Barrard to arrest Johnston himself. Not long after his arrest Johnston confessed that he himself had taken the team out of the stable and in driving across the river they were drowned and the team lost. St. Michael was discharged, and also Johnston, the latter on the ground that he could not steal from himself, the team being in his charge.

The Horse, the Trader and the Pipe.

ST. CATHARINES, March 13.—A man named Karner, a horse trader, living near the jail, was washing a horse with coal oil to remove some vermin and during the process he stopped to light his pipe, forgetting about the coal oil on his hands. The match set fire to the oil and communicated to the horse standing by, which immediately laid down in the water and put out the blaze. Karner was not so fortunate and had his face badly burned by the flames.

Thousands in a Coat Lining.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 13.—Nearly $10,000 was found here this afternoon in the lining of a coat belonging to the late Judge H. M. Cooley. The dead jurist had been one of the leading lawyers of the State, but for ten years had been doing nothing and was supposed to be penniless. In selling some old clothing his son felt something like paper in the coat, and ripping open the lining found $100, $500 and $1000 bank bills to the amount of $9700.

Pauncefote and Blaine Confer.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British minister, had a conference with Secretary Blaine to-day. It related principally, it is said, to the arrangement of preliminaries for the submission to arbitration of the various questions at issue in regard to Behring Sea fisheries.

Kilrain the Winner.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—Jake Kilrain of Baltimore and George Godfrey, colored of Boston met in a finish fight at the California Athletic Club to-night for a $3000 trophy. Kilrain was declared the winner at the end of the 44th round.

The death is announced of David James Jenkins of Highbury, London, Eng., formerly M. P. for Penryn and Falmouth and brother of Rev. Dr. Jenkins, formerly of Montreal.

OBITUARY.

His Last Words, Uttered in Delirium—a Speech on the Jesuit Question.

BERLIN, March 15.—Dr. Ludwig Windthorst, the Parliamentary leader of the Catholic party in Prussia, who has been dangerously ill for some days, died at 8.15 o'clock yesterday. Dr. Windthorst at midnight was merely able to whisper to replies to inquiries as to his condition. Suddenly however, his voice returned, and evidently imagining that he was in the Reichstag, delivered an impassioned address in favor of the abolition of the law expelling the Jesuits from Germany. The veteran leader's voice could be clearly heard through three rooms. He never spoke after having concluded his remarks on that bill.

Dr. Ludwig Windthorst was born January 17, 1814, at Kaldenhof, in the Province of Osnabrueck, Hanover. His parents were of the agricultural class and were devout Catholics. In 1849 he became a member of the Second Chamber of the Hungarian Diet, and was a leader therein. Late in 1865 he became Chief Syndic of the Crown in Celle. When Hanover was forced to yield to the inevitable and to become in 1866 a part of Prussia it was Windthorst who conducted the negotiations with Prince Bismarck concerning the compensation to be made to the King of the little State for quietly giving up his throne.

In 1867 he became a member of the Prussian House of Deputies and the North German Reichstag, but the most signal incident of those years was his participation in 1869 in the lay-congress at Berlin, the purpose of which was to oppose the doctrine of papal infallibility.

Death resulted from inflammation of the bowels. Mr. McMullen was head book-keeper for R. Walker & Sons. The funeral will take place to-day at 3 o'clock.

Dr. N. H. Broberg, who for a number of years practised the massage treatment in this city died on Saturday afternoon at Brooklyn, N.Y. A general favorite with all with whom he came in contact, his death will cause a great regret among his many friends in Toronto.

HIS DEATH AVENGED.

TERRIBLE BUTCHERY IN A NEW ORLEANS JAIL.

The Existence of Eleven Mafia Suddenly Terminated—Three Hanged, Eight Shot—Public Sentiment in Louisiana's Big City Sustains the Summary Action of the Mob.

NEW ORLEANS, March 15.—The jury in the case of nine Italians on trial for the murder of Chief of Police Hennessy rendered a verdict Friday evening acquitting six of the accused and failing to agree as to the other three.

The papers last evening were all emphatic in their denunciation of the verdict in the Hennessy case, and The States did not hesitate to declare that the jury had been bribed and that the authorities must find out who did the bribing.

The trial lasted 25 days, and though the evidence seemed conclusive the jury, currently charged with having been tampered with, failed to convict.

Last night a body of cool-headed men, lawyers, doctors, merchants and political leaders, all persons of influence and social standing, quietly met and decided that some action must be taken and the people's justice, swift and sure, visited upon those whom the jury had neglected to punish. This morning a call for a mass meeting at Clay Square, in [illegible] appeared in the papers, which editorially deprecated violence. The significant closing sentence of the call was: "Come prepared for action."

About 10 o'clock citizens began gathering at the Clay statue and the crowd soon numbered 8000 men. They were quiet but determined. A large proportion were the leading people of the town. There were three addresses, short and pithy and business-like. Each of the speakers said there had been a great mass meeting months before, which had met quietly and dispersed peacefully, so that the law might take its course. The law had failed. The time to act had come. W. S. Parkerson, the leader, is a prominent lawyer here, the president of the Southern Athletic Club. Walter D. Denegre, another of the speakers, is one of the leaders of the New Orleans bar; John C. Wickliffe, also a prominent attorney, and James D. Houston, one of the foremost men of the state.

After denouncing Detective O'Mally, who is supposed to have tampered with the jury, the speakers announced that they would lead the way to the parish prison, Mr. Wickliffe concluding with these words: "Shall the execrable Mafia be allowed to flourish in this city? Shall the Mafia be allowed to cut down our citizens on public streets by foul means of assassination? Shall the Mafia be allowed to bribe jurors to let murderers go free?"

"Get Your Guns!"

Some one yelled "Shall we get guns?" "Yes, get your guns," said Parkerson. Amid cheers the crowd tramped toward the prison along Canal and Rampart-streets, many arming themselves on the way. The crowd meantime was added to by hundreds of merchants and others. When the jail was reached the wooden door was broken in. Two men in the door prevented anyone entering [illegible] demanded of the custodian the keys of the gates, which were quickly given up.

When apprised of the approaching mob the prison officials transferred the Italians to the female department up-stairs. The crowd proceeded thither. As they reached the landing the assassins fled down at the other end and their pursuers followed. In fear and trembling they screamed for mercy. But the avengers were merciless and a deadly rain of bullets poured into the crouching figures. Gerachi, the closest man, was struck in the back of the head and his body pitched forward and lay immovable on the stone pavement. Romero fell to his knees with his face in his hands and in that position was shot to death. Monasterio and James Caruso fell together under the fire of half a dozen guns, the leaden pellets entering their bodies and heads and the blood gushing from the wounds. The bloody executioners did their work well, and beneath the continuing fire Cometez and Trahina, two of the men who had not been tried, but who were charged jointly with the other accused, fell together. Their bodies were literally riddled with buck-shot, and they were stone dead almost before the fusilade was over.

Slain in Their Cells.

When the group of assassins was discovered on the gallery, Macheca, Scoffedi and old man Marchesi separated from the other six and ran upstairs. Thither half a dozen men followed them, and as the terror-stricken assassins ran into cells they were slain. Jo Macheca, who was charged with being the arch-conspirator, was a short, fat man and was summarily dealt with. He had his back turned when a shot struck him immediately behind the ear and his death was instantaneous. There was no blood from the wound, and when the body was found the ear was swollen so as to hide the wound, which the coroner had great difficulty in locating.

Scoffedi, one of the most villainous of the assassins, dropped like a log when a bullet hit him in the eye.

Old man Marchesi was the only one who was not killed outright. He was struck on the top of the head while he stood beside Macheca, and though he was mortally wounded he lingered all the evening.

Shot and Hanged.

Polize, the crazy man, was locked up in a cell up-stairs. The doors were flung open and one of the avengers, taking aim, shot him through the body. He was not killed outright, and in order to satisfy the people on the outside, who were crazy to know what was going on within, he was dragged down the stairs and through the doorway by which the crowd had entered. Half carried, half dragged, he was taken to the corner. A rope was provided and tied around his neck, and the people pulled him up to the cross-bars. Not satisfied that he was dead, a score of men took aim and poured a volley of shot into his body and for several hours the body was left dangling in the air.

Bagnetto was caught in the first rush up-stairs and the first volley of bullets pierced his brain. He was pulled out by a number of stalwart men through the main entrance to the prison and from the limb of a tree his body was suspended, although life was already gone.

The Bloody Work Finished.

Just as soon as the bloody work was done Mr. Parkerson addressed the crowd and asked them to disperse. This they consented to do with a ringing shout, but first they made a rush for Parkerson and, lifting him bodily, supported him on their shoulders while they marched up the street. The avengers came back in a body to the Clay statue and then departed. Immense crowds rushed from all directions to the neighborhood of the tragedy, while the streets in front of the newspaper offices were blocked with people anxious to see the latest bulletins. There was intense suppressed excitement, but from one end of the [illegible] to the other the action of the citizens was applauded.

O'Mally, the detective, who would have shared the fate of the assassins if he had been caught, has disappeared and is not expected to return, and members of the jury are in hiding.

The Lynching Endorsed.

The Cotton Exchange, the Board of Trade, the Sugar Exchange and the Stock Exchange met and adopted resolutions maintaining that deplorable administration of criminal justice in this city, and frightful extent to which bribery of jurors has been carried rendered it necessary for the citizens of New Orleans to vindicate outraged justice, and declaring the action of the citizens to have been proper and justifiable.

The Stock Exchange expelled J. M. Seligman, who was foreman of the jury at the trial of the assassins.

Not the First Time.

To-day's tragedy recalls a previous crusade here against the Sicilians. In 1836 a Sicilian political club here attempted to interfere with the politics of the day. There were frequent rows and one night during an election the Sicilians attempted to take charge of the polls. A riot followed and 10 or 15 Sicilians were shot or thrown into the river.

The coroner's jury presented a simple finding. They did not say who shot the men.

Matranga, Sunseri, Natalie, the boy Marchesi, Paterno, John Caruso, Pietzo and Incardona are the eight men who escaped punishment. Caruso hid in the yard, Natalie concealed himself in the wash house and was discovered, but for some unknown reason his life was spared. Sunseri and Pietzo hid in a dog house, and Incardona in a vault. The jail officials spirited Matranga and Paterno out of harm's way.

The foreman of the Mafia jury, Seligman, was arrested at a small railroad station just outside the city this morning while attempting to leave town.

Officer Herron was accidentally shot during the firing, but not seriously injured.

The jurors who were tampered with will be proceeded against.

History of Hennessy's Murder.

New Orleans was startled on the night of Oct. 15 by the report that David C. Hennessy, the popular chief of police, who was only 32 years old and had been on the force since he was 12, had been shot down by Italians in ambush. Just as he turned the corner near where he lived a volley from several guns, which awakened the people for squares around, was heard and Hennessy dropped on a neighboring door step riddled with bullets. The assassination was attributed to an Italian society in New Orleans which ordered assassinations. Hennessy had expressed his determination to annihilate the society and his death was decreed. Although three of his assassins were identified the jury failed to convict.

The President's Message.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Secretary Blaine [illegible] of New Orleans stating that the Italian Minister had represented to the President that among the victims of the massacre were three or more subjects of the King of Italy, and under the United States treaty with Italy Italian subjects domiciled in the United States were promised "the most constant protection and security for their persons and property." The President deeply regrets that the citizens of New Orleans should have so disparaged the purity and adequacy of their own judicial tribunals as to transfer to the passionate judgment of a mob a question that should have been adjudged dispassionately and by settled rules of law. The Government urges the prosecution of all offenders.

The Italian Prime Minister.

NEW YORK, March 15.—In reply to notification of the massacre from the Italian press of New York this despatch was received from the Italian Premier:

ROME, March 15.

Your cablegram received. I have already demanded from the Federal Government energetic and prompt measures. (Sgd.) RUDINI.

ALVINSTON, March 15.—Ira Fenger while out shooting with four other men to-day stuck his gun in a brush pile and went to scare out a rabbit. On returning he grasped the gun near the muzzle, and pulling it towards him discharged it. The shot took effect in his throat and killed him instantly.

Anxiety For the Queen's Health.

LONDON, March 15.—Great anxiety is expressed in the Queen's intimate circle of courtiers as to her health. Although not seriously ill, the Queen is visibly aging, and continues to be much excited and distressed at the Sir William Gordon Cumming baccarat affair. For the last few days she has talked of little or nothing else.

Philippsen Condemned to Death.

COPENHAGEN, March 15.—Philippsen, the soap manufacturer who was arrested early in April, 1890, for participation in insurance frauds, and who confessed on April 13 of the same year that he had strangled a clerk named Meyer, who had been missing since Jan. 7, 1890, and had sent his body to New York in a lime cask, has been condemned to suffer the death penalty for his crime.

NEW YORK, March 15.—James J. O'Kelly, M.P., John O'Connor, M.P., W. H. K. Redmond, M.P., and Henry Harrison, M.P., delegates sent to this country by Mr. Parnell for the purpose of raising funds for the Nationalist movement, arrived here this morning on the Etruria from Queenstown. They were met by a reception committee. Ald. Cloudinang, a member of the Quebec Legislature from Montreal, and a Mr. Crowe were among the earliest callers. In behalf of the Irishmen of Montreal they extended to the envoys an invitation to visit that city, which the latter said they would be pleased to do while making their Canadian tour.

PARNELL'S PLEA.

The Irish Statesman's Long-Expected Manifesto Issued.

LONDON, March 16.—Mr. Parnell has made public his long-expected manifesto. The full text of the document follows:

HOUSE OF COMMONS,
Friday, March 13.

To the Irish People of America:

FELLOW-COUNTRYMEN: In 1880 and subsequent years you assisted me powerfully by your influence upon American public opinion and with your generous financial support to create the great movement of the Land League. Without your aid, so freely given and so constantly maintained, Ireland could not for one moment have made headway against her oppressors. Still less could she have attained the singular position of power and the promise of success which she has occupied during the last five years.

At the instant when victory seemed near and certain, the hasty and meddlesome interference of English politicians in the complete organization of our party, aided by a sudden movement among some young law recruits, eagerly seconded by a few malcontents, office-seekers and envious persons who crept into our ranks temporarily destroyed the unity of our forces and sapped the independence of many Irish representatives.

It now becomes my task to restore this unity and reconstruct our movement, lopping off all unsound materials, taking effectual precautions against the admission in the future into our army of any weak, treacherous, self-seeking elements. Fortune has unveiled this danger and given space for this reconstruction before the general election, and the disclosure has brought about a realization of the insufficiency of Mr. Gladstone's proposed solution of the situation to secure the legitimate liberty, happiness and prosperity of your brothers and sisters in Ireland. This disclosure was timely, and all [illegible] shores are well qualified with experience, ability and patriotism to fully explain and defend my position, with all that is sound, courageous and reliable at home assumed with me at this crisis. I commend them to your hospitality and I am confident that you will extend to them the most favorable reception and hearing. They are each and all well-tried soldiers who have constantly distinguished themselves in our war against coercion and British misrule and who, despite intimidation and influences of the most unscrupulous and far-reaching character, have bravely defended me during these dark days and trying moments with a confidence even greater than in 1880.

"I appeal to you once more to assist me in quelling this mutiny and disloyalty to Ireland; to help me in securing a really independent parliamentary party, so that we may make one more, even though it be our very last, effort to win freedom and prosperity for our nation by constitutional means.

Your faithful servant,
CHARLES STEWART PARNELL.

A Russian Outrage.

BERLIN, March 15.—A Vienna despatch tells of a Russian outrage at the Galician frontier town of Bzovnerzya. In that place there was residing for a time a certain Johann Zell, a deserter from the Russian army. With a view to capturing the deserter two Galician tradesmen were bribed by Russian agents to give him employment. When this had been done they made him drunk and took him in a carriage across the frontier, where of course he was arrested and sent to St. Petersburg. The two Galician tradesmen were sentenced by the Austrian courts to one year's imprisonment for connivance in an unlawful act. They appealed against the sentence, but it has just been confirmed, the term of imprisonment being increased to two years.

Alsace-Lorraine Passport Regulations.

BERLIN, March 15.—The Emperor to-day gave audience to a deputation from the Alsace-Lorraine Parliament. His Majesty announced that he was gratified at their expressions of loyalty and regretted that he was unable to relax the passport regulations. The Emperor added that he hoped affairs would soon take a turn which would permit of the facilities of frontier intercourse being extended, which would happen as soon as the populace was convinced that the ties which bound Alsace-Lorraine to Germany were indissoluble.

The Paris Green Route.

BROCKVILLE, March 14.—Miss Elizabeth Robb, aged 23 years, committed suicide at Toledo, this county, by taking Paris green. As soon as it was discovered that she had taken the poison doctors were summoned, but could do nothing to save her life, and she lingered in great agony until noon yesterday, when death put an end to her sufferings. For some time past the woman had shown symptoms of insanity.

THE ANNEXATION MOVEMENT.

More than one leader in the unrestricted reciprocity movement has been made angry by the result of the elections. Mr. Erastus Wiman, who sent out from New York literature and cartoons to aid the Liberal party in an interview with a representative of the Montreal Star uses language almost as abusive as did Sir Richard Cartwright in his Oxford letter. Among other things Mr. Wiman said:

> "I know that the popular sentiment in Canada is that, personally, I am an advocate for a political relation between the two countries. It is an outrageous and unmitigated falsehood, and, though it is not very polite to do it, I would call every man in Canada a liar to his face, that would make that allegation regarding me. Strange as it may appear, even in the hot contest which has gone forward Canada recently, in which my name has been taken in vain to a degree almost more than any other single individual, there has not been a single act, letter, speech or article adduced in which there has been the slightest advocacy of annexation."

Mr. Wiman has played a neat trick many times to hide his views from the Canadian people. When a speech made by him in the United States has been quoted on this side, he quickly sends a despatch that he has been misreported, and thus his speech advocating annexation is given to the Canadian public while the circulation here is checked by his denial.

Much evidence, however, could be adduced to show that Mr. Wiman has all along had the annexation of Canada in view. The letter of Mr. Farrer, the Globe editor, in which he said to Mr. Wiman that "a large number of people are inclined to think that we had better make for annexation at once, instead of wasting two bites on the cherry," showed that the New Yorker was familiar with the object in view. And the fact that Mr. Wiman forwarded Mr. Farrer's letter to Congressman Hitt, who saw "some logic" in what Farrer said, shows that others were in the secret.

But there is evidence much more direct than that. In giving his evidence before the Senate Committee on Relations with Canada, Mr. Wiman pointed out what he believed would be the results of free trade between the countries, and said (official report, page 782):—

> "So that nothing could contribute so much to bring about annexation, if it is thought in the end to be desirable, as to have closer commercial relations."

This is pretty plain, but even on this side of the line Mr. Wiman unburdened his mind more freely. In the fall of 1889 he was in Northern Ontario with a hunting party, and he delivered a speech at Huntsville, a report of which appeared in the Globe on or about Nov. 1st, and there is no mistaking his sentiments as therein expressed. He said:

> "That an invitation to join the Union, coupled with conditions of the highest advantage, will within a very short period be afforded to Canada, there is no manner of doubt. It is doubtful if in all the history of nations an invitation more hearty, more attractive or more advantageous will have ever been recorded in the annals of time."

Mr. Wiman also, at that time, exposed somewhat the depth of the plot, and in the light of subsequent events the following passage in his speech is doubly interesting:—

> "Already the subject has been comprehensively discussed in the Committee of Foreign Affairs in the United States Senate, and but for the intimation that the invitation would not be accepted, would have before this been made public. But this action has merely been postponed and beyond all question it will be pressed, and with such pressure on the one hand and such attractions on the other that it will seem difficult to resist. For if all sentiment were to be dismissed, all antecedent training were to be divorced, and if only considerations of material and personal advantage to every precious son and daughter in Canada were to prevail, what better future could be afforded them but that, with the complete liquidation of the national debt, now and for all time to be so burdensome, their land should form a group of States to join the constellation of commonwealths that illuminate this western hemisphere?"

Mr. Wiman may use language as impolite as he pleases, but that he wishes to bring about the annexation of Canada to the United States is true, and that others, in both countries, were working with him with that object in view is also true.

In the foregoing quotations from his speech Mr. Wiman said that an invitation from the United States to Canada to unite with the Republic had been discussed and had been postponed; that it would be repeated, and that it would be accompanied by pressure on the one hand and attractions on the other. That pressure has, in part at least, been applied, for however the McKinley bill may have been viewed by some Congressmen, the plotters looked upon it as a step towards coercing Canada into the Union—it was the pressure. It is worth noticing, too, that Congressman Hitt, whose letter makes such interesting reading along with Mr. Farrer's disgraceful epistle, is Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, which had under consideration and postponed the annexation proposal. How was it that Mr. Wiman was familiar with the unpublished doings of that committee? There can be no doubt that he knew of it all the time, and that, indeed, he was at the bottom of the proposed manœuvre. Taking Mr. Wiman's utterances as a whole, and his evidence before the Canadian Relations Committee and this speech from which we have quoted; taking Mr. Farrer's pamphlet pointing out to the United States how Canada might be injured and coerced; taking the same Globe editor's letter to Mr. Wiman, and keeping in view the action of the Foreign Relations Committee and Mr. Hitt's letter to the same Mr. Wiman, no one can come to any other conclusion than that there was a movement to force and cajole Canada into annexation, and that Mr. Wiman was one of its leaders.

An Assurance for the Ladies.

It should prove cheering to the ladies of Canada, when one of their number considers it to be a duty to speak favorably of Paine's Celery Compound, which is conferring benefits and blessings wherever it is used. A St. John, N. B., lady writes as follows: "For four years I have been a sufferer from nervous debility and dyspepsia. I was also at times troubled with severe headache, which added untold suffering to my weak state of body. I often went to bed at night wearied and worn out, and remained awake until morning. My medical adviser could not give me any permanent relief, and at times I felt that life was worthless. Hearing of Paine's Celery Compound, I determined to try what a bottle would do for me. Before I had used the first bottle I was convinced I had found something that had brought a measure of relief. I kept on using it, and in a month's time I found I could sleep better, eat better, and was stronger. Up to this date I have used six bottles, and am compelled to admit that I am now almost myself again. It has been my salvation; and I consider Paine's Celery Compound worth the efforts of a dozen physicians. I will always be pleased to recommend it to my friends."

The ladies of Canada will surely see that this great remedy is particularly suited for them in all difficulties.

MARRIED BUT NOT A BRIDE

A PAINFUL WEDDING SENSATION IN OTTAWA.

Miss Katie Warren Immediately After Her Marriage Finds the Bridegroom was Already Married—Flight of the Bridegroom.

OTTAWA, March 15.—Miss Kate Warren, a pretty and well-connected Ottawa girl, was married Thursday night at St. Luke's Church to Frederick W. Hall of Cleveland, Ohio. After the ceremony the wedding party proceeded to the house of the bride's parents. As the wedded pair and invited guests were sitting down to the marriage supper, a friend of the family hurriedly came to the door and asked Hall out and there charged him with having a wife in England. Hall declared that he had a divorce. A painful scene followed, in the course of which the bride's mother took the marriage ring off her daughter's finger and made the bridegroom take it back. Hall then left the room and fled from the house by the back door. It is supposed he left here by the night train. He was a handsome young fellow of captivating address.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, March 15.—The remains of the infant child of the unfortunate girl Sarah Fox were interred last week in St. James' Cemetery, the interment being delayed until this late date by order of the coroner. In addition to the fracture on the top of the skull two other fractures, one on either temple and each sufficient to cause death, were discovered.

Robert Robertson, 164 Duchess-street, a carpenter, while working on a building on the northwest corner of College-street and Spadina-avenue, Saturday afternoon, fell off the scaffolding, a distance of 10 feet to the ground. His head struck a pile of loose lumber and he was picked up insensible. Dr. Overton Macdonald of 329 College-street was called in, and at once ordered his removal to the Homœopathic Hospital, where it was found that the injured man was suffering from a severe concussion of the brain and spinal fracture. Robertson's chances for recovery are very slight.

Before the master in chambers on Saturday a motion was made to dismiss the action of Agnes Dewan against John J. Parker and his wife Mary Ann Parker. The parties live on adjoining farms in the township of Emily near Lindsay, and the dispute arose out of the purchase by Mrs. Parker of the farm which was rented by the plaintiff's husband and on which she and her husband resided. It is alleged that on Oct. 10, 1890, during the absence of Mr. Dewan, the defendant John Parker went on to the Dewan farm and proceeded to take possession in the name of his wife and against the protests of Mrs. Dewan. He brought with him a plow and was about to do some plowing when the plaintiff made an assault on the plow and broke part of it. Parker laid an information before the Police Magistrate at Lindsay against Mrs. Dewan for maliciously and with intent to destroy it breaking the plow. Mrs. Dewan appeared before the magistrate and obtained an adjournment, but was, at request of Parker, compelled to furnish bail for her appearance or go to jail. When the matter came up again she was discharged, as she also was at the assizes later on the same charge. Mrs. Dewan now asks $2000 damages, but her statement of claim being some days late a motion was made to dismiss the action. The matter was enlarged till Tuesday.

Mary Townsend and George F. Townsend, her husband, are suing T. H. Pratt and Emma Pratt for damages for slander. The parties reside at Hamilton and the trouble arises out of a quarrel between the two women, each accusing the other, it is alleged, of leading an immoral life. It is also alleged that the female defendant spread reports to the effect that the female plaintiff kept a house of ill-fame, and that by reason of such slander she was turned out of her house by her landlord and also suffered other damage. The solicitor for the plaintiffs asked the master for an order for the examination of the female defendant for discovery before delivery of statement of claim. Judgment was reserved.

"The Clover Leaf."

The finest salmon caught in the Fraser River, British Columbia, are packed at Leslie Island and branded "Clover Leaf." When the can is opened the salmon is taken out in one large steak. You can procure these goods at Alex. Elliott's, and when you want a first-class article at the lowest price go to the Palace Grocery.

A New Front.

The front portion of the fur and hat store of Messrs. Wm. Lech & Sons has been immensely improved by the putting in of two plate glass show windows. Besides this, another good feature has been introduced in the shape of a plate glass mirror, which stands on the wall side of each window and reflects, with good effect, the display in the windows. This firm of hatters and furriers have greatly improved their premises by their enterprise. Mr. Arthur Rutherford had the alterations in charge and, as usual, has done his work creditably.

As the days grow longer the sun grows stronger, and the wet and slush that follows are the sure forerunners of cold in the head. Nasal Balm instantly relieves and permanently cures.

A Valuable Series.

Amongst the new publications lately received we note with pleasure a series of tastefully designed and handsomely illustrated pamphlets treating of the resources and manifold advantages of the Canadian Northwest as a field for colonisation. The pamphlets are published by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, and the series comprises the following:—"Dairy Farming and Ranching," "100 Farmers Testify," "The Canadian Northwest," "Free Farms," "A Scotch Farmer's Success," and "British Columbia." These form a most valuable set and contain a vast amount of useful and interesting information, secured by special commissioners who thoroughly covered the ground, and contain numerous illustrations of farming operations, etc., upon the prairies; also a great number of letters from settlers in the country telling of progress up to the close of 1890, and a good map. The pamphlets are far ahead of any previously published devoted to this particular field, and they should prove invaluable to the intending colonist. They are also well worth securing even by those who have no intention of going westward. Copies will be mailed free to any address upon application to any agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Each season has its own peculiar malady; but with the blood maintained in a state of uniform vigor and purity by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla little danger need be feared from meteorological influences. No other blood medicine is so safe and effective.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

The City Pulpits and Church Services on Sunday.

The George-st. Methodist church was filled with a large congregation last evening, despite the stormy weather. The musical part of the service was unusually attractive a special service of song being rendered, under the leadership of the organist, Mr. L. Seward. Two anthems were rendered by the choir in admirable voice, the volume and unison being especially fine. The solo numbers rendered by Miss Maude Stevenson, of Guelph, a talented vocalist who is here visiting her sister Mrs. C. McGill, were excellent. Possessing a rich voice of great compass, she sings with a grace and precision and distinct articulation, which is particularly pleasing to her audience, and stamps her as a vocalist of exceptional talent. Her two numbers, "Tantum Ergo" (Hear us, Father) and "There is a Green Hill Far Away," were listened to with delight by the vast congregation. In the morning Miss Stevenson rendered a solo in fine voice in the Charlotte-st. church.

To-morrow being St. Patricks' Day Masses will be celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral at 7 and 9 o'clock in the morning. The latter will be a high Mass and will be followed by a sermon.

Rev. C. O. Johnston is to occupy the pulpit of Charlotte-st. church next Sunday morning and evening. The reverend gentleman is one of the most popular preachers and platform orators of Canadian Methodism. Rev. Mr. Johnston recently declined an invitation to become pastor of Trinity Methodist church, Toronto. The Charlotte-st. Methodist Sunday school are to be congratulated in securing Mr. Johnston for their anniversary services.

A full attendance of Epworth League members is requested this evening in the school room of Charlotte-st. Methodist church. Mr. Colville, Secretary of Y.M.C.A., and Mr. Alfred Johnston will be present and address the meeting.

A series of revival services are to be commenced in the George-st. church on Sunday next. Rev. Mr. Bates, the evangelist specially appointed by the Conference, is to conduct the services. The rev. gentleman is peculiarly gifted for evangelistic work and a time of revival is looked forward to.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the George-st. Methodist church hold a congregational "at home" at the parsonage to-morrow evening.

What it Costs

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people in buying even necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes, because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said "100 Doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last month.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The young men's meeting on Saturday evening was a season of blessing. The thoughtful and earnest address of Mr. Arthur Jolly was impressive and helpful. The singing was hearty, being led by the Orchestra. The after meeting was a heart searching time.

The Consecration service on Sabbath morning was led by Mr. Arthur E. Burch and was blessed to all present.

The Personal Purity meeting on Sabbath afternoon was well attended. Mr. R. M. Russell and others gave touching testimony to Christ as a Saviour from sin.

The Gospel and Song Service Sabbath evening was a time of refreshing from the Lord. Rev. Mr. Torrance being called away was unable to be present. Miss Code and others gave short stirring testimonies. All present felt it was good to be there.

Bible Class on Tuesday evening at 8 p. m.

A Canadian Field of Labor.

On Saturday afternoon the Bishop of Saskatchewan and Calgary delivered an address at St. John's church to a rather small audience. His Lordship is making a tour through this diocese delivering addresses with a view to awakening an interest in the Northwest missions. These missions have been supported largely by the mother church in England and now this support from the Old Land is being withdrawn at the rate of one-twentieth of the grant per year. Thus in twenty years the Northwest mission will be totally without any grant from the church in England. The decrease in the grant will make it necessary for an increased interest and assistance from the Canadian church and with this end in view the Bishop is making this tour. He is a very pleasing speaker and his address was decidedly interesting, enlightening many in regard to the great missionary work being done in our Northwest by the Church of England. He outlined the work that was being done in the Northwest both among the White settlers and the Indians and told of the manifest interest that the Indians were taking in the Church and its welfare. The Bishop closed by stating the facts in regard to the withdrawal of the support of the Mother Church and said this year it would be necessary to raise $400 extra for his diocese alone.

The Ontario Telephone Company.

That the superior service of this Company is appreciated by our citizens at large is demonstrated by the large list of new subscribers published to-day, which is at least the third since their last card came out on February 1st. The Company are certainly to be congratulated on their continued and deserved success in the face of the experimental policy of free telephones adopted by the opposition company. The efforts now being made by the manager to have a through metalic circuit to Toronto in conjunction with the Toronto Telephone Co., seem to indicate that at no very distant day it will be an accomplished fact, and the Bridgenorth, Chemong Park, and other out of town connections are only waiting the end of King Frost's reign, the poles on a portion of the routes being already distributed on the roads. The latest subscribers placed in circuit are as follows:—John Conroy, butcher, 212 Hunter-st., 289; Chief of Police Office (central station), 60; H. M. Kelly, residence, 61; Wm. Detcher, grocer, 3?5 Water-st., 275; Wm. Fitzgerald, contractor, Dublin and Water-sts., 67; Mechanics' Institute, 379 Water-st., 66; Roland Tivey, residence, Ashburnham, 72; H. Thompson & Co., Bookstore, 4?6 George-st., 62. Other connections will be announced in the papers as fast as made and subscribers are asked to write on cards names and numbers as announced.

"I would not take $100 for my bottle of Nasal Balm if I could not get another," is the verdict of one sufferer who was speedily cured of cold in head. Such strong testimony ought to convince you that it is worth trying.

AHEAD OF THE CONTINENT

THE LEADING CHEESEMAKERS OF AMERICA IN COUNCIL.

Annual Meeting of the Peterborough Cheesemakers Association—How to Reach the Patrons and Improve the Quality of Milk—Cheese and Milk Inspection—Discussion—Officers Elected.

On Saturday afternoon in the Council Chamber the Peterborough Cheesemakers Association held its annual meeting. The attendance was not large, but considerable discussion took place on matters of interest to cheese men generally. An effort had been made to have Prof. Robertson, of the Experimental Farm, here but a telegram was received regretting that a former engagement made it impossible for him to be here. Mr. Bailey, inspector for the Eastern Dairymen's Association, sent a similar message of regret. Mr. J. W. Moore, the President, was in the chair.

The President opened the meeting with a short address, in which he congratulated the cheesemakers of this county upon the position which they occupied at the head of cheesemaking in the Dominion and this continent. He outlined the programme for the meeting.

HOW TO REACH THE PATRONS.

Mr. S. R. PAYNE introduced the first subject reading an able paper on an important subject, "How to reach our patrons to get them to improve the quality of their milk." The reader said he knew no better way to reach the patrons than to meet them when they came to the factory. He always handled the milk himself and by doing this each day he soon became acquainted with each one's milk. If milk was not found quite right friendly advice would be accepted and the patron himself would investigate and ascertain the cause of taint. If they would handle the patrons as they would be handled they would find that any fault in the milk would soon be removed. A patty who had never sent milk to a factory should be given advice when starting. He also advocated the distribution of literature, such as Prof. Robertson's bulletins. They should insist upon patrons keeping their milk warm in order to keep up the quality of their fall make. There should be more thoughtfulness in the care of milk. The paper said that the taint of leeks in milk could be removed by heating to 180 degrees Fahrenheit, and that milk exposed to the sun made rotten cheese and could not be used.

Some little discussion followed the reading of the paper, Mr. Pilkie advocating a bridging if possible of the apparent gulf which always seems to lie between the patrons and makers. When giving advice he favored a personal conversation rather that a written note.

THE INSPECTION OF CHEESE.

Mr. DAVID PILKIE spoke in reference to the inspection of cheese. He said there was no doubt that lately there had been mistakes in this matter of inspection. He was opposed to the contracting for fall cheese. There was a good deal of fault found throughout the country and he claimed that the result of the shipments showed that there had not been a fair and honest inspection, which he thought was desirable. They could not do anything in the matter, as it would rest with the Cheese Board.

A short discussion followed as to the alleged grievances in the inspecting and the contracting systems. The latter was generally condemned.

Mr. PAYNE finally moved, seconded by Mr. DEYELL, that the practice of contracting for two or three months in the fall of the year was not a wise one, and in the opinion of this association should not be continued. The motion was carried.

THE INSPECTION OF MILK.

"Milk Inspection and Its Abuse" was introduced next by Mr. Thomas Johnston. The speaker referred to the present system of inspection and condemned it, saying that, while the Dairymen's Association had done much to aid the industry, yet the course its inspectors had pursued during the past year had been disgraceful. Mr. Johnston said a man's good name was not to be slandered and then called a rogue and a cheat, and then have his accuser fail to explain in court and prove that his milk had been tampered with. He said if it was suspected that the milk had been tampered with, the milk taken from the cow should be tested, and then if the milk delivered at the factory was inferior they would have proof of tampering. He suggested appointing the cheese makers the inspectors, and said as long as they had the Association or foreign inspectors there would be abuses and grievances.

The President read the several petitions from different parts of the Province to the Legislature, requesting the appointment of an inspector. He added a few remarks in which he said that he rather favored petitioning the Legislature to take this matter up and appoint an inspector.

Mr. PAYNE did not favor the Association inspector. His factory had inspected its own milk, and would continue to do so until the Legislature appointed an inspector. He did not favor cheesemakers as inspectors.

Mr. GALVIN was an advocate of inspection. He said this was the age of adulteration, and the farmers were not different from the rest of the world, and if they were dishonest they should be punished. Any man who skimmed his milk should be fined and his name published. He understood that 35 patrons had been fined for adulterating their milk, but their names had never been made known. He did not like this secrecy and thought the names should be given.

Mr. S. S. SPENCE moved, seconded by Mr. DAVID PILKIE, that the Association petition the Local Legislature to appoint inspectors in cheese-making districts.

Mr. PILKIE, in speaking to the motion, said the blame of the non-success of the present inspecting system was due to the men who were elected to preside over the Eastern Dairymen's Association. He complained of the dilatory manner in which the prosecutions were conducted, and condemned last years system in striking terms. Mr. Pilkie thought the cheesemen of the counties of Peterborough and Victoria should be able to employ an inspector for themselves.

Mr. SPENCE'S motion was then carried, and Mr. J. G. Galvin was appointed to draft the petition.

The PRESIDENT brought up the matter of organizing so as to meet the requirements and become entitled to Government recognition and aid. The matter, however, was not discussed.

On motion, Mr. J. W. Moore was re-elected president and Mr. S. R. Payne secretary for the ensuing year.

THE LATE M. SULLIVAN.

Resolution of Condolence Passed by Branch Thirty, C.M.B.A.

At the last regular meeting of Branch 30, C.M.B.A., held on March 10th, upon motion of Recording Secretary J. J. Lynch, seconded by Bro. H. Carveth, the following resolution of condolence was passed:—

"Whereas it has pleased Almighty God in His Divine and infinite wisdom to remove from our midst our much esteemed and efficient brother in the person of Michael Sullivan, and whereas the friendly relations long held by deceased with the members of this Branch, and as he was a charter member and having filled the following positions with much satisfaction, viz., Recording Secretary, Treasurer, President, Chancellor and representative to Grand Council convention held in Toronto in 1888, we, the officers and members of Branch 30, deem it proper that we should place upon record our high appreciation of his many services as a member and officer of our Association.

"Therefore, be it resolved, That we, the officers and members of St. Peter's Branch No. 30, Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, whilst bowing to the will of an all wise Providence, extend our most heartfelt and fraternal sympathy to our late brother's wife and family. That by the death of Bro. Sullivan a wife loses a kind, loving and devoted husband, his children are deprived of a father's care and protection, a grievious loss which cannot be replaced. We therefore pray that God may protect and strengthen them to bear this irreparable loss in this their time of sad affliction.

"And be it further resolved, That those resolutions of respect to his memory be placed on the minute book of our Branch and the same be published in the local papers and inserted in our official organ, the Catholic Record, and Catholic Review, and a copy be submitted to his afflicted wife and family.

"May God comfort and console his widow and children, and may he rest in peace."

Another Guessing Competition.

A guessing competition is now open, which affords ample scope for Peterborough's many champion calculators. This time it is the census returns of the town that will be the object of prophetic speculation. Mr. Sam Ray, tobacconist, offers three valuable prizes to the three nearest guessers to the census returns for the town of Peterborough. The first prize is a handsome smoking set in a silk case, valued at $5; the second is an elegant pipe, valued at $3 50; and the third is another $3 pipe. The prizes are on exhibition at Mr. Ray's store on Hunter-st., where guesses can be made and deposited in a box by the guesser. A charge of 25 cents a guess will be made. It is a good chance for guessing and is sure to attract competitors. The census are to be taken in April 6th, and the prizes will be awarded as soon as the returns are made public. The time is short so get your guess in at once.

"Ayer's Medicines have been satisfactory to me throughout my practice, especially Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has been used by many of my patients, one of whom says he knows it saved his life."—F. L. Morris, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Loth to Part With Them.

The Toronto Mail of this morning says: "The third and last concert in Toronto by the Royal Edinburgh Concert Company was held on Saturday evening in the new Auditorium, and it will be long remembered by the audience as one of the most enjoyable and best of the kind ever listened to in this city. The programme was a "Farewell programme" especially arranged, and containing not one weak number. The highly capable artists, to whom so much flattering attention has been given by the press during the past week, were in good form and fairly excelled themselves. The audience, seeming to realize that the series of concerts was at an end, was loth to part with the company and insisted on encores to every number, thereby prolonging the programme to a late hour. Mr. Maclennan was most enthusiastically received, and he was called again and again. The dance (classique) "Parrazatti," one of his own construction, and one in which graceful movement is the chief feature, has proved itself a great favorite, and Mr. Maclennan has been called to dance it at all the concerts. When Miss Ross sang 'Will Ye No Come Back Again?' near the close of the concert the applause was deafening and was a strong evidence of the popularity of the company with those who had the pleasure of hearing them. During their stay in Toronto the visitors have been hospitably received by several of the leading Scotchmen in the city, and the acquaintanceship in many cases ripened to warm personal friendship, and their return next season will be looked forward to with much interest." Opera House on Wednesday evening. Reserved seats at Greatrex's drug store. 1d

Brevities.

—John and James McDonough, two inebriates, were fined $2 at the police court this morning.

—The report of the Commissioner of Inland Revenue shows that twelve tests of the gas furnished in Peterborough were made and that it was never below the standard.

The Advantages of Conversation.

The most agreeable way of getting information is by conversation. If you talk with a well informed person who can express clearly his views, you can ask questions and have explanations. Call on Stapleton & Elcombe, grocers, and ask them about that superb tea and new fresh goods which they have received and are now running off at a bargain, and you will buy and go away satisfied.

This competition remains open until we have sold one hundred pounds. Every purchaser of one pound will be entitled to estimate. This tea is only 40 cents a pound and cannot be beat. Buy a pound and try it. Black or Japan. Sold by Hawley Bros. d60w11

MONDAY, MARCH 16, 1891.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

Late in the afternoon a tall, rather stern looking young man, with grave blue eyes under thick, level brows, and a short, dense brown beard covering the lower part of his face, walked into Gen. Inigo's office, and was informed that the general was expected every minute. He seated himself at a table, undid the roll of paper that he carried, and proceeded to busy himself in making calculations and sketches.

This young man, whose name was Geoffrey Bellingham, was a New Englander, whose family had lived for many generations in an ancient town not very far from Boston. From the early part of the present century, however, their prosperity began to recede, along with that of the town with which they were so closely allied. Large families of children divided and dissipated the property; many of them moved to other parts of the country; those who remained, proudly mindful of their past grandeur, and unwilling to descend to a lower level in search of new ways to fortune, gradually faded out of sight or existence, retaining to the end the old traits of character, rendered harsher and gloomier by their more restricted circumstances. At length, about thirty years ago, Geoffrey Bellingham was born. He was a child of unusual intelligence, and with a strong appetite both for reading and adventure. But the monotonous and lifeless existence of the sluggish old town vexed and wearied him; he wished he had come into the world a hundred years earlier, when men went forth to battle, and to sail the seas, and the days were full of novelty, activity and excitement. His heart stirred within him to bear a hand in the work and movement of the world, and such echoes as reached him of what was going on in other places and lands kept alive this longing and developed it. He met with no sympathy, however, from his own family circle, and at length ceased to make them confidants of his desires and projects; yet this discouragement to the [illegible] of his thoughts led him to [illegible] none the less but more ardently. In his twelfth year, he ran away to sea, taking passage on board a Boston vessel bound for the Pacific.

He was absent three years, and he came home first mate on board an English blockade runner from Liverpool. It was in the midst of our civil war; the blockade runner was captured and Bellingham was taken prisoner. On his announcing his readiness to take service under the federal flag, however, he was allowed to join the crew of a government war vessel. He had the good luck to see a great deal of fighting, and was promoted for gallantry and general efficiency. Before the year was out he met a Confederate bullet, which put an end to his participation in the war, and very nearly severed his connection with all human affairs. Nevertheless he recovered and made his way to the north with $1,000 in his pocket. On reaching his native place he found his father and mother both dead, and his sister (the only child besides himself) married.

He was at this time about 17 years old, but as tall and robust (barring the temporary effects of his wound) as a much older man; with a premature gravity and dignity of demeanor, and a strong, penetrating and resolute mind. After remaining quiet for a month or two, to recuperate his physical powers and to think over his position, he determined to be an architect. He set to work at once, with his usual energy and persistence; and after having familiarized himself with the rudiments of the profession of the best scientific school in the country he entered an architect's office in New York, and worked there from twelve to fifteen hours a day for seven years. Unremitting application such as this, rendered physically possible as it was by an invincible constitution, and turned to the best advantage by a powerful and comprehensive intellect, could not fail to have its effect.

When Bellingham, at the end of his apprenticeship period, set up in business on his own account there were few men in the country who possessed a broader and sounder knowledge of architecture than this young man of [illegible], or who had so much taste and originality in matters of design. The remainder of his professional history, being mainly a record of well deserved and increasing success, has little interest. At the epoch of his entrance into this story he had had a hand in many of the best buildings of our large cities, both private and public, and incidentally he had been brought in contact with a great number of people whom it might be deemed socially expedient to know. But Bellingham scarcely seemed to have the ordinary social instinct. His manners were abrupt and reserved, and he had a very disconcerting glance for those who seemed disposed to attempt to be familiar with him. He seemed to have a temperamental antipathy against aristocratical or exclusive pretentions of any kind, though in a certain sense no one was more exclusive and aristocratic than he.

The type is no uncommon one, as the critics say; and it is perhaps a pity, nowadays, that it is not a great deal commoner. Though repellent in several ways, it has some qualities of almost infinite redemption. It includes everything that we call masculine. Its exemplars are often deficient in humor; but they have a sternness and simplicity that are to the other parts of human nature what salt is to water. They are often unjust, but they are never complaisant. They may be bitter, but they [illegible], but never [illegible]. And yet there is another side to them—but only very few—perhaps only one—ever comes to know it. Enough of generalizations.

Geoffrey Bellingham had not the air of being susceptible to feminine charms. His manner, when he was brought in contact with the gentler sex, underwent no gentle and illuminating change. The elements of his nature seemed averse from harmonizing with those of women. When he happened to speak with a woman he would express himself in his usual curt, laconic way, keeping his eyes fixed upon her face the while, with a sort of unsympathetic inquisition. The impression conveyed was that he considered women insufficient and untrustworthy. On the other hand he never railed against them, as self conscious misogynists do; his indifference seemed not to be the result of an exhaustive or mortifying experience of them in the past; it was scientific or temperamental rather. He recognized their functional use to the race and to society, but did not care to be personally concerned with them more than was necessary.

(To be Continued.)

Cold in head, catarrh, consumption, death are the four stages that rapidly follow each other. If you would avoid the latter do not neglect the former, but use Nasal Balm at the first symptoms.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Destruction of a Tennessee Insane Asylum—Six of the Inmates Perish—Disastrous Fire in Syracuse.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 15.—The beautiful Central Insane Asylum, seven miles from this city, is almost a mass of ruins this morning, and beneath it are the charred bodies of half a dozen of the unfortunate inmates; in the outhouses near by are huddled the poor demented creatures who found an asylum in the grand structure now laid in ashes; and on the lawn the long, parched trees, denuded of branch and foliage, stand, the spectral trunks, with gaunt, outstretched arms marking the spot where stood the massive building, one of the most beautiful and attractive spots in Middle Tennessee.

The fire broke out at 10.15, but before aid arrived from the city at 2.15 the west wing has been destroyed with the inmates:

J. S. JOHNS of Rutherford County.
J. BURT DEXTER of Wilson.
BLUE PRESTON of Cannon.
JOHN KELLY of Wayne.
W. H. BEASTRY of Hickman.
B. F. HOLLOWEL of Davidson.

At 3.15 the flames were subdued, the lunatics who had been huddled for several hours in the yard in front of the main building were returned to the east wing. About 25 had escaped, the majority of whom were harmless. The dangerous lunatics were kept locked all the time in the east wing and none of them were subjected to expose or danger during the progress of the flames.

The Saline City Fire-Swept.

SYRACUSE, March 15.—The most disastrous fire that Syracuse has ever known took place yesterday. It originated in Heir & Lighton's cigar manufactory at 203 West Fayette-street, in the Hogan block. It instantly spread to the store of M. P. Walsh, hardware, and Cahill Bros.' bakery in the same block. It was but a short space of time after the breaking out of the flames in the cigar store before the old Daniel O'Keef United States Hotel at the corner of East Fayette and Franklin-streets was being licked up. The Hogan block was six stories high, with mansard front. The United States Hotel was but two stories in height and built of brick. It was one of the landmarks of the city. From the Hogan block the flames leaped across the street, catching the Osgood V. Tracy block. Simultaneously it caught in the blocks on the east, the Newell block coming next, the Tracy and the Fay building adjoining the Newell block then took fire. The Ayres block and the Seneca hotel, together with numerous business houses, were also destroyed.

At 7.35 another fire broke out which burned fiercely until 2.20 p.m., the buildings destroyed being The Journal office, the Cook block, the Montgomery flats, one of the handsomest blocks in the city, six stories in height, with mansard roof. By 9 o'clock it seemed as though the whole city would burn up. The wind blew like a hurricane, carrying flames and sparks far and wide.

By the first fire 10 blocks were leveled at West Fayette and Franklin-streets; by the second, three blocks, one of which covered half the square—the Yates block—and one residence. Over ten families were burned out in flats above stores. Four residences were destroyed in first fire. The loss will reach $2,000,000; insurance about half that sum.

Another fire broke out this (Sunday) morning in the St. James' Episcopal Church, which was totally destroyed, together with the McLennan flats adjoining, occupied by the Standard Watch Company. It is estimated the loss by fire in Syracuse in the last 24 hours will aggregate over $1,200,000.

Killed in a Dispute.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 15.—In a dispute over the elections in the house of Samuel Soles at Chezzetcook yesterday, Soles ordered a man out of the house. He refused and Soles took his gun and threatened to shoot him, when the other struck the gun down with his hand and the weapon was discharged, Soles receiving the contents with fatal effect.

By a Majority of One Vote.

HAMILTON, March 15.—There is only one licensed hotel in Binbrook township. It is at Hall's Corners and has lately been bought from James Addison by A. Ward of Oakville. Yesterday the Binbrook people voted on a local option bylaw and it was carried by a majority of one vote.

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

WENT DOWN TO DEATH.

NUMEROUS COLLISIONS WITH LOSS OF MANY LIVES

The Roxburg Castle Collides with the British Peer off the Scilly Islands—Loss of the British Steamer Atrato.

LONDON, March 16.—The steamship Roxburgh Castle has been sunk off Ushat by collision. Capt. Tyrer and one seaman were saved, but it is feared the remainder of the steamer's crew were lost. The Roxburgh Castle was a screw steamer of 1222 tons register. She hailed from Newcastle, England.

The Roxburgh Castle collided with the British ship British Peer 20 miles southwest of the Scilly Islands. The Roxburgh Castle sank immediately, and of the 24 men aboard 22 were drowned. The captain and one seaman, the only ones rescued, have been landed at Falmouth. The British Peer, which was bound from Calcutta to London, was greatly damaged and has been towed to Falmouth.

Collided With an Iceberg.

QUEENSTOWN, March 16.—The steamer Ardancorrah from Mobile has arrived here with her bows stove and her forehold full of water on Feb. 24. She ran into an iceberg. She was so badly damaged that she narrowly escaped foundering.

LONDON, March 16.—The British steamer Atrato from Batoum for Calcutta has been sunk in collision with the Turkish steamer Salonica. Her crew have arrived at Constantinople.

REBEL ATROCITIES.

Report of a Chilian Battle — Four Hundred Wounded.

LONDON, March 16.—A dispatch to The Times from Santiago, Chili, gives the official version of the recent battle. Robles was short of provisions and abandoned Mount Sebastopol. With 1200 infantry, 25 cavalry and two guns he attacked on the 6th of this month 2000 rebels. The enemy decoyed the Government troops to close quarters, under pretext of a truce, and then fired, wounding two-thirds of the Government troops. Robles, wounded in the side, was placed in an ambulance. The rebels captured the ambulance and riddled Robles with bullets. A general massacre followed of the Government forces. It is estimated that 300 rebels were killed and 400 wounded. President Balmaceda admits the gravity of the disaster, but says he still has 30,000 troops and ample funds.

A Church in St. Mary's Destroyed.

ST. MARY'S, March 16.—Knox Presbyterian Church was totally destroyed by fire this morning without the first particle of water being thrown upon it, the engines being out of order. The fire originated from the furnace and must have been smouldering nearly all night. The building was insured in the Western for $6000 and the loss is estimated at about $15,000.

Seal-Hunters on a Strike.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 16.—The Indian schooner Sierra arrived from Behring Sea sealing grounds yesterday. She reports seals are very plentiful, but owing to boisterous weather not many are being taken. All Indian seal-hunters are on a strike and 15 schooners are lying idle awaiting a settlement.

The Victims Numbered 13.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 16.—It is now known that 13 of the patients in the Central Tennessee Lunatic Asylum lost their lives by [illegible] fire.

NEW ORLEANS MASSACRE

AN INTERNATIONAL COMPLICATION PROBABLE.

Detective O'Malley Condemned to Death By the Murderers, but He Escapes—Funerals of the Slain—All Quiet on the Lower Mississippi.

NEW ORLEANS, March 16.—The charges under section A against the remaining members of the Mafia were nolle prosequied to-day by the District Attorney, and three of them were released, four against whom further charge are preferred being held.

All of the victims' bodies were buried today. Those of Marchesi, Monasterio and Trahina were unclaimed up to noon and the charity wagon took them to Potter's Field. Polits and Comitez were followed to the grave by a single carriage and in the case of Bagnetto the hearse went alone. Joseph Machera had the largest and best-attended funeral. He had a half dozen pall-bearers, none of whom were Italians. Caruso and Macheca were taken from their residences to the St. Louis Cathedral and the ceremonies in each case were very imposing.

Father Manoritta exhibited a letter to a reporter to-day that had been sent him on March 9 by the Mafia Society. The letter bore the seal of the organization, the skull and crossbones on the top and bottom. The letter advised the reverend father that he had better not go to the court every day, as his presence did not do the society any good.

Prosecution Unlikely.

New Orleans is as quiet now as it ever was and the sober second thought of the people has returned. The telegram of Secretary Blaine to the Governor caused some commotion, but it was not unexpected. Attorney-General Rogers has investigated Saturday's occurrences at the jail. The prison officials say they recognized some of the persons who were inside the prison, and these names it is understood have been forwarded to the Attorney-General. Some indictments may follow as a formality, but so great a number of people were concerned in the killing that it will be impossible to arraign them all.

O'Malley, the detective who was largely the cause of the trouble, is not in town. His suit against the state for $10,000 damages was to come up to-day.

The Oath of the Mafia.

Jim Caruso, one of those assassinated, told Provensand, a well-known business man, some time ago that Charlie Matranga was the chief of the gang and that he presided at the meetings dressed in a black domino suit. He said Rocco Gracci was also a leader. Caruso said he only attended one meeting, that he went in and Matranga held up a skull in his left hand and a dirk in his right. He was then sworn with uplifted hands to abide the decision of the order. He said he was informed after taking the obligation that the object was to kill those who were against the Mafia gang.

The better element of the Italians are glad that there is an end of the Mafia, as they have been in dread for years. It is those who have recently come here or the bad element that denounce the action taken Saturday.

Discussed in the Chamber.

ROME, March 16.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day, Premier Di Rudini, [illegible] the New Orleans tragedy, said President Harrison had recognized the right of Italians in the United States to protection from the authorities and expressed profound regret at the occurrence and had charged the Governor of Louisiana to guard the Italian residents of New Orleans and to bring the assassins to justice. The Premier added that United States Minister Porter had called upon him to-day to convey President Harrison's regrets to the Italian Government.

Signor Bregansa, who had announced his intention of interpolating the Government on the New Orleans matter, said that note had been taken of the minister's statement.

Signor Ferrais urged that indemnities should be demanded for the families of victims.

The Italian Press Uses Strong Language.

ROME, March 16.—The Capitan Fracassa says: The weak in America are at the mercy of a ferocious bloody populace and are tortured and murdered in daylight.

The Don Chisciotte Della Mancia says: Italy ought to demand that instant measures be taken to protect the Italian colony in New Orleans, adding, however, that it is just also to recognize the fact that similar incidents would not occur in the towns on the Atlantic littoral, which were not infested with the ex-galley slaves of Europe.

Excitement in Palermo.

NEW YORK, March 16.—A telegram from Palermo, Sicily, to-day stated indignation there was growing over the New Orleans tragedy. It is the only subject talked of, and the American residents have migrated over to Italy and the south of France.

An Outspoken Pastor.

CHICAGO, March 16.—At the weekly meeting of the Methodist Ministers' Association to-day resolutions were introduced deprecating the tardiness of justice in New Orleans and other cities, yet declaring lynch law "utterly abhorrent to the spirit of our Government and of Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence." The resolutions caused a heated discussion, in which widely divergent views were expressed. Rev. Dr. Bland strenuously opposed the passage of the resolutions and said: "When the law will not take care of a lot of murderers it is time the people did something." The matter was finally referred to a committee.

Dying in a Windsor Hotel.

WINDSOR, March 16.—A man supposed to be George W. Glazier of Owosso, Mich., on Saturday evening arrived at the Essex House, Windsor, registered and was assigned to a room. As he did not appear during Sunday the room was broken into and the man found lying on the bed in an unconscious condition. All efforts at resuscitation have thus far proven futile and it is believed the man will die.

Another Wild Goose Chase.

WINDSOR, March 16.—Detective Campau telegraphed from Baltimore this morning that the man in custody here supposed to be Harvey Williams, colored, murderer of William Lyman, is not Williams. This is the third wild goose chase Windsor authorities have been given.

Taps from the Telegraph

The British Minister had another interview with the Secretary of State yesterday in regard to the Behring Sea fisheries.

A mob yesterday went to the house of Mrs. Wiggington at Mt. Sterling, Ky., whose husband and sons are charged with poisoning Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Watts, and hanged her.

A dispatch from Madrid says the Spanish Cabinet's project of reciprocity with the United States contemplates admitting into the Spanish Antilles United States industrial and agricultural products at lower rates than those of any other nation in exchange for admittance to the United States free of duty of sugar and molasses from the Antilles. ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Little Business Transacted at Yesterday's Session.

TORONTO, March 17.—The Assembly sat for 10 minutes yesterday. When the Speaker took the chair there were 16 on his right and 23 on his left out of a House of over 90.

The Speaker announced that he had granted a warrant to the clerk to issue a writ for South Grey, the seat having been rendered vacant by the death of Mr. J. H. Hunter.

Mr. Wood (Hastings) secured a list of registrars of deeds now vacant and the dates of the vacancies.

Mr. Mowat, in moving to adjourn, said the financial statement for the year would be made on some day which would be named to-day.

The Right Honorable Lord Wantage, Sebastian Z. de Ferranti, Albert D. Shaw, John G. Scott, Benjamin G. Lake, Charles S. Hulse, T. Sutherland Stayner, Thomas McGaw, Charles J. Holman and John D. Irwin seek incorporation as the Niagara Falls Electric Railway Company for the purpose of constructing and operating an electric railway from a point near Niagara to a point near Fort Erie.

A deputation consisting of W. H. Howland W. Skaife and R. A. Lauder waited on the Attorney-General and Messrs. Dryden and Gibson yesterday to ask that the Government should guarantee the bonds for one-half the cost, estimated at $250,000, of erecting a beet sugar factory. They represented that such a factory would be of immense advantage to the farmers of the province and were prepared to go, if the Government would guarantee bonds for $125,000, one-half the cost. The Ministers promised to consider the matter.

Mr. Harcourt's first exposition as provincial treasurer of the public accounts of Ontario for the year ended Dec. 31, 1890, was laid before the House yesterday. The balance sheet giving the receipts and payments of the treasurer for the year places the receipts at $3,941,116 and the payments at $3,896,325, leaving a balance of $44,791. The receipts were $1,079,303 less than in 1889 and the expenditure $442,878 greater. The principal items of revenue were $1,196,872 from the Dominion, $323,824 interest, $1,093,642 from the Crown Lands Department, $411,749 amount withdrawn from special deposit. The principal items of expenditure were $769,905 on the maintenance of public institutions, $636,143 for education, $391,000 for the administration of justice, $219,563 for civil government, $346,661 aid to railways. The overdrafts of appropriations were $31,247, being $7438 larger than last year. The statement of the consolidated revenue fund places the balance at $6,[illegible].

The Prison Reform Commission cost $9792, of which J. W. Langmuir drew $1665 to pay traveling expenses and disbursements, T. W. Anglin $1000 as secretary and commissioner and $51 traveling expenses to the National Prison Association meeting at Cincinnati, A. F. Jury $225 as commissioner and J. H. Taylor $900 as stenographer. The Mining Commission received $3604 in addition to $5302 paid the year before. The cost of the local election was $81,147, of which the cost in Toronto was $6210. The indemnity paid the members amounted to $[illegible].

The 21st annual report of the Entomological Society of Ontario was laid before the House yesterday. It contains several illustrated papers contributed by the members on injurious and other insects, which have been specially prepared for the information of the public and are intended to assist farmers and fruit-growers in contending with their insect enemies. It is a matter of profound thankfulness that the province during the past year has escaped from any serious insect attack. Those that have been specially noticeable are referred to in the president's address or described in the papers that follow.

The 22nd annual report of the Fruit Growers' Association of Ontario which was presented in the House yesterday gives some valuable information on pomology. The Association is directing its efforts toward (1) the preparation of a complete list of fruits adapted to Canada with values et a perfect specimen of each variety attached, which it is hoped may form a basis for greater uniformity and fairness in judging fruits at fairs; and (2) the preparation of district fruit lists, which may serve as a useful guide to intending planters, by showing what varieties may be successfully grown in the various localities.

Nominations in Huntingdon.

HUNTINGDON, Que., March 16.—This was nomination day for Huntingdon county. The nominees are: Duncan McCormick, Conservative, and Julius Scriver, Liberal. The meeting was addressed by Hon. J. A. Chapleau, Hon. C. H. Tupper and Louis Beaubien for the Government and Charles Marcil, George Pattullo and Wilfrid Mercier for the Opposition.

Carpenter Elected by One Vote.

HAMILTON, March 16.—The recount of ballots in the South Wentworth election contest was completed this afternoon. A large number of ballots were thrown out. Judge Sinclair rendered his decision this evening, the result of which gives Carpenter, the Conservative candidate, the seat by a majority of one.

The Walk at Madison Square.

NEW YORK, March 16.—At 4 o'clock it was announced that the following contestants in the walking match had withdrawn for good: Manning 56.7, Hill 33.1, Golden 40.1, Happy Jack Smith's unknown 34.5, Grieg 44.1. Golden's retirement was due to stomach troubles.

At 5 o'clock the score was: Carley 104, Howarth 102.4, Hughes 101.1, Hegelman 98, Cartwright 95.3, Moore 98.4, Bennett 93.3, Mossier 89.6, Glick 88.9, Burns 88.7, Connor 84, Herty 84.4, Hart 83.5.

Campbell is Tennis Champion.

ST. AUGUSTINE, FLA., March 16.—The tennis tournament is over and the tropical championship again belongs to O. S. Campbell. To-day's match brought out the largest attendance that has ever witnessed a tennis match here. The following is the score: O.S. Campbell beat E. A. Wright (challenger) 10-8, 6-1, 7-5.

A Wonderful Entry List.

LEXINGTON, March 16.—The record has been broken by the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeder's Association. A few months ago it opened a $30,000 guaranteed futurity stake. The entries are all in and 1036 mares have been nominated, which is the largest list of entries ever known in the history of either the running or trotting turf. Many trotting horsemen predicted failure for this big stake, but the entry list already shows that the winning horse will receive probably $15,000 more than the amount guaranteed. The unprecedented success of the futurity will mark an era in trotting-horse history and other great associations are likely to follow.

Parnell to the Backbone.

NEW YORK, March 16.—The Parnellite delegates have received a telegram from Montreal saying, Montreal is Parnell to the backbone, no use for the McCarthyites.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT

THE SEIZURE OF A STEAMER BY THE PORTUGUESE.

Lord Salisbury Says the Seizure was Justifiable as the Vessel Was Smuggling in Arms—The Text of the Newfoundland Arbitration Agreement.

LONDON, March 16.—In the House of Commons to-day Sir James Ferguson, political secretary of the Foreign Office, said the Government had received information that the British South African Company's steamer Countess of Carnarvon was seized by the Portuguese gunboat on the charge of smuggling.

In the House of Lords Lord Salisbury said it appeared the Countess of Carnarvon was landing arms in Portuguese territory. If this was a fact the Portuguese had a right to seize the steamer.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Smith asked for morning sittings for government business on Tuesdays and Fridays. He explained the government was anxious to prorogue Parliament three weeks earlier than usual.

This is held to confirm the report that the government intends to dissolve Parliament next Autumn.

The Seizure Confirmed.

LISBON, March 16.—The Governor of Mozambique confirms the report of the seizure of the steamer Countess of Carnarvon. The steamer was seized after forcing the Limpopo and landing 1000 rifles and 20,000 cartridges for Gungunhama.

HANOVERIAN LABOR RIOT.

Strikers Charged by Infantry and Twenty-Three Bayoneted.

BERLIN, March 16.—The striking glass blowers at Mildesheim, Hanover, became riotous yesterday and the police arrested nine of the ringleaders. The mob surrounded the police, and after a desperate fight, in which one policeman was frightfully beaten, rescued the prisoners.

A detachment of infantry charged upon the mob and speedily quelled the disorder. The military and the police then arrested 100 or more of the rioters and marched them to the guardhouse.

Twenty-three of the mob were seriously wounded by bayonet thrusts and were taken to the hospitals.

NEWFOUNDLAND ARBITRATION.

England and France to Submit Disputed Questions to Arbitration.

PARIS, March 16.—The text of the agreement between England and France to arbitrate the Newfoundland difficulties was made known to-day. All questions of principle concerning lobster fishing and its preparation on the coast between Capes St. John and Ray are to be submitted to the Arbitration Commission.

The modus vivendi of 1890 relative to lobster fishing and its preparation is renewed for the fishing season of 1891 solely. The two Governments agree to carry out the decisions of the commission.

After these questions are disposed of the commission may be asked to examine other questions [illegible] designated by the two Governments and two delegates from each country, and a majority vote decides, from which there is no appeal. The commission will meet in Brussels.

LONDON, March 16.—M. Waddington, the French ambassador here, has written to Lord Salisbury that the arbitrators chosen by France in the effort being made to settle the Newfoundland dispute, according to the agreement recently arrived at between France and England, are Prof. Martens of the St. Petersburg University; M. Rivair, the Swiss consul at Brussels and president of the institute of international law, and M. Gram, ex-judge of the Supreme Court of Norway. The expenses of the arbitration and the arbitrators' fees will be equally shared by the two powers interested in the dispute. The text of the convention provides that the commission to which the matter is referred may, after settling the lobster question, be requested to enquire into the subsidiary fishery question.

Afflicted with Political Ophthalmia.

DUBLIN, March 16.—Timothy Healy in his speech at Newry yesterday said when Parnell was wanted at the tenants' defence league meetings he had always a bad cold. The air of Dublin did not agree with him but the seaside air of Brighton did. The decree of divorce granted to Captain O'Shea had afflicted Parnell with political ophthalmia, but the most revolting thing in the whole business was that Parnell seemed to think they were all fools. He could not remember the difference between Parnell the untainted leader and the Parnell of 1891.

100 Dervishes Killed.

CAIRO, March 16.—A terrible disaster occurred to-day at the arsenal of Omdurman. From the reports received it appears that about 100 dervishes were killed by an explosion there, which destroyed immense stocks of ammunition and scattered the arsenal building and everything in the immediate neighborhood.

Irish Emigration.

LONDON, March 16.—During the year 1890 61,435 persons emigrated from Ireland, a falling off of 9863 from the average. Of these emigrants 52,695 went to the United States, against an average for the four preceding years of 61,783.

Foreign Brevities.

The Persian Official Gazette announces that Malcolm Khan, at one time ambassador at London, has been deprived of his titles, honor and rank.

The Emperor and Chancellor Von Caprivi will, it is announced, attend the Austrian manoeuvres on the Moravian frontier in September next.

African advices say Major Wissmann has established fortified stations at Moshi and at Mininde. Chief Machamba is suing for peace and has deposited his son as a hostage.

At a large meeting at Mitchelstown yesterday, many priests being present, the opinion was generally expressed that Parnell would be politically dead six months from now.

Another firm of distillers, the Societe des Depots de Bordeaux et Marseilles, employing a large staff of workmen, has been obliged to close business owing to the new tariff on maize.

A despatch from Tonquin states that William Kendo, an agent of the Chinese Custom House, and his wife, both of whom were British subjects, have been murdered by the Tonquins, near Bacle, a post of the French army of occupation.

The Dublin National Press (McCarthyite organ) says: "Triumph on triumph was scored by Nationalists yesterday throughout the country. The voice of the [illegible] is becoming heard, and it is interesting to watch the daily-increasing [illegible] upon the leaders.

Purify Your Blood

The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

INVITING ATTACK.

THE chief Liberal organ is continuing with a vengeance its policy of doing Canada all the injury it can. Its theme is that Canada must perish if the United States does not open its doors to us, and at the same time it tries to prevent any commercial arrangement with the States short of unrestricted trade, which means political union. Further than that, it goes the length of inviting attacks upon Canada by the States. Take for instance, the Globe of Monday. It pictures the farmers of Quebec as being in a state of poverty which "is fast breeding a revolution against the existing regime." Even in this libel on an important portion of the Dominion the words are apparently chosen with a view to their effect across the lines. It also states, speaking of the whole country, that "every industry in the country is suffering from prostration." This is entirely untrue, yet the publication of such statements, in one of the leading papers of the country, has the effect of discouraging enterprise, of frightening foreign capitalists who might be considering Canada as a field for investment, and of creating the belief in the States that if that country holds off it will force the Dominion to its terms. To give point to the last effect the Globe [illegible] here to stay until we are ready to negotiate on the just and equitable basis, more profitable to us than to the Americans, of the absolutely free exchange of all commodities whatever." It is reasonable to suppose that the United States would decline any commercial arrangement short of unrestricted reciprocity so long as there is any probability that Canada may decide to sacrifice its nationality and self-government and accept that policy, and the Globe is striving to keep alive the belief in that probability across the lines, so that no arrangement short of that will be agreed to. Whether its unpatriotic efforts will succeed or not time will tell.

As if that were not enough the Liberal organ invites attack upon Canada, as in this sentence:—"In fact we may thank our stars if after the insults recently heaped upon the States and our open discrimination against that country in the N.P. and elsewhere, we escape with nothing else than the impoverishment of our farmers." What can this mean? Can it possibly have any other meaning than a suggestion to the States to apply coercion, such as the Globe editor pointed out in his pamphlet might be used against Canada? And a paper, published in this country, has the consummate hardihood to publish such articles, and is permitted to do so! If the Liberals of Canada do not arise in their honest patriotism and check effectually the Farrers and others who are now presuming to lead them, they will have cause to regret it when not only their party but their country also will be injured by them.

As to the truth of the Globe's allegations take one sample. It states that Canada openly discriminates against the States in the National Policy. This is untrue. Why, one of the charges against the Conservatives in the recent campaign was that the N.P. discriminated against Great Britain to the advantage of the States and rows of figures were quoted to prove it. And now, in order to arouse ill-feeling against Canada, the Globe turns around and alleges the exact opposite. As a matter of fact the N.P. discriminates against no country. The other statements of the chief organ, including the one that the present Government has a hatred towards the States, are on a par with this one.

The present Government desires to maintain the connection with Great Britain, to retain for Canada its self-government and to build up the Dominion. It desires to be on friendly terms with the Republic and is willing, and has officially expressed its willingness, to make closer commercial arrangements with the States that will not interfere with Canada's self-government, its position as a British country and the growth of the industries of the country. That position is not an unfriendly one towards the States, but it is patriotic as regards Canada, and in that particular the Globe's course and Sir Richard's policy is in strong contrast to it.

Sir John's Likeness.

New York Sun.

Sir John Macdonald, the Canadian statesman, is one of the most distinguished looking men in the Dominion. His face is very striking, and either it or its picture will at once suggest a strong likeness to—whom do you suppose? A different man to every different observer. Some say that he looks like Beecher, others that he closely resembles George Washington, others still that his face and Benjamin Disraeli's are as alike as two peas, and yet others assert that the excellent likeness of him in the current Harper's Weekly is also a likeness of Edwin Booth. As a matter of fact, Sir John does resemble all these famous persons.

TALKS FOR THE FARMER.

TIMELY INFORMATION OF VALUE TO CANADIAN AGRICULTURISTS.

How to Raise Spring Chickens—Full Instructions Given by a Correspondent of the American Cultivator—Topics of Interest About Farm and Garden.

The successful poultryman will now be planning for the spring. The time will soon be here when improvements must be made for the larger flocks of birds, and a general springtime cleaning, repairing, improving and enlarging of the poultry yard will be needed. There is nothing more inviting on a farm than a large, well-stocked poultry yard, where birds of every variety are to be found, to give life and zest to the scene. But the beauty of the scene is only of secondary importance, for it is the question of utility which most concerns the farmer.

We must have a good large range for the birds in the spring and summer if we are expecting them to do much. The poultry enjoy the change from the pent-up winter quarters to the wide, airy summer range, where they can pick up their own living. There are one or two things essential to the fowl. Let them, if possible, have a woodland range as early as convenient. There are so many things for them to pick up in the woods, such as worms, grubs, seeds and berries, that they can find half their living there. Besides this, they love to roam around in the underbrush, scratching the cool soil up beneath the trees and shrubs, wallowing there on hot days. If there is a small woodland attached to the farm, in which it is desired to keep down the thick under-growth, this can be done by turning the fowl into it for a summer range. They will nip the young plants in the bud, and gradually rub down much of the underbrush.

The summer range should also include if it is possible a small lake, pond or stream of water. Where such a body of water cannot be found on the farm it will pay to dig a small pond. This is almost indispensable to the ducks, and the chicken will find considerable pleasure in walking around its edges and picking up different things which the waters wash up to the banks. They will soon learn to come down here to get their drink, and even to wash themselves occasionally. Of course the best thing is to have an active lake or pond, where the water is kept fresh and clear all of the time, or a stream of water will answer the purpose nearly as well. If neither of these can be obtained the small, home-made pond must be resorted to.

The summer range should lastly include a part of the fields where the fowls can run about and pick up a part of their living. This, however, will have to be shut off when crops are growing, but during a part of the year the fields can be used in this way. The fowl will do a great deal of good in cleaning them of noxious insects and weeds, as well as putting fat on their own bodies at no cost to the owner. Generally speaking, the poultryman does not give his birds sufficient range for a proper development of their frames, and hence loss comes through the lack of heavy weight. The barnyard birds need exercise and freedom of range, the same as all other live stock on the farm, and after their long winter confinement they should be treated to as much freedom as advisable. Better chickens for the market and more and better eggs will be the result. Chickens always do better where they are forced to earn a part of their living, and in this respect they resemble many other living creatures. When cooped up in narrow quarters, and made to depend upon their owners for everything they get to eat, they become weak and very susceptible to disease. There are not the conveniences on every farm to give the poultry woodland range, a lake of water and large fields to roam about, but there is not a farm in the country where at least one of these conveniences cannot be given. Then, by all means let the poultry appreciate the coming of the spring weather by giving them a complete change in quarters.

Timber and Crude Oil.

I have been interested in the study of preserving boards, fence posts, shingles, etc., with crude oil, says a correspondent in the Albany Cultivator, and I believed that this oil added to their durability. In the fall of 1887 I saturated my barn roof, freshly laid with hemlock shingles, with the oil. It did splendidly in holding them in place and not letting them warp or split; neither did they water-soak in three or four days' rain; but I fear they will give out in two years more, for on recent examination I find the wood soft, of no firmness, in a state of dry rot. On raising a shingle with the point of my knife to look under it broke square off at the but of the one above. Then going where I stored the oil I found two sticks four inches thick on which the barrel had lain four years thoroughly soaked with oil, rotted and mashed to the ground under the barrels, while those three feet away were comparatively sound. Then I made it my business to see a gentleman who had followed the crude oil tank building business for many years, and said: "How is it you are taking out timber frame in these tanks so often?" He replied: "Oh, the oil rots them out every three or four years, being soaked in it so much of the time." Then, again, three years is the average life of a fourteen-inch square timber used as a mudsill for an oil derrick, where oil is spattered freely on and about it daily. Also there are many wagons about the country with hubs ruined from the use of crude oil on them.

A Cow's Milk Easily Poisoned.

Why should we protect animals? I have told you already one reason—because every cruelty the animal suffers just before death poisons the meat.

Now I am going to tell you another. If you throw stones at a cow, or frighten or injure her, it goes right to the milk and poisons it.

I wouldn't for $10 drink the milk of a cow that had been badly treated, if I knew it!

In Switzerland, it is said, they will pay higher wages to a milkmaid who can sing to the cows than to one who cannot.

In the hall where the Wisconsin Dairymen's association holds its meetings they have put up a great sign on the wall, "Always speak to your cow as you would to a lady."—George T. Angell, in Our Dumb Animals.

New Uses for Potatoes.

The employment of potatoes for making starch will undoubtedly have the effect of absorbing large amounts of potatoes when they are very cheap, and thus preventing glutted markets that do not pay the grower for his labor. The evaporation of potatoes is also a method by which the crop one year may be kept over to another. But the latest use for potatoes is as a substitute for bone and ivory. By the use of certain acids the potato is hardened, and it may before this be cut or molded into buttons or whatever shapes are most desired. Potato buttons are now often worn when the origin of the button is not suspected, as they may be colored to suit any fancy.

DEAD IN A BATH TUB.

Wrapped in Comforters Louis Davis Inhales Ether.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Louis Davis purchased a half-pound can of ether last evening, went to his house, No. 1353 Lexington-avenue, locked himself in the bathroom and then inhaled himself out of existence. He was a traveling salesman and leaves a wife and five helpless children.

Mrs. Davis went on a visit to her father last Friday, taking along the three youngest children. Gabriel and Alvin, the two oldest boys, remained at home with their father. On Saturday evening Davis came home to supper as usual. The next day he had promised to meet his wife at the Long Island Ferry on her return from Hempstead. Shortly before 8 o'clock he said to his 9-year-old son:

"If papa does not go and meet mamma to-morrow, you must do it for him. Will you?"

Then he kissed the children and told them to go to bed. Soon after he went into the bathroom. About 8.45 o'clock yesterday morning the servant girl saw a light burning in the bathroom. The door was forced and Davis was found lying in the bath-tub. A can of ether, prepared by Edward Squibbs of Brooklyn, lay near his side. He had been very systematic in the manner of taking his life. He had laid a heavy comforter in the bottom of the tub, procured a pillow for his head, and covered himself with another comforter. The last act undoubtedly was to thoroughly saturate a handkerchief and carefully spread it over his face. It was found just as he left it, and he was lying as if in a restful sleep.

Davis left no letter that could be found explaining the reason for the rash act. It was learned from other sources that the wealthy father-in-law had paid the rent. Besides he had been footing the grocery and meat bills for several weeks.

HAMILTON, March 16.—E. Brethour, merchant tailor, suffered $600 loss by a fire at his residence yesterday morning, the rear portion of the premises being gutted.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 16.—A five-months old daughter of Bernard Shrone was suffocated yesterday by a pet cat that was sleeping in the cradle with the baby.

The Dead.

General Campenon, formerly French Minister of War, is dead.

Mr. Adam Charlton, father of Mr. John Charlton, M.P., and Mr. William Charlton, M.L.A., died at Lynedoch on Saturday.

Judge John R. Brady of the Supreme Court was stricken with paralysis Sunday at New York and died early yesterday morning.

Sebastien Compain, whose death was announced in Toronto Saturday, was one of the pioneer hotelkeepers of Canada. In [illegible] Mr. Compain opened a hotel on the corner of the Place d'Armes square and St. James-street, Montreal, and his place became the popular rendezvous of the better class of people—the Windsor of the day. It became a favorite resort, and in fact a stranger's visit to the city was not complete until he had visited Mr. Compain's beautiful resort. Mr. Compain soon afterwards built the St. Lawrence Hall now one of the city's landmarks. Later on he left the Hall and established the Cosmopolitan. When the Victoria bridge was opened in 1860 Mr. Compain was the caterer at the banquet held at Point St. Charles, where [illegible] people sat down, making it the largest banquet ever held in Canada. His geniality made him hosts of friends and his popularity was not confined solely to the people of Montreal. In later years Mr. Compain has not been engaged in business and for the past year has resided in Toronto with his son-in-law, Mr. Gianelli. Mr. Compain was in his [illegible] year.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of every one to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of

FLOUR, FEED, CHOP, Etc.,

We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred in the credit system.

Personal.

The Bulletin, of Denver, Col, has the following personal—"Dr. H. C. Burritt, a prominent physician of Toronto, Ontario, accompanied by Mrs. Burritt, is visiting his brother-in-law, Dr. Edmund J. Rogers, at 1043 Emerson-st."

Mr. A. B. Demill was in town to-day in the interest of the Demill Ladies College, Oshawa, and the new girls' residential academy established by him in Toronto. This academy, in which are educated and trained girls from about five to fifteen years of age, supplies a decided want in the educational facilities of the country, for there young girls may find a home as well as a school. This academy was opened last September and has been very successful.

The Donation Acknowledged.

As authorized by resolution at the last meeting of the Town Council, Town Clerk Macdonald forwarded a cheque for one hundred dollars to the Springhill relief fund on Tuesday last and to-day he received the following acknowledgment:—

JAMES G. MACDONALD, Esq.,
Town Clerk, Peterborough.

DEAR SIR,—Yours of the 10th, enclosing certified cheque for one hundred dollars granted by Town Council towards the relief of the distressed of our people here, occasioned by the late mining disaster, came safely to hand. I have handed the amount to the secretary of the relief fund, who will acknowledge it with others in the Halifax papers. I am also directed by our Town Council to make a minute of it in our Council record book in grateful remembrance of the Town Council and people of Peterborough.

I am yours respectfully,
DANIEL MCLEOD,
Town Clerk.

ASHBURNHAM'S AFFAIRS.

Meeting of the Village Council—Accounts to be Paid and Business Transacted.

The village magnates composing the Ashburnham Council met last evening and disposed of several municipal matters. Mr. John Burnham, Q.C., M.P., Reeve, presided, while the village representatives present were Councillors Calcutt, Wand, Throop and Craig.

Village Clerk Wood read the minutes of the last meeting which were duly confirmed.

THE C.P.R. AND ITS TAXES.

The C.P.R. sent in a communication in which they refused to pay their taxes for 1890, amounting to $96.85, on the ground that they had been over-assessed for the past five years. The Clerk was, on motion, authorized to write the company that the Council had nothing to do with former assessments which have passed the Court of Revision and that the taxes of 1890 must be paid.

ACCOUNTS TO BE PAID.

On motion of Councillor CRAIG, seconded by Councillor WAND, the following accounts were ordered to be paid:—

THE VILLAGE HALL SHOPS.

Councillor THROOP moved, seconded by Councillor CALCUTT.—That the store under the town hall be rented to F. Hamilton at $60 a year payable quarterly, and that Mr. Gould's shop rent be $50 a year from the 15th of March by paying $16 for the balance of rent due to that date, that Mr. Hamilton's shop fittings be paid for at a valuation at the end of tenancy if the corporation desire them or be allowed to remove them.—Carried.

TO REDUCE THE LICENSES

The licensed liquor dealers of the village sent in a petition asking for a reduction of their license to $150 a year, as their license in the past was more than they could pay. The document was signed by Ann Swanton, Geo. Lipsett, S. G. Bennett, J. C. Sullivan and Wm. Collins.

After consideration it was decided to allow the matter to stand until the government allowance was received, when a rebate sufficient to bring the fee down to that amount will be made.

SEEKING PROTECTION.

Mr. Wm. Gould, a butcher of the village, appeared before the Council to ask that a license be levied so as to protect him from irregular competition. He claimed that grocers and pedlars from town retailed fresh meat and met him in unfair competition. He wanted to have a license by-law passed to prevent this peddling of fresh meat.

After some discussion it was decided to procure a copy of the town by-law and from that to frame one for the village.

BY-LAWS PASSED.

A by-law was passed appointing Mr. John Craig a pound-keeper in the village.

A by-law was also passed authorizing the treasurer to borrow money to meet current expenses.

The Council then adjourned.

Curling To-day.

Two local rinks went to Lindsay to-day and two Lindsay rinks are playing here. This is the fifth match in the Lindsay-Peterborough championship series.

The Board of Trade Postponed.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trade which was called for this evening has been postponed by order of the officers until Thursday evening next at eight o'clock. Let there be a full attendance on Thursday evening next.

Don't Feel Well,

And yet you are not sick enough to consult a doctor, or you refrain from so doing for fear you will alarm yourself and friends—we will tell you just what you need. It is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which will lift you out of that uncertain, uncomfortable, dangerous condition, into a state of good health, confidence and cheerfulness. You've no idea how potent this peculiar medicine is in cases like yours.

A Sunday School Entertainment.

An entertainment is to be given this evening by the Sunday school of the Baptist church. An interesting feature of the event will be the exhibition of a tabernacle modelled after the Hebrew tabernacle of the wilderness and which was made many years ago by Mr. John W. Gilmour. Texts will be recited by the children having reference to every portion of the tabernacle and its furnishings. Tea will be served for the children at 5 o'clock and the entertainment will commence at 7.30.

Beating His Mother.

George Brown, a young man recently employed in McCabe's box factory, was charged at the police court this morning with assaulting and beating his mother, Mrs. Devine. The accused was only fifteen years of age, and yet, from all reports, he seems to be possessed with an unnatural anger when he raised his hand to strike his mother. The woman's eye was blackened The lad pleaded guilty this morning, and, after administering a severe reprimand, the magistrate allowed him to go under suspended sentence.

St. Patrick's Day.

To-day is the 17th of March, St. Patrick's Day, the day upon which Irishmen all over the world allow their thoughts to turn to the Emerald Isle and its pleasant memories of the past. The local Irishmen will commemorate the anniversary of their patron saint by a grand concert in the opera house this evening. At St. Peter's Cathedral two masses were celebrated this morning, at seven and nine o'clock. The latter was high mass at which Rev. Father Whibbs officiated. An eloquent and able sermon was preached by Rev. Father Scollard, the theme of the discourse being the life of St. Patrick.

Have You a Garden?

If you have you are interested in seeds, plants and flowers. The foreign dealers are anxious to supply seeds and flowers, but Mr. Frank Mason, our local seedsman and florist, is equally ready to do business. He has just issued his "Mason's Seed and Plant House Reporter," for 1891, from the press of the REVIEW. It is a handsome publication in its cover of gold and black and contains a list of information relative to seeds, plants, flowers, etc., useful hints and directions for growing. The vegetable department shows many novelties all of great merit and desirable. Drop a card to Mason for a catalogue, or call at the Seed store, corner of Water and Brock-sts. A visit will well repay the trouble.

MESSIANIC PROPHESY.

NO. III.

To the two hundred thousand Methodists scattered abroad throughout the Dominion of Canada, greeting:

Prof. Workman in his "new theology" tells us that "Prophecy, like poetry, is capable of innumerable applications * * * a truly moral poet is in his own degree an inspired teacher. There is a prophetic element in all sanctified poetry." He believes also that the heathen poets were inspired. He says, "It is unwise to depreciate pagan prophecy." From the teaching of the inspired poets and heathen prophets Prof. W. must have formed his new doctrine. He can't find ground for it to stand upon in the Holy Scriptures. He tells us a "SCIENTIFIC interpretation of the Old Testament without any reference to the New Testament is possible." Page 332. With the New Testament closed, he tells us that David was not the author of the 110th Psalm, but a poet of David's time wrote it," while Christ tells us, Mark xii, 36, and Peter in Acts ii, 34, that "David himself said by the Holy Ghost, 'the Lord said to my Lord, sit thou on my right hand till I make thy enemies thy footstool,'" a quotation from the 110th Psalm, word for word, and which appears in no other place in the Old Testament. Prof. W. says David did not write this Psalm. Christ says he did. Who are we to believe? Will we not believe Him who said, "I am come a light into the world?" This "new theology" is the result of keeping the New Testament closed, and is called by Prof. W. "scientific exegesis." The common sense name for this kind of thing is "going it blind." If Christ's authority is to be set aside on such important questions we will very easily drift into Unitarianism, and deny his divinity altogether. Away with the old, and give us a new Bible! The old Bible that our fathers read won't do for this scientific age. We do not need the Holy Spirit to interpret the Bible now-a-days. We are told on page 425, "one must interpret the Bible as one would interpret another book, with grammar, lexicon, and complete critical apparatus." The Lord have mercy on the common people of to-day who know nothing of lexicon or critical apparatus. The New Testament writers were not skilled in the "higher criticisms," and perchance for this reason they were not as well qualified to make as "critical use of the Sacred Scriptures" as a doctor of philosophy of the 19th century.

But we gather comfort from this fact that the people of their day took knowledge of these men that they had been with Jesus and learned of Him. What a schooling these men must have received during the years they were with Christ. He opened "their understandings that they might understand the Scriptures.—Luke xxiv., 45. And beginning at Moses and all the prophets he expounded unto them the things concerning Himself—Luke xxiv, 27. Were they qualified then to speak and write with authority on Scripture, its meaning and application? Were they? Shame, a thousand times shame, on the church calling itself evangelical, that will disseminate teaching calculated to weaken faith in the Old and New Testament writers, as this so called "new theology" undoubtedly does. When plumbed with the plumbline of God's word, this new doctrine is like a bowing wall or a tottering fence. I have an idea that there are something over 200 000 Methodists in Canada, who, when they hear (and hear they will) that this kind of theology is being taught in Victoria University, they will very reluctantly put their hands into their pockets to support said institution. Most Methodists believe Christ when He says: "To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world that I should bear witness unto the truth. Everyone that is of the truth heareth my voice."—John xviii, 37. If Christ and His apostles could not interpret the Old Testament Prof. W. needn't try.

IN ALL THE SCRIPTURES

The discerning mind can easily detect in this doctrine the workings of a spirit other than the Holy Ghost. The Arch Heretic is not far off when you find anyone questioning the plain written word of God. If Prof. W. is right, Christ and the New Testament writers were wrong. As well may we doubt the divinity of Christ as to doubt His word, and set up man as a more competent critic than He. Confused be the face, paralyzed be the arm, discomfited be the soul of any man who would dare attempt to pull out the KEYSTONE of prophecy which is none other than of Whom the volume of the book speaks. We care more for the views concerning Messianic prophecy, of Jesus Christ and His inspired apostles and evangelists, than we do for the opinions of any Dutch or Canadian critic who daubs with untempered mortar. What say you, reader? We read on page 447: "In the Davidic age there is no Messianic prophecy in the strict sense of the term." That's straight talk. No beating around the bush here! Nothing in the Psalms concerning Christ? Nothing. What next? "Scientific exegesis" we know little or nothing about, neither have we lexicon or "complete critical apparatus" or any 'critical appliances' at hand, and may the Lord deliver us from any such weapons, valuable as they be, if we failed to make better use of them than Prof. W. has made in this lecture. St. Paul and St. Peter quote profusely from the Psalms and apply their quotations directly to the person of Christ.

We are told (page 461) that David, when he spoke these words, prophesied them not of the resurrection of Christ, viz: "Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption." Psa. xvi, 10. Peter quotes THESE SAME WORDS to prove the resurrection of Christ. Prof. Workman tells us on page 461, "To suppose that Peter is here interpreting the passage from the Psalm as though it contained an idea of the resurrection of the Messiah, is to overlook entirely the principle of apostolic application or accommodation. There is no evidence whatever to indicate that the doctrine of the resurrection was conceived in David's day. This fact Peter must have known. Hence he that the passage taught the resurrection of the Messiah." Now, reader, let us ask Peter if this passage refers to the resurrection of Christ or did David speak them in that light. Listen, "For David speaketh concerning Him (Christ), I foresaw the Lord always before my face. * * * He (David) seeing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption."—Acts, ii, 25-31. That settles it. With the New Testament closed we don't see this, of course. We believe Peter when he tells us that "David was a prophet"—Acts, ii, 30—and, being one, could, by the power of the Spirit of God, say, "Behold the former things are come to pass, and new things do I declare; before they spring forth I tell you of them." Yes, with * David had this supernatural gift, this God-given power to foresee and foretell events yet future, which means much. Paul quotes second Psalms and seventh verse, in Heb., v. 5, viz: "Thou art My Son, this day have I begotten thee," and tells us it refers to Christ. Prof. Workman tells us in good old Anglo Saxon that "there is no immediate reference in second Psalm to Him." 444. Methodists, do you approve of this teaching? You are paying for having it taught to your young theologians for the past six years. You do not know this perchance. You know it now. Such teaching is a scandal on Methodism and a libel on the Scriptures. Any man propogating such doctrine is a worthy candidate for canonization in the calendar of unbelief. And any church paying men large salaries to teach such theology which handles the word of God so deceitfully shall be spewed out of God's mouth unless she repent. Paul in Heb. 1, 8 quotes from Psa. xlv, 6, and tells us plainly that these words were spoken of the Son of God, viz., "But of the son he saith, 'Thy throne, O, God is forever and ever a sceptre of righteousness, is the sceptre of Thy kingdom.'" Of the 110 Psalm, Prof. W. says: "Its author was not David, but a poet belonging to his time; and its character is not Messianic in the strict sense of the term. * * * The whole contents of the psalm show that it was addressed to some one by the psalmist, and not by the psalmist to the Messiah." We will open the New Testament and see if this is true. Christ applied this psalm to Himself in Luke xxiv, 42, and said:—"And David himself saith in the book of Psalms, "The Lord said unto my Lord, sit thou on my right hand till I make thine enemies thy footstool." Jesus tells in Mark xii, 36, that David spake these very words "by the Holy Ghost," and spake them originally and predictively of the very Christ now speaking to them. And His application of this Psalm so confounded the Pharisees and hypocrites gathered around Him that it is written, "Neither durst any man from that day forth ask Him any more questions." A greater than Prof. Workman is here. Peter also directly and personally applies these same words, from cx Psalm, to Jesus. Hear him: "The Lord said unto my Lord, sit thou on my right hand until I make thy foes thy footstool. Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly that God hath made THIS SAME JESUS both Lord and Christ."—Acts ii, 34, 36. This ought to be enough to convince the most sceptical that Christ and His apostles believed that the person of the Messiah was spoken of in the Psalms. Paul quotes that passage from the 110th Psalm three times in Heb., viz.: "Thou art a priest forever after the order of Melchisedec," which could refer to none but Christ. "Search the Scriptures," is a command that should be emphasized by all true teachers. Scholars and theologians we need, and should prize them if they are sound in the faith; but the great mistake of to-day is this, we trust too much to man to search the Scriptures for us. Would to God that a great army of preachers and people would arise that would tally with Solomon's description of the "valiant in Israel," viz., "They all hold a sword, being expert in war: every man hath his sword upon his thigh, because of fear in the night."—S.S. iii, 8. The sword of the Spirit is THE WEAPON—any other blade will double up at the first shock of war.

DOURO DOINGS.

A Regular Meeting of the Township Council and the Business Transacted.

Correspondence of the Review.

The Douro council met the Town Hall March 9th, 1891, pursuant to adjournment. Members all present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and signed. By-law No. 386 was passed appointing pound keepers, fence viewers and overseers of highways for the year 1891. The clerk was instructed to insert on the collector's roll of 1890 the taxes acrued against Andrew Haslip for part of lot No. 1, in con. 12, also to obtain legal advice as to the necessity of publishing by-law No. 385, entitled a by-law to raise by way of loan the sum of $1,000 for the purposes of S. S. No. 5. The treasurer was authorized to allow the collector $3.25, abatement of 5c. on the sum of $100 11, amount of uncollected taxes, and $27 03, amount of taxes charged on roll against collector in 1890—total, $129 14—the collector to pay the treasurer $80 78, being amount in full of five cents on the uncollected taxes on Dec 14th, 1890, and also that the treasurer pay the collector $60 salary for 1890. The clerk was instructed to post up notices in the vicinity of Carveth's bridge crossing the Indian river, that the council intends passing a by-law at its meeting to be held on the 25th day of May next, closing up said bridge so as to prevent public travel thereon, and also to give notice that said bridge is unsafe and not fit for public travel, and any person or persons travelling over the same will do so at their own risk, as the council will not hold itself responsible for any accident that may occur to persons travelling over said bridge.

Cold in head, catarrh, consumption, death are the four stages that rapidly follow each other. If you would avoid the latter do not neglect the former, but use Nasal Balm at the first symptoms.

Another Guessing Competition.

A guessing competition is now open, which affords ample scope for Peterborough's many champion calculators. This time it is the census returns of the town that will be the object of prophetic speculation. Mr. Sam May, tobacconist, offers three valuable prizes to the three nearest guessers to the census returns for the town of Peterborough. The first prize is a handsome smoking set in a silk case, valued at $5; the second is an elegant pipe, valued at $3 50; and the third is another $3 pipe. The prizes are on exhibition at Mr. May's store on Hunter-st., where guesses can be made and deposited in a box by the guesser. A charge of 25 cents a guess will be made. It is a good chance for guessing and is sure to attract competitors. The census are to be taken in April 6th, and the prizes will be awarded as soon as the returns are made public. The time is short so get your guess in at once.

The Advantages of Conversation.

The most agreeable way of getting information is by conversation. If you talk with a well informed person who can express clearly his views, you can ask questions and have explanations. Call on Stapleton & Elcombe, grocers, and ask them about that superb tea and new fresh goods which they have received and are now running off at a bargain, and you will buy and go away satisfied.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

But his professional reputation was so high and so well attested that his social disqualifications did not injure his success; and when Gen. Inigo conceived the idea of a grand new opera house Bellingham was among those to whom he applied for a plan and an estimate, and it was Bellingham who got the contract. The result was a building which many judges considered to be second to none of its kind in the world. It was beautiful, it was luxurious, it was acoustically a marvel, it was fireproof. Incidentally a number of artists achieved renown and made money by the decorations which they executed, under Bellingham's supervision, for its inner and outer walls. New York boasted of it, the papers contained descriptions of it, and the illustrated journals published pictures of it, and endeavored, but unsuccessfully, to obtain a portrait of the architect. But, as a compensation, there was engraved a dignified and imposing representation of Gen. Inigo, and a record of his brilliant and typically American career.

Bellingham had been waiting in the general's office fifteen minutes when the latter appeared, with Jocelyn on his arm, both in the best of spirits. The architect did not rise from his chair or make any other response than a preoccupied nod to the expansive greetings of the gentleman. "If you have your wits about you," he said to Inigo, "look at this plan and tell me your idea about it."

"What's it all about, anyhow?" returned the impresario, removing his cigar from his mouth and pulling himself together. "Stage entrance! What's the use botherin' with that? Just make it so as they can get in and out, and the gals can see their fellows"——

"No, sir," interposed Bellingham quietly. "I want to stop that."

"Stop what, in the name o' gracious?"

"Fellows hanging round the stage door for the girls to come out. I don't like it, and I mean to give the girls a chance to get off free if they choose."

"Your saving clause will cover ninety-nine cases in a hundred, I fancy," remarked Jocelyn with a laugh.

"What has that got to do with it?" demanded Bellingham, looking at him; "and what have you to do with it, either?"

"Oh, I was only startled to see you turning missionary," replied the other, moving away.

Bellingham paid no further notice to him.

"By connecting the window above the lower door, by means of an iron bridge of fifteen feet span, with the corridor in the building on the opposite side of the alley," he said, referring to his drawing, "you give additional means of exit either by the street door of that building or by the upper passage leading to the elevated railway station. Well?"

"What'll it cost?" inquired Inigo.

"Not more than eight hundred, or I'll pay the difference."

"It's all darn nonsense; but I'll do it to oblige you," said Inigo.

"That way, if you like," said Bellingham, folding up his plan. "Good day."

"Odd fish, that fellow," observed Jocelyn when the architect had gone out.

"I just tell you what," said Inigo. "if that odd fish was an impresario the divas wouldn't go back on him—not much!"

"Why wouldn't they?"

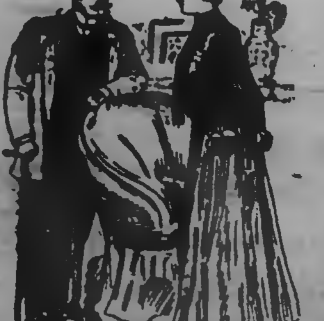
"Oh, maybe they wouldn't dare; but they wouldn't, anyhow."

"What do you know about it?"

"I know a man when I see him," returned the other, wagging his head, "and so do they."

CHAPTER V.

HOW EVERYTHING WAS MADE PLEASANT AND EASY FOR HER.



"WHAT ARE THE SERVICES FOR WHICH THIS IS THE PAYMENT?"

Two or three days afterward Jocelyn betook himself to a small and rather shabby looking house in East Eighteenth street, and asked if Mrs. Bemax were at home. The woman who opened the door said, in a weary and discontented voice, that Mrs. Bemax was in, and Jocelyn went upstairs. He entered the front room on the first floor. This room had a dingy and brownish aspect. The furniture was meager and rickety. Upon the wall between the windows hung either a print of the Prince of Wales and his family, taken from some illustrated paper and framed in a wooden frame stained black and varnished. The only pretty thing in the room was a photograph of a chubby little child about 4 years of age. It was mounted in a tasteful standard frame of stamped leather, and a small vase containing two or three flowers stood in front of it. The photograph itself was much faded and was in the style of ten years ago.

In a few minutes a tall, middle aged woman, with a square shaped face and rather strongly marked features, came into the room. Her eyes and brows were dark; her hair was slightly touched with gray. The corners of her large mouth had acquired an indrawn look, apparently from a habit of pressing her lips together; her general expression was studiously impassive. She looked like one accustomed to meet with rebuffs and disappointments, and to put up with them when necessary, though never with meekness and resignation. There was an air about her that showed she had once been familiar with the handsome side of the world, but, from whatever cause, had discontinued to enjoy or practice its refinements. There were more hard and unpleasant things in her memory than the contrary, and these memories and experiences had worn away her former comeliness and made her skeptical and somewhat malicious, instead of gentle and engaging.

(To be Continued)

SIR CHARLES DILKE.

[illegible] On the Prospects of the Baronet Clearing His Name.

LONDON, March 15.—Sir Charles Dilke has chosen what seems an odd moment for his effort to re-enter public life. He puts himself forward as a Gladstonian candidate a year and a half before an election is likely to occur. There is no vacancy in the Forest of Dean, nor is there likely to be any till this Parliament has been gathered to its fathers—probably, if all goes well, in the autumn of 1892. Sir Charles puts himself up to be shot at during all this long interval. So great is his impatience that he forgets, and expects others to forget, his own explicit pledge not to attempt to re-enter public life till he had vindicated his character. He has neither vindicated it nor taken any single step toward vindicating it. What he has done is to publish a pamphlet embodying such arguments on the proceedings in the Divorce Court as to him or to his legal advisers seem likely to shake the general conviction of his guilt. It is an idle effort. No number of pamphlets will avail against the verdicts of two juries who, after a full hearing, agreed that Mrs. Crawford had committed adultery with Sir Charles Dilke. The second verdict had the full concurrence of Mr. Justice Hannen, who tried the case, than whom no fairer and few abler judges ever sat on any bench. He must do more than upset these verdicts. What damaged him more than the verdict, what was worse than the stains and smirches of the divorce court, what drove him from public life, what destroyed him in the estimation of honorable men, was the feeling that in all this deplorable and despicable business he had not behaved like an honorable man.

That feeling will not be lessened by his reappearance on the political platform in violation of his public pledge, nor by his speech to the Forest of Dean electors. He meets none of the points. He says nothing to justify his present attitude. He has not, so far as one can judge, shaken public belief in his guilt nor softened the common conviction that he is an impossible political leader. The press, with few exceptions, passes him over in silence or condemns him. His return to full communion in the Liberal party would be a considerable event, but they do not believe in his return. The Nonconformist conscience, of which so much has lately been heard in connection with Mr. Parnell, is steadfast against him with, as in the case of the press, just enough exceptions to prove the rule. His former colleagues are against him, Mr. Gladstone most strongly of all. Sir Charles Dilke's object is office. Between him and office stands two lives, Mr. Gladstone's and the Queen's. It is certain that he cannot regain his former Cabinet rank during the lifetime of either. The Liberal, that is, the Gladstonian, party resent his reappearance. They have not recovered from the discredit and despair into which Mr. Parnell brought them. They are indignant that Sir Charles Dilke should emerge into notoriety even for a moment, while the Parnell scandal is still fresh. They do not desire to see Liberalism identified with adultery. The Forest of Dean division of Gloucester is a safe Liberal seat, with 1900 majority, remote enough from London, perhaps, to be ignorant of what all London knows. Its Liberal electors have accepted Sir Charles as a candidate, but the Liberal party would much prefer to see a Tory returned. They would not be responsible for a Tory.

Breaking the Bank.

It has been learned that the English gamblers who have recently been so successful in their operations at Monte Carlo are the agents of a syndicate formed a short time ago in London for the purpose of breaking the bank at that famous gambling resort. The scheme had its origin in the rooms of the Pall Mall Club, and the plotters comprised three peers, a member of the House of Commons, an army officer of well-known sporting tendencies and a prominent London merchant. The plan devised by this sextette was based on the experience and observation at Monte Carlo of each of the plotters, and contemplated nothing short of capitulation on the part of the bankers of the famous game. Accordingly they pooled the sum of £30,000, which was placed in the hands of two of their number, who selected the representatives of the syndicate at the gaming table. This explains the recent enormous winnings at Monte Carlo in every case by Englishmen.

New England League Formed.

BOSTON, March 16.—A meeting of gentlemen representing the cities of Lowell, Lynn, Salem, Brockton, Worcester, Haverhill, Manchester and Portland, Me., was held last night at the Tremont House, and a New England baseball league was formed to include clubs for the above-named cities. A committee was appointed to visit Springfield and Providence with a view of inducing those cities to enter the league, thus making it a 10-club organization. The salary limits were fixed at $1500 and the guarantee to finish the season was placed at $300.

We All May Live to a Good Old Age.

It has been noted that cases of extreme old age nearly always occur in the ranks of the poor. It is very difficult to find cases of extreme age, say one hundred years, among kings, queens, nobles and members of noted families, yet every child that is well born should live a century. There is no question but what the whole human race does not enjoy the vigor and health which it is possible to attain. People eat improper food, use hurtful stimulants as drinks, they are poisoned by malarias, and subject to contagions due to surroundings. If the health of our people is to be preserved and old age attained, is it not imperatively necessary to guard the condition of nerves, body and mind? Some will ask, "How is this to be accomplished?" Simply by using the proper agent, by taking hold of nature's great restorer and builder—Paine's Celery Compound. Hundreds can now be pointed out of men and women who once were low from nervous troubles, overwork, weariness of mind and body, sleeplessness and imperfect digestion, who are now enjoying robust health and strength and perfect vigor of manhood and womanhood, and who have added years to their lives. Paine's Celery Compound gives every guarantee of a good old age and a happy life.

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

OVER 200 LIVES LOST.

THE STEAMER UTOPIA SUNK OFF GIBRALTAR

After Colliding With Two Ironclads in the Bay—She Had on Board 700 Emigrants on Route to New York—Many Women and Children Drowned.

GIBRALTAR, March 17.—The British steamship Utopia, from Italian ports bound to New York with 700 Italian emigrants aboard, collided to-day with the British ironclad Rodney, anchored in Gibraltar bay, and sank soon afterward off Ragged Staff. A southwest gale was blowing at the time of the collision. Many women and children were drowned. A large number clinging to the rigging have been rescued by boats from the Channel Squadron.

On entering the bay the Utopia, before colliding with the Rodney ran into the British ironclad Anson. The Utopia sank within a few minutes. Boats were immediately lowered from the British ironclads and also from the Swedish man-of-war Evera. These boats rescued 180 persons who are now on board the various vessels. Many others who were rescued are lodged in Government buildings on shore. It is reputed that the crew of the Utopia were saved, but that over 300 passengers were drowned.

152 British Peers Own 1539 Places Where Liquor Is Dispensed.

LONDON, March 17.—A blue book issued by the Government discloses the fact that 152 peers of the realm are the owners of places in which intoxicating drink is sold. The number of drink shops owned by these peers is 1539. The list is headed by the Earl of Derby, who is the owner of 72 drinking places. Next comes the Duke of Bedford with 48 drink shops to his credit. Then the Duke of Devonshire with 47, Earl of Cawder 39, Duke of Rutland 37, Earl of Dudley 35, Duke of Northumberland 34 and Duke of Portland 28. Included in the list is the Right Rev. Richard Lewis, D.D., Bishop of Llandaff, who owns two places devoted to the sale of intoxicating liquors.

An Interesting Relic Found.

BERLIN, March 17.—An interesting discovery is reported from the town of Brunswick, Germany. The famous indulgence box in which Inquisitor Tetzel is said to have carried the money collected by him, and of which he was robbed by Ritter Hagen in the Harz Mountains, has been found in the Brunswick Town Hall. It was this tour of Tetzel that is said to have paved the way for Luther's success. Considerable interest is felt in the relic.

Shakespearean Relics to be Preserved.

LONDON, March 17.—A bill has passed Parliament vesting the corporation of Stratford, County of Bucks, as trustees of Shakespeare's birthplace and other memorial places with power to purchase Anne Hathaway's Cottage and Wilcote Cottage which belonged to Shakespeare's mother. The St. James Gazette congratulates the country upon the passage of the bill, which it says is a timely precaution and will prevent the removal of these properties to America.

Premature Explosion and Death.

ASHLAND, Pa., March 17.—A premature explosion of powder occurred at the Beadle colliery at Girardville this morning, killing and blowing to pieces William Mulbern and Richard Craddock and seriously injuring two others.

THE WORLD OF LONDON.

CHRONICLED AND CRITICISED BY MR. EDMUND YATES.

The Queen's Coming Visit to Grasse—"Plon Plon's" Successor—Americans at the Drawing-room—The Baccarat Scandal.

LONDON, March 12.—The arrangements for the Queen's journey to Grasse have again been altered, and according to the latest mot d'ordre the original plan will be followed, and the Queen is to leave Windsor at 4 o'clock next Monday afternoon for Portsmouth dockyard, where she will embark on board the Victoria and Albert. The difficulties of making all the arrangements for the Queen's safe and speedy journey from Cherbourg to Grasse are enormous, as apart from all the ordinary and obvious difficulties of the officials, there is always the chance of an entire change of performance at the very last moment, inasmuch as the Queen would not cross the channel if there was either the slightest fog or a stormy sea. For two days before Her Majesty starts messages will be constantly passing between Windsor Castle and Portsmouth dockyard.

The Queen's retinue at Grasse will consist of about forty persons, and it will require dexterous management to find accommodation for the whole of the Royal party at the Grand Hotel—although it is a very large building—as special arrangements have to be made for the pampered Indian domestics the Queen insists on carrying about with her. The Queen's own apartments are to be on the first floor, and a bedroom and a dressing-room which face the north are being frescoed. Her Majesty's sitting-room is very spacious and the windows command a grand view. It is to be fitted with furniture sent from Windsor, and the Queen's bed comes also from the Castle stores. There is a work-room for Sir Henry Ponsonby on the same floor, and bedrooms and sitting-room for the ladies-in-waiting. The best apartments on the second floor have been arranged for Prince and Princess Henry of Battenberg. The hotel stands on a wooded hill, well above the little town, and there are magnificent views from most of the windows and from the terrace. The Queen's three carriages, her pony chaise and her Bath chair have already arrived at Grasse from England, as well as about 200 packages of various sizes. The Queen takes only one lady-in-waiting, the Dowager Lady Churchill, her private secretary, Sir Henry Ponsonby, and Major Biggs, a maid of honor and a medical attendant.

Empress Frederick has decided to stay in England over the Easter holidays.

The public has heard a great deal too much of the theological and political disputes which have gone on for a week in poor Prince "Plon Plon's" sick room. It is quite certain that he has formally made the younger brother, Prince Louis, his political heir, placing him under the friendly tutelage of Prince Roland Bonaparte, who unites much practical wisdom to the scientific attainments of the recluse of Westbourne Park. Prince Roland is, in addition, enormously rich. It is a curious coincidence that the ultimate fate of the Bonapartes will greatly depend on the sagacity shown by the husband of Mlle. Marie Blanc and the son of Prince Pierre Bonaparte, who killed Victor Noir and was long regarded as the black sheep of the family.

Count von Waldersee is once more the man of the hour in the incomprehensible whirligig of German politics; but the inferences that have been liberally drawn from his visit to Prince Bismarck are utterly erroneous. The position of Chancellor von Caprivi is much shaken, and it is the fear of seeing von Waldersee succeed him that has induced the recluse of Friedrichsruhe suddenly to suspend his attacks.

Features of the Last Drawing-room.

There was a strong American contingent at the Drawing-room. The fashion set by Mrs. White was followed by Mrs. Lincoln, who is also in mourning for her son. Her magnificent black velvet gown was smothered with black feathers, standing in upright plumes upon the train, and in her hair was an aigrette. She was accompanied by her daughter, who carried a buquet of lilies. If equipages are any criterion, it must have been a motley crew who attended the Drawing-room on Friday. One horse flys, with broken-kneed horses, were in the majority, and single-horse landaus surely the most shabby-genteel of all conveyances were to be seen in great numbers. There certainly were not more than 20 decently turned out carriages. The more shabby the turnout, the more gaudy was the bouquets worn by the coachmen and footmen. On one box sat a coachman and groom warmly wrapped in horsecloth. On their bosom blazed an arrangement of daffodils, and they were both smoking big pipes. In a brougham sat a coachman and his love had followed him from the mews and was sitting by his side. Perhaps the carriages of the Salt of the Castle will take the people to later drawing rooms, but on Friday they were conspicious by their absence; and passing down the ranks one could but wonder what fossils of society had dug out this array of flys from livery stables last week.

A Clever Thief's Success.

I have mentioned Lord and Lady Cranbourne's new residence in Park Place. They had an unpleasant visitor last Thursday. A clever thief, equipped with a roll of copper wire and some workmen's tools, gained admittance on the pretence of having to repair an overhead telegraph wire leading to Salisbury House. After the manner of rich folks' servants, the butler passed him up to the roof and left him there; and, finding the ground clear, he promptly made for Lady Cranbourne's bedroom and annexed a few of her diamonds. An hour or two afterward the same excuse gained him admittance to a house in Cavendish-square, where he made a still larger haul of jewelry.

Lord Wolseley's Enforced Economy.

The journalists who expressed disapprobation of Lord Wolseley's conduct in continuing to reside en garcon in a Dublin hotel, and so escaping the duties of entertaining, cannot be aware of the unfortunate circumstances of a recent occurrence which has enforced economy on one to whose nature stinginess is as foreign as cowardice.

Progress of the Baccarat Case.

The statement is true which has appeared in the daily papers to the effect that, by an arrangement between the respective lawyers, the case of Sir William Gordon Cumming against Taylor and others is to be tried before Whitsuntide. It is possible that the suit may be adjudicated on without any decision on the intrinsic merits of the case. The defence takes its stand on two pleas—absence of publication of slander on the part of the defendants, and justification. The plea of non-publication adroitly precedes that of justification. It will devolve on counsel for the plaintiff to prove publication before the question of the merits of the case can be gone into. That preliminary issue will be a question rather of law than of fact; and as such the decision on it will be with the judge and not with the jury. If then the plaintiff does not prove publication to the satisfaction of the judge, the suit will fall in limine, to the extreme detriment of Sir William Gordon Cumming and to the warm satisfaction of the parties who, if the justification stage be reached, will have to go into the witness box.

Lord Rosebery Back in England.

Lord Rosebery came home on Wednesday, and with his children went to the country for a few days. He is looking much better and less worn than when he left London and the change has set him up wonderfully.

A Question of Retainers.

Those eminent and well-known leaders of the Parliamentary bar, Samuel Pope, Q.C.; Mr. Littler, Q.C., and Herbert Saunders Q.C., aided, abetted and confronted by Lewis Cowan, Lionel Moncton and other juniors have made a record and carried the strike movement into the realm of the wig and gown. So far as yet appears—for the incident is at present only in medio—Mr. Hanbury and the majority of the select committee over which he presides, thought it inconsistent with their dignity or with their convenience—it does not yet appear which—that learned counsel engaged before them should give contemporaneous attention to business before another committee. On the face of it, the proposition of Mr. Hanbury and those of his colleagues who agree with him appears, to say the least, unreasonable. The leaders of the Parliamentary bar can scarcely be expected so to limit their acceptance of retainers as to be certain of being in only one case at a time; and the duty of juniors is to take such notes of the evidence in chief as shall enable their leaders to conduct a sufficient and satisfactory cross-examination without danger of wearisome iteration. The further course of the consideration of the subject will be looked for with considerable interest. Some two or three years ago a West Country Baronet and M.P., then chairman of a special committee, hinted at a similar rule to that laid down by Mr. Hanbury, but nothing came of it.

EDMUND YATES.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Another Short Session of the Assembly Yesterday.

TORONTO, March 18.—In the Ontario Legislature yesterday Mr. Joseph Tait, M.P.P., presented petitions from the various Toronto unions, and from a number of citizens praying for the amendment of the Public Schools Act. He also presented his Bill respecting embalming. It provides that the Undertakers' Association of Ontario may establish a college for the purpose of instruction in branches of science and medicine bearing upon the work of the embalmer and undertaker, etc.

Before adjourning it was agreed that the House should not sit on Good Friday or on Easter Monday, but should stand adjourned from Thursday to Tuesday. Mr. Mowat also announced that the financial statement would probably be made on Tuesday next.

A deputation interviewed the Government and asked for an additional grant to the boys school at Mimico.

Mr. Conmee introduced a bill to amend the Municipal Act by adding to section 479 of these subsections: Any one or more municipalities may pass a by-law for the issue of debentures granting bonuses or other aid from the whole of such municipality or from any one or more townships or wards thereof alone, or in conjunction with any other ward or township forming part of an adjoining municipality, for the establishment of a mining school in any of such municipalities or elsewhere; or in lieu of such bonus a special annual rate in addition to the other rates upon the whole of the assessable property of the municipality. Every such school shall be under the control of a board of trustees, who shall be elected annually, one by each municipality, ward or township granting aid; provided, however, that if such school is established by only one municipality, township or ward, that such shall have the right to elect three trustees, and if by only two then each of the two shall have the right to elect two trustees.

Among the petitions presented were one by Mr. Conmee from the Manitoulin & North Shore Railway Company, praying for power to increase the issue of bonds from $10,000 to $35,000 a mile, and that the time for the commencement of the road might be extended for 3 years from March 23, 1891, and the time for completion for 6 years from the same date; and one by Mr. Dunlop from a large number of residents of Pembroke, asking for the appointment of a game warden or inspector for the protection of game in Renfrew, Muskoka and Nipissing.

Hamilton and the C.P.R.

HAMILTON, March 17.—Mr. Alexander McKay, M.P., went from Ottawa to Montreal yesterday and called upon Mr. Van Horne to get the views of the Canadian Pacific president with regard to railway construction in this vicinity. Mr. Van Horne told him that he was deeply impressed with the desirability of keeping his main line a few miles south of Hamilton, so as to have as good a grade as the Michigan Central and be able to haul as many cars with one locomotive from the Detroit to the Niagara River as are hauled over the road with which the Canadian Pacific intends to compete. He said, when directly interrogated by Mr. McKay on the point, that he would consider the idea of constructing a loop line down the Ancaster mountain, through Hamilton and up the mountain again near Stoney Creek, with a branch from Hamilton to Toronto, if Hamilton would give fair encouragement for that scheme.

In the Spring the Young Girl's Fancy.

HAMILTON, March 17.—Last night there arrived in this city from Dunnville an old man named Lowrey and his son, searching for a young girl named Rumsden, who had disappeared from Dunnville. By the terms of the will left by Miss Rumsden's father Lowrey was her guardian. It is supposed that she ran away from Dunnville to get married. The former says that the simple creature will not get a cent of the money willed her by her late father, as she has broken the provisions of the will by marrying before she came of age.

THE GRAND OLD MAN

DELIVERS A SERIES OF ADDRESSES IN ENGLAND.

He Pronounces Himself in Favor of Lord Salisbury's Foreign Policy, but Censures the Chancellor of the Exchequer—Parnell's Statements Contradicted.

LONDON, March 17.—Mr. Gladstone received a tremendous and spontaneous ovation to-day. He was leaving Charing Cross station for Hastings when an immense crowd gathered at the depot to witness his departure. The crowd cheered itself hoarse after Mr. Gladstone appeared, broke down the barriers and made a rush for the "Grand Old Man," cheering and waving hats and handkerchiefs as if mad with joy to see the veteran statesman. The railroad station fairly shook with cheers as the train bearing him moved out. Previous to the departure of the train the Executive Committee of the Radical Association presented an address to Mr. Gladstone.

When Mr. Gladstone's train stopped at Tunbridge, Kent, a large crowd was assembled there.

Mr. Gladstone replied to an address presented to him and said he hoped to shake hands with a Liberal member from Tunbridge after the next parliamentary election. He assured them that whatever measure of Home Rule was proposed, its spirit and basis would be unchanged from those of the former one—[cheers]—that it would be compatible with English honor and would bring peace and contentment to Ireland and life to the nation. The enfranchisement measures of 1884 were of benefit to the whole country. It was now of public interest that every householder should enjoy equal voting power.

Upon his arrival at Hastings Mr. Gladstone received a perfect ovation. The streets were decorated in his honor.

In reply to an address presented to him at Hastings, Mr. Gladstone said he found little to blame in Lord Salisbury's foreign policy during recent years, but he condemned the policy of Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer in concocting fictitious surpluses and concealing the real expenditures from parliament in order to manufacture a satisfactory budget. The finances of the country were intimately connected with its liberties and he protested against insidious attempts to undermine the power of the House of Commons to control the expenditures. Mr. Gladstone said that in 1889 £10,000,000 were set apart for naval expenditures, the payments extending over seven years. This was an objectionable arrangement of granting money. Besides the fashions of ships changed. What, he asked, would be thought of a lady ordering and paying for bonnets for the next seven years based on the present fashions. [Hear, hear.] Last year's exchequer balance, said Mr. Gladstone, was fictitious, and it was actually proposed to devote part of the surplus to buy publicans' licenses at their own prices.

Alluding to the Irish parliamentary party, Mr. Gladstone remarked that it could not be disputed that the members of this party were bound to sink their individual opinion and bow to the opinion of the majority. That opinion had been generally used in the interests of the empire. As to Parnell's speech in which he said he had opposed the claims of the labor candidates in England in consequence of an obligation he was under to the Liberal leaders, Mr. Gladstone said: "There is not one word of truth in this statement as far as I am concerned. [Hear, hear.] Far from opposing the claims of the labor candidates I have always been ready to support them." [Cheers.] Touching upon the disclosures of the Divorce Court, Mr. Gladstone said it was not his place to judge the amount of the delinquency, but it was the part of the Liberals to consider upon what principles they would be graded in the disposal of their votes. The Liberals knew that the cause of Home Rule depended upon them. The Liberals had arrived at a definite conclusion in regard to Mr. Parnell. He (Gladstone) was merely a reporter of the general conviction that the party was against Mr. Parnell. This conviction was arrived at in December. It held good now. [Cheers.] The Liberals were ready to face defeat, exclusion, misfortune, but they were not prepared to create a constitutional leadership for Ireland under such guidance as Mr. Parnell's. No consideration would make them do so." [Cheers.]

Mr. Gladstone contended that Irishmen continued to be deprived of many liberties such as Englishmen enjoyed. It was for the Irish people themselves to solve the question by a prompt and unanimous declaration against the existing administration.

Mr. Gladstone expressed the opinion that it was the duty of the Liberals to prosecute this great and patriotic purpose and to obtain justice for Ireland, knowing that by a courageous application of Liberal principles they could secure the union of the classes the Dominion of the law and the stability of the Crown. [Cheers.]

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." Ed. Jenkins, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. Beggle, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. Phebe Mosher, 59 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

THE VOTE IN THE EAST.

The majority Mr. John Burnham received in East Peterborough, though not large, is very creditable to him, to those who worked with him and to the riding. There is no doubt that Mr. Burnham was a strong candidate, for even his opponents recognize his ability and none can do otherwise than admit that he is a capable representative of the constituency in Parliament. Although the Liberal policy of unrestricted reciprocity was raised as a cry to catch the votes of the farming community, it recoiled upon themselves. This constituency is one in which they expected to gain by that cry, as it is almost entirely an agricultural one, but the yeomen of the East, like those of the West, and even in a more marked degree, were not to be caught with a scheme which would restrict the trade of Canada to the United States alone, would injure this country, including its agricultural interests, materially, and would place Canada in subjection to the Republic. There are three villages in the riding, and in the three combined Mr. Burnham gained [illegible] over the majority he received in 1887, the gain being principally in Ashburnham. But it was in the townships that he made his largest gains, for outside of the villages Mr. Burnham received 139 more votes than he did four years before, while the Liberals gained 24, leaving Mr. Burnham's net gain in the townships 115. This advance was made entirely on the strength of the Government's position and the weakness of the Liberal cause, for Mr. Burnham and his associates placed the issue fairly before the people, and before all the people of the riding in so far as time permitted. The contest, on their side at any rate, was conducted fairly and the success has been fairly won, and it is a success which is very gratifying indeed and upon which Mr. Burnham and the constituency are to be heartily congratulated.

MESSIANIC PROPHESY.

NO. IV.—CONCLUSION.

To the two hundred thousand Methodists scattered abroad throughout the Dominion of Canada, greeting:

What have I now done? Is there not a cause? Answer ye 200,000 Methodists in the Dominion of Canada. Can we be loyal to Christ and sit mum under such teaching?

Let us look at the first Messianic prophecy in the Bible found in Gen. iii, 15, where are told that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head, "It shall bruise thy head and thou shalt bruise his heel." Of Christ only could it be said that he was the seed of the woman of whom it is written, "made of a woman," "born of a virgin," without any participation of man. This singular expression is not found in any other part of Scripture, and could be applied to no other than to Christ. Thus it was that God was pleased to extract the confusion of Satan from that sex, for through woman came sin, so also through woman came salvation. Jesus Christ, that blessed seed of the woman, that TRIUMPHANT DELIVERER, who was to spring from the general mother of the human race, and so was to stand equally related to Jews and Gentiles, has bruised the head of the old serpent, the Devil, that is to say, has destroyed his empire, has wrested from him supreme authority which he had usurped in the world, "for by death he hath destroyed him that hath the power of death, that is the devil." Prof. Workman tells us on page 441 that this prophecy MERELY TEACHES "that the human race shall bruise or crush, or overcome the reptile race. Thus the verse literally teaches the natural enmity between mankind and reptiles. The passage, therefore, IS NOT MESSIANIC prophecy at all." The 53rd of Isaiah is.

AGAIN ASSAILED.

This time it is the 9th verse which is attacked, viz: "And he made his grave with the wicked and with the rich in his death; because he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth." If any prophetic utterance in the whole of the Old Testament referred originally, literally and personally to Jesus Christ, it is this one, and all Bible students know how literally these words were fulfilled in Christ. His grave was made in the midst of those wicked husbandmen who said: "This is the heir come, let us kill him," and who carried out their wicked design and with wicked hands killed the "Prince of Life." Again: "When the even was come a rich man of Arimathea named Joseph * * begged the body of Jesus * * and laid it in his own new tomb, with the rich in His death." Matt. 27, 57, 60. Fulfilled to the letter was this ninth verse of Isaiah, 53. What does Prof. Workman say of this verse? HEAR HIM:—"The ninth verse of this chapter (53rd Isaiah) has not been applied to Him (Jesus) by the evangelists, and should not be applied to Him by anyone. To try to torture the original into a translation suitable for such an application is reprehensible." 447. In the name of all that is sacred and holy, to whom, then, do these words apply? The passage just before this one tells us they apply to Him of whom this was true, "for the transgressions of my people was he stricken." Who does that originally refer to? And again in the 12th verse, "and He bore the sins of many and made intercession for the transgressors." If we are wrong in applying the ninth verse in this chapter to Christ, and in doing so we are guilty of torturing the Scripture, we are verily guilty of the same crime if we apply one single verse of the whole 53rd Isaiah to the "Messiah, of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write." This is falsely called the "Ethical Theory of Messianic prophecy." Something new, forsooth! No, this so-called "new theology" is not new. It is decrepid with age. It is as old and as hoary-headed as the father of lies, and is nothing more or less than a "doctrine of devils," and there is no mistake about that. Away with it to its own place and give us sound teaching. Let the Holy Ghost be in all our universities, and He will put a stop to this teaching. Christ, the great teacher, should first be consulted, man second, as to application and interpretation of prophecy. He is supreme authority, for we read: "The Spirit of Christ, which was in them (the prophets) did signify, when it testified beforehand, the sufferings of Christ and the glory that should follow." 1 Pet. 1, 2. Prof. Workman tells us, "The doctrine respecting Jehovah's anointed, as presented in the * * * Old Testament, it should be carefully borne in mind, must be confined exclusively to Old Testament teaching, irrespective of New Testament application or interpretation." 472. (Strong language.) Again on page 437, we repeat, he says, when investigating the meaning of the Old Testament we may keep the New Testament closed. Verily "the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God." Methodists, this theology blackens our escutcheon. It is a

DISGRACE TO METHODISM.

Let us away with it. Well may we blush to think that these views are not only held but taught in Victoria College, as Prof. W. tells us: "I have been holding and teaching my view of the subject (Messianic Prophecy) for upwards of six full years."—(from Christian Guardian, Dec. 17th, '90.) It is written "if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch." How much longer is the Methodist church going to tolerate this teaching, which tells us when we read Isa. lii, 14, viz., "as many were astonished at Thee, His visage was so marred more than any man, and His form more than the sons of men; and again in Isa, liii.—He is despised and rejected of men, a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, but He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities, etc. * * * And the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all." * * * He bore the sin of many and maketh intercession for the transgressors) that these words have no definite personal prediction or reference to Jesus Christ? Teaching which drains the sweetness out of the whole of the Old Testament by excluding the person of the Messiah from it, and which challenges the truthfulness and stability of the New Testament. The Old as well as the New Testament bears witness to the person of the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world. "To witness."—Acts x, 43. "For the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

HIM GIVE ALL THE PROPHETS

If Prof. Workman and his colleagues think they can smuggle this kind of doctrine into Methodism without from the common people, they have made a grand mistake—a protest which will ere long assume practical form. Where are our "defenders of the faith"?—men like Dr. Carman, Rev. John Potts, Dr. Sutherland and others, who are always to the front armed to the teeth when any attack is made on Methodism, but now when the word of God is assailed there is not found one of our mighty men to come out and handle "without gloves," this "scientific exegete," falsely so called, and demand his dismissal, unless he owns up like a man that he has been in the wrong. Verily "truth is fallen in the street." The glory of Methodism has departed if she tell us there is nothing in this new doctrine opposed to Scripture or Methodist theology. As one of the common people, and one who has helped to support the institutions of our church, I protest with might and main against this miserable, thieving doctrine that would steal the beauty, meaning and sweetness from a great portion of the word of God.

We are told, page 467, that the prophets had very limited and indefinite prophetic insight. He says: "An understanding of this indefinite character of prophecy will help us to appreciate the possibility of its fulfilment." Hence we are taught to believe, on page 465, "that many of Ezekiel's prophecies as well as all those Hebrew prophecies relating to Israel's future, are simply not unfulfilled, but IMPOSSIBLE OF FULFILLMENT."

This is a libel on the prophets. The canonical prophets, almost to a man, prophesied of Israel's future, so that these holy men of God were moved by the Holy Ghost to prophecy lies. God says, "Woe to the prophets that do this." Ez. xiii, 23. How could they do else, according to this doctrine? for we are told, on page 475, "Messianic prophecy in the original * * * is poetry, highly imaginative Hebrew poetry." Where is the Holy Ghost in this new theology? He is ruled out. "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God and is profitable," &c. II Tim. iii. 16. No, that is not true. Some, and a great deal, is given by the mere "imagination" and germinal ideas of man, and is not true, hence good for nothing, thus saith Prof. Workman and his colleagues. Who inspired Daniel, 500 years before it happened, to prophecy and tell to the very day when Messiah, the Prince, should be cut off? What about Daniel's Messianic stone that is to fill the whole earth? When Zec ix., 9 was fulfilled, viz.: "Fear not, daughter of Zion, behold thy King cometh sitting on an ass' colt, then remembered the disciples that these things were written of Him." Jno. xii., 15, 16. The disciples here evidently believed that original reference was made to the Messiah in the Old Testament. "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given, and the government shall be upon upon His shoulder, and His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace" (Isa. ix., 6) is Isaiah's announcement of the Messiah 740 years before He was born a little baby in Bethlehem's manger. We feel confident that our people will plant their heels solid on this miserable Judeo-German rationalism and stamp it out. Six years of this teaching in Victoria University is just six years too much of it. We will hope for better things. "To the law and to the testimony; if they speak not according to the word, it is because there is no light in them." Isa. viii., 20.

"Prove all things. Hold fast that which is good."

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18, 1891.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

A Farmers Secret Society.

Several hundred farmers are in session in the new market building this afternoon, where a local branch of the Patrons of Industry is being organized. The proceedings are secret.

"I would not take $100 for my bottle of Nasal Balm if I could not get another," is the verdict of one sufferer who was speedily cured of cold in head. Such strong testimony ought to convince you that it is worth trying.

Going to the Coast.

On Friday morning next Mr. Richard Huffman leaves for Victoria, B.C., whither he goes with the intention of taking up his residence. Mr. Huffman is a young man who is sure to succeed in the west and his many friends here will wish him all prosperity. He has been an active and valuable member of Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F., and will be greatly missed among the brothers in that lodge. He will journey to the Pacific coast in company with Mr. John Mein, whose intended departure was announced some weeks ago.

"Ayer's Medicines have been satisfactory to me throughout my practice, especially Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has been used by many of my patients, one of whom says he knows it saved his life."—F. L. Morris, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

To-night's Lecture.

The Wednesday lecture at St. John's church this evening will be delivered by Rev. Dr. Mockridge, of Holy Trinity church, Toronto. The subject will be "The Beginnings of the Gospel." Dr. Mockridge is the noted champion of the free pew system, resigning Christ Church Cathedral, Hamilton, two years ago because the congregation would not declare the church free. He is Hon. Secretary of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society in Canada and is the editor of the Canadian Church Missionary News, a magazine with a wide circulation, which has many subscribers in Peterborough. Dr. Mockridge will doubtless be warmly greeted this evening.

An At Home at the Parsonage.

An "At Home" was given in the parsonage of the George-st. Methodist church last evening by the Ladies' Missionary Auxiliary of that church. There was a very good attendance and the evening was a most enjoyable one. Although the entertainment was largely informal a good programme was rendered during the evening, as follows:—Miss Sperry, instrumental solo; Miss Owens, vocal solo; Miss Davis, instrumental solo; Mrs. Kendry, reading; Mrs. Daly, vocal solo; Mrs. Locke, reading; Mrs. McIntyre, vocal solo; Misses Robinson, instrumental duet; Mrs. Parker, vocal solo; Miss Griffith, reading; Mrs. Sherry, vocal solo; Mr. L. Seward, instrumental selections. The programme closed with the National Anthem. Refreshments of the usual excellent quality were then served by the ladies and enjoyed by the company. The "At Home" was a very pleasant one indeed, the good programme combined with the social nature of the entertainment making it a most enjoyable one.

If the hair is falling out and turning gray, the glands of the skin need stimulating and color-food, and the best remedy and stimulant is Hall's Hair Renewer.

AN INTERESTING EVENING.

The Baptist Sunday School Entertainment a Deviation from the Customary—The Encampment and Tabernacle Illustrated and Described.

Last night was a scene of activity at the Murray-st. Baptist church, it being the occasion of the annual tea and entertainment of the Sunday school. About five o'clock the little folks arrived and at once begun to enact the first item on the programme by doing ample justice to the abundant and toothsome feast that had been provided for them. It took a remarkably short time to lighten the tables of their burden.

About 8 o'clock the children, almost two hundred, took their places in the church, under the supervision of their teachers, and the entertainment was commenced. This was a deviation from the usual Sunday school entertainment, and consisted of a very full and instructive object lesson on the encampment and tabernacle of the children of Israel during their journeyings from Egypt to the land of Canaan. On the platform was erected a model of the encampment, in minature, consisting of the court, with its pillars, curtains, coverings, &c.; inside the court was the Altar of Burnt Offering, the laver, the tabernacle and its contents. At one side of the platform was a larger model of the tabernacle alone, showing the furniture of the sanctuary. The exercise was led by the superintendent, Dr. W. D. Scott, the children and teachers of the school reciting verses of Scripture referring to the various parts of the encampment, which parts were explained by the Superintendent, and by the pastor, Rev. J. E. Trotter, as the exercise progressed. These descriptions were very interesting indeed, not only to the children, but to the parents and friends, many of whom were present. Especially interesting were the remarks made by the pastor on the different articles as they were reached in the exercise, such as the Altar of Burnt Offerings, or Brazen Altar, with its horns and their purpose, &c., the laver and its purpose. A very pretty effect was produced by the lighting of the seven candles of the candlestick in the larger model of the tabernacle and when the curtain over the entrance to the Holy Place was drawn up, the interior could be seen, and away in beyond the lighted candlestick and beyond the inner curtain could be seen the Most Holy Place and its contents. As the verses in connection with the tabernacle were being recited the Rev. Mr. Trotter very interestingly described the various articles, showing each to the audience in turn, such as in the Holy Place, the candlestick with its seven lighted candles, its position, etc., the table for the show bread, the show bread, vessels for the table, altar of incense or golden altar, when used and by whom, incense and how made. Then in the Most Holy Place, the ark, and what it contained—the golden pot that had manna in it, Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant—the mercy seat, the cherubims of glory over the mercy seat, etc. At the end of the exercise the pastor spoke for a few minutes on the manner of moving the encampment, the burdens each of the twelve tribes had to bear, the coverings of the tabernacle, the position of each tribe in relation to the court and tabernacle, pointing out the prominent position occupied by the tribe of Judah, the centre of the front or east side. From this tribe the Redeemer was promised, consequently they were given the position of honor. He also gave a description of the High Priest and his dress, showing the miniature that was there, and describing each garment, and pointing out the significance of each. He then closed the exercise by very appropriately showing how our Lord Jesus Christ was our High Priest, and had offered up the sacrifice for us once for all, and that we could ever approach him and find salvation through him.

The exercise throughout was very instructive to all present, and was closed by the audience singing the doxology and prayer by the pastor.

OBITUARY.

Death of Mr. Hugh Davidson.

At six o'clock last evening there peacefully passed away at his family residence "Vine Cottage," in Smith, one of the most respected and universally esteemed residents of that township in the person of Mr. Hugh Davidson. To his friends his demise was not altogether unexpected as for the past three months he has been prostrated and very little hope was entertained latterly for his recovery. It will be remembered that on the first of December last the deceased gentleman was suddenly stricken down while attending a meeting in his township, the cause of his prostration being the bursting of a blood vessel in the brain. It was feared that fatal results would follow immediately, but with remarkable vitality he rallied and for three months has been in the possession of all his mental faculties and able to converse with friends, although at times he suffered excruciating pain. A peace of mind and quietude of spirit which was most comforting to his sorrowing friends marked his protracted illness.

The late Hugh Davidson was born in 1839 in the township of Smith on the homestead adjoining his late residence, and was a son of the late James Davidson. He was therefore fifty-two years of age when he was called away. He has always followed farming, and as an agriculturist has been most successful. In 1865 he married Jane Eliza, daughter of Mr. James Armstrong, of Otonabee, who, with nine children, survives him. A gentleman who made agriculture a study and applied the result of his labors in his management of his farm, he was a prosperous and successful farmer and held a position as an authority among the farming community in this county. He was always a prominent member of the local Farmers' Institutes and Agricultural Society, and his removal will be greatly regretted by the farmers generally. In town Mr. Davidson was also well known, and an acquaintance with him always secured for him the respect and esteem of those with whom he met. He was a faithful and consistent Presbyterian, and was an elder in St. Paul's church in town. An unassuming man, he never aspired or sought any municipal honors. Always having a kind and cheerful word of greeting to those with whom he came in contact, he was liked by all, and the regret at his death will be universal among the community. Seven brothers and sisters survive him—Messrs. R. S. and Wm. Davidson, of town; Mr. James Davidson, of Smith, and Mrs. McKibbon and Mrs. McPherson, of town, and Mrs. Garbutt and Mrs. Elliott, of Smith. To the bereaved wife and children and sorrowing relatives, the sympathy of the entire community will be extended.

The funeral will take place from his late residence on Thursday afternoon next.

Death of Mr. Ezra Hurd.

The death was also announced this morning of Mr. Ezra Hurd, step son of Mr. John Green, of North Monaghan. The deceased was about 58 years of age and was unmarried, having lived all his life with his father. His death was very sudden and unexpected. On Sunday last he was taken ill, and although at first nothing serious was anticipated, he grew worse and died this morning about one o'clock. In early youth he was an extremely bright, vivacious and precocious boy, but a severe attack of scarlet fever left him weakened in mental power. As a man he was greatly beloved by his relatives and respected by all who knew him, being of a very generous, kind-hearted, sympathetic disposition. He was a half brother of Messrs. Wm. J., John and R. H. Green, of town.

SAINT PATRICK'S DAY.

THE EVENING CELEBRATION AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

An Enjoyable and Successful Concert Under Auspices of the Catholic Association.

Long live and flourish the Shamrock, the three-leaved emblem of the Emerald Isle! The true Irishman pins the leaflet to his lapel with patriotic zest at any time, but especially so on the day of St. Patrick who, if tradition be correct, banished the snakes out of Ireland and gained the enduring love and admiration of the people and their descendants for ever.

Tuesday night brought the annual concert in honor of the Saint. The Opera House was packed and the audience was a critical—not too critical—and appreciative one. There was much in the programme to be enjoyed and a pleasing variety that prevented the performance from at all being tiresome.

The Fire Brigade Band contributed a well played selection arranged from the most popular Irish airs and melodies. The Peterborough Amateur Orchestra gave two very well rendered selections, the cornet solos by Mr. W. A. Sanderson in the first selection, "Memories of Ireland," being particularly well played, the tone soft and melodious. Mr. Betcher, with his usual ability, conducted the orchestra.

The programme has appeared in print in the papers and it is not necessary to give it in its entirety, but to say that those who contributed were Mrs. J. J. Macklin, Mrs. J. E. McIntyre, Miss M. Trengloss Stevenson (Guelph), Miss Annie Dunn, Mr. S. H. Clarke (Toronto), Mr. T. Dunn, Mrs. T. Dunn playing the accompaniments. With so clever an array of talent, to present a programme was not a difficult matter.

The solo numbers by ladies were given by Mrs. Macklin, Miss Stevenson, Miss Dunn and Mrs. McIntyre. Mrs. Macklin sang sweetly, and with pathos and feeling, the ballad "Kathleen Mavourneen," and in response to a hearty encore sang "The Minstrel Boy." In the duet with Mr. Dunn Mrs. Macklin's voice was the first of a well balanced and effective selection, "I Would That My Love." Mrs. McIntyre, who is always well received, gave a favorite song "Say That You Love Alway," but was especially brilliant in the duet with Mr. Dunn, "Excelsior." Miss Stevenson will remember her visit to Peterborough. Nothing could be more cordial and hearty than the reception she deservedly received, her charming personnel and engaging manner, and the possessor of an admirable and well trained voice, gaining at once the favor of the audience. Her solos were difficult pieces of vocalization and the tone and treatment admirable. She was warmly encored and pleasantly responded with a favorite ballad. Her solos were "Should He Upbraid," "O Mio Fernando" (the Italian libretto), and encore "Would You." Miss Stevenson will attain a high position in her profession and her contributions will add interest to any programme on which she may be placed. Miss Dunn sang, to the admiration of the audience, "Cruskeen Lawn," and receiving a warm encore, gave "Killarney."

Of the gentlemen who were on the programme Mr. H. S. Clarke gathered in the honors with his recitations. Inimitable in voice, manner and gesture he portrayed rather than recited, the characters he touched. All his efforts were excellent, and his versatility is a remarkable as it is equally good. He was encored, and had he complied to repeated encores he might have gone on reciting till the clock struck twelve. His "Catch Weights—Owners up" was a graphic recital of a thrilling incident of the war in the Soudan, and captured the audience from the start. "The Rivals," in a different vein, was equally good, and the last selections, "Nebuchadnezzar" and "Low Backed Car," capital dialect recitations. Mr. Clarke can come again and again and he will find an appreciative and sympathetic audience ready to greet him. Mr. T. Dunn, our local baritone, sang as he ever does, most acceptably. His solo, "The Arab's Bride," a descriptive song, was strongly rendered in a manly and hearty way that the Arab himself would have envied. In duet with Mrs. McIntyre and with Mrs. Macklin Mr. Dunn sang with taste and capital effect.

The accompaniments given by Mrs. Dunn were an unobtrusive though complete part of the programme, and the lady's taste and skill in this essential part were admirable and the subject of favorable comment.

The success of the concert is due largely to the efforts of the committee, of whom Mr. T. Dunn and J. J. Sheehy were the active principals. Members of the Association were on hand and acted as ushers. The stage was handsomely decorated and presented the appearance of a brilliantly lighted drawing room.

The Association wish specially to return thanks to Messrs. Jackson & Co. for their kindness in loaning the handsome piano that was used during the evening.

The Population of Peterborough

is about 10,000, and we would say at least one-half are troubled with some affection of the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large bottle 50c and $1. Sold by all druggists.

This Evening.

The celebrated MacLennan Royal Edinburgh Concert company will appear in the Opera House this evening and should be greeted by a full house of lovers of first-class music. Of them the Scottish-American says:—"The company of artistes known as the McLennan Royal Edinburg Concert Company were engaged for this occasion and were accorded a hearty welcome as they appeared upon the platform. Every member was heralded as having acquired a high reputation in their respective spheres—all 'stars,' gems of the first water. Great things were consequently expected of them, and individually it cannot be said of them that they fell short of their reputation." 1d65

Another Guessing Competition.

A guessing competition is now open, which affords ample scope for Peterborough's many champion calculators. This time it is the census returns of the town that will be the object of prophetic speculation. Mr. Sam Ray, tobacconist, offers three valuable prizes to the three nearest guessers to the census returns for the town of Peterborough. The first prize is a handsome smoking set in a silk case, valued at $5; the second is an elegant pipe, valued at $2.50; and the third is another $2 pipe. The prizes are on exhibition at Mr. Ray's store on Hunter-st., where guesses can be made and deposited in a box by the guesser. A charge of 25 cents a guess will be made. It is a good chance for guessing and is sure to attract competitors. The census are to be taken in April 6th, and the prizes will be awarded as soon as the returns are made public. The time is short so get your guess in at once.

THE CUP COMES HERE.

Peterborough Curlers Inflict a Severe Defeat on the Lindsay Men and Win the Challenge Cup for This Year.

What proved to be the last of the Peterborough-Lindsay challenge cup series of curling matches was played yesterday, when two rinks played here and two in Lindsay, resulting in a victory for the Peterborough men by 36 shots. This was the fourth victory out of five games for the Peterborough curlers and, as the winners of four out of six were to hold the cup, the trophy will come here for this year. The Peterborough men are to be congratulated on their success, and may another year see a like result.

At the rink here Skip C. McGill was contesting on one rink with the renowned champion, Skip Flavelle, and succeeded in defeating his opponent of world-wide fame by 4 shots. On the other rink here Thos. Rutherford defeated Wm. McLennan by 3 shots, making a total majority here of 7 shots.

At Lindsay big majorities were won. Sam Ray defeated J. M. Knowlson by 20 shots and T. P. Attrill came out 8 shots ahead of J. McMillan, jr. This made a majority all round of 36 shots.

A Serious Battle.

The political battle is over, but the battle with disease must be constantly and unceasingly waged else the grim reaper will come out victorious, and loved ones will be gathered to their long homes. On all sides may be seen pale and listless girls who should be enjoying the health and glow of rosy youth. Everywhere we are met with women young in years, yet prematurely old, who suffer in silence almost untold agonies, the result of those ailments peculiar to the female system. To all such, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a blessing. They restore wasted vitality, build up the nervous system, enrich the blood, and transform pale and sallow complexions into glowing, rosy cheeks that alone follow perfect health. In a word they are a certain cure for all those distressing complaints to which women and girls are peculiarly liable. A trial of these pills will convince the most sceptical of their wonderful merit. For suffering men Dr. William's Pink Pills are equally efficacious. For overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, nervous debility, and all those diseases that lead to broken-down manhood, they are a certain specific, stimulating the brain, reinforcing the exhausted system and restoring shattered vitality. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are nature's restorative and should be used by every weak and debilitated person. For sale by all dealers or sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Spring Hill Relief Fund.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—I regret that nothing has yet been done in the way of calling a public meeting to consider means of raising a subscription for the sufferers of the recent Spring Hill disaster. The town granted $100 to the fund, but the private subscriptions are coming in very slowly (I have less than $40 as yet). I hope to send them at least $100; that, I think, is not an extravagant hope from a town of this size; but those who intend to subscribe should send in their donations at once—I understand that they want $60 000 for the fund, and you will see from the enclosed clipping from the Montreal Gazette that they already have more than half of it. To those who are hanging back because they think the amount they can afford is not worth sending, I may say that will take anything from 5 cents to $5.

Yours faithfully,
F. J. LEWIS.
Treas. Pro.-Tem.

The following is the clipping from the Gazette referred to by Mr. Lewis:—The following letter has been received by Mr. Fred B. Alley, treasurer of the Spring Hill relief committee in this city, from Mr. A. McLeod, secretary of the committee in Spring Hill:

"SPRING HILL, March 9th, 1891.

"Your favor of March 3rd to hand and I am pleased to hear you are doing so well for us in Montreal. It is far beyond anything we hoped for, but we are in real need of it and more. I am glad to know that your Citizens' committee approved of the method of distribution; it is the only fair way, to give a monthly allowance to each widow and child under twelve years of age, and to be given out so that each will be used alike and no discriminating. We have received very great help from the Maritime provinces and from all Canada aid has come, but on Montreal's contribution depends the permanency of the relief."

The Spring Hill subscription list now amounts to $32,000. This includes the first $5,000 sent from Montreal.

Each season has its own peculiar malady; but with the blood maintained in a state of uniform vigor and purity by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla little danger need be feared from meteorological influences. No other blood medicine is so safe and effective

It is skill that gives style and fit to garments, but you want something more, you want Handsome Cloths, Pretty Linings, Neat Trimmings and above all, serviceability. Doesn't it strike you that a big clothing house like ours can supply these details more intelligently and fully than those who at most keep but a small selection of cloths and trimmings? Consider for a while and we shall have your order.

What do you say?

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease consumption. Ask yourself if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. d16o6-6m

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body, and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used on them was $5 worth. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00, you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (No. 2, page 47) in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

DENNIS DOWNING, Waterbury, Vt.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18, 1891.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

"Well, Hamilton," she said, as she came in, "I hope you've brought me some money."

"Money, my dear Meg! Didn't I send you some last week?"

"Yes, enough to pay up my arrears of board. I've had none to spend on myself for a month, and I have only one other dress to my back, and that is not fit to be seen."

"Things are more expensive here than in England. I told you that when you insisted on coming here. You would have been more comfortable at home."

"Home is where the heart is," she replied, with an intonation of somber sarcasm. "My heart is not in England, wherever else it may be."

"Well, I've been very busy," said Jocelyn.

"So you always tell me; but I persume, as usual, it is no business of mine."

"Well, my dear, it's only the money aspect of my business that you feel any interest in."

"If you mean there is no longer any sentiment between us I cordially admit it," was the answer. "I don't care the snap of my finger for you or for any one else now alive. But I have some claims upon you, and I've come here to enforce them."

"You have the photograph there still, I see," remarked Jocelyn, turning to the table. "Poor little fellow! If he'd lived I'd have made a man of him."

"Yes! You'd have made the same sort of man of him as you've made woman of his mother. I'm glad he's dead; if it's only to save him from knowing what sort of a father he's got! However, you said that to put me in a good humor, I suppose. What do you want?"

"I vow, Meg, you're too confoundedly sour for anything," exclaimed Jocelyn, twisting his whiskers. "I've come to tell you of an arrangement that will enable you to live at your ease the rest of your days, and this is the way I am received. Come, now!"

"It is impossible you should intend any benefit to me that would not benefit you ten times more," said Mrs. Bemax impassively.

"You do me gross injustice; you are like all women with a grievance!" returned Jocelyn, whose temper was certainly very easy. "My scheme is to put you in receipt of an income of $1,200 a year. Have you any fault to find with that?"

"What are the services for which this is the payment?" Mrs. Bemax inquired.

"To chaperon a lady—nothing more."

"A lady!" replied the other, a peculiar smile drawing down the corners of her mouth; "I begin to understand! Who is she?"

"The prima donna at the new opera house."

"Yes, in whom you are tenderly interested. Taking everything into consideration, Hamilton, that is very characteristic of you; a very delicate piece of kindness."

"Bah! Meg, your cynicism is overdone; you are on the wrong scent entirely. In the first place, the lady is not the person she's supposed to be. She's the daughter of an old friend of mine; I once intended to marry her, but—I thought better of it. Circumstances which you will be fully informed of have led to her personating the Marana—name and all—the coming season. It's a grand secret, of course, and I selected you as the only woman who could be trusted to keep it. You are to confirm in every way that suggests itself the idea that she is the bona fide Marana; say you've lived with her for years in Europe, and so on. But she is wholly ignorant of the world, and you are to see to it that none of the young fellows get ahead of her. You may invent all the adventures you like for her—in the past, but on no account let her get into any scrapes in the present. Do you see what I mean?"

"I think so. The young fellows you speak of are to be kept out of the way for your sake rather than for hers; and she is to be instructed that any scrape she gets into with you is no scrape at all, but a distinction and a blessing."

"Upon my soul I should flatter myself you were jealous if I didn't know you so well," said Jocelyn with a laugh; "I only wish to protect the girl from annoyance and to insure the success of the whole scheme."

"If you could make me believe in your disinterestedness and virtue the only result would be that I should serve you less efficiently than otherwise. But you always liked deception for its own sake, and you are the same Hamilton Jocelyn that I knew in Richmond twelve years ago. Well, I shall know what tone to take with her."

"Take any tone you like, in the devil's name, so long as you take the position and observe the conditions!" exclaimed Jocelyn, getting up, with some signs of impatience.

"I will take the position on condition of being guaranteed my outfit and twelve hundred dollars," said Mrs. Bemax. "It is not high wages for the devil to pay, but it's better than nothing, and to live as comfortably as I can, so long as I do live, is the best I have to look forward to now. I'm not so fastidious in other respects as you do me the honor to imagine."

"Well, Meg, when you've enjoyed a few months' luxury you'll take a more genial view of things, I hope. Above all things make as good an impression on the lady as possible. She must learn to confide in you, and to take your advice in all social matters from the outset. You can do anything with her if she likes you and trusts you, and nothing if she doesn't."

"I understand; I am to be another mother to her!" said Margaret Bemax, in a tone and with a look in her eyes so quiet and yet so repellent that Jocelyn made no attempt to reply, but took his leave without further ceremony.

(To be Continued)

The Mafia Promise Revenge.

NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—Parkerson has received the following note, purporting to come from a member of the Mafia society: "Mafia warning.—You are a doomed man and God Almighty cannot save you. We have it sworn. Our comrades you murdered, and we will kill you and your family. You will be poisoned. The stiletto will do for the rest."

The Mafia in Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 17.—Frank T. Hagadorn stood on the street to-day waiting for a car. Three Italians were near him. Hagadorn talked of the New Orleans lynching and said every member of the Mafia should be hung. The Italians at once drew knives and attacked him. He was severely cut.

Deserved Their Fate.

LONDON, March 17.—The St. James Gazette says it is curious to find the people of Italy lamenting the death of the Mafia conspirators at New Orleans. They were wretches who had been driven out of their own country as pests of society. The grief of the Marquis di Rudini for the men who were lynched will not be long or very profound. If the Mafias had not emigrated they would have received equally short shrift from Sicilian vigilantes.

Catarrh

Is a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

Facts are Stubborn Things

So is Bad Blood. The difference between them is that a fact is here to stay. Bad Blood can only stay until Burdock Blood Bitters is used, then it must go. It takes facts to prove this to your satisfaction, and we give them to you every time we catch your eye. Here is one of them. Don't throw the paper down, but read this letter from Mr. Fred. Taylor, a detective of Winnipeg. We present his portrait, together with that of his little daughter, mentioned in his letter.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER.

ONE OF THE GALLANT 90TH BATT.

DEAR SIRS,—Having felt out of order for some time, and having no energy or appetite, blotches on legs, tumor on neck—arising from impure blood, doctors doing me no good, I was induced to buy some B.B.B. I was very much against patent medicines at the time, having tried so many, but after using two bottles I began to get better, and at the fourth bottle was completely well and around again. I believe in B.B.B. now, I tell you. I send you a photo of myself and little daughter, Lilly. B.B.B. cured her of nasty blisters which came out on her lips. Yours thankfully,

"PLON PLON" IS DEAD.

Prince Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte Dead —One of the Familiar Figures of the Second Empire in France.

ROME, March 17.—Prince Napoleon Joseph Charles Paul Bonaparte died this afternoon. Prince Napoleon has been a familiar figure in Europe for more than 40 years. Cousin of the man of destiny who was to become Emperor of the French and second son of Jerome Bonaparte, at one time King of Westphalia, by his second marriage with Princess Frederika of Wurtemberg, he was born in Trieste and his earliest years were those of the exile.

He was a great traveler in his youth, visiting pretty nearly every quarter of the globe before his marriage in 1859 to the Princess Clotilda, daughter of King Victor Emanuel of Italy. As a Bonaparte he was forbidden to reside in Paris until 1845, when Louis Philippe granted him permission, which was soon withdrawn in consequence of the prince's compromising himself with the revolutionists. After the downfall of the Bourbons in 1848 the prince was elected to the Constituent Assembly. At the breaking out of the Crimean war he was put in command of an army corps, but, proving his incompetence, was recalled and placed on "sick leave." His next military excursion was in the Franco-Italian war against Austria, which broke out immediately after his marriage with Clotilda. He crossed the Appennines in a march of great brilliancy and dash, but arrived in time only to witness the signing of the treaty of peace at Villa Franca. He visited the United States in 1861.

He returned to Paris shortly before the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war, but was again expelled in 1873, this time forcibly, for which he brought suit for damages. He then retired to his chateau, near Geneva, where he has lived with his wife and two sons, spending part of the time in Italy, where he died. Eugenie hated him and gave him the nickname of "Prince Plon-Plon," or "the dipper." His resemblance to Napoleon I. was very marked, and Beranger, alluding to Plon-Plon's fatness, said he was "a genuine Napoleon medal dipped in fat," whence came Eugenie's gibe at his expense. By his death his eldest son, Prince Victor, born in 1862, becomes heir to the Imperial throne—what there is of it.

Other Obituary Notes.

M. Moutkouroff, Bulgarian Minister of War, died yesterday in Naples.

General Campenon, formerly French Minister of War, is dead.

The Princess Marianne Bonaparte, a grand niece of Napoleon I., died at Ajaccio, Corsica.

The eminent English engineer, Sir Joseph Bazalgette, died yesterday. Sir Joseph had been ill for some time.

May Gordon, the actress, formerly of the Margaret Mather Company, died at St. Vincent's Hospital, New York, yesterday.

Frank J. Frayne, the well-known actor, died last night at Chicago of neuralgia of the heart. He accidentally shot his first wife while acting in Cincinnati in 1882, and in 1884 he married Margaret Thompson, who survives him.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, March 18.—Creditors of Mr. J. McArthur Griffith, of J. McArthur Griffith & Co., of 10 Bay-street, are feeling very anxious at that gentleman's prolonged absence from town. Mr. Griffith left for Montreal last Friday, and since his departure nothing has been heard from him. On Monday Lawyer W. G. Thurston, under execution on behalf of the creditors of the Collins estate, for, whom Mr. Griffith was acting as assignee, sold out the furniture of his residence, No. 38 Metcalfe-street. The missing man owed the estate $2800 and is said to be behind in the accounts of three other insolvent estates left in his charge. Up to yesterday no special action was taken in the matter of Mr. Griffith's absence from town, and the hope is still expressed that he will return.

There is a report around town that a body was seen yesterday floating in the Bay towards the Eastern gap, and near the Island shore. As Expressman Michael Rock has been missing for some weeks it is thought possible that this body may prove to be his. Esplanade Constable Williams will make an effort to recover it to-day.

William Lovatt, aged 17, whose parents live at No. 7 Sword-street, left the city five weeks ago sound in health and limb to work in a saw mill near Bracebridge. Yesterday he was brought back to the city and taken to the hospital maimed for life. On Monday while at work his foot became entangled in some machinery. Before he could be rescued his foot was crushed to a jelly, his ankle fractured and his leg broken in three places. The injured member will be amputated this morning.

Mr. Daniel McLean, the well-known wholesale leather dealer of 32 Yonge-street, has suspended payment. He has been in a tight place for some time, but it was thought that he would be able to pull through. His ultimate collapse is therefore somewhat of a surprise.

The liabilities will aggregate about $190,000, of which $20,000 are direct. The assets consist of the Yonge-street building, on which there is claimed to be an equity of $30,000, book debts and stock. The creditors do not place much value on either and consider their prospects anything but bright. The Bank of Toronto is said to be a creditor for $60,000, and Mr. D. W. Alexander, wholesale leather merchant, is owed $18,000, and Mr. Davis, tanner, of King, $17,600. Mr. Alexander is partly secured.

James Park & Son, pork packers and provision merchants of this city, are in financial difficulties. A statement is being prepared. Gunn, Flavelle & Co. are the largest creditors. It is expected that the firm will come out of the trouble all right.

The Seventeenth of March, the great celebration day of Catholic Irishmen, was duly honored in Toronto yesterday.

Sensational Suicide of a Farmer Near Kingston.

KINGSTON, March 17.—Isaac Clow, farmer, living about two miles from Harrowsmith, spent yesterday with his son, Matthias Clow at Hartington, and just before dark walked to the cheese factory and was found about an hour later lying on the ice. He had removed his coat and vest, and placing his braces around his neck choked himself to death. No reason is ascribed for the act. He leaves a large grown-up family. Clow was about 60 years of age.

The Newfoundland Arbitration.

PARIS, March 17.—The preamble of the Newfoundland bill, which was laid on the table in the Senate to-day, says France has protested repeatedly against the English lobster factories on the French shore as contrary to existing treaties. Arbitration, it is added, ought to result in lasting conditions which will satisfy Newfoundland.

Foreign Brevities.

T. P. O'Connor, M.P., announces that he intends to actively oppose Parnellism by all the legitimate means in his power.

Funeral services over the remains of Dr. Windthorst were held in Berlin yesterday. The remains were taken to Hanover.

A tuyere of Baird's blast furnace at Coalbridge exploded yesterday. Two men were roasted to death and nine others fatally scorched.

Alderman Valentine B. Dillon, jr., of Dublin will be the Parnellite candidate for the seat for North Sligo. Ald. Collery of Sligo will be selected by the McCarthyites.

Killed by a Train.

MAXVILLE, March 17.—Walter Shane, reeve of Pendleton, was driving a team of horses on a cross road near the station and just as the animals were crossing the track the train from Montreal due to pass that place at 11.20 came up, smashed the pole and threw the team on one side. The sleigh was dragged along with the engine till it was smashed to pieces, the reeve having no time to get out of the sleigh and receiving a severe blow on the head from the front part of the engine, from which he died in the course of 15 minutes.

OVER NIAGARA FALLS.

SENSATIONAL SUICIDE AT PROSPECT PARK.

A Stranger, Believed to be a Frenchman, Jumps to His Death—Sixteen Persons Returning from a Ball Precipitated Over the Famous Bridal Veil Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., March 18.—A man jumped over Niagara Falls at Prospect Point this afternoon. He came from the west this morning and had a ticket for New York, via West Shore Railroad. He was about 24 years of age. He was good looking and well dressed and weighed about 160 pounds. He had the appearance of a Frenchman and spoke in broken English.

GEORGETOWN, Col., March 18.—A frightful accident occurred at 3 o'clock this morning opposite the famous Bridal Veil Falls. Sixteen young people had engaged a team and band wagon to bring them home from a St. Patrick's ball at Silver Plume. At the point named the team became unmanageable and turned the entire party down the mountain side upon the rocks below. Those who were not hurt by the fall suffered from the kicks and plunges of the horses so that but one of the sixteen escaped injury. It is supposed the wagon came upon some ice and was too heavy for the animals to hold. Many will die.

Peculiar Accident.

PORT ARTHUR, March 18.—John Wright, who resides at Fort William, is now lying in the hospital here suffering from a portion of a darning needle imbedded in one of his legs. It appears that he and a companion were scuffling and Wright, who had a ball of yarn and darning needle in his pocket, fell and the needle ran into the leg and broke. He was brought to the hospital last week, and the attendant physician has so far been unable to extract the piece of steel.

Resulted Fatally.

MONTREAL, March 18.—The man Myers, who was stabbed in Lacey & Reynolds' pool room by one of the proprietors, died today at the general hospital. Shortly before his death he made a deposition accusing Reynolds of the murder. The latter is at large, having disappeared before any action was taken in the matter.

Wilfred Brisbois, who fell from a 3-story building while repairing some telephone lines Monday, died at the Notre Dame Hospital this morning.

A Fatal Flaw in the Law.

MONTREAL, March 18.—The first case under the new Thompson Act, which says that any man living in conjugal union with another man's wife is guilty of concubinage, was tried to-day by the Court of Queen's Bench in Appeal. It was decided that conjugal union meant in law the marriage tie, and as there was no marriage there was no charge under the act. The case was accordingly dismissed.

For Celebrating St. Patrick's Day.

LOWELL, March 18.—To-day 138 employes of the Merrimac mills were discharged because they remained out yesterday to celebrate St. Patrick's day. Ten persons were also discharged from the Lawrence Co.'s mills for the same reason.

A Call From Toronto.

CANTON, O., March 18.—Rev. Howard McQueary, the Episcopal minister convicted of heresy, will preach no more in Canton. He has had propositions from Unitarian churches at Chicago and Toronto.

Sequel to the Massacre.

NEW ORLEANS, March 18.—There was a shooting scrape here to-night between Arthur Dunn, one of the state counsels in the Hennessy case, and Frank Waters, a well-known newspaper reporter. Two shots were fired. Waters was killed and Dunn seriously injured.

The Cattle and Hog Embargo.

BERLIN, March 18.—Owing to the efforts of United States Minister Phelps Chancellor Von Caprivi has removed the embargo placed upon American cattle landed at Hamburg, and it is likely Mr. Phelps will be able to obtain removal of the restrictions placed upon the importation of the American hog.

Stricken With Paralysis.

ZANZIBAR, March 18.—Tippoo Tib has been stricken with paralysis, his right arm and side being affected.

Dandruff forms when the glands of the skin are weakened, and if neglected, baldness is sure to follow. Hall's Hair Renewer is the best preventive.

THE LOSS OF THE UTOPIA.

NEARLY 600 ITALIAN EMIGRANTS DROWNED.

Frightful Struggles for Life—A Howling Tempest Adds to the Horrors of the Scene—Full Particulars of the Disaster.

GIBRALTAR, March 18, 5 p.m.—Not until now has it been possible to give a full and authentic account of the sinking of the Utopia, the failing light making it difficult last night to see from the shore what was going on at the scene of the disaster, and the terrible gale making it almost impossible to communicate with the vessels until a late hour to-day. Early last evening the Utopia was seen steaming into the bay in the direction of the anchorage. When abreast of the ironclad Anson the Utopia staggered as though unable to make headway against the terrible current. Suddenly the strong gale combined with the current swept the ill-fated vessel across the bows of the Anson and in a moment her hull was pierced and cut by the ram of the ironclad. The Utopia, after pulling clear of the ironclad, drifted about before wind and sea. The rapid in-rush of water through the dent in her side caused her to settle down in five minutes from the time of the first impact. The Anson's boats were lowered immediately, as were also boats from the other vessels of the British Channel squadron, the Swedish man-of-war Freya and the cable ship Amboy. The ironclads turned their powerful electric search lights on the scene of the disaster to assist the rescuers. On the shore the news spread quickly, an enormous crowd soon gathered on the parade and great excitement prevailed. Little could be seen, however, save the looming hulls of the men-of-war and the white rays of the search lights falling upon the foam-flecked crests of the waves and illuminating the driving spindrift. The shrieks of the Utopia's passengers and crew could be plainly heard above the roaring of the gale. The sea was so heavy that the boats of the rescuers could not with safety approach the wreck, so they were compelled to lie to leeward, where they picked up the people as they were swept from the decks. As the Utopia's bows settled a terrible scene was witnessed from the boats. Those still on board the sinking steamer made a sudden rush en masse to the fore rigging, struggling for their lives and vainly seeking places of refuge. Twenty minutes later the forecastle was submerged and a large number of persons gathered there, who had not dared to leap overboard with the hope of being rescued by the boats and who had failed in their efforts to ascend the rigging, were carried away by the waves. The rescuers, blinded by the wind and rain, saw nothing but a confused struggling mass of human beings entangled with wreckage. A steam pinnacle rescued all those who had taken refuge in the main rigging, but the last ones were not taken off until 11 o'clock at night. They were so exhausted that they could do nothing for themselves. The blue jackets clambered into the shrouds and passed the helpless people to the rescuers in the boats. Both the British and the Swedish sailors did plucky and vigorous work. While a steam pinnace belonging to the British ironclad Immortalite was engaged in the work of rescue her screw fouled and she became helpless and drifted on the rocks. In trying to save themselves two of the sailors aboard the pinnace were drowned. The remainder were rescued.

Scenes of Horror.

The scene after the collision has probably never been before witnessed in the history of marine disasters. On one side was the sinking passenger ship crowded with about 700 immigrants, who filled the air with wild, horrible appeals for help and shrieks of terror as they saw death awaiting them in the dark angry waters of the Bay of Gibraltar. Overhead the clouds rushed furiously, driven along by the strong southwest gale, which had been one of the causes of the calamity. Right and left of the sinking vessel were the two monster battle ships, the Rodney and the Anson, pouring the light of their powerful electric reflectors upon the disabled steamship, lighting up the agony of her passengers and showing clearly, too clearly, the terrible position in which they were placed. Here and there were the warships, small boats manned by blue jackets, who strained every nerve as they bent to their oars in that heavy sea while striving gallantly to reach the drowning passengers of the Utopia.

576 Lives Lost.

The total number of lives lost is now placed at 576. Divers are at work recovering bodies from the wreck. Peterson, a Swedish quartermaster, who had been steering the Utopia a short time before the collision, says that just before the vessels came together he went below. While there he felt the shock of the collision and rushed from below, but before he reached the main deck the Utopia had gone broadside upon the spur of the Anson's ram. The commander of the Utopia, Captain McKeague, was on the steamship's bridge until the last moment. Peterson adds that as the Utopia was crushed by the Anson's ram he clambered up the davits of one of the steamship's boats and cut the ropes holding it. He had no time, however, to lower the boat away, as the bows of the Utopia had passed beneath the warship, and it was evident the passenger steamer was rapidly sinking. Soon after, the boats of the Anson having been promptly lowered, one of the men-of-war's cutters ran alongside the Utopia and Peterson jumped into her. He says that while on board the Utopia after the collision he was surrounded by a terrible mass of human beings, fighting their way desperately and savagely, regardless of sex or age, towards the boats. Men, women and children tumbled and climbed over each other in that horrible fight for a chance of escape from drowning.

Went Mad from Grief.

One poor woman who was rescued by the Anson's blue jackets went raving mad when she was convinced her children were drowned. There were similarly distressing incidents by the score, the most awful of all occurring when the Utopia, with a final desperate lurch, sank with her human freight clinging about her. Many who had sprung into sea as they saw the steamship could not float much longer were drawn down in the whirlpool caused by the Utopia's disappearance. Some came to the surface again for a few moments before sinking finally into their watery tomb. Others were able to cling to pieces of wreckage, floating spars, oars, guardings, hatchways, boats, life belts, etc., and thus keeping themselves above water until rescued by warship's boats. But the weaker succumbed more readily. Shrieking, praying women sank to rise no more with their terrified offspring clasped to their breasts. Children clung to their parents so desperately as in several cases to cause the death of both, where both might have escaped had better judgment been used. Husbands and wives sank—each grasping one another in frantic efforts to keep each other afloat, and many a good swimmer went down with some horrified, fear-maddened person clinging to him with the tenacity of the desperation of death.

Among Utopia's officers and petty officers who were saved by the boats of the war ships were Captain McKeague, the ship's doctor, boatswain, steward and carpenter.

The rescued passengers were most kindly cared for on board the warship or were taken ashore and housed in the Government building. A naval court of enquiry will be convened on board the flagship Anson. Ninety bodies have been recovered.

The authorities of Gibraltar are furnishing the rescued people lodging, food and clothing. The Anchor Line will take steps to forward the Utopia's survivors to their destination in the United States by another steamship of their line.

The passengers rescued included W. T. Colbron, a stock broker of New York city. C. C. Davis of Boston is missing. The officers and crew of the Anson state that the Utopia fouled the ram of the Anson and thus caused the damage which resulted in her sinking.

An Officer's Story.

An officer of the Utopia says. We were slowing our engines preparing to anchor. Before we realized our danger we found ourselves broadside on the bows of the Anson. There was a shout from both vessels which was instantly followed by the Anson's ram tearing into the Utopia about a quarter of a mile from shore at the time. The officers in talking about the catastrophe say they will never forget the scene that followed the collision. The Italians were thrown into a state of complete and cowardly panic. They yelled frantically and fought madly to reach the forecastle. A few of the married men dragged their wives with them, but the bulk of the single men were heedless of the piteous appeals of women and children. The forecastle and rigging were soon crowded and the vessel began to settle down. Presently an explosion with a deafening report occurred in the forecastle, killing many and throwing others into the sea. Luckily the masts held and remained some yards above the water, as the vessel touched bottom. From 40 to 50 persons were rescued from the masts. The only instances of manliness occurred among the people in the rigging. Many men had and nearly every woman clasped children to their breasts but they were gradually overcome by sheer exhaustion and cold and were compelled to drop their burdens and often follow themselves. Those in the lower rigging who were exposed to the full force of the waves were swept away before the first of the Anson's boats was able to reach them. Some of the men had tied to themselves each his wife or child, hoping to be able to float until they were saved. Several bodies so tied together were washed ashore dead. The majority of the Italians, however, behaved more like beasts than like reasoning men.

Gallant Attempt at Rescue.

At the height of the gale a British middy put off alone in a dingy to render assistance to half-drowned persons clinging to the wreckage. A seaman on the ironclad Rodney boldly plunged into the sea and after a desperate struggle with the waves saved a woman floating in the water. A rocket apparatus for throwing a life line to the doomed vessel was quickly got in readiness on the shore but it was found the vessel was at too great a distance for the line to reach it. Scarcely any of the women of the Utopia were saved.

From the forts the scene was appalling, being heightened by the weird search light effects. The terrorized emigrants huddled in a swaying mass so thickly that they hid the bows from sight. The shrieks borne ashore filled the spectators with intense horror and despair at their powerlessness to help.

Hundreds of Bodies Between Decks.

Divers who have examined the wreck of the Utopia report there are hundreds of bodies in the steerage and between decks. During the day the bodies of 28 men and one woman were recovered here, while at various other points along the coast the bodies of six men, 18 women, 7 boys and one girl were washed ashore. One of the dead women had her arms firmly locked around the corpse of her child. The remains were taken to a cemetery in the Spanish lines, where an inquest was held. The authorities here have provided ambulances, provisions, bedding and clothing for the survivors of the catastrophe and the inhabitants are assisting to their utmost in mitigating the distress of the poor people. A private fund has also been started for the shipwrecked passengers.

Two other saloon passengers besides Sig. Colbron were saved.

Strong pickets are stationed along the breakwater to recover other bodies that may be washed ashore.

Will Probably Not Be Allowed to Land.

NEW YORK, March 18.—The agents here of the Anchor line to-day received the following report regarding the disaster to the steamer Utopia:

The list of the saved embraces two cabin passengers, 290 steerage passengers and 25 of the crew. Fifteen of the crew and 475 passengers were lost. The ship was not insured. The cargo, intended for Mediterranean ports, was valued at $300,000 and the steamship at $400,000. The passengers saved will be brought over on the steamship Assyria of the same line, which was at Genoa at the time of the accident and has been ordered to Gibraltar.

By this delay the Utopia's passengers will not arrive here until after the new law, that no immigrant without personal effects shall be permitted to land, goes into effect. Col. Webber said to-day that the survivors of the Utopia would be probably examined at Gibraltar and the destitute and sick and crippled be left behind, only those with baggage and able to take care of themselves being brought. The Anchor Line was notified by Col. Webber of these facts.

The Utopia belonged to the Anchor Line Steamship Company. She was an iron screw steamer 2794 tons displacement, 678 horse-power, built in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1874. She was commanded by Captain Mitchell.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 18.—The Merchants' Exchange has advices that the Norwegian bark Impertator, bound from Cardiff to Santa Rosalia, is a total wreck east of Bonavista, Cape De Verde Islands, and that 12 of the crew were drowned.

Drowned in a Cistern.

BRAMPTON, March 18.—William Hunter, a retired farmer, 70 years old, accidentally fell into a cistern to-day and was drowned.

A Lamp, a Spark and Death.

ASHLAND, Pa., March 18.—While a gang of men were drilling a rock tunnel in the third lift at Centralia colliery to-day a spark flew from a lamp, fastened in a man's cap and fell into a large can of powder. Three men were fatally burned.

PRISONERS' REVOLT

OWING TO A SHORTAGE OF FOOD SUPPLIES.

Interesting Irish Items—"Ireland as a Nation"—Healey Accepts Parnell's Challenge for a Joint Resignation of Their Seats to Test the Electorate.

LONDON, March 18.—A train loaded with provisions for the prisoners and officials of Dartmoor Prison, who had been cut off from supplies by the terrible snowstorm here recently, reached the prison to-day after being blocked for 9 days. In the meantime the rations of the inmates of the prison had to be reduced and there was considerable grumbling among the convicts because they were forced to subsist on salt meat. One prisoner became so angered because his demands for food were not granted that he stabbed and seriously wounded one of the warders.

PELTED WITH STONES.

Two of Parnell's Speakers Driven Away by the People.

DUBLIN, March 18.—Messrs. Dalton and Hayden, Parnellite members of Parliament, attempted to-day to address the throng at the Portumna fair. Their efforts were not well received and they were warned to desist. The crowd began to grow ugly; still the members persisted. At first mud was thrown at them, then they were pelted with stones, and finally they were driven out of town and compelled to fly for their lives. Mr. Dalton was struck on the head by a heavy paving stone and seriously hurt.

"Ireland a Nation."

LONDON, March 18.—Justin McCarthy presided at a banquet last evening at the Canon St. Hotel. There was a large attendance and many ladies present. Cardinal Manning wrote: "Two motives prompted me to be with you, the first my old and tried sympathy for Ireland; the second, my joy at the sudden rise of an organization which more than any party or league hitherto existing represents the religious, social and national life of Ireland." The Cardinal then proceeded to endorse the action of the new party. Mr. McCarthy, proposing the toast "Ireland a Nation," said every day which passed counted for their side and for the nation's cause against the desires of any small party of men. They stood for "Ireland a Nation."

Parnellite Paragraphs.

BELFAST, March 18.—Parnell made an onslaught upon Belfast this morning. The News of this city belongs to the proprietors of The Freeman's Journal of Dublin, which strongly supports Parnell. The News recently has not been enthusiastic in its advocacy of Parnell's leadership, consequently the editor was dismissed to-day and a Parnellite appointed in his place.

CORK, March 18.—Maurice Healey, one of the members of Parliament for Cork city, announces that he accepts the challenge of Parnell that they should both resign their seats in Parliament and present themselves for re-election as a test of the popular sentiment.

In accepting Parnell's challenge Healey requested Parnell to name the date under which they were both to resign their seats in parliament, and says he hopes that Parnell will not resort to "committee from No. 15 or Boulogne tactics" to escape the judgment of the electors.

Speaking at Lambeth to-day Mr. McCarthy credited Parnell with the full blame for the failure of the Boulogne negotiations. He said one good result of the controversy was that Ireland had declared for ever against dictatorship. If the Irish were to be governed by a dictator he would as lief have Balfour as anybody else.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The Offer of That Province to Britain Will be Accepted.

LONDON, March 18.—In its final report the Parliamentary Committee on Colonization does not advise a general extension of the system of state aided emigration except in case of the congested districts in Scotland and Ireland.

The committee suggests that the provisions of the Irish land bill dealing with the question of congested districts be also applied to Scotland. They advise that the experiment of sending a hundred crofter families to America be postponed, and also advise the adoption of the proposal of British Columbia to furnish £100,000 from the treasury, free of interest for five years, to assist in the work of colonization.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Jack Burns Says He Needs Work to Keep Him from Mischief.

LONDON, March 18.—A lively scene occurred at the meeting of the London County Council to-night in the course of the council's discussion of the matter of opening the new Waterloo Park, which the Prince of Wales has undertaken to formally dedicate to public uses.

When the question came fairly before the meeting a Radical member offered a motion that the ceremony of opening the park be postponed until the Prince of Wales shall have cleared himself of the baccarat scandal. In an instant there was a tremendous uproar. Every member was on his feet and all were talking at once.

Finally John Burns obtained a hearing and made a characteristic speech against royalty in general and the Prince of Wales in particular. The Prince, he declared, would be much better employed in opening parks than in gambling, and the city ought to provide for frequent ceremonies to keep him out of mischief. After speaking in this strain for a few minutes Burns was bowled down and the chairman, Sir John Lubbock, ruled the motion out of order.

Newfoundland to Have a Delegate.

LONDON, March 18.—Sir James Fergusson, Political Secretary of the Foreign Office, in the House of Commons to-day, replying to a question on the subject, said that the Government of Newfoundland had been invited to name a delegate having full local knowledge of the lobster fisheries dispute to represent the colony of Newfoundland on the Board of Arbitration which is to decide upon the differences existing between the English and French Governments as to those fisheries.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

HAVE NOT LOST A SINGLE DAY

LIBERAL ROGUERY.

Bogus Ballots Used in West Northumberland—A Rascally Scheme.

A despatch from Cobourg to the Toronto Empire on Tuesday says:—The recount which took place here yesterday and to-day before His Honor Judge Benson has developed what at present looks like the most corrupt act of the Reform party yet perpetrated in Canada. As the recount proceeded it was discovered that a number of the ballots were printed with different type or on different paper from those issued by the Government. The accepted idea tonight is that some over-zealous partisan of the Reform candidate procured these ballots and furnished them to doubtful or bribed voters, who, after getting the genuine ballots from the deputy returning officer, returned from the marking booth and tendered the bogus in lieu of the proper ones. This conclusion has been arrived at from the fact that the deputy returning officer's initials do not appear on the backs of these ballots, as they do on the genuine ones.

The recount was concluded this afternoon, and the decision of Judge Benson is to the effect that all ballots lacking the deputy returning officer's initials, but otherwise properly marked, having been received by such officers, shall be counted good; thus allowing Mr. Hargraft to retain his seat.

The Franchise Act.
Toronto Mail.

No doubt the Dominion franchise law is the result of a fear—which the active partitipation of the Provincial Governments in the recent struggle does not tend to allay—that the local authorities may, through the franchise, cripple the Ministerial party in the country. It is, in a word, a protective as well as an aggressive measure.

A Liberal's Opinion of the People.
Bobcaygeon Independent.

The last hundred years has been a struggle to obtain the franchise for the people. They have got it. How do they use it? The masses have just as true a conception of the use of a franchise as a cow would have of the use of a side pocket.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediatey see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50c and $1. Trial size free. At all druggists.

OBITUARY.—It is with deep regret we have to announce the death of Miss Mary Hutchins, daughter of Mr. John Hutchins. She had an attack of la grippe some time ago which left her lungs very weak and gradually developed into consumption. She rapidly grew worse and on Monday evening she peacefully passed away. Deceased had been a member of the choir for a number of years and was very highly esteemed by all with whom she associated. The remains were interred in the Baptist burying ground on Wednesday, March 11th, followed by a large number of relatives and friends. Mr. Hutchins and family have the sympathy of the community in this their sad bereavement.

IMPROVING THE CEMETERY.—The managing committee of the Baptist burying ground here have removed all unnecessary bushes. They intend fixing up our beautiful little cemetery this coming season.

PERSONAL.—Miss Mary Bothwell, of Lindsay, is visiting friends here for a few weeks.

HORSE DISEASE.—Horse distemper ended fatally in two cases in this neighborhood during the past week, Mr. John E. Lobb, of Asphodel, losing an animal in the early part of the week, and the Convey Bros. losing another on Sunday.

FOXES.—Foxes are very numerous this winter, and war is being waged upon those pests. Mr. John E. Lobb, of Birdsalls, captured ten of these animals in two days last week. A black fox has been seen in the neighborhood, and various schemes are being devised to trap or poison the beast for its valuable skin.

The heavy wind which prevailed broke a large boom which was moored up the river and hundreds of logs were driven down the stream, very many of them going over the dam. BURNED TO DEATH.

Three Persons Burned to Death and Many Fatally Hurt Swarming Down the Fire Escape.

NEW YORK, March 18.—The five-story brick tenement, 87½ Allen-street, was gutted by fire at an early hour this morning. Three members of Bernard Jaster's family were burned to death. They were: Bernard Jaster, 56 years old; Betsy Jaster, 18 years old, and Sarah Jaster, 15 years old. The following people were more or less injured: Minnie Jaster, 56 years old, burned about the face; Abraham Goldstein three weeks old, thrown from a third-story window to the sidewalk and received internal injuries. The fire broke out at 3.15 o'clock, when the families were fast asleep. The tenants, Hebrew tailors with their families, to a man, roused suddenly to confront death in the most terrible form, swarmed down the fire escapes, shrieking and wailing as they called their dear ones. The ladders were thrown up hastily to drop them down, but some, in the confusion and smoke, missed both wood and iron ladders. The iron rungs of the fire escape were turning white with heat when Max Goldstein reached for them from the third floor and he recoiled in despair. He stood holding his little children. From the street the police yelled to him to throw them down. He threw the first one, Moses, aged five years, and Policeman Beyer caught the boy. Rose, the baby, came next. Abraham followed so quickly that, though the policeman broke his fall, they were unable to catch him. He fell heavily to the pavement and was picked up senseless, injured internally. The father himself jumped after and escaped unhurt. He tossed the children by the heels. The building was gutted and the tenants lost their all. In the fifth story next to the roof the firemen found Jaster and his two daughters dead. They found him kneeling at the window overlooking Allen-street with both hands on the sill, as though he had fallen overcome by the flames on the very threshold of escape. Under him, where she had crept up close in the hall of death, was the body of Bessie. Kneeling by the bed at the other side of the room they found the body of Sarah wrapped in a blanket. All had been burned and smothered to death.

The body of Philip Eisebiany, who lived with Mr. Goldstein, was found this evening. This makes the fourth body recovered.

Half a Million in Ashes.

DUNDEE, March 18.—Wilkes' linen works at Kirriemuir were burned to-day, loss $50,000.

Saved His Life by His Pluck.

PORT ARTHUR, March 18.—J. A. Hunter, brakesman on the Canadian Pacific Railway running between Fort William and White River, was in the act of descending the ladder while the train was in motion at Port Caldwell and had just put his foot on the last rung, when he slipped and fell to the ground, his feet on the rail and right under the wheel. By a superhuman effort he threw himself forward and grasped the brakebeam, drawing his body forward and his feet from under the wheels, but not before he had sustained severe injuries. The wheels had struck him, breaking one ankle and cutting and smashing his feet to a fearful extent. He was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he now lies.

Cut His Throat With a Penknife.

WATFORD, March 18.—The neighborhood of King's Court, near Watford, was startled yesterday to hear that a young man named Walter Lewis had attempted to commit suicide. Lewis is employed in the mill there. He had dressed himself in the morning, intending to go to Watford, and left the house to get something in the barn. Later he was found in the stable with his throat cut from ear to ear, the weapon used being a small penknife. No reason can be assigned for the deed.

Stand Your Ground.

When you make up your mind to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy some other preparation instead. Clerks claim that "ours is as good as Hood's" and all that, but the peculiar merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla cannot be equalled. Therefore have nothing to do with substitutes and insist upon having Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier and building-up medicine.

Plon-Plon's Memoirs.

LONDON, March 12.—Prince Napoleon's memoirs established by written evidence the fact that he never disagreed with Napoleon III., even on the day following the fall of the Ajaccio speech, that he always remained a Frenchman and had nothing in view but the interests of France at the time of the Italian affair. The memoirs include the Prince's correspondence with Napoleon III. up to the time of the latter's death.

The Chronicle's Rome correspondent and The Fanfulla both declare that Prince Napoleon was unconscious when the sacrament of extreme unction was administered to him

Monte Carlo Scandal.

MONACO, March 18.—The Englishman who at Monte Carlo twice broke the bank recently yesterday won $40,000, making him, he says, quits with the gambling palace. He adds that he has hitherto been a loser and accuses the bank of cheating.

Various stories are in circulation in connection with the heavy losses lately sustained by the bank. It is said that they are due to a regular system of play organized by a syndicate of wealthy Londoners. It is also asserted that the large stakes were all won by these individuals.
